Waste Paper Can Advertising Is Unprofitable

Did you see the waste paper can at the post office yesterday? Did you notice that it was running over with circulars-all advertising sheets-which had been ! thrown there by boxholders? Did you notice that many refused to even go to the waste paper can, but simply dumped this all-advertising sheet on the floor?

That "advertiser" (?) wasted a lot of good money filling the waste paper can. The business firm which resorts to so-called "cheap" methods of reaching the public through circulars, gutter snipes and all-advertising bill methods is not reaching the buying public 100% or even 50%.

How many copies of The Wheeler Times have you seen thrown into the waste paper can at the post office? The newspaper is a welcome visitor into every home, where it is read by every member of the family.

The advertiser who wishes to have his message welcomed into the homes of the community should use the newspaper regularly. It is unprofitable to buy advertising for the benefit of the

The growth and handling of the cotton crop is one of the largest and most intricate businesses in the world and has become more complicated the past five years. It is generally conceded that we have no permanent policy today from a government standpoint as to the cotton situation. The committee is, therefore, and light from all interested parties committee is not sponsoring or opposing any plan but is only interested in getting a cross section of the opinion of all interested parties and respectfully invites appearance and suggestions from everyone interested in this very important commodity.

Peaches Ripening —Summer Is Near!

Samples of ripe peaches brought to The Times office during the past few days, indicate that summer must be near, even though the fruit is an early kind.

On Saturday, J. D. Cornelius, living on Sweetwater northeast of town, brought in a generous sample of delicious, well ripened peaches of Early Wheeler or Redbird strain.

A. Denham, who lives west of Wheeler in the Corn Valley community, brought in a quantity of ripe peaches Monday. They were also of the same strain as those grown by Cornelius. Redbird and Early Wheeler are practically the same variety of peaches, depending upon the nursery from which the trees are obtained, local fruit growers declare.

Generally speaking, fruit prospects are said to be very favorable in this part of the county.

As will be noticed in the wantad column of this issue. M. L. Clark, northeast of town, has peaches ready for market. fact up to Wednesday evening, he had sold nearly 300 bushels.

BADLEYS NOW HAVE MODERN HOME

Alterations and improvements recently completed, give Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Badley a home of which they can be justly proud. Changes of inside as well as outside arrangements A joint committee composed of five affords five large rooms and bath in addition to a roomy enclosed sleeping porch. New floors and woodwork, combined with built-in features makes it strictly modern.

Roofline changes to match the other alterations, together with stucco finished exterior, completes the renovation of their home, located just beyond the city limits in the southwest part of town.

Grainger McIlhany Earns Noted Honor

NEW STORE WILL OPEN VERY SOON

The Russ Ready-to-Wear Location Is First Door East of National Bank

After several days work on the room and installation of fixtures, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Russ, proprietors of Wheeler's newest apparel establishment, to be known as the Russ Ready-to-Wear store, left Tuesday for the Dallas markets to buy merchandise. They expect to return today or tomorrow and begin arranging stock, preparatory to opening for business very soon. Mr. Russ stated Monday that he hoped to hold the formal opening on June 29.

The store will feature men's, wonen's and childrens' ready-to-wear clothing of standard brands and recognized quality.

Mr. and Mrs. Russ are comparatively new-comers to this county and only recently located in Wheeler. However, they both taught in the Briscoe schools last year and are not total strangers, having made many acquaintances throughout the county. Mr. Russ, who has had merchandising experience with some of the larger concerns of the state, is ery favorably impressed with Wheeler and its possibilities and believes in its future.

His parents are pioneer settlers of the state, locating in 1901 near Lubbock, where they have since made their home.

Advise Growers to Repool Certificates

Cotton Assistant Meharg Outlines Benefits and Advantages of Plan Offered

Repooling of cotton exemption certificates is advised by Joe Meharg, cotton assistant in the county agent's office, who prepared the following statement concerning the proposi-

"In a few days the second payment on the certificates pooled last fall are expected to arrive. When the farmer pooled these certificates he was promised 4 cents per pound, or $20 per bale, on all certificates sold. In February he received 50 per cent, or $10 per bale, of this

"Only 65 per cent of the certificates were sold. Hence there is 15 per cent, or $3.00 per bale, less handling charges of 25 cents per bale, yet due the farmer. Thirtyfive per cent of the certificates are unsold.

"When these checks arrive the farmer will have a chance to repool the 35 per cent at 5 cents per pound, by signing a slip to that effect. If he wishes to draw the certificates out of the pool, he may do so. The slips will be on hand when the producer gets his check.

"The advantage of repooling the certificates is that the farmer can pool them at 5 cents, and in the meantime if he has to buy certificates he can buy them at 5 cents. In this setup the farmer is sure of not having any surplus certificates on hand at the end of the year.

"Example: If you have 5,000 pounds due from the pool, you may draw them out. You may need only 3,000 pounds and will thus have resignation was announced through 2,000 pounds left on hand. If you the columns of this newspaper in its repool this 5,000 pounds at 5 cents, it equals $250. Then, if you need 3,000 pounds, the price will be 5 minister said he had no definite cents per pound, or $150 to be paid out, but with the $250 coming from the pool."

County cotton producers will have an opportunity to exercise this option his family will probably leave within as described by Meharg when they date of June 14, which states that a few days for an extended visit with call for the checks in payment of the remainder due from the pooled certificates.

PROPERTY VALUES RISING

In spite of all the declarations from Washington that there is to be no inflation, it appears as if the processes of inflation, in a broad sense, are already in operation. It is not meant by that the country is in danger of a flood of unbacked printing press money such as brought ruin to all creditors in and of Germany in 1920-21; but it is definitely inflation when the price of commodities keeps going up and the value of money keeps going down.

There have been a number of books issued recently by intelligent observers of financial and economic conditions, all pointing out that the inflationary movement is under way. It is not likely to burst upon us all of a sudden, and a great many people will not recognize its approach these commentators say, until it is too late for them to protect themselves against its effects. It is reported many wealthy people have bought and are buying farm lands, city real estate and stocks in the expectation that when the full swing of inflation gets under way they will be able to sell these things for several times as many dollars as they paid for

It is hard to see the full advantage of that sort of hedging against the future, if the dollar is to continue to go down. When a beefsteak cost a billion marks in a German restaurant, as it did in 1921, it was not much satisfaction to the man who had made a billion marks profit on the sale of his house, if he had to spend it all for one meal. Yet that was an extreme case and most folk who have any property would do well to hold on to it for higher prices and if they have loose dollars, to put into property for which they are pretty sure to get more dollars than they invested, in the course of the next few years.

CHECKING HUMAN ELEMENTS

The National Safety council re ports that the campaign for standard licensing laws for automobile drivers continues to gain power. The term "standard licensing" is used to include both the provisions of the law itself, and the machinery set up for to figures compiled by the National of the opinion that he symbolizes the its administration, in that poor enforcement could negate the benefit of the best drawn act.

Since the first of the year, three states have passed laws the council considers standard in every respect. In one other state, new license legislation was also enacted, but the council considers it wanting in some respects. Movements are underway or if it is a match, break it between highest cliff of a crumbling empire. in a number of other states to bring them into the fold.

In the light of America's tragic automobile death record, it is difficult to see how even the most stringent drivers' licensing laws can be logically opposed. The driver who is congenitally unable to learn to operate a car properly has no right to endanger the lives and property of others, even though his inadequacy is not his fault. And the deliberately reckless, chance-taking driver, is one of the most dangerous influences abroad in the land today.

Every state should have a licens requirement law which makes it as certain as possible that the motorist, before he is permitted to drive, is capable of operating his car safely. And the law should provide that after a number of accidents or ar rests, licenses must be revoked for

A delay in the time of the election to vote $35,000 worth of bonds for the erection of a grade school in White Deer, has been occasioned by made before the call of the electio by the district. A change in the rate of interest from 3 to 4 per cent bonds either to the government or to bonding companies. School bonds annot be sold legally below par and he bonding companies would ask more than the 3 per cent as stipulated in the original call for the election .- White Deer Review.

Nothing has been so damning to the recovery policies of the New Deal as has been the petty bickerngs and jealousies among those pon whom the President has had to rely. Relief is carried out largey by those on relief; financial probems have been entrusted largely to hose who have failed in some finan cial institution; other phases of government have been delegated to those who had made failures in private life, and were seeking jobs nerely as meal tickets. If the president could personally direct all phases of government, conditions would be greatly improved. But he annot do this. This nation has literally murdered every president in reent years by the magnitude of the obs imposed upon them by public obligations. President Roosevelt has had the supreme job of them all. He has to rely upon others, and many of them failed him .- Canyon News

The writer of this column does not propose here to tell you of the merits of this picture, as space does not permit; but the show-going public has proven that this picture compares favorably with Cimarron, the greatest epic of Dix's career. Of course Cimarron holds first place, only due to the fact that it was a somewhat longer picture than West of the Pecos. But the latter runs a close second, and with Zane Grey's genius, it bids fair to be a real spar-

For He who hears the raven's call And notes each tiny sparrow's fall Loves man far more than they.

With Him it seems ever true When crises must be met, That He has kept in view Needs, attitudes, requests, regrets, And sets in motion, years before perhaps,

Near or on some far shore. A leader's stern development.

The scattered herd, feeding quietly or resting here and there, so strongly suggested rest for everything that their herder sat down and gave himself up to musing and rare homesick longing.

Father Amram and poor Mother Jochebed-I wonder how they are. Worked to death, likely, but if Mother Jochebed lives she is still talking of her blessings and opportunities and thanking Jehovah for them. Living in constant dread for months and at the end of that time Jones. The addition of one her only relief was a certainty that she must give up her youngest son. They might come after him any day. What if his life was to be spent in a king's palace; he was lost to her.

If she really believed, then, that her boy was having a wonderful opportunity, how must she have felt when, in order to save his life, he was forced to escape to a strange

"What a fool I was," he groaned. "I didn't mean to really kill the man but even if I had not killed him, that was no way to help my people. Why didn't I have patience enough to wait until I found a real way. I people rebels; it generally works might have some day been a Pharach, then think what I could have done for them. It was a dirty trick for one of my countrymen to expose me but I suppose he couldn't know to be given at the club meeting that I had wanted to help. If I had Israel with the water they were only known as much about Jehovah, the wonder of His heavens and His earth, His Patience and had the feeling of His nearness as I do now, God when he said "must we;" he alone in this desert place, I know I who had asked God to forgive his could have done better but it is too late now so why spend time in worry? I am glad I have a fine wife or could "we" mean Moses and and little son and a most understanding, priestly father-in-law. I entirely? God loves Moses but the could be much worse off; but I did more He loved him the less He could want to help my people."

An interesting discovery has just been made by H. L. Wilson of the Bureau of the Animal Industry, who says that American cheese may be canned as other foods instead of cured in the open. This method, states Wilson, will enable one to make American cheese at any time of the year, if there is a cool cellar or an ice box in which the cheese may be cured. Another advantage he states is that cheese cured in this way does not dry out; no moulds develop on it and there is no waste of rind. The method below is that given by Wilson for curing the

1. Get a mould that is just a little smaller in diameter than a No. 3

2. Make and press the cheese in the usual way except that no bandage is needed.

3. When the cheese is removed from the press, wrap in parchment paper; place the cheese in a can and seal air tight. 4. Store the cans at as near 60 degrees temperature as possible.

5. The cans are not processed as there is so little air left in the can after it is two-thirds or more full of cheese that no mould will grow on the cheese.

Wilson also states that in curing some gas may develop and in that case the ends of the cans will swell a little, but the cheese will be whole-

Thomas J. Rusk came to Texas when he was 29 years old in search of a promoter who had swindled him of his fortune in a Georgia gold mine deal. He caught the swindler but the latter had lost Rusk's money at the gaming table.

great work but when face to face with its responsibilities and the bigness of it laid hold of him, he said, "I cannot do it. Send whom ye will." Neither is our faith great enough to lay hold of His promise, Surely I will be with thee.'

Moses, now, needed all the wisdom and patience his many years of meditation in the desert had given him. That he made use of them is proven to us because he has always been called meek (long suffering). One time only, record tells us, he took things into his own hands and became, as the children slangily express it, HIGH HAT. We wish we could believe he was only tired and nervous that day and not that he tried to show off, but we cannot make it read that way. They had tried him often before that day They had acted as if they thought he should keep them supplied with quail on toast for breakfast and fresh vegetables for dinner while out there in the desert. They had committed great sins and been punished for those sins. He had seen even his nephews dare to disobey God (Lev. 10:1) but they did not get by with it.

Evidently Satan was there, too, tempting Moses in nis usual hidden, underhand way, whispering that he didn't need to be so particular to follow someone else's nstructions for had he not worked with these people longer than anyone and understood them better than perhaps the Lord Himself did? Mose listened and became a rebel. Perhaps that was why he called the that way. "To the pure all things are pure." #### The Farmer's Needs and Bank Service

Modern farming, with its many business aspects, makes the need of dependable banking connections an absolute necessity. The payment of obligations by check insures a legal record of every transaction. Then, too, surplus money is much safer in the bank than carried on the person or secreted about the home. In addition to this, responsible farmers often have need of favors that a good bank can extend. It pays to maintain a banking home here.

Another Flying Machine

It is now learned that Dr. Daniel Ashbury's flying machine will be given its finishing touches within one week. For two years Dr. Ashbury, with the aid of a skilled mechanic, has been engaged in perfecting his idea. So far as can be rathered from the description of those who have enjoyed the privilege of viewing the construction, about he following idea is given of it:

The inventor reverts to first priniples for its basis. Nature furnishes he model, and the birds of the air are robbed of the secret of their notive power for its purpose. The body of the invention is in shape omething between a boat and the ody of a bird.

The wings are made of canvas and onstructed in imitation of a bird's wings. They measure 30 feet from tip to tip. They are made to operate not by working the arms, as is supposed, but by ingenious machinery to which a pedal is attached, and which which a pedal is attached, as worked by the foot like a sewing sworked by the foot like a sewing several when it machine. reached, the flapping of the wings being extended on a level, the bird machine, with the aid of propellers on the sides, sails through the air tending your clothing contests any distance desired. The machine is nicely balanced, and if it is desired to descend, all that is necessired to descend, all that is necessary is to throw a little weight forward to give the beak the right incline downward, and the object is attained.

In Emergencies: the Newspaper Is Appealed to

Such being the case, why shouldn't commercial patronage-advertising-be placed in the legitimate newspaper in preference to handbills, circulars, gutter snipes, post cards, etc? The newspaper's prestige, its investment, its payroll and its community service warrants such patronage.

It is common knowledge that when emergencies arise in the nation, in states and in communities, the newspaper is appealed to in putting over relief measures or to change public opinion. The government has repeatedly enlisted the power and influence of newspapers in time of stress and need.

It is easy to recall how the country had maintained an attitude of peace up to a short time before it entered the World War. Almost overnight, sentiment was changed from pacifism to a warlike view. National leaders asked and obtained the assistance of the newspapers in changing sentiment and the sudden transition was credited largely to their support.

The Red Cross has had occasion to appeal to the newspapers for aid from time to time.

The success of the present-day relief measures and the administration's efforts toward recovery is attributed to the patriotic unselfish support of a majority of the nation's newspapers, from the big dailies down to the small town weekly publications.

Mr. Merchant, think on these things when tempted to patronize other means in preference to the newspaper -your community spokesman.

LOCAL EMERGENCY CASE IS CITED

An instance of outstanding community service here at home, by this newspaper, is easily recalled. During the latter part of November and early part of December, 1934, a strange malady developed in the Baker family, living on a farm two and a half miles northeast of Wheeler. Six members of the family died

This, naturally, caused some alarm, and fear of an epidemic throughout the community develop-

Due to gossip and wild rumors attendant in such instances, the matter was assuming a critical stage.

It was near Christmas time, when the seasonal shopping was expected by Wheeler merchants. Persistent rumors threatened this holiday trade in Wheeler; people were getting afraid to come to town for fear of contracting the disease proving so fatal in the Baker household. Of course there was no danger in coming to Wheeler and but slight danger of an epidemic-as time conclusively proved.

But Wheeler business houses stood to lose hundreds of dollars if customers were afraid to come here to do their shopping.

Something had to be done to set forth the facts and allay public fears.

Two Wheeler business men, after discussing the matter with others, called the editor of The Times into conference late Thursday, Dec. 6, and requested that local physicians be consulted and the facts concerning danger of infection and possibility of the disease spreading be published in that issue. Such action was accordingly taken and the "scare" quickly subsided.

These merchants had a right to expect such service from their community newspaper-and they got it.

The community newspaper has a right, without any apologies, to expect a return of the favor.

The half grin suddenly dropped from Bill McCord's face, and in its place flashed an ill temper exceeding his horse so that it spun and brought up with the right side of horse and man toward the Bar Hook riders. This move brought squarely into view the holstered forty-five that swung behind Bill McCord's right thigh, below his short coat. Lee Bishop hesitated for a long time. "No," he said at last.

"Lee," said Kentucky, "if Jean doesn't want her father to scrap it out with Elliot, what do you suppose her reason is?"

"How do I know what her reason is?" said Lee Bishop explosively. "How does any man know what any woman's reason is? Committee Has Obtained Notable Collection of Animals --Liberal Prize List

CANADIAN, Texas, June 20 .-It will take such adjectives as cantankerous, sour, tricky and dangerous to come anywhere near describing the collection of animated high explosives which will pass for livestock at the Anvil Park rodeo, July 3, 4, and 5.

For miles around the country has been gone over with a fine-tooth comb to secure only the outstanding bucking horses, the livest rubbernecked bovines, and the fleetest footed, fighting, Brahma calves. No rodeo is better than its livestock. The Anvil Park Rodeo committee, fully realizing this, has something to offer its guests which will require no apology.

Time and patience has entered into securing the cream of this territory in bucking horses. When the bronk riders come out of the chute astraddle one of the Anvil Park Rodeo horses they will think they are riding a bad case of delirium tremens with more action than a flea with the St. Vitus dance.
