FLEMINGTON, N. J. (AP) John M. Trendley, handwriting expert, of East St. Louis, Illinois, defense wit ness, Friday, disputed the opinion of eight state experts that Bruno Richard Hauptmann wrote the Lindbergh ransom notes.

The defense formally disclaimed any contention that the dead Isador Fisch might. have written them.

A Christmas card was handed Trendley with a query if possible similarities existed between handwriting thereon and handwriting in the fourteen ransom notes which followed the kidnaping and slaying of the Lindbergh baby, of which Hauptmann is accused.

The state objected. The oard was not immediately identified, although discussion following indicated it was from Fisch.

Thus, it was President Wilson who stood out against the Twenty-one Demands. It was Secretary Hughes who undertook to fix the ratio for the Japanese navy. It was Secretary Hughes to Japanese navy. It was Secretary Hughes who undertook to fix the opposition to the congruent of Manchuria.

To appreciate it one must look below the surface of the recent naval negotiations carried on by Mr.
Norman H. Davis The outward facts are that the Japanese asked for naval equality based upon the abolition of naval ships with offenlavive power at long range. This demand was refused and the Japanhave formally densinced the mand was refused and the Japan, have formally denounced the limiting naval armaments action has not brought them one bit nearer to naval equality. Tips For The Person Who Lunches Alone

"Half-hearted, nibbling," as indulged in by half the homemakers of the land at luncheon time, is the latest habit to win the frowns of the nutritionists. All too often the woman who will spare neither time nor trouble in preparing toothsome meals for her family, who will hand out quantities of advice to those who have luncheon in restaurants, and will spend hours in getting ready the child-ren's noontime repast, will grab for herself just "any old thing" for her own luncheon. you to be healther and to make up the day with less fatigue. To test these promises, prepare yourself an attractive tray of good food, carry it to the living room and enjoy yourself at ease, the while you have your lunch.

No Extra Work

Utilize the "dabs" and leftovers by all means, but serve them in palatable form. Just by the simple process of cooking "one extra" you can have a delicious "lone lunch." For instance, when you bake potatoes for the family, save one for yourself. When ready, cut one in half, scoop out the pulp, add butter and seasoning, moisten with milk, add a little cheese if you like and reheat in the oven.
