New officers for the year have been elected, but balloting is not tabulated for the electing of two new directors. Bob Roark will lead the Chamber for the coming year and he will be assisted by Lowell Lasley as vice president. Remaining on the Board of Directors will be Lyndon Loyd, Mike Smith, Charlie Brown and Sharon Wright. Jane Thomas will continue as Secretary for the Chamber. Retiring Directors will be Kent Sims and Delbert Thomas.

As has been the practice for the past few years, recognition will be given to the outstanding citizens of the past year. Named will be the Outstanding Man, Woman, Teenager, Employee and Farmer and/or Rancher. These awards will be presented by a member of the committee making the selection.

Tickets to the banquet are presently on sale at $4.00. Contact any member of the Board of Directors for tickets.

"Morning Star" is a carefully selected group of outstanding musicians, disciplined to long hours of work making possible the opportunity to transmit their Christian Faith in exciting and meaningful expression. The name is scriptural, taken from the reference as Christ being the "Light and Morning Star". It is their hope that they may share God's Light and Love through music, letting His spirit illuminate and draw men closer to His love.

"Morning Star" is composed of 13 of the most outstanding and talented students at McMurry College. Students in this year's group are: Cheryl Allen, Abilene, Texas; Cindy Dickson—San Antonio, Texas; Pat Guinn—Lovington, New Mexico; Julie Holcomb—Dallas, Texas; Mary Robinson—Borger, Texas; Bruce Cain—Abilene, Texas; Dennis Kunkel—Abilene, Texas; Ken

"Morning Star" has thrilled thousands in churches, youth conferences, community concerts, schools and concerts for the Armed Forces. You'll enjoy the highly talented voices and instrumentalists which blend together in unique musical sensitivity through a wide variety of musical style and repertoire. They have the very finest sound equipment, enabling them to produce sounds compatible with today's Christian and Folk Music.

Dr. David Blackburn, Chairman of the Division of Fine and Applied Arts, and Chairman of the Music Department is the director and arranges many of the numbers for the group. His wife, Mrs. Gail Blackburn, is the accompanist. Derven Rodgers is the lead guitarist, and Paul Hoffman the bass guitarist.

A combination of old and new songs, fresh musical arrangements, a beautiful blend of nine voices, plus outstanding instrumental background give "Morning Star" not only a unique witness, but a beautiful and pleasing sound which is appealing to all who hear.

"Morning Star" has produced its third stereophonic LP album entitled "In His Love" which will be on sale following each concert along with 8 track tapes. This album was recorded at Autumn Sound Studios, under the direction of Audio Engineer, Phil York, using the very finest in stereo recording equipment. The album was produced by Century Records in Los Angeles, California. The album provides a high quality of craftsmanship, both musical and audio and more important, an unforgettable Christian witness through song.

As quoted by Dr. Thomas K. Kim, President of McMurry College, "An opportunity to hear this outstanding singing group represents a new and unmatched musical experience for the audience."

"Morning Star" has achieved tremendous success in their three years of organization. They have been hailed by many as one of the finest Christian singing groups in our country today. Each member of this year's "Morning Star" is first a dedicated Christian, and a highly sensitive and trained musician in their own right. These many and highly trained individual talents are put together to create the beautiful sound and witness of "Morning Star."

TWO MUSTANG GRIDDERS SELECTED ON CLASS B ALL-STATE ELEVEN

The co-champion Wheeler Mustangs placed two of their gridiron stalwarts on the Class B All State football team that was recently announced by the Associated Press.

Jim Verden and Don Brown made the elite team and both played great parts in helping the Mustangs carve out a 9-1 record and a share of the district championship with the Groom Tigers this past football season.

Verden, the 6'3", 235 lb. tackle, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Verden and made the all state team as an offensive tackle after gaining all district recognition both offensively and defensively at a tackle position.

Besides being a bulwark in the Mustangs line, Verden did all of the kicking chores for Wheeler and his three field goals accounted for all of the points the Mustangs got in their narrow 12-9 loss to the Groom Tigers who were eliminated from the state playoffs by Gorman, the eventual state champion.

Many football observers felt that the Wheeler Mustangs were the best Class B team in this area of the state at the close of the season and a lot of this feeling had to be attributed to the play of Verden and Brown.

Brown, the 6', 180 lb. running back and defensive back, is the son of Mrs. Jeane Brown and was selected to the all state team as a defensive back and gained all district honors at this position and also at running back.

Jim Verden

Slowed by illness early in the season, Brown still came back and gained over 1200 yards rushing for the season in addition to being a standout performer on defense.

Verden and Brown are both seniors and their efforts in representing Wheeler High School didn't stop with the end of football season.

Both young men are starters on the Mustangs basketball team that is currently tied for the top spot in district competition and both are quite active in all aspects of participation, both athletically and academically.

"Wheeler and the whole area should be proud of the accomplishments of these two fine football players," Coach Preston Smith said this week.

"They both are great young men and they made my coaching a lot easier with their all out effort and leadership and their shoes are going to be hard to fill this next season," the head football coach and athletic director added.

antibiotics or hormonal injections, without forced feedings of nutrients, without feed mixtures, cattle developed into the supreme beef and milk producing machines that they are today largely on their own efforts.

A long time ago, wild animals and cattle were allowed to roam freely. They could go anywhere they wanted. They had all kinds of options for their own nutrition and they did a good job of taking the options for optimum production.

Louis J. Keester, president of Feed Service Corp. (FSC), Crete, Neb., says.

"They had salt licks, they had high protein forage areas, they had mineral licks, they had water and they had low protein forage grazing areas. They did a good job with all of these options. They used the options, they produced well, they reproduced."

When man found profit in raising beef for market, he built fences that limited cattle to a certain area. Unless he chose an exceptional portion of land that provided cattle with everything, some of their needed elements were taken away from them.

Later, man again upset the natural plan of things when he assumed the role of nutritionist for cattle. He confined cattle to a feedlot where nutrients needed by cattle were no longer available to them free choice. Although the nutrients needed to produce beef and milk had not changed one atom since cattle first evolved, man had come in with mixed feeds forcing cattle to take a wide assortment of nutrients whether or not they needed them. Cattle still require the same basic elements at the proper time in the correct amounts.

That's why Keester and FSC came up with a simple five point program that returns the options to cattle wherever they are—from the range to the feedlot and in between. In essence, the program is based on the assumption that the best way to keep all elements in balanced and produce a healthy animal is to feed all elements separately, free choice, and let the animals themselves be the nutritionists. Whether you're a cow-calf producer, a feeder stocker, dairy man or the manager of a huge feedlot, the program can cover all your cattle's nutritional needs.

Neta Evans Hosts Briscoe HD Club

Neta Evans was Hostess to the Briscoe H. D. Club which met Tuesday, January 18, 1977, in the club house.

Recycling, "Is it really worth it?" was the subject discussed, by Barbara Williams and Emma Rogers, as well as all members entering in the discussion. Many useful articles were shown which had been recycled. The questions to ask yourself before starting are: Can the garment be recycled with out looking made over?—Is the fabric worth using?—What will the trim cost?

The main reason for recycling is saving money: A great deal of satisfaction can come from making yesterdays clothing into today's fashions.

Refreshments were served to the following members: Ruby Zybach, Emma Rogers, Sue Ratcliff and Melody, Evelyn Meek, Mary Dodd, Essie Finsterwald, Barbara Williams and Denise, Irene Zybach, and the Hostess Neta Evans.

The next Club meeting will be February 1, in the Club house. Visitors welcome.

"The bases of the five points of the program were developed over a period of several years time, but have been well established for at least a decade," Keester says.

"They consider the microbiology of the rumen and are directed toward optimally supporting the crop of microbes in the rumen that the animal uses as its own protein source. Without a continuous source of microbial protein, the biological potential of an animal cannot be achieved."

Thus, the goal of the five point program is to furnish each animal with the correct amount of protein required to keep the microbiology of the rumen at the optimum production level. It scorns forced feeding, undue stress on the animal and any excess or deficiency of one or more nutritional elements for the animal.

The program supplies the proper building blocks for the rumen microbes. These blocks are water, cellulose, minerals and vitamins, protein and energy, and grain. Each of these blocks, if freely available to cattle and taken in the right amounts, provides the rumen flora with all the nutrients needed to convert roughage to beef and milk. "The program does not vary between feedlot and range except through selection of the plane of nutrition and methods of handling feed-

 "Let's take a look at the FSC five point program one by one. The first step, water, is probably the most important, Keester says. Cattle must be furnished with ample amounts of water where they can get it when they need it and without having to travel long distances. Water, of moderate temperature and free availability, is perhaps the cornerstone of the entire five point program.
 "If the rumen processes are to be nearly constant the animal must be able to adjust the water content according to its needs. If watered infrequently, it will overfill in anticipation of water withdrawal and will be forced to allow the rumen to dry excessively before its next drink," Keester says. "This practice has profound adverse effects on both rumen and blood chemistry and therefore conversion is not as efficient."

 Step two entails providing roughage at all times to the animal. Roughage provides cellulose both as a carbohydrate source and as a carrier for the contents of the rumen. Ideally, roughage should average no more than 12 1/2 percent protein for best results. This should be fed free choice in unlimited amounts as a source of carbohydrates for cattle, Keester advises.
 If low protein roughage like brome, prairie hay, silage, stalks or straw is also available to the animal when it wants it, the animal will eat enough to put the rumen flora at an optimum point for good digestion.
 "The great advantage to man is the ability of the ruminant's rumen microbes to digest the cellulose which neither man nor monogastric animals can utilize. In converting cellulose roughages to meat and milk, a tremendous upgrading of energy content occurs. The rumen is designed to require a certain amount of roughages as a minimum for its efficient operation."

 Next step in the program is allowing access to minerals and nutrients to cattle free choice. Keester maintains that both excesses and deficiencies of minerals and vitamins are harmful to the animal and in some cases to the soil.
 Instead of man regulating what an animal requires, Keester says, let the animals themselves do it. Have available at all times the various minerals and vitamins necessary for healthy growth. Because the needs of animals vary depending on their stage of growth, the season of the year, its sex, whether a female is pregnant and the necessity of milk production, only the animal's biological systems can know what they need and when they need it.
 Keester says cattle can and will make changes in their mineral and vitamin needs when warranted. "The animal through its extremely complex biological feedback system is quite capable of adjusting the mineral and vitamin part of its nutritional environment, as it did historically on open ranges until man confined them to restricted pastures and dry lots."

Then there is the hand-in-hand items of protein and energy. To get energy to the cattle in a form that encourages the synthesis of animal protein, Keester recommends supplementing with normal propyl alcohol, a rich source of high energy hydrogen. The inclusion of this energy source in special supplements, feed free choice or mixed in a ration, speeds the rate at which the rumen can produce animal protein from either vegetable protein or non protein nitrogen.
 Finally we come to the last step of the program—grain. Grain is the controlling agent of the entire program and Keester compares it to the accelerator in an automobile. Feed it free choice and the animals will select their best cruising speed; everything progresses with ease. Force feeding excess grain is like pushing the accelerator to the floor and blowing your engine.
 Grain controls the overall rate of production. It can be fed free choice in unlimited amounts or it can be rationed. It just depends on what type of operation you have and what you want the final outcome of your operation to be.
 For instance, the cow-calf man would not necessarily need to provide supplemental grain feeding for his beef cows, dry or with calf, overwintering the winter, if the rest of the program is followed.

The stocker/feeder who desires to finish calves to 1,100 pound animals can feed as little as one pound of grain per day per hundredweight and get desirable results.
 Then there is the feedlot man. He must get a maximum rate of gain from his animals and this may call for a high grain ration. Allowing the cattle free choice self-fed grain while simultaneously allowing continuous access to supplements and roughage keeps cattle gaining weight at an efficient, profitable rate.
 Keester warns that feeding excessive amounts of grain can mean depressed production rates and health problems for the animal. However, because grain is the "controller," the "rate of production can be varied from very little to maximum" by controlling only the grain in the ration.
 That's the FSC five point program. Taken individually each step makes each head of cattle a more efficient beef and milk producing machine. Taken all together in a program, the five steps utilize cattle's unique abilities to choose the proper elements they need when they need it. The end result is healthy animals that "grow rapidly, calve and breed back readily and produce well," Keester says.
 Emphasis of the program centers on free choice for the animal. Force feeding of any nutrient can create chemical imbalance in the animal, Keester says. "The program gives the animal the choice of accepting or refusing a nutrient rather than being required to take excessive amounts of one nutrient to obtain another it may be short of."
 Keester adds that the program, it used properly, will work in wintering operations, spring, summer and fall pasture operations, spring, summer and fall pasture operations, dairies, feedlots, corn stalk fields, milo stubble and range country.
 Again only the selection of the plane of nutrition and the methods of handling feedstuffs mark the difference between the operations.
 For instance, Keester says,

2001
 Recently Mrs. Bedowitz assigned to all of her classes the topic "2001" as a basis for Short Stories. Her are two of the stories:

They were the only two alive on Earth, and they knew it. Ten years of searching was proof that they were the only ones left. The ecologists of the 1970's had predicted it; it was inevitable. What possibly could they do now?
 A lottery had been held ten years ago, and these two people had won (if you can call it winning). One was white, and one was black. One was male and one was female. They knew that the burden of rejuvenating the world with life rested on their shoulders.
 At first they disliked each other. During the days when the world was heavily populated, they both had been renowned bigots. Before they could begin their task, they had to shed all their inhibitions. They had to learn to live with one another.
 Finally, after five years of anger, pain, and self-pity, they had become free of all inhibitions. They realized that over the years they had learned to love and care for one another. It did not matter that they were of different races. The bigotry that once had existed had vanished into thin air.
 They came to the conclusion that when they had children, their children would be a mixture of black and white. This would evolve into an entire new race, one that would not have to exist with another race. The harmony of one race that will live on would extinguish all wars, hatred, and terror.
 After ten years, they had brought three children into this new world. Their task was under way.

 They were the only two alive on Earth, and they knew it. Ten years of searching was proof that they were the only ones left. The ecologists of the 1970's had predicted it, it was inevitable. What possible could they do now?
 The food supply was adequate enough to last another one hundred years; that is, if they reached their supply through the remainder of the food left in the stores. The plants and animals were gone too. The whole world was left up to them.
 Sue's dream had come true. She always wanted all the clothes in the world, all the food she could eat, and a new car. She could now take her choice. Anything she wanted was at arm's length, but there was no competition for it.
 Tom always wanted to be the most important man in the world, high in his society. He was top on the "totem pole". He was the only man in his society. Second thoughts entered his head. This was not the way he wanted it to be.
 Tom and sue wished 11 years ago, "...if only everyone else would disappear, we could have anything we wanted!" This seemed like the idealistic life for 11 and 12 year olds.
 Some Goddess had given them their unrealistic wish, taking away every form of society.
 The air had become thick, and Tom and Sue found it difficult to breathe. They felt an asthmatic feeling come upon them. They both lay to rest. They would dream of an eternal life of socialism, never waking up to reality.

Editorial
 The most overlooked people in our community are some who should receive much recognition. They are not paid to be friendly, they do not have to listen, but they do.
 These people are not paid to work overtime, or sponsor clubs and classes, but they do.
 What these people are paid for is to teach, 's right, the teachers of Wheeler High. They let us out of class, listen to our problems, put up with our moods, are overjoyed with our achievements and still find time to teach us in the class room.
 To the teachers we say "Thanks," and give them a pat on the back. We are behind you just as you are us-100 per cent.

Laura Guthrie
On Board New Mexico Transportation Bus.
I'm barely making the paper this week. It is past my deadline, but the varityper and the editor are generous souls.
I'm on my way home from my favorite spot in New Mexico—Ruidoso. I made the trip in order to attend the 50th Wedding Anniversary party of my brother, Lee Wimberly and his wife Mable. Their sons and families hosted the party at one of the new places in the City, the Miner's Camp, which is the dining area of the Raquet and Swim Club. It was a gala event. I had the pleasure of seeing a lot of friends. Among them were Ab and Lonita Gunter. They are weathering the years quite well. Ab is a member of the City Council, and works with Area Development Corporations. Lonita works with the Indian Affairs, as she has for several years. Another couple with whom I had a nice chat was Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hunt. He is a brother of our late Dink Hunt. She is the sister of Artie Martin of the Briscoe community. They are fine. Seems Time has not taken much tole. Then I saw a cousin from Roswell, Margaret Childress, whose meeting is a rarity. I several of my friends who were in the party of Hawaii several years ago, one among them was a childhood friend.
Ruidoso people are so hospitable. Slight acquaintances soon become friends. I've always been so accepted.
As I travel along, I have read the Ruidoso News. I enjoyed a

in the feedlot, we would provide all five points of the program, at all times, on a free choice basis. The animals would normally limit themselves to about 60 to 65 percent grain. Since this is physically difficult for most feedlots, a mixed ration of about this ratio is normally provided. We prefer that silage, hay or even straw be also available so the animals may have additional roughage if needed. We emphasize that low protein roughage must be provided; alfalfa or other legumes are generally too high in protein, calcium and estrogens to constitute the bulk of the roughage.
"Minerals should be individually self fed, as on the range. If adequate roughage is present, consumption will not be excessive from a cost view point. If the feeder cannot supply adequate roughage, special precautions can be taken to increase the ash consumption to a level where mineral intake is normal."
The five point program is an inexpensive system covering all the areas of nutrition vital to today's cattle. Implementation of the program returns the role of nutritionist back to cattle. After all, what better way is there to raise cattle other than the way nature does it?

Would you believe it - the most common cause of deafness is impacted wax in the ear canals. This kind of deafness grows slowly, usually unnoticed by the individual. Most common in the elderly, it can however occur in children. A doctor can readily remove the excess ear wax - it should never be done by amateurs probing in the ear, as a ruptured eardrum can result.
