BARLEY WILL BE ADDED TO FEED GRAIN PROGRAM IN WHEELER CO.

Though Barley ranks well down on the list of feed grains produced in Texas, many growers will soon have to make a decision on whether or not to participate in the 1962 grain program. Winter barley has been added to the program and seeding time is not far off.

The feed grain program for 1962 is about the same as the 1961 plan, but with winter barley added. The purpose is to reduce the total acreage while protecting the farmer with price support and conservation payments say economists for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

To participate in the barley program a farmer must divert at least 20 percent of his 1959-1960 barley base and at the same time not increase his corn or grain sorghum acreage. The diverted acres must be put to conservation uses, the economists say. Payment for the first 20 percent of diverted acreage will be figured on 50 percent of the normal barley yield on the farm. Additional acreage may also be taken out of production at a higher rate of payment.

If the producer chooses, he may plant all or a part of his diverted barley acreage to one or more of the following oilseed crops: castor beans; guar, safflower, sunflowers or sesame by passing up conservation payments. He will, however, be eligible for barley support price.

The economists advise farmers who were eligible to participate in the winter barley phase of the 1962 feed grain program to check with their local county agent or Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office for details on the program. There will be a series of educational meetings in the near future explaining the over all program for Wheeler County.

CONSERVATION NEWS

Draw Down Pipes

By Doug Johnson, SCS Engineer

In the past year the phrase "draw down pipe" has appeared in farm publications, news articles and in the language of conservationists. Just what are draw down pipes and what purpose do they serve?

A draw down pipe is usually made of asphalt coated, corrugated metal. If it could be seen it would look like the letter L lying on its back, with the shorter part or "riser" sticking horizontally out of the downstream side. The top of the riser is set two or more feet vertically below the level of the earth spillway. The exact vertical distance will vary according to the height, spillway condition, storage capacity, and drainage area of the dam and the purpose for which the dam is being built.

The purpose of a draw down pipe is much the same as that of springs on a car. It forms a cushion for the dam and protects the spillway from frequent and prolonged use, just as springs cushion and protect a car from bumps.

In this country a great many stockwater dams are in danger because the emergency spillway is washing out. This is an all too frequent occurrence, especially in those cases where the flood waters around a spillway return to the draw down a steep and poorly vegetated slope. It is in cases like these that a draw down pipe proves its worth.

By drawing the water level down to the riser elevation it protects the spillway by always maintaining some storage for runoff water in case the dam is full when a heavy rain falls. By not being used for small rains, the earth spillway is saved for the "chuck-flooding" rains and that hit this country. By saving the spillway for these rains the draw down pipe will extend the life of the dam many years.

USDA TO PLACE NEW CREDIT REGULATIONS IN FORCE

The U. S. Department of Agriculture is moving rapidly to carry out the broadscale improvements in the supervised agricultural credit program brought about by the Agricultural Act of 1961, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman said today.

Five regional meetings will be held during the next three weeks with agency's field staff to review the new regulations prior to placing the program into effect October 15.

Howard Bertsch, administrator of the Farmers Home Administration, Floyd Higbee, deputy administrator, John Baker, USDA director of agricultural credit services, and key members of the agency's national staff will participate in the meetings.

The expanded rural housing program, under which owners of tracts in small rural communities as well as farmers may apply for loans to build or remodel homes, will also be discussed.

The role of the Farmers Home Administration in the Rural Areas Development Program will be a third major item on the agenda. Recently the agency has been assigned to responsibility of coordinating the technical services of the USDA in the RAD program.

Schedule of the meetings follows: Pick-Roosevelt Hotel, Pittsburgh, Penn., Sept. 6-8; Biltmore Hotel, Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 11-13; Adolphus Hotel, Dallas, Tex., Sept. 14-16; Curtis Hotel, Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 18-20; Hotel Temple Square, Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 21-23.

"Never in the history of the Farmers Home Administration has there been such an over-all upgrading of the supervised agricultural credit service," Secretary Freeman pointed out. "This will give the thousands of farmers whose equities have been wiped out by the low net returns of recent years an opportunity to obtain needed financing.

"The credit improvements will also mean much to those rural communities that are fighting to regain their economic strength through the Rural Areas Development Program. Farmers who live in those communities will have greater access to develop and adjustment loans, rural residents will have access to credit for housing and domestic water supply systems.

"The funds spent for improvement will spark rural businesses and provide employment for carpenters, electricians and other workmen.

"The revised regulations reflect the increasing capital needs of farmers. The average investment per farm has increased seven-fold in the past 20 years, from $6,094 in 1940 to $41,923 in 1961.

"There are a number of indications that farmers are in a tighter cash position and are having more difficulty financing their operations. The bank deposits, currency and United States savings bonds owned by farmers declined during 1960 for the second consecutive year. Estimates place the total of these assets at 13.3 billion on Jan. 1, 1961, a decrease of $500 million from a year earlier. Farmer expenditures for motor vehicles and farm machinery dropped $475 million in 1960. Nearly 26,000 fewer farmers had checking accounts early in 1961 compared to the previous year.

In addition the non-real estate loans held by banks and Federally sponsored agencies, which represent about two-thirds of the total non-real estate debt, increased only 4 percent in 1960 compared with almost 16 percent during 1959. The proportion of farm mortgage loans used to refinance existing debts increased. The demand for Farmers Home Administration loans rose sharply and the volume of loans made by this agency that serves only farmers unable to obtain credit elsewhere increased from $309 million in fiscal 1960 to an all time high of $396 million in fiscal 1961.

The new legislation both expands and improves the supervised credit service of the Farmers Home Administration.

Operating loans for equipment, livestock, feed, seed, fertilizer and similar items can now be made in amount up to $35,000. The previous limit was $20,000.

Loans to buy and enlarge farms may now be made on any family farm if the total indebtedness on the farm is not more than $60,000.00 when the loan is closed. Previously these loans had been limited to farms whose value was no greater than that of the average family farm in the county.

Rural community water systems may now be made to associations serving farmers and rural residents without the prior restriction that farmers be the main users of the water supply system.

Emergency loans can now be made to farmers who need credit as the result of a natural disaster — such as flash flood — was not widespread enough to warrant an emergency area designation.

"The increase in the operating loan limits will enable the agency to more adequately serve the credit of family farmers," the Secretary said. "The technical revolution has greatly increased the amount of capital farmers have to invest in their operations. Many young farmers who are just getting started, and established farmers who need to make major adjustments in their operations will benefit from the modernizing of this credit regulation.

"The broadening of the authority to make farm purchases and enlargement loans will also help young farmers, as well as others. In the past many young farmers were unable to obtain a loan to buy their family farm simply because the farm was worth more than the average family farm in the county in which it is located.

"All of the provisions of the new law, to the extent that they make the program more flexible and enable the Farmers Home Administration to serve the credit needs of family farmers who were previously ineligible, will increase the effectiveness of supervised credit in rural areas development. One new provision that should prove especially useful in growing communities is the authority to buy and enlarge small farms. There are many instances where young farmers who have off-farm employment to supplement their farm income can use such loans to gradually acquire the land resources they need for successful farming.

"The expansion in the maximum size of association loans for domestic and irrigation water systems will cut the cost per association member and permit service to groups whose efficient operation required investments exceeding the previous ceiling."

Former 4-H Members Invited To Meeting

Former 4-H Club members have a special invitation to volunteer for the Peace Corps, says Bryan W. Swaim, Wheeler County, Agricultural Extension Agent. Their skills and training are needed for a Peace Corps project which is now being considered for Latin America, Swaim reports.

While exact location of the project cannot be announced yet because it is still being negotiated, participants would work as two-person teams and help develop 4-H type rural youth programs. They would assist local Extension workers of the country in recruiting and training local volunteer leaders and helping Club members with projects, demonstrations, meetings, exhibits, and recreation. The Peace Corps assignment would be for two years, starting about December 1. The assignment includes a three-months training program in the language of the country, its customs and culture, at the National 4-H Club Center in Washington, D.C. Men and Women 18 years of age or older, with rural and 4-H backgrounds, are especially wanted as applicants.

Those selected would be accompanied to their assignments, and guided in their work, by a project director and three regional supervisors, representing the National 4-H Club Foundation. Youth in Wheeler County who are interested should call, write or visit the County Extension Office at the Courthouse in Wheeler as soon as possible, where further information and Peace Corps Application Forms can be obtained.

TWITTY NEWS

By J. Lloyd Rice

Boy, it sure gives you a sickening feeling to see the cotton literally burning up in spots around this community. After a fellow has put in all that time, hard labor, and hard cash, or harder credit into making a crop then see it burn up. Whew! I guess I keep on teaching school as long as they can stand me rather than try dry land cotton farming.

It is not all bad though, for there are sandy spots where the corn and peas are very good. Oh! yes, I am full of them right now on Monday evening after the evening meal. Not only some corn and peas, but nice fresh fried okra from the Haskel Samons patch. Dick Gierhart and Clois Jolly have also contributed to our table with corn from the fields. Doc Liles that is Mrs. Liles gave me some peas also, but I took them to the Wheeler preacher during the time mama and Sherry were gone from home.

Oh, I saw Buzz Borden and Elsie and Fran a little while this afternoon. We of Twitty regret that they are leaving Wheeler, because some how we just simply like their kind of folks.

Ernest Lasater did it again, or should I have said done it again. English teachers take notice.) Well, Ernest, he done went and got out the first bale of cotton for the Wheeler gin. Congratulations Ernest. He never would have done it without Gertrude. We three Rices left in the sudan patch, with it, and drove over to the night. Ran in on a Park county wide meeting and barbecue. My uncle He was ram roding the me we got to eat.

Course we knew all that he was in charge, we went over the feed ed Rogers from down way, they called him Sa gers account of the senator. Well, he said like this sales tax, he about the best they coe and another man named state representative bo that our city cousins he numbered when it come ing, and we are lucky hold the line against awhile.

These city fellers seem that it is economy to st ruction of farm to man but the big city freeway on.

Senator Rogers said, "If you are hauling better get the license ta big trailer and have a lights on it, for the high are going to be looking big trailers without ta light lights."

Well, we went out to house in the China Flat Sunday afternoon and f some one had visited the day night, and when they took all our gro with them, about four pounds sacked.

She'll Never Neglect Him...

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	I Samuel	1	26-28
Monday	Luke	2	36-40
Tuesday	I Samuel	3	17-19
Wednesday	Luke	2	46-49
Thursday	I Corinthians	2	2-5
Friday	Psalms	37	3-6
Saturday	Deuteronomy	7	9

Mrs. Thompson is a "modern" mother. She wouldn't think of neglecting her baby's regular visit to the doctor. She knows that these early check-ups plus proper diet, rest and care, are vital if her child is to grow up into a strong, healthy boy, ready to take his place in tomorrow's world.

Nor will she forget an even more important factor in his development—his spiritual check-ups. When the time comes and baby is old enough, his tiny footsteps will lead him into Church School where another kind of ministry will be given to him. Later still, he will worship with his parents, and the importance of the family unit together at work, at play and in worship will be engrained in his mind.

In tomorrow's world he will be well equipped to take his place physically, mentally... and spiritually.
