Most of us in modern world are convinced that the most logical and satisfactory approach to life is to classify everything in some suitable category We have learned from biology that all living things are classified into plants and animals, that animals are divided into protozoa or metazoa and that these can be classified into still other groups and sub-group s. Music is categorized into various types as classical. semi-classical, popular, or country and western. The go vernment is divided into the judicial, the legislative and the executive branches. Even people are relegated to various economic, intellectualk tual, or racial categories. We also carry our categorizing over into the spiritual ra itual realm. The very fact that we divide everything into the spiritual realm. The very fact we divide everything into the "physical" or the spiritual illustrates this tendency for pigeonhol ng. We speak of religion business, family, and recreation as though they were solid "categories" not to be invaded or mixed with each other. After all, that is the supposed way to live logically and happily. But to this set of rather ingrained presuppositions we are told in the New Testament that Christ is Lord of all of life-of every category. Our bodies as well as our spirits belong to God. Christ came to dictate the kind of moral lives that we should live, what our personal relationships to other people should be, even how we should respond to our government. Indeed, Christ as Lord of life means that he has a place in every aspect of our lives; he walks with us through all the seasons and celebrations of the year and through the periods of personal and national

And most important of all, we find that looking at life this way does not make it more difficult. Rather, life becomes more livable, pulsating, real! Christ now is our advocate, our helper our counselor. He has "pl t life together" for us. We are no longer 'partioned," living under the one Lord who gives life-in-present divided individuals. We are its full and deep meaning gives to our lives a direction which points us in hope toward life-in-the-future! Is Christ the Lord of your life? If not, call me... 826-5542 or 8 26-3054.

"Give us a market and remunerating prices and we can raise an amount of produce that will astonish the world.'

Does this sound like some-

- thing a modern-day mechanized farmer might say as he makes his cropping plans in the mid-1970's? Actually the statement was made well over a century ago

It illustrates that incentive was always a major consideration in the minds of farmers in planning their agricultural

by a farmer in Scottsville, production levels. The New York Sate farmer went on to say that he was gratified to see a better system of farming taking the place of the old, careless and slovenly method previously followed in Western New

"This is to be attributed chiefly to the liberal prices obtained for our produce for the last few years, thereby producing in the farmer a stimulus to exertion, which he does not often feel when prices are so low as barely to pay the cost of production," he said.

His comments were echoed by another farmer from Dorchester County, Md.

"The last 10 years have been marked by a decided reformation in the farming operations of this county," he

He cited how the most primitive agricultural implements have been replaced by equipment, such as the Dragharrow. Manuring was then looked upon as an idle loss of time and money, he said.

"But now, how things have changed. Every farmer is striving to outstrip his neighbor in the largest yield of crops, in manuring and in all the improvements in farm machinery.

Today, as the American farmer is again called upon to play an ever larger role in helping to feed a hungry world, these words of a century and a quarter ago are more timely than ever.

As back in the 1850's, the farmer is ready to do the job that needs to be done. All he needs is the incentive in the form of a fair and balanced return for his increased effort.

Thanks to the voters of Wheeler County for your vote of confidence in electing me to the office of Tax Assessor-Collector of Wheeler County.

A special thanks to the many who worked so hard in my behalf.

My desire is to serve each tax payer in the county equally and always with courtesy.

20% of Americans eat a nutritionally poor diet, reported a survey by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. Surprisingly, this included affluent families, which reflects a lack of dietary knowledge rather than a lack of food money One-half of the households had diets that failed to meet the requirements for one or more nutrients. Calcium Vitamin A, and ascorbic acid (citrus fruits) were the nutrients most often found lacking. If one compares the size of the soda water department with the declining milk counter in many supermarkets, the results of the survey are understandable

Those present from Pampa were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Totty, Mrs. Russell Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cantrell, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Carlton, Miss Edna Daughetee, Mrs. Connie Faye Pipkin, and Lloyd Adamson.

The following persons from Amarillo were present Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Seitz, and Gale, Mr. and Mrs. Doc Bell, Dan Carlton, Mrs. Martha Schones, James and Ann Underwood, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Baker, Mr. and Mrs. rames Underwood, Stacey and Stephanie, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ward, Bert Welch, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mayfield and Roger; Donna Jean May-field, Darryl Blackman, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Mayfield and Bobbie, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Stafford, Charlie, Collin. and Joe Stafford, and John Mayfield.

Our Senior Citizens

Around 20 million Americans are over 65 these days, and many of them are hospitalized or shut-ins, while most of them live on modest fixed incomes. In many cases, because of their limited mobility and income, they depend on free television for their main source of interest, information and entertainment.

Fortunately, concerned legislators are helping to keep their TV free, although there are people who want to allow pay-cable TV networks to siphon off the best programs and then charge viewers for watching them. According to W. Dean

Mason, former president of the National Geriatric Society: "Almost one third, or 6.5 million, of our nation's elderly can be classified as poor or near-poor. In addition, approximately 50 percent of all older women have incomes below the poverty level. Should we impose unnecessary financial obligations upon older Americans who are in need of leisure time experiences which will help them in their pursuit of a meaningful life?'

Some people believe that if you catch a falling leaf, you will have a good and happy

Men who were legends rode the ranges of the Old West. they stalked the dusty streets of cow towns and boom towns. They fought, shot, loved and rode their way into the pages of what is unique American folklore. But, had it not been for the Longhorn. the cowboys of the Old West might today be as unheralded as the early American cattlemen of the East.

The Longhorn was a rangy critter, descended from tough Andalusian cattle brought to the New World in the early 16th century by Cortez, the Spanish explorer. The Longhorns flourished in the sparse vegetation of the arid South-

Where a Hereford or an Angus might starve to death. the Longhorn could find and eat enough to stay alive. Needless to say, the animals were more renowned for this survival ability than for the quality of their meat. While the meat could be eaten, the Longhorn's principal commercial value derived from their hides, horns, hooves and the tallow rendered from their

Immense herds of these animals accumulated on the plains and in the riverbeds of the American Southwest during the Civil War. In Texas alone, hundreds and hundreds of thousands of Longhorns, as wild and skittish as deer, abounded on the open range. As the East and Midwest became more and more urbanized, the growing population developed an appetite for meat and other animal products that far outstripped the production ability of local far-

Many ex-soldiers, from the North as well as the South, drifted westward to capture the Longhorns and drive them to railheads in Kansas or Oklahoma for shipment to market. It was not an easy way to make a living, but many Texas moguls got their start by putting lariats on Longhorns. In the hot, dry climate of the Southwest, the Longhorns hid from the heat of the day and the insects by taking refuge in the almost impenetrable thickets of mesquite and palo verde. A man on horseback could not possibly follow the creatures into those thickets. But the Longhorn, whose horns commonly spanned ten feet from tip to tip, moved with uncanny grace through brush, ducking, swinging and weaving his horns with a fluid motion that destroys the old cliche about the bull in a china shop.

Longhorns vanished from the cattle markets as homesteaders fenced in the open range. Homesteaders brought barbed wire with them and they brought English cattle breeds. These cattle were more domesticated and they produced far superior beef. But they were not the stuff of

The productivity of America's farmers have made this nation the marvel of the world when it comes to food. Not only does the United States enjoy the lowest percentage of income spent for food of any nation; but the variety and availability is the best to be found anywhere.

It is hard to realize that the low esteem in which American farming practices were held by the British was one of the factors that let England lower her guard in the belief that the colonies could ever succeed on Agriculture was written about extensively in England, and the regard with which the British looked across the sea at the colonists was tainted by this reporting of our farming practices. Indeed, the British distain for our agriculture rubbed off on just about everything American. As a result, few thought the colonies capable of independence.

But, the melting pot that American was, would quickly dispel lack of confidence in our agriculture once the new nation was on her own. The rotation practices of the Pennsylvania; irrigation by diverting streams in hilly regions; new varieties of vegetables and grasses all these would come into play as the nation moved westward.

Farming became an important subject in newspapers and other journals. The establishment of land grant colleges propelled the development of modern farming practices and new machinery and methods increased productivity.

But, in the early days when Americans were laying the groundwork for their independence, their lack of concern about farming was really an asset. The image created in England by our farmers took British eves off the growth of our trades. And this was a very serious mistake.

Sizable Amount of Fraud Mixed in Early Fertilizer

scientific good was mixed in the early fertilizers introduced to the farming scene in the period just before and after the Civil War.

Likely the first commercial fertilizer was guano - actually a manure dried and pulverized from the droppings of sea fowl, particularly from Peru. It was first imported in 1842. Its use spread, but unscrupulous importers started to water it down, mixing dirt and water to make 10 tons out of one. Farmers soon lost confidence in it and refused to Another early fertilizer was poudrette, manufactured in Philadelphia. Night soil from sewers and privies was dried, deodorized, pulverized and mixed with ashes, muck and gypsum.

Then, phosphate deposits were discovered in South Carolina, Florida and Tennessee. For a time, bones were extensively used in the making of fertilizer. Dealers searched everywhere for bones, making no distinction between human and animal. Bones of casualities from the Crimean War were imported and huge a-

Nearly as much fraud as mounts of buffalo bones were shipped east.

Some farmers started the home manufacture of superphosphate of lime. According to manufacturing directions: "Place 180 pounds of old bones in a hogshead, and pour over 60 pounds of sulfuric acid to which has been added an equal part of water. When dissolved, mix with wood ashes and apply.'

But there were too many disadvantages of home manufacture, and gradually commercial superphosphates took over. Unethical advertising claims still prevailed and many farmers continued to shun their use.

The first mixed or complete commercial fertilizer was marketed out of Baltimore. In 1879, two farmers were called 'fools" by their neighbors when they bought 2 1/2 tons at the railroad for $42 a ton.

When their crops were harvested and the much higher yields noted, these same neighbors started to use ferti-

The bulk of the meeting was spent in filling an application of the Wheeler Library for membership in the State Library Systems for the physical year of 1977, which begins Sept. 1, 1976. and ends August 31, 1977. The benefits of belonging to the Texas State Library System are as follows:

System membership will ensure that your l. brary benefits from many services provided by the major resource systems. These services include consulting and continuing education services by professional librarians, interlibrary loan and reference referral service provided through the Texas State Library Communications Network, and many other programs. In several systems, the Major Resource Centers purchase library materials for Community libraries and these materials become the permanent property of the receiving libraries. In many systems, member libraries have the opportunity to borrow films and other multi-media materials for loan to their local patrons. A Community library does not pay for any service. as funding for these services is provided through state appropriations for the Library Systems Act.

The Library Board's greatest problem in applying for such admission is the lack of money. The total operating budget for community libraries as stated by the State and who's require-
