AAA Cotton Benefits Equal Half the Crop

County Income Much Less During 1934 Than Previous Year—Program Helped

While the cotton income of Wheeler county farmers, through regular channels, was much smaller in 1934 than in 1933, and even less than in the bad year of 1932, it was substantially bolstered by the adjustment program, states Jake Tarter, county agent. In fact, according to Tarter, it was about 50 per cent greater than if there had been no program. The statement is based on an official three-year county cotton figures recently released by the Agricultural Adjustment administration. Wheeler county farmers last year received a total of $901,406.19 for their cotton of which only $609,531.13 came from market value. Benefit payments, which are designed to help bridge the gap between market price and parity price in normal years, served as crop insurance to Wheeler county farmers in 1934. They received in this way a total of $262,243.06 through April 30 last.

These cotton income figures do not include the value of unsold Bankhead certificates of which about $1,000,000 worth are held by Texas farmers.

Wheeler county cotton was valued at the farm at $1,008,462.06 in 1932. It increased sharply in 1933. The plow-up year, to $1,839,526.63, including benefit payments. These values are based upon yields and prices as furnished by the United States department of agriculture. The benefit payments include all those to April 30, 1935.

Commenting on Wheeler county cotton income for the last three years as revealed in the official figures, Tarter declares that crop insurance benefit payments for 1934 enabled farmers to survive a bad crop year. Nearly a third of a million dollars more was put into local circulation than would have been possible without a program. It is difficult to see how farmers could have maintained their farms and remained customers of merchants last year without the program, he concludes.

COUNTY CITIZENS TO HIGHWAY MEET

Responding to the call for a special meeting of the State Association of County Judges and Commissioners, issued by Judge E. L. Pitts, of Lubbock, president of the organization, County Judge W. O. Puett, Commissioner Jim Trout and Tom Pitt went to Dallas, where the meeting was held Tuesday. Principal subject for consideration was general road work under various set-ups.

Harry Hines, chairman of the State Highway commission, was the leading speaker, although Gib Gilchrist, state engineer, also discussed questions pertaining to road improvements. According to Puett, the highway commission and organization connected with WPA work appear to be determined to formulate a program that will result in extensive road building, much of it to be done in the not far distant future.

PROVIDENCE BAPTISTS TO HOLD PROTRACTED MEETING

Announcement has been made this week by the Providence Baptist congregation of a protracted meeting to start Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Services will be held in a brush arbor on the Weldon Weatherly farm, seven miles east of Wheeler.

Rev. V. M. Lollar of Magic City, will do the preaching, while Burley Mann will have charge of the singing. The meeting is planned to continue for two weeks. Prayer service each evening, starting about sundown, will precede the sermon. Services will also be held in the forenoon.

Carl Lamb is pastor of the Providence congregation, and extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend all services during the revival.

Mrs. J. D. Merriman left Saturday for Santa Rosa, N. Mex., to visit her son, John Merriman and family, for a few days. Her daughter, Miss Florence Merriman, took her to Pampa and returned that night.

Mrs. Rubye Murphy and Mr. Hunter of Pampa, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cooper and family, Wednesday. The former's daughter, Jackie Murphy, who lives with her grandparents, accompanied her to her home for a visit.

The girls of the Wheeler football Pep Squad, under direction of Mrs. Gordon Whitener, in order to raise money to help purchase uniforms, will sell tickets for "Girl of the Limerlost," quality picture coming to the Rogue theatre Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 26 and 27. The girls will receive a percentage on all tickets sold by them.

"This is one of the better types of pictures, even surpassing 'Laddie' and 'Anne of Green Gables.' And while you are enjoying an excellent picture, you will be helping a worthy cause," states Lee Guthrie, manager of the Rogue.

CLUB COUNCIL DEMONSTRATION

Miss Sadie Lee Oliver, home demonstration agent from Hemphill county, will give a demonstration on landscape planning before the Home Demonstration Club council, which meets Saturday, August 17, at 2:30 p. m. in the district court room here. This is according to announcement from the office of Miss Viola Jones, Wheeler county home demonstration agent.

All club women who are interested are invited. Immediately after plans for the fair are completed and the regular business disposed of, the remainder of the time will be given to Miss Oliver.

Baptist Revival Gets Off to a Good Start

With the return here Sunday of Rev. Taft Holloway, pastor of the congregation, who had been engaged in evangelistic work elsewhere, revival services were started Monday morning at the local Baptist church. Holloway was accompanied home by Rev. Willard Hardcastle of Plainview, song leader, who will direct the singing.

Seating facilities and platform used during the Methodist revival were obtained and installed on the Baptist church lawn at the rear of the edifice. With these accommodations, audiences are assured of comfort from the hot weather standpoint.

Rev. Holloway will do the preaching during the contemplated two weeks campaign.

NATIONAL BOY SCOUT JAMBOREE CALLED OFF

Because of fear that members of the organization from infested areas in an eastern state might bring germs of spinal meningitis to the Boy Scout Jamboree at Washington during its sessions next week, President Roosevelt late last Thursday issued an order cancelling the gathering entirely.

It was not because of danger in the locality in which the meeting was to be held but because of prevalence in regions from which delegates would come, that might start an epidemic of serious consequences, which caused cancellation.

Along with the many Scouts throughout the nation, Harrison Hall of Wheeler and Gene Caperton, Shamrock, who had planned to go, feel keen disappointment, but as true Scouts they will obey their superior's orders without complaint.

CITY MAY OBTAIN HUGE PWA GRANT

Indications Favorable for $96,369 Loan-Grant for Water Works and Sewer System

An Associated Press report from Fort Worth under an Aug. 14 date line, brings increased hopes for PWA funds amounting to $96,369, being allowed soon on a water works and sewer system project in Wheeler. Application was first made some months ago by city authorities for the aid to increase employment here.

On Tuesday of this week, Mrs. J. H. Gebhauer, wife of the engineer who has made the preliminary survey and assisted in preparing plans, was in Wheeler to get some minor features of the application ironed out. Mrs. Gebhauer has succeeded to the place vacated by her husband, who was promoted to another post.

It is reported that she considered prospects very favorable for obtaining the funds. When received, $53,000 of the sum will be in the form of a loan, to be paid back from receipts of the water system over a period of years. The remainder of the $96,369 will be an outright grant to the city.

Advisory Committee Visits Club Calves

Inspection Tour Made Monday to View and Advise County Calf Club Boys

Starting early Monday morning, a group of 17 men and boys made a tour of the county to inspect the animals selected by 4-H club boys in their calf club projects. The official committee consisted of Jake Tarter, county agent; Ira Passons, well-known Wheeler farmer, and R. T. Alexander, Hereford cattle breeder from Hemphill county. Alexander substituted on the committee for Buck Britt, and H. H. Reeves of this county, who were unable to make the trip because of other engagements.

The tour of inspection, at which time the boys are advised regarding feeding schedules, proper care of the calves and other details, is a required part of the calf project setup. Estimates of weights of the animals, together with measurements, were made. Ira Passons took the measurements, which were recorded by two of the boys in the party. This data will be compared with similar information collected during another tour about the middle of November that progress of the animals may be noted.

Members of the party declared this year's calves to be as fine a bunch of young cattle as has ever been selected by Wheeler county club members.

Calves owned by the following boys were inspected: Pete Morgan, Leroy Lamb, Hiram Whitener, James Passons (2), Travis Bradstreet, Bob Tatum, A. J. Worley, Rex Miller, Edgar Flynt, Harry Gordon, Bud McCarroll, Henry Lane, Jack Robertson, Edward Cadra and Herman and Cleve Parsons.

Speaking of the November tour, Tuesday, Tarter expressed the desire to issue an invitation at that time to all men and boys of the county—both in town and country—who care to make the trip, to join the group and make of it a real event.

FARM DEBT ADJUSTMENT COMMITTEE FUNCTIONING

As stated through the columns of this newspaper some weeks ago, Wheeler county's farm debt adjustment committee, as appointed by Governor James Allred is composed of A. B. Crump, Dick Stanley and Walter Anglin. At a recent meeting of the committee, organization was perfected and Stanley chosen secretary. Crump is chairman.

The committee is now ready to function and, according to the secretary, will receive applications from those who are in need of its services. Principal of these are the following: Serve as a source of accurate information and friendly counsel to distressed farm debtors and their creditors; to re-establish confidence and work out equitable agreements; to help stop unjustifiable foreclosures; to assist debtors and creditors in the composition of farmer's debts; arrange extension agreements between debtors and creditors, and otherwise aid in amicable adjustment of financial problems of the farmer.

Complete details of the committee's duties and possibilities may be obtained from any member of the group and especially from the secretary, at the Agnes Reynolds abstract office in Wheeler.

VEGETABLES—FRUITS

The Times family acknowledges with pleasure the receipt, this week, of substantial favors from friends. Sheriff Raymond Waters remembered the office with a sample of fine plums from his favorite tree. Zack Coleman brought in a splendid specimen of yellow Bermuda onions, while A. L. Tinney of the Twitty community did a daring thing Tuesday, the 13th, when he presented us with 13 fine big roasting ears. Neither Mr. Tinney nor The Times is superstitious, however, and it's a long time until Sept. 13.

Young Gageby Matron Passes Away Friday

Mrs. Marvin Pace Succumbs After Brief Illness at Hospital in Canadian

Mrs. Marvin Pace, 23, of Gageby, died Friday at a Canadian hospital following a five weeks serious illness, although she had been suffering from enema for several months.

Fonnie Walton was born Feb. 21, 1912, near Chichasha, Okla., in Grady county and died at Canadian, Texas, Aug. 9, 1935, at the age of 23 years, five months and 18 days. She was a member of the Primitive Baptist church of Mobeetie, and had made many friends in the Gageby community, where she lived for six years.

She was married to Marvin Pace at Chichasha, Okla., March 29, 1929. She is survived by a loving husband, two sons, Myrl, 6, and Earl, 3; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Walton; four sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Nina Boycott, Mrs. Alto Beatty, Dollie, Thamba and John Walton at home, and Uke Walton and a number of other relatives and friends who mourn her untimely death.

Funeral services were conducted by J. R. Sims, minister of the Primitive Baptist church of Mobeetie, assisted by Rev. J. Aldridge, at Washita, Saturday afternoon, with burial in the Washita cemetery.

Lighted Football Field Is Assured

Reports this week from those working on the proposition, indicate that a flood-lighted football field for night games in Wheeler is now assured. Plans to provide this much-needed adjunct to modern school plants have been worked out. Some of the material has been arranged for and installation is waiting only until Coach Bob Clark returns to assist with laying out the system to the best advantage.

A football booster declared this week that when the lights are installed and the field ready for use an invitation would be extended to Shamrock to "come up and see us sometime."

Working on the fence surrounding the field has been progressing rapidly this week. Practically all the posts are set and as soon as the lumber arrives, the fence and grandstand will be pushed to completion.

METHODIST REVIVAL ENDS; KIRBY TO VEGA MEETING

Following a series of meetings covering a period of two weeks, revival services at the Methodist church here came to an end Sunday night. Preaching was in charge of Rev. H. C. Smith of Tahoka, assisted by Rev. J. Edmund Kirby, local pastor, and Rev. Adrain Rea, Methodist pastor at Briscoe, who conducted the song services.

On Monday, Rev. Kirby left for Vega, where he will do the preaching in a two-weeks revival. He expects to be gone over two Sundays, when regular services, except sermons, will be held at the local church. Rev. Kirby has requested his congregation to co-operate with the Baptist church in a revival which started Monday.

ANOTHER ATTACK MADE UPON THE PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM

County Superintendent B. T. Rucker Points Out Defects of Text Book Amendment and Warns Against its Adoption in Special Election, August 24.

Amendment No. 7 on the ballot to be voted upon August 24 is a dangerous attack against the public free schools of Texas. It proposes to furnish free textbooks to each child of scholastic age in the state; and further, although this second proposal is hidden in the body of the amendment and does not come to the attention of the reader of the ballot, to change the method of distributing the state available school fund.

This amendment makes it appear that free textbooks are not given to all children who attend public free schools in Texas. This, as it is easy to see, is in reality hiding behind a false pretense; it would do nothing more than furnish free textbooks to private and church schools, over which the state has no control. This would be done at the expense of the taxpayers of the state.

It will result in the exertion of pressure to have textbooks adopted or rejected on sectarian grounds and doctrines. It sets up a precedent for state support of church institutions. First it would furnish books, next teachers, and finally buildings; but would have no control over such a setup. Reread your history of the bitter fight of the public schools of the United States to limit support of

ISSUE CALL TO FOOTBALL BOYS

Bob Clark, athletic coach in the Wheeler schools, now attending University of Alabama, has written a letter to Sal Bolton in which football plans are outlined. Bolton is requested to contact all prospective members of the football squad and notify them to meet with him at the school grounds here on Tuesday, August 20, at 2:30 p. m.

At that time the players will be enrolled and receive information concerning equipment required for an 8-day encampment on the Thurmond ranch. Clark expects to arrive August 25 and will accompany the boys to camp on Monday, August 26. Bolton declares that it is important for all students who expect to play football to attend the meeting here next Tuesday.

CLUB MEETING IS POSTPONED

Members of the group announce that the regular meeting of the Wheeler Home Demonstration club, dated for Wednesday, August 21, has been postponed one week, to meet on Wednesday, August 28. This action was taken to allow the members more time in which to prepare entries intended for the county fair to be held at Shamrock on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 6 and 7.

At the postponed meeting of the local club, proposed fair exhibits will be subjected to an elimination process in which the choicest offerings will be selected for the county contest.

FIRE DESTROYS GARRISON HOME

Discovered between 1 and 2 o'clock, Saturday morning, when such headway had been made that scarcely anything could be saved, fire of undetermined origin destroyed the Harry Garrison home in the northeast part of town. Garrison, alone in the house, was awakened by the smell of smoke and had only sufficient time to make his escape safely. Mrs. Garrison was visiting in Amarillo; Ruth Faye, a daughter, was spending the night at the Tolliver home, and Jack Garrison was sleeping as usual at the service station.

The house, a 24x28 wooden structure, was quickly consumed. Timely shifting of the wind saved a cow shed and other outbuildings. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

WHEELER LADIES HEAR LECTURE AT SHAMROCK

Badley, Alfred Bryant, Jack Badley, Buster Johnson, Ollie Hubbard and daughters, Misses Beulah and Evonne, and Miss Bonnie Adams.

Briscoe Schools to Start Next Week

Completion of Faculty Announced by Supt. Dyer—Further Building Planned

The Briscoe public schools will swing open the doors for the beginning of their 1935-36 school term on next Monday, Aug. 19. This is according to Supt. Jim H. Dyer, who states that everything is being placed in order for what is expected to be one of the largest openings in recent years. Briscoe schools will have a net scholastic enumeration of 260 pupils.

The school board, together with the superintendent, have worked hard in choosing a faculty in hopes of selecting the right teacher for the right place. Remaining members of the faculty were elected at a meeting of the board last Monday.

The faculty is as follows: Jim H. Dyer, superintendent; W. G. Collins, principal of the high school and coach; O. C. Evans, principal of the grades; Herschel Clawson, history; Miss Lavelle Coney, home economics; Miss Marian Owens, English; Miss Ima Scott, geography; Miss Bulah Hubbard, intermediate, and Miss Lynn Day, primary.

A transcript of the teachers reveals the following:

Jim H. Dyer, who comes to Briscoe from Glazier, in Hemphill county, obtained his schooling at the San Marcos high school, the Baptist academy and the East Texas State Teachers college, which he attended only in the spring and summer. He taught school to help a widowed mother and to keep three brothers and two sisters in school.

Dyer was superintendent of the Longview schools from 1925 to 1930, inclusive. He took his B. A. degree at Sul Ross teachers college, Alpine, and has done work on his Master's degree in University of Colorado at Boulder; also at Texas university.

W. E. Collins will be something of a stranger to Briscoe and even to Wheeler county but is well known among the coaches of the entire Panhandle. For the past three years he has been principal and coach of the Booker schools, where he built a powerful athletic organization. He will also teach manual arts.

O. C. Evans, grade principal and coach for the younger boys, is well known throughout the Briscoe community and the county, where he has spent the greater part of his teaching career.

Herschel Clawson comes to Briscoe from the Van Horn high school, near El Paso. He hails from Tulla.

Miss Lavelle Coney comes from Sylvester to teach home economics, a new course added this year. She has a Master's degree and has been head of the Sylvester home ec department for six years. With her training and experience, great results are expected from the new department.

Miss Marian Owens, from Baylor-Belton at Belton, Texas, where she has taught English for the past five years, is considered a valuable member of the faculty. She has her Master's degree in English. With three credits in English obtained under the guidance of Mrs. Smith, an effort will be made to increase the list this year.

Miss Bulah Hubbard is a member of the faculty and well known to the people of Wheeler where she has lived for several years, teaching in the schools of the county and nearby. She was employed in the McLean schools last year.

Miss Lynn Day comes from Commerce, Texas, to teach the primary department. She is a member of a family of teachers, her father having been superintendent of the Commerce schools for 30 years. She is highly recommended by ETSTC of Commerce.

The superintendent and board has made every effort to select teachers with degrees and place them in their major field of work; this has been done with one exception. Of the nine teachers, eight have Bachelor's degrees and two have their Master's.

The school board is working out plans for the erection of a $10,000 addition to the school plant through WPA aid. This building will house manual training and home economics and provide two class rooms for the primary grades.

D. L. Kutch of Glendale, Calif., and his grandson, Dan Kutch of Alhambra, Calif., came Friday to visit the former's daughter and son, Mrs. Claude Cox of Wheeler, and Horton Kutch at Wellington. Dan Kutch will also visit his uncles, Frank and John Rogers and their families, before returning home Sept. 1, while his grandfather will remain with his children for an indefinite stay.

IN THE BALANCE

Ask any business man, investor, property owner or thinking worker what is most needed to give the nation the confidence, the spirit and the optimism that will break depression.

You might get the same answer from each: "Tax reduction, plus a determined policy that will balance the budget as soon as possible, and gradually reduce and eventually eliminate the vast national debt."

Real, permanent and sound recovery cannot arrive so long as industry faces the prospect of confiscatory taxes that will seize whatever profits it is able to make. We cannot have a wave of home-building so long as our citizens realize that increasing taxes may soon make it impossible for them to keep their property. We cannot have re-employment of the jobless so long as investors are afraid to put their money into productive enterprises—because rising taxes imperil both principal and income.

The national debt is approaching the 35 billion dollar mark. Hundreds of millions of dollars a year are required to meet the interest. More hundreds of millions are required for sinking funds with which to pay off the bonds when they fall due. Long after the money has been spent, and the things it bought have disappeared, we and our children will be paying the bill.

The federal government has attempted to "spend us back to prosperity." In the view of many unbiased commentators we would have gone a long way farther toward recovery had spending been held down—in other words, the government's policy, in their belief, has hindered and not helped the nation. Yet more spending is in prospect—and more taxes.

The people want tax reduction. Business wants tax reduction. Investors and workers want tax reduction. Unless it is achieved, the nation's economic future is in the balance.

FRUITS OF CAPITALISM

It is a common fallacy that, under capitalism, the worker's share of business' income tends to constantly decrease.

The truth is that precisely the opposite occurs. For example, the worker's share in the national income level increased from 38 per cent in 1850 to 85 per cent in 1929.

Of even greater interest is the fact that during times of depression the worker's share of income is even higher than in times of prosperity. In 1931 and 1932 the worker received 75 to 80 per cent of the income produced. And, in the case of manufacturing and related industries, the worker received $2,500,000,000 MORE than these industries received in total receipts during the two years. In other words, the industries paid their workers out of surplus capital borrowings when their receipts were no longer adequate to foot the cost.

Under the capitalistic system, as practiced and developed in America, the worker has attained the highest standard of living in the world. He has been able to purchase infinitely more luxuries than have his European or Asiatic counterparts—and services and articles that he regards as necessities are actually luxuries to foreign workers. Radios, automobiles, labor-saving appliances, central heating, even bathtubs, are still regarded as the exclusive possessions of the rich in many countries—but not in America where the worker has tended to become a capitalist along with his employer.

These are facts that the theorists cannot dispute. Those who would inflict upon us Fascism, Communism and other alien doctrines say little about what has happened to the worker in the countries which have adopted them. They do not say that the worker has almost always been ground down and made poorer—and has been kept from insurrection by barbaric, iron-handed dictatorship. Capitalism has succeeded. Given a fair chance, it will continue to succeed—and bring new benefits to the American people of all economic levels.

COTTON TRADE ALMOST GONE

For more than a century the United States has led the world by a wide margin in the cotton trade. On this leadership has depended the economic destiny of half a dozen states.

Now the leadership is rapidly being lost. For example, during the 12 months from July, 1933, to July, 1934, America exported almost 8,000,000 bales of cotton. During the 12 months from July, 1934, to July, 1935, exports amounted to only 4,826,000 bales. That, says the U. S. News, meant the loss of a market for more than 3,000,000 bales of cotton with a value of more than $150,000,000.

The drop was not due to a general decline in the cotton trade. During the year when American exports were touching bottom, foreign competitors increased sales. Where we used to supply 60 per cent of the world's cotton requirements, we now supply less than 45 per cent, and the trend is still downward.

Three primary reasons are given for this unhappy condition. First, prices in this country are higher than those of other cotton producing countries, because of the government's cotton-pegging policy. American cotton is under strict federal control, buttressed by a price fixing loan of 12 cents per pound. Plowing-under has also reduced our crop.

Second, new competitors have appeared—Brazil, for instance, formerly sold little cotton abroad, but will have 1,000,000 bales for the foreign market next year.

Third, foreign users who bought large quantities of our cotton at low prices, are still using it.

Of the three reasons, government policy is the most important. Strong pressure will be brought to bear in an effort to change it, in the hope that we may again regain our position as the world's pre-eminent trader in cotton.

THE SKELLYTOWN NEWS

The first issue of the Skellytown News, a newspaper established in that city 11 weeks ago, arrived this week. The paper is edited by Mrs. C. J. Richter, and carries a very fair advertising patronage in addition to an interesting news content.

The following article appearing on the first page of the News contains sound philosophy which may well be applied to any legitimate newspaper.

"Some have the opinion that The Skellytown News is a free paper. Several have come to us since we quit distributing sample copies and said, 'We have not received a paper in two weeks or more.' Sample copies were distributed the first few weeks we were here in order that you might know what kind of paper we expect to have.

"What other paper do you get free of any charge? Why should your home paper, the only paper in the world that cares anything about Skellytown, be distributed free? The subscription rate is only $1.50 per year, or about three cents per week. Is the paper not worth that much to you? If not then it is not worth anything."

CENTENNIAL POLITICS

The people of Floyd county gave their legislator a mandate to support the Centennial celebration in 1936, despite the warning that the celebration would be for the big cities largely at the expense of their country cousins. Control of the Centennial is in the hands of big-city minded men and the events of the past few days prove the trend. Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, Fort Worth will profit hugely. Little cities like Floydada and country people like live in Floyd county will pay the freight.

All the big things that are being done are making the big cities richer, more powerful, giving them more prestige—and largely at the expense of their country cousins. In the instance of the Centennial all the littler cities which hoped to profit from the undertaking in one way or another are realizing the cards were stacked against them from the beginning.—Floyd County Hesperian.

More than a year ago, Elizabeth Ann Studer lost a bracelet while swimming in Studer's Lake. Only last week she was diving at the lake and brought up a handful of mud and to her great surprise the long lost bracelet was in the handful of mud.—Canadian Record.

OLD-TIME FIRE IS MISSING

Texans go to the polls on August 24 to vote on repeal of the liquor prohibition laws. Seems like such an important question would cause more of a furore in the state than is apparent. Insofar as the Herald is concerned, the "wets" are putting up practically no fight at all. We have had a few "repeal" stories sent to us via the free publicity racket.

Here in Ochiltree county, we have an active "dry" organization. They are doing some effective work and there is no question as to the outcome in this county. We think it will go against repeal by a decisive vote.

But the old fight and fever heat that is expected in a campaign of this nature is missing. Maybe the "drys" have lost their pep because the opposition isn't making things hot enough to be interesting.—Ochiltree County Herald.

Our Exchanges

Items of interest culled from newspapers on The Times' exchange list.

The City of Wellington will attempt to secure a swimming pool and a park beautification project under the WPA as a result of a decision reached Monday night. Other business included the setting of the tax rate at $1.20, a reduction of 5c over last year and a decision to turn on all street and residential lights.—Wellington Leader.

Dr. A. A. Tampke, for the past nine years head of the vocational department of the McLean schools, has accepted a similar position with the newly consolidated Quail district, at a substantial increase in salary. Dr. Tampke came here in 1927 as a graduate from the Sam Houston State Teachers college at Huntsville, with two years experience in teaching at Huckabay, where his teams won four state first prizes. During his tenure at McLean his teams have won 50 cups, sweepstakes, banners, medals and cash first places in state and national contests, besides numbers of individual winnings.—McLean News.

There was a period when the person who wrote a good hand had the jump on his competitors for a job. Nowadays penmanship does not count for much, yet there is one merchant who wishes that he were a better writer. Desiring to reduce his stock of oatmeal, he sent pen written copy to the local paper and was shocked when the resulting ad announced a special sale of catmeal.—White Deer Review.

Petition asking the board of trustees of the Panhandle Independent School district to sponsor building a swimming pool on the school grounds was circulated this week by members of the Parent-Teachers association. Several interested women took the lead in circulating the petition and they said that the response was unusually good. Pampa erected a swimming pool two years ago and Berger one last year with federal aid. Building a pool in Panhandle has been discussed for two years.—Panhandle Herald.

The reduction in the Texas tax rate for this year does not mean so much after all, considering the fact that the general fund grows deeper and deeper in the red. Something is going to have to be done with the general fund of Texas, as the deficit grows larger. The people are demanding more and more services from the state, and therefore must pay more for these services. There is no way to reduce state appropriations unless state services are reduced. Everyone is anxious for the state to assume more duties toward the citizens, but at the same time raise a terrible roar when called upon to pay the bill.—Canyon News.

Postmaster S. E. Fitzgerald was checked in Monday night and is now greeting at the window the patrons of the local office, relieving Mrs. Lora Barber, who has been postmaster under the republican administration during the past five years.—Miami Chief.

At a meeting of the city commission Wednesday, August 7, the tax rate for the coming year was set at $1.20 on the $100 valuation. This is a reduction of thirty cents from the rate of $1.50 which has prevailed for the past two years. When interviewed, Tom F. Connally and H. C. Brumley, city commissioners, stated the commission was able to make this reduction in rate in the face of a heavy reduction in valuation.—Clarendon News.

Still another candidate for the title of the merchant's biggest pest comes to our attention. This one is recommended by the manager of Pampa's largest department store. He nominates the woman who came into his store and was particularly fussy about getting a correct fit in the shoe department. After she had tried on shoe after shoe in various styles, and seemed perfectly content (at last) with the fit of a certain shoe, she asked what size the shoe was. When he told her the correct number, she thanked him very nicely for his care in fitting her and explained that the reason that she was so particular about learning the exact size, was so that she might order her shoes from a mail order house!—Pampa Advocate.

Ima Fizzle rises to defend her sex by saying that a man will slouch down town wearing most anything, but pride compels the woman with but one presentable dress from doing such a thing. She will wash out that lonely rag, go to bed until it dries, before she will be seen on the street looking like the wife of a husband what she is.—Donley County Leader.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Johnson of Shamrock, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Watson and Mrs. Clara Hope of Plainview, were Sunday afternoon guests of their sister-in-law, Mrs. M. L. Gunter, and children and Mr. and Mrs. Terrell Gunter.

One of These Women Is SOMEONE

You don't notice it on the street, but when a woman comes into the bank, you can tell immediately. One woman will be "Mrs. So-and-So" to everyone. It's ten to one she's a regular depositor and has a home of her own. The other type is rarely a depositor, not well known. Regular saving habits have a lot to do with a home of one's own and the pleasure of knowing you're "somebody."

"One of the most important things that women should learn is to sit and work," said Miss Tamsey Riley in giving a demonstration, prepared by Miss Viola Jones, to the Briscoe Home Demonstration club August 6.

Miss Riley continued, "Use your brain and save your back. You can sit and do many kitchen tasks if a high stool is used. Have this for your motto 'Step-saving kitchen.' Study your kitchen plan and then rearrange to suit your own needs. Many times wonderful improvement can be made with little if any expense."

Those attending the meeting were Mesdames Perry Riley, Ramsey, Sam Standlee, Clara Childress, Queenie Vise, T. A. Treadwell, C. H. Candler, and Miss Tamsey Riley.

By selling hens, eggs and fryers, Mrs. Hershel Glass, farm food supply demonstrator for the Allison Home Demonstration club, paid the family grocery bill and bought what foods that she needed to fill 415 quarts of food which she did not get from her garden. Mrs. Glass has a garden close to the house where she can get fresh vegetables each day, and another garden in the field with more peas and beans for canning purposes.

As yet there is no cellar or shelves for storing these canned products, but before achievement day this fall, Mrs. Glass states that a new cellar will be added to the farm, and ample storage conveniences for the farm food supply.

A net profit of $9.06 has been realized by Mrs. Loula Mae Farley, of the Wheeler Home Demonstration club, the past week from her bean vines. These beans started bearing about three weeks ago and besides what she has sold, Mrs. Farley canned 20 quarts herself, had 90 No. 2 cans canned at the relief kitchen, and gave a neighbor enough beans to can 44 quarts of these vines.

This patch is not located on sub-irrigated land as one might believe, but on sandy loam, in the field and not even irrigated. The rest of Mrs. Farley's garden is faring nicely, also. Her tomato vines have small green ones on them, and the squash, butter beans, sweet potatoes, okra, cantaloupe, peas and other vegetables are progressing accordingly.

In beginning to fill the shelves of her pantry, Clevel Laman, food preservation demonstrator for the Mobeetie 4-H club, has already canned 90 quarts of fruits and vegetables.

These include 20 quarts peaches, 4 quarts squash, 38 quarts plums, 10 quarts preserves and jelly, 8 quarts beans, and 10 quarts greens. After she has done sufficient canning to fill the budget card for the family of five, Clevel states that she will provide adequate shelving space and arrange her canned products for an achievement day exhibit for fellow club members.

CLUB NOTES

Happenings of Interest by and for Home Demonstration Club Women of the County.

With a plot 30x100 feet, Mrs. Bob Rodgers, who lives in the Wheeler city limits, can easily boast of one of the best gardens in the whole neighborhood. She has gathered one cabbage which weighed 15 pounds, has peppers weighing one-fourth of a pound apiece, and one cucumber vine has already produced nine quarts cucumbers. This garden began bearing about the 10th of May and since then has meant as much as $84.00 to them on the grocery bill, Mrs. Rodgers estimates.

"Since it first began bearing," said Mrs. Rodgers, "my garden has furnished vegetables for two families full time, besides dividing with five other families." Other than what has been given away, canned and used fresh, $3.50 worth of cabbage, $1.82 worth of cucumbers, 60 cents worth of onions and 70 cents worth of okra has been sold from the garden. Three bushels of potatoes and two bushels of onions have been harvested, and the okra production averages five pounds daily.

Little Bobbie, Jr., is especially proud of his giant pumpkin, which measures 48 inches around.

There are nine vegetables available in the garden now, which includes: beans, peas, okra, carrots, cucumbers, cabbage, pumpkins, peas, muskmelons and tomatoes, and there is sweet corn, watermelons and white pony beans growing where radishes, onions, mustard, turnips, spinach, Irish potatoes and lettuce were planted for the early garden.

Since Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers have done most of the labor themselves, total expense is $4.00 for breaking the land, cultivating and irrigating and $1.20 for seeds and plants. Most of the seed used was saved from last year. The owners attribute most of the success of this garden to their being able to irrigate, though it is a surface system.

The Mobeetie Husky Go-getters met Aug. 8 in the home of Delora Ferguson. "Mrs. Cole received the club quilt which was given away Aug. 3," stated Clevel Laman, president.

ECHOES FROM SHORT COURSE TRIP

THE WORK CENTER

By MRS. CLARENCE ZYBACH

The work center was a very interesting feature of the Short Course program, as courses in small manufactures were given each afternoon. Each morning the building which is made of logs and contains a canning kitchen, ventilated pantry, work room and trading post, was open for inspection.

Chair and stool making, making and laying tile, metal work, basket making, wood button making, handkerchief and woven purse making, syrup making, sewing, rug and bedspread making, mohair work, the uses of kraut, tomatoes and canning of grape juice was demonstrated on different days of the week.

Objects for sale at the trading post were chairs, stools, shelves, cedar chests, wood buttons, baskets, bracelets, purses, mohair saddle girths. The post was operated by Mrs. John F. Taylor of Abilene, who has conducted demonstrations in standardization for farm home makers' products for several years and has sold products on the Abilene farm home makers market.

PURSE MAKING DEMONSTRATED

By MRS. LEE GEORGE

The technique of purse making was given on the second floor of the Petroleum building, from Monday, July 29, to Friday, Aug. 2, from 1:30 to 3:45, under direction of Mrs. Dora Barnes, extension specialist in clothing, College Station. Mrs. Barnes, with the aid of three assistants, instructed a group of 30 ladies from various counties over the state each afternoon on making purses.

Three types of purses were made. These were the fabric purse, using heavy silk, cotton or woolen materials. These were made in the small or medium envelope style for afternoon or street wear, while the larger bag was made of silks or velvet for evening. The crocheted purse was very popular, while the beaded purse seemed to be more in demand.

Each of the three types of purses made were very "chic" when finished with the zipper fastener, coin purse and mirror. Anyone interested in making the beaded bag may write Walco Bead Co., 37 W 37th St., New York City, for instruction and material.

BEDROOM HINTS

By MARCILLE TODD

In a demonstration "Attractive Touches in the Bedroom," Mrs. LeLoise D. Skelley, home economist of San Marcos Teacher's college, gave the following information to 4-H club girls attending Short Course, in the Petroleum lecture room, Wednesday, July 31.

"A properly arranged bedroom should contain a comfortable bed adequate storage space for clothing, a dresser or dressing table, desk, bedside table, and book shelves. For a dresser to look neat and still be convenient you need a drawer for cosmetics. On top of the dresser put a small box for costume jewelry, a pot flower and a bowl for powder. Then arrange accessories so they will be well balanced.

ON THE FOOTBALL FENCE

Someone conceived the idea of building a fence around the football field and paying for it by selling advertising space to the Wheeler merchants at $1.00 per foot. Most of the merchants bought from 19 to 25 feet. That was a splendid idea, and we endorse it fully.

BUT—

the Rogue Theatre has not yet agreed to take any definite amount on the fence.

WHY?

We had made plans definitely with Mrs. Gordon Whitener to give a benefit show to the Pep Squad Girls so that they could earn money to buy uniforms. They selected the show "Girl of the Limberlost," which comes Aug. 26-27. This plan was made before we ever heard of the fence idea. We stated that after giving this show we would take $25.00 worth of fence, less whatever amount the girls received from the show. In other words, if the girls got $15.00, we would take $10.00 on the fence.

Now was that fair? Should we be penalized for having an idea? Can more than one person have an idea for helping the school? Is this America, or merely Louisiana, the home of the Kingfish? Thanks.

EARLY HISTORY OF THE FARMERS SHORT COURSE

By MARGARET SEEDIG

Opening of the annual farmers Short Course on July 28 caused E. J. Kyle, dean of the school of agriculture, A. & M. college, to look back along the years to the first Short Course, held in January, 1911. It was known in those days as the Farmers Short and Winter Course and was of two weeks duration.

At the first session, according to Kyle, 16 students, all men, were housed in tents erected southwest of the old agriculture building. The second and third Short Course were also held in the winter. Kyle said that the attendance of the third session jumped to 106 men, including some half dozen boys.

"These winter Short Courses had a way of developing cold weather," Dean Kyle stated. "In fact, it was during the third Short Course that a very cold norther blew in and before it was over most of the students had left for their homes in order to gather wood and get in extra feed for the cattle."

This cold streak resulted in future meetings being held during the summer. It was also decided to limit the time to one week, because those attending felt that they could not be away from their homes longer than that.

At the fourth annual gathering, held in July, 1913, full courses were offered in agronomy, animal and dairy husbandry and horticulture. During the fifth Short Course a number of important changes took place. County and home demonstration agents attended the course and were required to take all regular lectures given during the mornings. The first full course in domestic science was offered. The first out-of-state lecturers appeared on the program of this session. Much development of the poultry industry in Texas may be traced directly to lectures given by this Cornell professor, according to Kyle.

During the sixth assembly full courses in agricultural engineering and poultry were offered for the first time. In the tenth annual Short Course an announcement appeared, signed by T. O. Walton, acting director of extension, which stated: "It is the purpose of the extension authorities to hold its agents' meetings in connection with the farmers Short Course. We invite leading farmers, teachers, professional and business men to join in a week's conference."

"It was the year following the tenth annual farmers Short Course that boys' and girls' work at Short Course was first stressed," Kyle said. "Prizes were offered in the way of free trips to Short Course. The canning contest was held at the college and the girl winning the contest was crowned queen of the Short Course."

Following the 12th annual Short Course, upon recommendation of E. J. Kyle, who had directed the affair up to this time, the organization was turned over to the extension service.

TO AID CRIPPLED CHILDREN

By MRS. R. J. TYSON

The recent legislation provided for a physical restoration service for crippled children under 21 years of age, and placed the administration of the law in the hands of the rehabilitation division of the State Department of Education, with a special supervisor in charge, said A. H. Abbott, assistant special supervisor for crippled children, when talking to a group of Short Course delegates.

The purposes of this department are: To locate the cripples of the state; to make available such hospital care as may be permitted under Senate Bill 247 in the treatment of such persons; to see that crippled children receive educational guidance and training.

To keep the general public interested in the rights of crippled children; to co-operate with all agencies and interested individuals in the attainment of these objectives; to provide a balanced program for the care of the state's crippled children, namely: discovery, treatment and guidance.

To get such children hospitalized write the Crippled Children's Division, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas, giving the name of the child, disability, age, sex, parents names, post-office and county, and request information.

THE KEY COTTAGE

By MRS. A. R. BEENE

The place where the Key Cottage is now, was formerly used to park old cars. The Key Cottage was only started four years ago. The yard was cleared off and bermuda grass was set out on it.

The following was given by lectures: Flowers should never be scattered about in the yard. Shrubbery should be set about six feet away from the house. Roses should always be set in straight rows so they can be cultivated like row crops. When they have been pruned, barnyard manure and straw should be placed around the roots to shade the rose in place of the leaves. When deciding where to plant shrubbery the smaller ones should be placed toward the front. Never place large shrubbery around the windows because it knocks off both breeze and daylight. If one is in tight land soil and the soil is gummy, they may remove 2 feet of the gummy soil and put back 3 parts of sand to 1 part of barnyard manure. It is not necessary to set trees in straight rows. Choose shrubs that come up from the root every year as near as possible.

The Key Cottage is a model home with taste and arrangement. The lumber was made there to build the cottage. The furnishings were also donated. In the living room was a fireplace and a mantelpiece over it. Over the mantelpiece was a Colonial style mirror, a bouquet of flowers, and other ornaments. The chair and the couch were covered with cotton crash, made there at the factory. The furniture in the dining room was walnut. A bouquet of flowers was beautifully arranged on the table. The drapery at the windows in the dining room and living room were washable sateen lined with rayon. They could be pulled apart with a little cord.

In the bedroom was a bed, dressing table, a bedside table and a wardrobe. The wardrobe was built where it could get plenty of ventilation. On the bed was a spread 100 years old. On each side of the mirror were pictures of their people and they were fixed level with the eyes. In the hall was a hidden door that led to the attic where things that were not in use were kept.

The bathroom had inlaid linoleum on the floor, and a built-in gas stove. The next room was a maid's room that could be used for a child's room. The kitchen had a built-in cabinet and sink, a built-in pantry, a table, a stove with a shelf on the side made for recipe books. The refrigerator was on the back porch. The back porch was screened in, and the clothes line was on the porch.

SONGS OF THE PEOPLE AND THEIR FOLKLORE

By MRS. QUEENIE VISE

"Folk songs have been handed down by the people through the ages, but have never been printed; but the songs of the people were written for the people," explained Miss Jennie Hill Barry to the several groups at lectures during Short Course this year. She interpreted the nonsense rhymes of choruses as having a meaning not spoken in words.

One of the most popular songs was the "Froggie Song," which she sang several times for different groups during the session, and by the tone of voice, expression and action put much meaning into the nonsense rhyme. She also gave some ancient chants and told their meaning. She asserted this was really the first method of acting.

In a discussion of Folklore and its Relation to History, A. W. Eddins made similar statements. He declared: "The best history we have of our state is that handed down from generation to generation by the stories of the people." With a little imagination, the stories and jokes he told of early days made the history of our ancestors very plain to his audiences.

Both the songs and stories told in very few words things happening over a period of time and brought them to mind in such an interesting way that we will not soon forget them.

CURIOUS THINGS OBSERVED DURING VISIT TO MUSEUM

By MRS. C. H. CANDLER

Visiting the museum, maintained for the benefit of science, was one of the many privileges of the 4-H and women's club members who attended the Short Course at College Station for 1935.

Among the many, many exhibits some of the most interesting were: An Egyptian mummy 2,600 years old; a mastodon's head, three times larger than that of an elephant; tusk of a mammoth, seven feet long, found near Luling, Texas; a little pre-mature elephant; deformed calves, calf with two heads and four eyes, with one head, two mouths and three eyes, Siamese calves; mounted baby ostrich.

Skeletons of dog, cow, calf, and horse's head and hoofs; ligaments, nerves and blood vessels of horses and cows; bones and fossils of prehistoric animals, including horses; hook worms in calf intestines; screw worms, tape worms, thorn head worms; fever ticks; liver flukes, and a madstone.

Besides those things enumerated above, there were hundreds of other interesting articles on exhibition, affording an unusual as well as educational experience for all observers.

HISTORICAL SCENES VIEWED BY SHORT COURSE MEMBERS

By MRS. ZURA BULLOCK

"This is the tree where Santa Anna was brought a captive by Joel Robinson and Sylvester," said the superintendent of the San Jacinto battlegrounds, to a group of Wheeler county 4-H and Home Demonstration club delegates as he conducted them on a tour of the grounds, 18 miles southeast of Houston, Saturday, Aug. 3.

Continuing, as he guided the group from place to place he explained the different markers and monuments, showing where the American army under Sam Houston and the Mexican army under Santa Anna were located.

Sam Houston, with something over 700 men, was camped just inside the west side and Santa Anna, with about 1400 men, was camped just inside the east side of a huge "U" formed by a channel impassible except by "Lynch's" Ferry situated in the lower part, (north side) of the "U." As the story goes, Houston did not want to attack Santa Anna without re-enforcement but his men insisted that they attack at once. So great were their demands that Houston ordered an attack.

Santa Anna, not expecting an attack, was not prepared. Some of his men were asleep, others engaged in various camp duties. When the Americans attacked, the Mexicans scattered.

As the guide came to this part of the battlefield he led the group to a monument; this, he explained, marks the spot where 630 Mexicans were killed by the Americans. The Mexicans fled from the attack across marshy ground and were bogged down, unable to free themselves, and the Americans killed them and took the rest of Santa Anna's men prisoners. Santa Anna himself escaped but was captured the day following the battle.

The San Jacinto battleground is a lovely place; grass covered grounds with cement and seashell walks. The flagpole is mounted in a cement and shell "star" surrounded by a circular cement bench. There are tables and benches for the benefit of "picnickers." The grounds are electrically lighted.

The Wheeler group left the grounds about dark and drove to Houston for the night. Sunday morning they drove to Huntsville and made a tour of Sam Houston's home.

The caretaker was not present so the group did not get to see all of the historical pieces of his home. Just inside the entrance of the house was a register in which most of the group wrote their names. Upstairs in a hall were three old trunks, one of leather. Through the outside windows they looked at some of the grand old furniture used by Sam Houston—the grand piano, rag rugs, antique chairs, a cradle, old dishes and pottery, side board and numerous other articles of historical value.

The kitchen was set apart from the main house. As it was locked the group did not get to look inside. However, a large iron pot used for cooking purposes was sitting outside the kitchen door.

These grounds, like the battlegrounds, were covered with grass, flowers and vines. Tall trees of different kinds, elder berries and crepe myrtle were everywhere. Shady lanes and bypaths led to some new wonder of beauty—a lily pond, a rustic bench or grassy mound inviting you to pause and rest while you try to imagine how sacred this spot is and closing your eyes you can almost see the stately form of General Sam Houston as he goes about his duties as master of his home.

GOLD STAR BANQUET

By DORA GOODNIGHT

For the excellence of their work 200 Texas 4-H club boys and girls were honored by a banquet in the Mess Hall and awarded gold star pins with impressive ceremonies at the Stadium, Wednesday night, July 31.

"Don't go through life a mental cripple," President T. O. Walton told the club members. "Too many men go through life shadows of what they might have been," he said in stressing the importance of preparation in youth for work in adult years.

Acting as toastmaster of the banquet and as chief speaker on the program at the stadium, Dr. Walton paid fitting tribute to the splendid work of the 4-H club members and congratulated the gold star winners on the success of their work.

H. H. Williamson, director of extension, told of the origin of the 4-H emblem and reminded the boys and girls that their clover leaf had four leaves, everyone of which is important. "A good head, a good heart, swift accurate hands and good health taken all together make an efficient person," Williamson said.

In the candle lighting ceremony, Miss Mildred Horton, who presented the gold stars, said: "You are selected for this honor because your demonstrations were the best in Texas. You are called gold star boys and girls because gold is a metal of high value and has the quality of endurance. It lives forever.

"Your demonstrations are of value, honesty and genuineness and have that quality of permanence, too. They live forever in their influence. There are three distinct steps in the demonstration, getting, doing, giving. First comes receiving the information and the inspiration from the agents, the parents, the club sponsors and from each other. Then making the information yours and establishing the very best demonstration that you can establish.

And after that giving to your club members, to your neighbors and their neighbors the truths you have established through your demonstration.

The Booze Fighter

There He Is Boys—Look Him Over

He was at one time an outstanding member of society in this community, a man who did things, and was highly respected by all who knew him. He was pointed out as one of the men who helped hold the world together in our locality.

BUT—He was a man who could either drink or let it alone. He was boastful of this fact, and made frequent exhibitions of his will power, never considering the fact that he was a bad example for his less fortunate fellowman who did not possess this virtue. He did not ask himself the all important question: "AM I MY BROTHER'S KEEPER?"

AND—Through no fault of his own, his well established business began to slip as times changed. He had a spell of sickness which weakened his resistance; his nerves became jittery; he found himself unable to think things through as he had heretofore done; his head seemed kinda muddled.

BUT—He found that by taking a brace every few hours he could carry on in the same old way. So he did it, assuring himself that as soon as he got back on his feet he could quit it. However, it didn't continue to work; he found that it took more and more to keep him going, and that by the time he got his head to working he was drunk, and could not work.

AND—As you see him today, moving about our streets, his friends who once admired him, pity him; men who once backed his judgment, now shun him when he approaches them with his business plans. They say he would have been in prosperous circumstances if he had let booze alone, but it got him.

BOYS: BOOZE GOT HIM! We have two men in our town today who have gone this road. We have three other good men who, if they do not watch their step, are going the same way. The latter three have a chance to regain themselves if they act at once, but it is not probable that they will all do so; their will power is broken.

PICK THEM OUT AND WATCH THEM. Notice their business associates who are beginning to shun them; notice the people who used to patronize them in the past who are not doing so now. Watch them as they gradually slip on down the social scale, and see their business gradually shrivel to nothing.

NOW! WE'RE ASKING YOU? Can you afford to go this route? Can you afford to mess with booze? It is a first class ticket to trouble; it is a first class ticket to the poorhouse. Stand at the door of our state prisons, stand at the door of our execution room—ask them how it happened. Nine times out of ten, they will tell you it started with booze. Nine out of ten of our murders are committed by men or women who are drunk, or who are heavy drinkers.

Boys, we plead with you, in behalf of your family, for our community, and for your better self, for the community and family you will help build tomorrow, in behalf of the man you should be 10, 20, 30 or 50 years from now—LET BOOZE ALONE!

And so in lighting the candles tonight—yours will all be lighted on the one candle and you will receive the light of interest, the light of giving—you will receive that you may make it yours and that you may pass the light of interest, doing good giving to your neighbor."

At the banquet the president of the 4-H clubs, James Grote, introduced boys and girls who told of their demonstrations.

A rising vote of thanks was given Frank Briggs and the Farm and Ranch for making the banquet possible. Briggs responded with a speech of good will to the clubs and concluded by introducing M. H. Holland and Peggy Morris, Porter Holland and Fred Jones, members of Holland's publication organization.

VISIT THROUGH THE SHORT COURSE KITCHEN

By MRS. O. B. BRATCHER

One of the interesting places I visited while at Short Course was the kitchen. I was conducted through the kitchen by the mess sergeant, who gave the following information:

Breakfast was started at 5 a. m. and served at 6:45.

Quantities of foods used were as follows: 450 gallons of coffee for breakfast. At one meal were consumed 25 crates of eggs, 800 pounds of meat, 800 loaves of bread and 40 gallons of beans; 1,300 pounds of sweet potatoes were required for supper, and 3,000 pounds white potatoes for two meals. Dinner consisted of 750 pies.

Other vegetables, cakes and fruit were consumed in proportion. 200 pounds of sugar and 200 pounds of onions per day were used.

There are six steam kettles which hold 100 gallons each, seven of 50 gallons each, and two holding 75 gallons each. They were cooking one of these kettles full of spinach for supper when I called. - It takes 20 minutes to run a bushel of spuds through the scraper, a large vessel resembling a washing machine. They would turn on the electricity two minutes and the spuds were ready for cooking.

The stoves are about 18 feet long, with the steam kettles attached at the outside.

They have large refrigerators to preserve meat, eggs, milk, butter and other foods that soon spoil. They order a carload of dishes every year.

All the cooks, dishwashers and waiters are men and boys, dressed in white uniforms.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY
PREFERS THE NEWSPAPER

Newspaper space is advertising's best medium. This claim is to be expected, of course, in the columns of a newspaper. Its proof is that it checks with widespread evidence to be found on every hand.

The Standard Oil company, announcing its newest national advertising campaign, says: "We have never found any other medium so satisfactory in presenting the many phases of our story directly and effectively."

Newspaper space can present the advertiser's story completely, directly, repeatedly—it depends upon no "flash," no brief or sensational impact. Most important of all, it encounters no resistance or hostility on the part of the prospect.

The newspaper reader is accustomed to certain columns of advertising; he does not resent their presence. He looks them over and consults them of his own volition, as a type of news. He expects to find in them the news of current buying and selling opportunities. They represent information and convenience to him.

SIDELIGHTS

By HON. MARVIN JONES

MARVIN JONES

The AAA amendments as they passed the house of representatives made provision for carrying on the agricultural adjustment program and for protecting the government against unnecessary suits.

These amendments passed the house more than a month ago. The senate has adopted a number of changes and amendments, some of which should not be permitted to remain in the measure. The senate amendment permitting suits by processors to recover taxes paid, in the event processing taxes are held invalid by the supreme court, is too broad.

The processor has simply been the agent for the collection of these taxes, which have been written into the general price structure of the country. If such suits are permitted, and recovery is had, the money should be placed in the custody of the court as a trust fund.

The processor, at the most, should be allowed to recover no more than the tax which he has paid on stocks which he has on hand and unsold at the time the suit is instituted.

The wholesaler should be allowed to recover taxes paid on any stocks which he has on hand and unsold at such time. The retailer and distributor should certainly be accorded the same privilege. In fairness, the balance should go to the consumer who is the ultimate purchaser, but he probably could not be located.

No just man would deprive a citizen of his right to recover any taxes improperly paid by him. On the other hand, no reasonable man should ask to recover taxes which he has passed on.

It would be manifestly unfair to permit the processor to recover taxes on goods which he has already sold. At any rate, the processor should be requested to show conclusively that he neither took any part of it off the price paid to the farmer and that he did not pass any part of it on to the consumer.

We know that the processing tax was a definite factor in the price of all goods sold after such tax became effective. It remains a very definite factor in cost at this time, notwithstanding the fact that many manufacturers are withholding the tax in the hope that the supreme court may eventually declare it invalid.

It would create chaos to invite tens of thousands of suits to recover hundreds of millions of dollars when the processor was merely the agency through which these taxes were passed on to the general public. The government cannot allow this to become a racket by the processor for recovery of taxes which were really paid by the ultimate consumer.

Either the amendment should be eliminated entirely or modified so as to avoid the abuses which it invites. The bill will now go to a joint conference group representing the House and the senate, whose duty it will be to iron out the difference between the bill as it passed the house and as it passed the senate.

I am very hopeful that we will be able to reach a proper agreement, as it is all-important that the farm program be continued.

Double Program

Patrons of the Rogue theatre have a great treat in store for Friday and Saturday, when a big double program will be offered at regular admission prices. To begin with, there will be Tom Keene in a full length feature, "Beyond the Rockies." Next comes Tarzan in Chapter Four. And last will be the entire Baer-Braddock prize fight. This is the "fight of the century," round by round and blow by blow. This is the one and only authentic film of the championship fight, and runs for 30 minutes.

The Nitwits

You last saw the boys, Wheeler and Woolsey, in "Kentucky Kernels." And it goes without question that it was a great picture, even if Spanky did almost steal the show. The latest from this pair of comedians is "The Nitwits," which comes to the Rogue Monday and Tuesday. We guarantee it to be as good as the former success. Check us. Also, a good comedy is offered.

Worms and Parasites Imperil Cotton Crop

Cotton crops of Texas are threatened with destruction, unless immediate measures are taken against leaf worm infestation and other parasites, according to R. R. Reppert, extension entomologist at College Station.

"Frequent showers for the past couple of weeks have been favorable to leaf worm infestation multiplication and spread," he stated. Reppert claims the pest is easily controlled by using calcium arsenate, otherwise known as arsenate of lime. He explained that this chemical is the same as is ordinarily used for control of boll weevil.

"Under ordinary conditions and where dusting machinery is available, this chemical should be applied in dry form," he stated. "Five pounds per acre applied in an even dust cloud should be sufficient except where there is an exceptionally large growth of cotton, then apply 10 pounds per acre. It should be applied early in the morning while there is dew on the plants, although it is effective when applied in mid-day provided there is no wind."

He continued by saying that those who are equipped with some kind of spraying machinery, where the chemical is applied with water as a spray, should mix the poison with the water in the proportion of 10 pounds to 50 gallons of water. The application is not constant, stirred while applying," he said. "It should be applied in sufficient quantity to get a reasonably covering of the mixture on the foliage."

Dr. W. L. Gaines and daughter Billy Ruth, returned Tuesday from Palestine and other points where they visited relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Wiley and children left early this morning for their summer home near Therman, Mex. They expect to spend two or three weeks there.

THE STORY THUS FAR

CHAPTER I.—Kentucky Jones, veteran cowboy, attends the inquest, in the little town of Waterman, into the death of John Mason, banker and financial mainstay of the district, which was supposed to have been accidental.

CHAPTER II.—The verdict is accidental death. Sheriff Hopper, apparently dissatisfied, invited Jones, known for his shrewdness, to investigate the case. Jones has decided to do that on his own hook and refuses to work with the sheriff.

CHAPTER III.—Bob Elliot, with a lawyer, drives his cattle on the Bar Hook ranch. Lee Bishop, Ragland's ranch boss, expostulates, and McCord, Elliot's foreman, insults him.

CHAPTER IV.—Reporting Elliot's bringing his cattle onto the Bar Hook ranch, Bishop and Jones are astounded by Ragland's indifference. Bishop urges Kentucky to try to influence Jean to see her father.

CHAPTER V.—Sheriff Hopper, investigating Sanders' death, announces his knowledge that Mason also was killed.

CHAPTER VI.—Ragland continues his refusal to take action against Elliot. Jones seeks to trace the owner of a gun found on Zack Sanders, which he is confident has a bearing on the mystery.

CHAPTER VII.—In a gun fight with the "88" ranch Jim Humphreys, young Bar Hook cowboy, is killed, and Billy Petersen, his partner, is wounded. Jones sends for fighting cowmen but Ragland countermands the order.

CHAPTER VIII.—Jones finds proof that Jean has concealed direct evidence connected with Mason's death, and his anger in her is shaken. A gunsmith whom he had engaged to trace Sanders' gun says he sold the weapon to the Bar Hook cowboy, Joe St. Marie.

CHAPTER IX.—The cowboy confesses Kentucky he can throw no light on the tragedy, and Jones allows him to return. Returning to the ranch, he learns Lee Bishop has gone "gunning" for McCord. Knowing Bishop will not be given fair play by the "88" ranch, Jones sets out after him. He strikes him, and while riding with the foreman is shot from ambush. Jones carries him to shelter.

CHAPTER X.—Kentucky Jones, veteran cowboy, attends the inquest, in the little town of Waterman, into the death of John Mason, banker and financial mainstay of the district, which was supposed to have been accidental.

CHAPTER XI.—Kentucky Jones came into the Bar Hook layout on the dead run, dropped off his horse at the door and went pushing into the house. He made his way straight to the little crank-sided wall telephone, and belled Waterman.

CHAPTER XII.—Kentucky Jones came into the Bar Hook layout on the dead run, dropped off his horse at the door and went pushing into the house. He made his way straight to the little crank-sided wall telephone, and belled Waterman.

CHAPTER XIII.—Kentucky Jones came into the Bar Hook layout on the dead run, dropped off his horse at the door and went pushing into the house. He made his way straight to the little crank-sided wall telephone, and belled Waterman.

St. Marie only thought he saw Mason's ghost. But when they rested sideways in their saddles with their faces hidden, a long way off or in the dark—anybody could—could mistake Bob Elliot for Mason.

She drew a deep breath and pressed her gloved fingers against her eyes, but did not reply.

"It's my belief," Kentucky said, "that it was the sheriff who searched the house—or had it searched, in which case, he must have that picture."

"I think you're right about the sheriff; he must have been looking for the gun to match the Mason bullet. But he didn't take the picture of Mason—because I took it myself."

"You did? But you looked so scared—"

"I didn't hide frame and all, at first, because it left a pale spot on the wall, that Dad would have noticed. I meant to slide some other picture into the frame. But I forgot it. And then, with Dad hunting all through the house, to see what had been taken, I thought he'd notice the empty frame—and I was terrified."

"And that rifle—" He paused, watching her, and licked shut his cigarette.

"The rifle!" she burst out, jerking her hand away from her eyes. "Who knows where that is now? How do we know that Bob Elliot doesn't have it himself? Sheriff Hopper has the other bullet. If ever the bullet is fitted to my father's gun—"

"No," he said, "Bob Elliot doesn't have the rifle."

Her voice was hysterical. "How do you know he hasn't?"

"Because," he told her, "that rifle is dismounted and hidden in the mattress of your bed."

She stared at him blankly for a long moment. "Oh, dear Lord," she said at last in a broken voice. "Why did I ever try to hide anything from you?"

"Yes, I hid it. Campo must have known at once that Mason was killed with his rifle; but do you think anything in the world could have persuaded him to do away with that rifle, to pitch it into the bottom of some canyon?"

Watching her face in half profile he saw her begin to cry, silently, and without tears. "Is that all?" he said.

"That's one side of it." She steeled herself.

"And what's the other side?"

"I'm tied into it now."

"No, no! Take your horse and ride out. Take—"

"I'll go," he told her, "when I've done this job of work."

She stared at him, her mouth twisted and quivering. "Kentucky, if there's anything in the world that I can do or say—"

He said, "I'm going to clear this thing if it splits the rimrock wide open."

"Then—then, Kentucky, can't we work it out together? If anybody in the world can make my father see reason, I can. I'll help you in every way I can, if only—"

"Ask yourself," he said, "if you've ever helped me yet? Ask yourself if you've ever told me anything, or allowed me to find out anything for myself if you could prevent it? Not two minutes ago you lied to me about the rifle!"

She said, "Just the same, you're the only one I've looked to for—"

His face was like the gray rock. "I'm just what you said I was a few minutes ago; an outsider here—an outsider to your father, and an outsider to you. I don't blame you for protecting your father. But I can tell you that if you had trusted me even so far as—"

Her head went up, and her face was white as doleskin. "Why should I trust you?"

"Why should you?" he repeated. He yanked his horse into the trail, and this time she did not stop him.

CHAPTER XI

Kentucky Jones came into the Bar Hook layout on the dead run, dropped off his horse at the door and went pushing into the house. He made his way straight to the little crank-sided wall telephone, and belled Waterman.

It was one of the deputies who, after a prolonged delay, finally answered from Sheriff Hopper's office.

"Talking from the Bar Hook," Kentucky said. "Has Sheriff Hopper left yet?"

"Yeah, he left about three minutes ago. Wait, now! Yeah, there goes his car by, in the street."

"Run out and catch him," Kentucky yelled into the phone. "Shout your lungs out—but stop him!"

Over the line came the rattle of a dropped receiver.

There followed a protracted wait. It seemed to Kentucky Jones that an hour passed while he stood at the telephone waiting for the deputy to return. But the wire opened again at last, and it was not the deputy who came back to the phone.

"This is Floyd Hopper speaking," said the small voice from Waterman. "Who's that?"

"This is Kentucky Jones at the Bar Hook."

"Oh yeah? What the h—l do you want?"

"I've found out something. Do as I say and you'll have your man in six hours."

"Why the devil should I do like you say?" came Hopper's voice, sourly.

"I'll give you proof," said Kentucky. "If I'm wrong you can tell me to go to h—l. All I ask is that you test it for yourself."

literally to have increased in stature since Kentucky Jones had seen him last. His long bowed legs set him high up in the world; it was the lean breadth of his shoulders and a stooping carriage which prevented him from appearing to be as big a man as he was.

He said, "I'm going to clear this thing if it splits the rimrock wide open."

He said, "I'm going to clear this thing if it splits the rimrock wide open."

man that's swamping your range, while you sit by and watch your riders go out and get shot."

"If you mean I'm afraid of Bob Elliot," said Campo, "you lie, and I put it to your face. And when it comes to you—come out with what you've got, and all you've got! I'd rather be dead than think you held back from it for the sake of—for the reason you're trying to make me think."

"Put that reason out of your head," said Kentucky. "When this thing's over I'm going to turn my back on the batch of you, and move on."

"No," said Campo, his voice very deep and strong, but shaken with a repressed turbulence, "you'll never be moving on." He came into the room and stood close in front of Kentucky, red-eyed as a roused bear.

"Not any more," he said. "You hear me? I've found out what you supposed nobody would ever find out. I found out that you had more reason to kill Mason than any living man!"

"And I'll make it easy for you," said Kentucky. "I'll admit it."

Ragland stared at him a moment, thunder-struck. "You—you—what?"

Suddenly Kentucky laughed in his face, silently, with an ugly twist of the mouth. "You're a fool, Campo," he said.

Campo Ragland blew up. "I've stood enough," he shouted, his voice rising in a shuddering gust. He snatched up Kentucky's gun belt and tried to thrust it into his hands.

"Take your gun belt, and I'll give you the break! Take it and draw!"

"And if I don't?" said Kentucky. "Then I'll see you crack your neck at the end of a rope!"

There was a small sound behind Campo Ragland, voiced inarticulately, like a word that had tried to make itself heard and could not.

Looking past Campo, Kentucky saw that Jean was standing there, in the doorway where her father had stood. Her words broke throatily, jerky and twisted, forcing their way out against an all but overmastering emotion.

Yet they carried no inflection of appeal, but instead were bitter with an insupportable conviction.

"No! No, no, no! You'll never do that!"

Campo Ragland whirled. "I'll never what?" he demanded in a strange taut voice, like the ring of overdrawn wire.

"Who's that?" came the small voice over the wire.

"Kentucky Jones," at the Bar Hook.

"This is Floyd Hopper, Kentucky, you sure got me up in the air. There ain't any question about it—Sanders was killed with the gun that was found in his hand!"

"Well?"

"It's your move, Kentucky. By G—d, it sure is time this thing was cleared up! What goes on here, man? Put a name to it!"

Jean said in a strangled sort of voice, "Is that the sheriff?"

"Just a minute, Hopper," Kentucky said, and turned to Jean.

"What—what are you going to do?"

"What can I do? Your father has stampeded us all. If I'd had another week I could have gentled this thing, but now the whole works has blown up under us. All we can do is try to ride it through to a finish, now!"

He turned back to the phone. "Are you there, Hopper?"

"Yes, I'm here."

"Go get Ted Baylor. Arrest him if you have to, but get him. Give a deputy the job of keeping him out of your sight until this thing is cleared up!"

"I've already got Ted Baylor," came the sheriff's voice from Waterman. "I had that from Campo before you called. What's the matter with you fellers out there?"

"For a moment Kentucky Jones faltered, and his face went blank, but he spoke to the phone again. "All right. Then go out to the 88 and get Bill McCord. When you've got both Ted Baylor and Bill McCord, bring them out here."

"What if Bob Elliot wants to come along with Bill McCord?" the sheriff asked. "McCord is Elliot's foreman. Elliot'll probably want to come along and stand by."

"If Elliot wants to come, let him. I don't care what Elliot does. You bring Baylor and McCord. When you've done that, I'll give you the man that killed Mason."

Perryton Plans 16th Birthday Big Doings

Extends Invitation to People of Southwest to Party On Thursday, Aug. 22

PERRYTON, Aug. 15.—Perryton is making plans for entertaining thousands of people on Thursday, August 22. No reason at all to have a big party 'cept that we're going to be 16 years of age on that day. If it wasn't for the fact that we're going to have a birthday, we might call it a 'NO' celebration. No crops, no money, no rain, no wheat, no feed and no business.

This is the statement that was made the other day by C. E. Whippo, division manager of the Community Public Service corporation and general manager of the 16th Annual Perryton celebration. Whippo and his committees from the chamber of commerce have arranged a wonderful program for the free entertainment of the many friends of this little city.

Undaunted by crop failures, the celebration is going over this year just the same as in years of plenty. Band concerts, foot races, horse shoe contests, and games for the kiddies in the morning, free ball game in the afternoon between Perryton and Sunray, a free horse race program, and a gigantic fireworks display in the evening.

A dance, to which admission will be charged, is scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Citizens and business men of this city join in bidding the people of this great Southwest country to be their guests on Aug. 22, at their "Sweet Sixteen" birthday party.

Constitutional Amendments In Brief Outline

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 5 Suspended Sentence or Probation Amendment

Proposition No. 5 on the ballot of the Aug. 24 special election reads: "For (and against) the amendment to the state constitution authorizing the courts to place defendants on probation."

Proponents claim that if this amendment is passed, many who are now sent to the penitentiary for first offenses will be permitted to enjoy suspended sentences under restrictions of the court. The only restriction under the present suspended sentence law is the fact that the defendant must not be convicted of a felony—that is, a crime punishable by confinement in the penitentiary. The judge or court has no control nor can it set up or impose any other restrictions.

It is the understanding of those who have studied the amendment that if passed it would permit the legislature to pass laws giving the courts the right to suspend sentences and place defendants on such probation as the court might deem proper. In other words the court could suspend sentences subject to certain limitations. If those restrictions or limitations were not observed the court would have the authority to have the defendant committed to the penitentiary without further ado. Many courts now refuse to grant suspended sentences for the reason that they have no control over the defendant after the same is granted. It is pointed out that this would prevent many first offenders from having to go to the penitentiary and reclaim many of them for society.

If a suspended sentence is given under the present law the only limitation is that the defendant must not be convicted of a felony. The court has no control over him nor can it impose other conditions.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 6 Abolishing Fee System for Paying Officials

Two years ago a senate investigating committee discovered a number of flagrant abuses of the fee system as practised in Texas for recompensing certain public officials. The fee system was established and written into the Texas constitution at a time when it was impossible to pay salaries and the theory was that an official was entitled to "all he could make." Since the senate committee discovered and revealed the malpractices existing under the system there has been a demand for a constitutional change on this score, according to Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann.

Proposed Amendment No. 6 on the ballot provides that the fee system as a method of paying certain precinct, county and district officers shall be abolished in counties having 20,000 or more population according to the last federal census. The legislature will, if the amendment is adopted, set the salaries for officials now receiving fees in such counties. In counties of under 20,000 population the commissioners courts may put their county and precinct officials on a salary basis if they so desire. The amendment does not specifically state who shall set the salaries of such officials in this case.

If this amendment is adopted all district officers must be compensated on a salary basis.

The amendment provides that fees shall continue to be collected as at present but they will go to the county instead of the officer. The evident purpose of this amendment is to place as many public officials on straight salaries as is possible and thus abolish, insofar as is possible the payment of officials through the present fee system.

G. L. Wilson of Sweetwater, was in Wheeler Wednesday trading.

Miss Helen Gilmore, Jacqueline McCrohan and Anna Mae Puett and Annie Mae Green motored Sunday to Shamrock.

Miss Bonnie Adams spent last Thursday in Mobeetie with Miss Katherine Keever, who came home with Miss Adams and spent the night, returning home Friday.

Canadian Man Heads Corn-Hog Committee

Hemphill County Man, J. P. Strader, Is Chairman Advisory Board to Direct 38,000 Producers

Officers of the Texas Corn-Hog Advisory committee who were elected at College Station during the 26th annual Farmers' Short Course were: J. P. Strader, Canadian, chairman; J. S. Sharp, Paris, vice chairman, and S. M. Ainsworth, Gonzales, secretary-treasurer.

The committee, which acts for the approximately 38,000 corn-hog producers in 225 Texas counties, commend the national administration for its effort to give farmers parity prices for commodities and to give producers of agricultural commodities a protection similar to that given manufacturers and other commercial interests. In setting forth plans for the year, the committee insisted upon the continuation of agricultural adjustment programs and processing taxes and expressed the determination of Texas farmers to hold the adjustment programs regardless of attacks made on them.

In endorsing the Texas Agricultural association in its effort to expose the unconstitutionality of high protective industrial tariffs which have been of great damage to the interests of the majority of farmers, the committee said: "We call on all the people of Texas to assist us in our struggle for a fair deal which is of great importance to the people in all occupations just as well as to those engaged in farming."

The committee commended the corn and hogs section of the Agricultural Adjustment administration in Washington for the splendid way in which the program was carried out in Texas and expressed appreciation of the farmers to the extension service for the capable way in which the program has been handled. It also endorsed the actions of the members of the present corn-hog review board and the way they handled the job of allotment.

The corn-hog advisory committee is composed of nine members, one from each district in Texas, elected by the presidents of the corn-hog associations in the district. Members are J. P. Strader, Canadian; J. S. Sharp, Paris; S. M. Ainsworth, Gonzales; O. J. Edler, Crosbyton; R. E. Lee, Mason; George Slaughter, Wharton; Otho Morris, Laneville; Judson Wood, Sherman, and W. J. Fritts, Comanche. All were present at the first meeting of the committee except W. J. Fritts.
