Seems like things is sort of coming to a head in the Sweet William Estes deal. Lots of the birds that are involved are resignin. Golly that seems like a simple solution to have such a complicated background.

Back when I wuz a kid we would get into meanness and think boy we had it made. We would take watermelons and really wouldn't mean to be stealing them, just took em at night so they would be cooler to eat. Usually we would have to brag just a little about it and for some unknown reason we would get caught the very next time we got in the patch. Not ever farmer that caught us used diplomacy in handlin us ununs, some of them used rock salt in a shotgun and there wuz on or two that used old number lebens on our rearrends.

Course I ain't recommendin rock salt or the farmer's boot but look like we could ask a retired politician to come on back home so we can watch him after he has been put out to grass from Government employment. Most of them have to get some kind of job up there in the capital to keep their dignity and prestige up. Somebods gettin took and I'm afraid it ain't them Politicians.

Its reliability is probably its greatest single asset

When you build a quality truck, the inclination is to run around asking users what they think of it. We do quite a bit of this. It's a funny thing. You'd think people would talk mostly about the mechanical features of the vehicle—the good ride, its power, the double-wall construction, cab comfort, or tough tailgate. These things get comment, of course, but they're consistently outnumbered by expressions of satisfaction with the dependability of a Chevrolet truck. Its greatest single asset seems to be the fact that it does its job well day after day without a lot of fuss or attention—and that's what impresses people the most. Quality is the key to reliability. The next time you have to buy a truck, call your Chevrolet dealer and make your money go farther.

Rural Carriers To Assist with Survey

Postmaster Virgil Jamison reminds rural patrons of the Wheeler Post Office to be in the lookout for June Livestock Survey cards. Next week, mail carriers will leave survey cards in a sample of boxes along their routes.

"USDA bases livestock and poultry estimates on replies to this survey," Mr. Jamison explains. "It's important for everyone who gets a card to fill it out and return it to the carrier. This way, USDA gets a representative sample of the area's livestock and poultry holdings."

Information from this survey will guide livestock and poultry producers in making important business decisions," Mrs. Jamison concludes.

year, but the 1962 program represents an increase of more than 200 miles above the average. Reason for the increase is the new Farm-to-Market Road Bill (SB-1) passed by the third called session of the 57th Legislature and signed into law this past January. The bill establishes a long-range maintenance program for farm roads. Thus assured of funds for adequate maintenance of FM roads, the commission said design standards have been modified to get more new miles than was possible in earlier programs. The new FM program is a one-year project. Future FM programs will remain on a one-year basis, the commission said.

her husband sincerely appreciated the prompt action which saved their home. Mr. Callan took matters into his own hands after the fire broke out in the garage and saved the family's brand new Chevrolet. Despite the almost suffocating smoke, he got into the vehicle and smashed it through the front door to safety. There's only a small dent or scratch on the front of the car to show for the incident. His insurance company should reward him, it seems, for the car would no doubt have sustained heavy damage if he hadn't been so determined to save it.

5,000th Kiwanis Club Chartered in Muncie, Ind.

Kiwanis Club No. 5,000 has received charter in Muncie, Ind., according to word received here by Gordon Stiles, president of the local Kiwanis Club. The charter was presented to the new Kiwanis Club of South Muncie by Kiwanis International President I. R. Withuhn of Milwaukee. Withuhn characterized the event as "the attainment of another milestone in Kiwanis' 47-year history of growth and progress." He said that the circumstances of the Kiwanis Club of South Muncie receiving the No. 5,000 was mathematically happenstance. He characterized it, however, as "a happy coincidence because Muncie, home of the 5,000th club, was once selected as the most typical of American communities for a now-classic sociological study called "Middletown." In accepting the charter, Paul B. Huntzinger, president of the new club, pledged himself and his 57 fellow charter members to meet the special challenge imposed upon the 5,000th club; to be a credit to the organization, to the nation and to the community in which they will serve. Sponsors of the club were members of the Kiwanis Club of Muncie. Establishment of the South Muncie Club brings to 136 the number of clubs in Indiana.
