4-H Club Picnic Tomorrow Evening

Annual Encampment of County Club Boys and Girls to Be Held at Cornelius Farm

Annual encampment of Wheeler county boys and girls 4-H clubs is dated for tomorrow (Friday) evening, July 3, beginning at 5 o'clock. As has been the custom for the past five years, the picnic will be held at the John Cornelius farm, northeast of Wheeler.

All 4-H club boys and girls who have their work going are urged to attend, and be on time with a stunt to be presented at the night program which starts at 8:30 p. m. The general public, states County Agent Jake Tarter, is invited to attend the evening program, at which time stunts and plays will be given by each local club group. This promises some lively entertainment, since prizes for first, second and third places will be given.

With the encampment run on a definite schedule, visitors are asked to be on time so the evening program may be started promptly at the appointed time, allowing those who do not expect to stay all night to leave without missing any numbers before too late an hour.

The 4-H club members are expected to bring food prepared for supper, which will be spread picnic style; sufficient bedding, and their sponsors and parents, especially the sponsors.

"Boys and girls, together with their sponsors," says Tarter, "are requested to arrive as near 5 as possible, but not before that time unless they wish to do errands in connection with general preparation of grounds and equipment. Water is to be hauled, stage and seating and other details are to be arranged."

The encampment is to close on the morning of July 4 so those intending to do so may reach home in time for lunch. This applies to all except those held over in livestock judging or some other encampment activity in connection with club work.

BROTHER OF WHEELER LADY DIES MONDAY IN OKLAHOMA

Wayne Peters, 46, died Monday at his home near Seminole, Okla., after a brief illness of high blood pressure. He was the brother of Mrs. J. H. Creekmore of Wheeler. He is survived by his wife and four children: Maxine, Okla Dean, W. A. and Jack; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Peters, Stillwell, Okla., a sister, Mrs. J. H. Creekmore, Wheeler, and a host of friends.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon by Rev. J. S. Drake at Seminole, with burial in the Little cemetery.

Those attending from Wheeler were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Creekmore and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Myers, and baby.

MASONIC LODGE MEETING

Monday night, July 6, is the date for a stated communication of Wheeler Lodge No. 1099, A. F. & A. M., announces Harry J. Garrison, secretary. Members are urged to attend and worthy brethren are welcome.

Citizens State Bank Elects New Officers

D. E. Holt Elevated to Presidency, Succeeding J. M. Porter—R. J. Holt, Director

At a meeting of the Citizens State bank directors, held Wednesday morning of this week, D. E. Holt was chosen president to succeed J. M. Porter, who passed away Friday morning. Holt has been vice president of the institution for many years and, incidentally is the only active officer of the bank who started with its organization 28 years ago.

Through Wednesday's action, Holt becomes the third president of the bank in its existence. E. E. Holt, an uncle of his, was the first president, followed by Porter some 12 years ago, who was one of the original stockholders.

G. W. Porter was designated as vice president, succeeding Holt.

A vacancy in the board of directors, also occasioned through the death of J. M. Porter, was filled by election of R. J. Holt to the place.

Each of the three positions are for the unexpired term ending August 11, the bank's annual meeting date.

Present officers are: D. E. Holt, president; G. W. Porter, vice president; R. J. Holt, cashier and J. N. Porter, assistant cashier.

Directors now are: D. E. Holt, G. W. Porter, R. J. Holt, A. B. Crump and J. N. Porter.

BRISCOE LADY REPORTS FIRST RIPE TOMATOES

To Mrs. John McCarroll goes the honor of reporting the first ripe home-grown tomatoes for the current season. They were obtained from the McCarroll garden on Tuesday, June 23, word of the achievement reaching this office Saturday. The McCarrolls live seven miles northwest of Briscoe. Mrs. McCarroll is an active member of the Briscoe Home Demonstration club.

Road Work Is Halted; to Start Again Soon

Authorization Issued for 4 Months More with Force Sharply Reduced

Termination of the government's WPA work schedule on June 30 brought a halt in road work on the highway east of town, a project under the works relief program. Receipt this week of authorization of renewal of the work has been announced by W. Veale, resident supervisor.

Under the new schedule, expected to start soon, provision is made for four months, beginning with July. Approximately $10,000 is designated for various operations expense during the period.

Upon receipt of the authorization, local officials expected immediate resumption of work. Due to lack of equipment and motive facilities, expected to be arranged for by the first of next week, hand laborers were unable to proceed.

Under the new schedule a maximum of 50 men is allowed. Heretofore the limit on this particular project was 70 men. It has been learned, however, that active workmen at any one time failed to reach that number. Therefore it is possible the reduction was made to more nearly equal the number of available.

STILL WORKING AT NEARBY OIL TEST

Underreaming 8 1/4-inch to 4,250-foot Level Nearly Done—to Run Casing On Down

According to advices reaching this office, the past few days have been devoted to underreaming the 8 1/4-inch at Porter No. 1, oil test well 6 1/2 miles south of Wheeler. With the hole bottomed at 4,250 feet, efforts are being made to clear the hole and lower the casing to approximately that depth in an effort to shut out water which has hampered drilling to some extent.

Running the additional casing is expected to start today or tomorrow. It is not known if cementing will be necessary until after thorough trial shows whether the water is shut out. The liquid is thought to be seeping downward around the casing through granite wash and porous formation from the higher level where it was encountered rather than from present bottom of the hole.

A previous setting of the 8 1/4 without cementing, stopped water troubles for awhile.

EARLY-DAY COUNTY SETTLER PASSED AWAY LAST TUESDAY

W. M. Wright, 73, well-known early day settler of Wheeler county, died Tuesday afternoon at his home in the Gageby community. A sufferer from cancer, he had been confined to his bed for the past eight months.

Last rites were conducted this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the First Methodist church of Shamrock, in charge of Rev. Dameron, Wellington Methodist pastor. Burial was made in the Shamrock cemetery.

MAYBE SO . . .

Strange as it seems, there are no doubt many Wheeler county club women who have been closely associated through their work with a certain lady that would deny any acquaintance whatsoever if her "Sunday" name was mentioned without some clue to guide them. Honest Injun, club ladies, how many of you know Miss Eunice Jones?

This energetic lady, whose duties range from showing a neophyte club member how to pack a quart of beans in a pint jar to instructing a veteran on how to stretch an income sufficient for a family of two so it will provide necessities for half a dozen, answers to the patronymic of Miss Viola Jones, Wheeler County Home Demonstration agent.

County Club Girls Contest Wednesday

Event, Postponed from Saturday, Had Large List of Entries and Keen Competition

Held in the district court room here Wednesday afternoon, following postponement from Saturday out of respect to funeral services for J. M. Porter, the 4-H club girls county clothing contest proved a colorful affair. With every club represented, a total of 105 garments were entered, arousing keen competition among their young and attractive creators.

Mrs. Gordon Whitener, home economics teacher in the Wheeler high school, and Miss Exie Creekmore, 1935 4-H club scholarship girl of Wheeler, scored the exhibit.

Classed in two groups, girls under 12 comprising the junior division, and those over 12 the senior division, awards were as follows:

JUNIOR DIVISION: 1st—Hazel Burrell, Center; 2nd—Margaret Richardson, Allison; 3rd—Margaret Reynolds, Allison; 4th—Mable Alice Smith, Dixon; 5th—Mary Ella Westmoreland, Wheeler.

SENIOR DIVISION: 1st—Helen Flynt, Wheeler; 2nd—Elva Willard, Wheeler; 3rd—Bulah Brewer, Mobeetie; 4th—Martha Jane Shipman, Wheeler; 5th—Lorene Dysart, Mobeetie.

Miss Flynt won the trip to Short Course; Miss Willard a gown, and Miss Brewer a slip. Junior first and second place winners were given a can of bath powder and towel, and a gown was presented Miss Reynolds for third place.

Mrs. Jim Trout, council chairman, presented prizes for second and third places to pantry demonstrators, both women and girls. The women were Mrs. John McCarroll and Mrs. J. L. Smith, Briscoe; girls were Fay Hammer, Briscoe, and Clevel Laman, Mobeetie.

Center 4-H club, for the south side, won the theatre party prize offered by a Shamrock theatre to the club, having the greatest number of entries according to membership.

Three clubs tied in the north side of the county, each having a dress entered for every member. In other words, Mobeetie, Dixon and Briscoe were the clubs having 100 per cent entries. Which of the clubs to enjoy the party will be decided at a later date; possibly arrangements can be made for all three to participate.

Pat Beene a Full-Fledged Attorney

Pat Beene of this city is now a full-fledged attorney. A license issued by the State of Texas arrived Tuesday. It recites that Beene is authorized to practice as an attorney and counselor at law in this state.

Dated June 29, 1936, Pat gets his license almost exactly 20 years after a similar commission was granted his father, D. O. Beene, whose license bears the date of July 3, 1916.

The new barrister expects to continue to make his home in Wheeler and will be associated with his father in the general practice of law.

Mrs. John Merriman and daughter, Maxine, of Santa Rosa, N. Mex., came Saturday from Booker, where she visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. McKee. They remained at the J. D. Merriman home until Tuesday evening when Wayland Merriman took them to Alanreed to visit Mrs. Robert Crisp and family. They will visit Mrs. J. M. Turner and family in Pampa and leave there Sunday for home.

Club Women Attend Annual Encampment

Gathering Met at Riley Swimming Pool Tuesday—China Flat First in Stunts

Swimming in the shade of the huge cottonwood trees at Riley's Swimming pool on the afternoon of June 30 made the atmosphere seem cooler to the Home Demonstration club women of Wheeler county, who were meeting for their annual encampment.

After that, games, directed by clubs in turn were played. Then a short business meeting of club presidents was called by Mrs. Jim Trout, Council chairman, to make definite decisions about which clubs would send delegates to Short Course. Present information indicates that only 10 women from Wheeler county will be given accommodations at Short Course.

The presidents voted to draw numbers, the clubs receiving the lucky 10 would send delegates this year. The five clubs left out could have the privilege of sending delegates next year if the rule is still the same, letting the other 10 clubs draw for five places. The clubs that drew to send delegates this year were: Briscoe, Wheeler, Shamrock, Kellerville, Allison, China Flat, Center, Heald, Magic City and Pakan. If any of these clubs do not expect to send delegates, they should notify the home demonstration agent at once, so some other club can take the place. Some of the left-out clubs will be very glad to send a delegate.

Needless to say the picnic supper was one very attractive part of the encampment.

The front porch of the Elmo Riley home made a good stage for the stunts, which emphasized the Centennial idea. The stunts were judged by Miss Margaret Moser, home demonstration agent from Wellington and Miss Vera Martin, rehabilitation supervisor of Collingsworth, Gray and Wheeler counties.

China Flat took first with the stunt, "Whistling in Heaven." It was written by Jean Pike and her mother convinced the entire group that she was a real actor. Wheeler scored second with a visit to the Hall of Fame at the Centennial. "The Naming of Shamrock," given by the Shamrock club was third.

Other clubs presented the following stunts: Briscoe, "Laughing Cure of 1836;" Allison, "Texas Independence;" Center, "The Green Family in 1836;" Lela, "Story of the Blue Bonnets;" Davis, "Birdseye View of Texas;" Magic City, "Texas Products;" Heald, "A Smoke Song;" Kellerville, "A Fan Dance;" and Bethel, "Three Scenes of Texas 1840, 1850, 1936."

While the judges were making their decisions the crowd sang "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You" and "Old Faithful," and gave ten raps for the Rileys. They invited the group to meet with them next year.

Part of the crowd went home, the rest made their beds and slept under the open sky and cooked their breakfast over a camp fire.

JULY TERM COUNTY COURT CONVENES MONDAY MORNING

A light docket of civil cases awaits the disposal of county court, which convenes in regular session here Monday morning, July 6, with Judge Puett presiding. Several misdemeanors or cases are also on file for consideration.

First week of the term will be given over to non-jury civil cases. The criminal docket and jury civil cases will occupy the court during the second and final week.

BRADSHAW BRINGS IN FIRST COTTON BLOOMS

Getting a kick out of the circumstance, J. A. Bradshaw, living 4 1/2 miles northeast of town, reported cotton in bloom at his place Saturday. To prove his statement, Bradshaw brought in two stalks Monday. Each had blooms and one had a small boll on it. Noting the exhibit, one skeptical resident of that community suggested looking through the personal columns of the previous week's Wheeler Times to see if "Brad" hadn't been visiting "somewhere in the South" and brought the blooming cotton back with him.

Wheeler Stores Open On Saturday, July 4

Various Establishments Plan Service for Patrons of Community Who Want to Make Purchases

Although Saturday is July 4th, the nation's birthday, when folks like to make trips and attend celebrations, it is also Saturday, the day of the week when many people living in Wheeler and surrounding trade territory are in the habit of shopping.

Believing that closing the stores all day or even a large part of it, would create an inconvenience for patrons, especially farmers who are now busy with their crops, Wheeler merchants decided to keep their places of business open. They would possibly receive practically as much trade either the day before or those following if they closed up. But through a desire to serve purchasers and those bringing in produce for sale the decision was reached to stay open on July 4th.

Had Independence Day fallen on most any other day in the week it would not have made so much difference. But with the fixed habit in this community of Saturday shopping by rural folks who come to town to buy supplies and visit with friends whom they find here, it is deemed best for local merchants to show their appreciation by being ready to accommodate their customers.

NICE SHOWER ON MONDAY EVENING

From One-Fourth to Half Inch of Rain Fell in Northwest Sector of County

Following a week of hot weather when the mercury topped the century mark practically every day by a good margin, Mobeetie, Briscoe, Wheeler, Twitty and intervening areas received a nice rain on Monday evening. Between a fourth and half inch was reported over the region.

Millard Brown in the Mobeetie community, said they received about a half inch; the same amount was reported in the neighborhood of Twitty, and at the A. R. Meek farm, north of here, about a quarter inch was estimated. Toward the east and south portions of the county precipitation faded out to light showers.

Preceding the moisture, a sharp gale of brief duration stirred up a violent dust storm, notably in and around Shamrock. Slight damage resulted from the wind north of here, when some small trees were whipped about and broken.

Political Speaking Here Next Saturday

Man from Panhandle Will Present Reasons Why Voters Should Support Douglass

Complying with a request received yesterday, The Times is pleased to announce that James Spiller of Panhandle will speak on the streets here next Saturday afternoon, July 4th, at 2:30 in behalf of Curtis Douglass' candidacy for state senator.

In the absence of an Independence day celebration here, this speaking date should offer a welcome diversion.

Ralph Randel of Panhandle came last Saturday for his announced speaking date but declined to make the talk out of respect to relatives and friends of J. M. Porter, whose funeral was held that afternoon. Accompanying Randel were J. H. Gunter, Leon Landon and Escar Watts, all of Panhandle.

NEW ICE CREAM STORE READY FOR BUSINESS

Late today, J. E. Hill, proprietor of an ice cream store which he is installing in a room of the new Wiley block, stated that he expected to be ready for business Saturday. Ice cream will be on sale, beginning Saturday morning. A formal opening is contemplated at a later date.

Prominent Citizen Dies Early Friday

J. M. Porter Succumbs Shortly After Being Found Unconscious on Porch of His Home

Friends and acquaintances of the deceased, not only in Wheeler but all over the Panhandle, were shocked and grieved to learn of the death on last Friday morning of J. M. Porter, 78, who passed away at 8 a. m., about two hours after he was found unconscious on the porch of his home in this city by members of the family. His health had declined gradually in recent months.

In the death of J. M. Porter, familiarly known as "Uncle Jim," Wheeler suffers a distinct loss. He was a prominent citizen in the sense of having accumulated a financial competency; in his continued business activity; in the esteem and respect of all who knew him; in a quiet and upright life at peace with the world as far as it lay within his power, and in having lived a useful, active life of service to his family and intimate associates.

The history of J. M. Porter's life would recite, in great measure, that of Wheeler county. Born in Gibson county, Tenn., on June 2, 1858, he came to Texas in 1870, and to Wheeler county in April, 1889. Through his example and labor he helped in great measure to lay the social and economic framework of the county which stands as a monument to his application and energy.

His was an active outdoor life, first as a range rider and later a ranchman on his own account. After arriving in the state, he worked for a period of time in the Matador region as a cowboy. Beginning his work at the age of 22 he often helped on the long trail drives to railroad shipping points to the north. Later on he accepted employment with J. M. Shelton, stockman, for about 20 years before striking out for himself.

Applying the same diligence to the task in hand and exercising the rare judgment which had distinguished him as a capable employe, Porter gradually built up extensive holdings in this county. United in marriage on March 22, 1899, to Miss Millie Jones, member of a pioneer family, he found in her a ready and able partner in the struggle to conquer an untamed land and wrest from it a livelihood.

To Mr. and Mrs. Porter were born six children. Three of these preceded the father in death. Kenneth and Dean died in infancy, and Marshall was killed in an automobile accident in his 13th year. Together with the surviving companion, the three children are: Glenn Porter, Wheeler; Mrs. Virgil Caperton, Shamrock, and Mrs. Cora Hall, Wheeler. Other immediate survivors are a brother, G. W. Porter of Wheeler, a sister, Mrs. Francis Bizzell of Iowa Park, Texas; also five grandchildren, Janette and Louise Caperton, Harrison and Gene Hall and Glenda Ann Porter.

Mr. Porter was converted at the age of 55 and joined the Methodist church that same year, continuing his attendance and support until the end. He served the last 12 years of his life as a trustee of the church property.

To know J. M. Porter was to honor and respect him. He did at all times what he believed to be right. He played fair, honest and straightforward. He would not cheat or lie. With it all he lived an unselfish life. He used a portion of that which he had earned by honesty and hard work to keep boys in school or to help them to go to school. He helped employes who wanted to accomplish something for themselves with finances, counsel and encouragement. Porter's benefactions were not for show and many a kindly deed or sum of money are unrecorded except on those immortal pages beyond the Great Divide, where they stand to the credit of a real man.

In the hearing of the sorrowing relatives and a concourse of saddened friends far exceeding the capacity of the Methodist church, last rites for J. M. Porter were spoken late Saturday afternoon. Services were in charge of Rev. J. Edmund Kirby, local pastor, assisted by Rev. Ed Landreth of Clarendon and Rev. C. E. Jamison of Shamrock. In addition to music by the choir, Mrs. Dennis Reynolds of Shamrock sang "Does Jesus Care," and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Truax rendered a vocal number.

Floral tributes in large numbers bore mute testimony to the love and esteem of friends for the deceased.

Pall bearers were W. L. Williams, Bob Harlan, John and Charlie Carpenter, McLean; Albert Mamy, Dozier, and Deward Wofford.

Flower ladies were Misses Ruby Lee Williams, Bessie Mae and Marguerite Ficke, Beth Stiles, Clara Finsterwald and Inez Shipman.

PROFLIGATE GOVERNMENT

Here's a comparison that will give you something to think about:

From the time of President Washington (1789) to the time of President Wilson (1913) the successive federal congresses appropriated a total of $24,000,000,000. That sum paid all the central government's expenses for the 124 years, including the cost of a number of wars, such as the Civil War, War of 1812 and Spanish American War.

During the last four years, two congresses have appropriated about $32,500,000,000—eight billion more than was appropriated from the inception of the American government up to the first administration of Wilson.

No one political party can be blamed for this prodigality—both Republicans and Democrats have shown a shameful disregard for the people's money. Nor has the spending trend been confined to the last few years—ever since the World War, the government has shown an accelerating tendency to fatten the budget. Nor can the politicians be blamed to the exclusion of everyone else—a supine and indifferent attitude on the part of the people has given them a free hand with the public's hard-earned dollars.

Today taxation saps the wealth of the nation to a menacing extent. At least 20 per cent of the people's total earnings are taken by the tax-gatherers, and the percentage would be much greater if it were not for the fact that a large part of the spending is being charged against the future, in the form of public debt. A thousand industries have discovered the meaning of "profitless prosperity"—their output and sales are soaring, but their profits are not, because of the tax bill.

This all means that employment opportunities are constantly lessened for men and women—that industrial expansion and spending are stopped—that investors are frightened and refuse to place their savings in ventures that would create new sources of wealth and employment.

Taxation is an intensely personal problem—it menaces everyone's source of income, whether that income stems from a job or an investment. We cannot have real and permanent prosperity so long as we permit government to disburse our dollars with profligate hands.

CONSUMER RIGHTS

The "rights of the consumer" may become a pressing political issue.

For several years, legislative bodies have knowingly passed tax and regulatory laws whose inevitable result is to force up the price of commodities, by penalizing or prohibiting distribution methods which cut costs. During the last session of congress, a number of national laws that would lead to that end have been considered. Every one of these laws has been advocated by special interests, and in practically every instance, all the interests involved have been considered with one exception. That exception is the consumer's interest.

Of late, however, evidence has been appearing that the consumer is growing restless. He is no longer content in watching raids on his thin pocketbook. He is beginning to realize that unless he gets up and fights for his rights, he is going to be dealt a knockout blow through legislated price boosts. He isn't going to stand quietly by while political coeries pass laws which hamper or prevent low-cost merchandising.

Everybody in this country is a consumer. Everybody has a vital interest in the cost of living. And laws that would artificially inflate that cost of living, or make reductions in it impossible, are inimical to the public welfare.

"DON'T" FOR A HAPPY 4TH

Fourth of July is a safer holiday nowadays than it used to be—but it still results in a great number of deaths and accidents. The tragedy is that all those accidents and deaths are preventable. You can have a "safe and sane" Fourth that is also an enjoyable Fourth—if you'll remember the following list of "don'ts":

1. Don't forget that the proof of Fourth of July patriotism is home protection.
2. Don't shut your eyes to the great Fourth of July hazards: Firearms, automobiles, drownings, fires, firearms, falls, poisons.
3. If you must have home fireworks, see that they are the safest procurable.
4. Tell the children why home fireworks are always dangerous.
5. Don't neglect to clear your premises of all rubbish.
6. Don't discharge fireworks near buildings. Get out in the open.
7. Don't let children play with matches. Keep matches out of their reach.
8. Don't let children throw sparklers. They remain hot some times and are dangerous.
9. Don't let children discharge fireworks unattended.
10. Don't let children stand too close to fireworks that are being discharged.
11. Don't let children pick up undischarged fireworks. They might explode.
12. Don't keep fireworks in the home uncovered. Keep in tin box until used.
13. Don't forget, above all, that most Fourth of July accidents can be prevented.

DARE NOT RELAX

Thrift helps a man to get ahead and when he gets ahead he has to keep on being thrifty to keep ahead. By thrift the head of a family gets his household in sound condition. His wife dresses as well as any of the neighbor women and the children enjoy the advantages common to their group.

Having achieved so much, it would please the head of the family to relax. He would like to discard his socks when they are darned at both ends. He would enjoy throwing away a tube of tooth paste or shaving cream without squeezing it until his fingers hurt. He would like to refuse to eat food for which he had no appetite.

In short, he would like to do the things that prosperous people do. And he could well afford to be thrifty in these pleasant little things if it were not that every member of his family would construe his indifference to a few pennies as a signal that all financial gates were ajar. The end of the month would find him obligated for hundreds of dollars worth of gowns, rugs, furniture, shoes and steamship tickets. Upon inquiry he would discover that the reckless splurge was occasioned by his refusal one night to get out of bed to turn off a light in the downstairs hall.

"If you're not interested in saving money, I am certainly not," would be the icy explanation.

LO, THE CANDIDATES

The executive committee has completed the ballots for the first primary, the first official day of summer has come and gone, the sun pours it rays down with increasing heat—and the candidate is on the trail of the elusive voter.

Everyone of us is a potential candidate may be the reason why we like to "pour it on" them. The butt of many jokes, often times slurring remarks and nearly always a certain amount of calumny, the crop of candidates recurs every two years in Texas, as hope springs eternal in the human breast.

While no one was ever done a great deal of harm by being beaten for county office, the candidate finally arrives at that state of mind before a campaign is closed that he just must have the office he seeks or there is nothing left for him. Sometimes failure sours on his stomach and he is spoiled for a good many years.—Floyd County Hesperian.

Our Exchanges

Items of interest culled from newspapers on The Times' exchange list.

Twelve persons were reported to have died while listening to blow by blow account of the heavyweight prize fight last week. They had better waited and read about it in cold type. Another argument for newspapers, sagely observes J. M. Noble in the Canadian Record.

A stadium which will seat 2,000 spectators is now under construction on Powell Field. The stadium is being constructed by the school board, who state that they believe increased attendance at football games next year alone will pay for the structure. The stands are being constructed of steel frames and will have board seats. Preliminary work started on the project this week.—Wellington Leader.

"Honest" Bill Miller of the Spearman Reporter has been on a week's fishing trip in New Mexico. Few Panhandle people will have too much confidence when he starts writing in the next issue of The Reporter about his big catches.—Panhandle Herald.

Over $2,000 for 70 acres of wheat! That was the estimate by J. R. McDonald as he looked up from work on a tractor and propped his foot on a wheel. And it was made possible through the expenditure of $252 for electric power with which to give the wheat three irrigations. Otherwise, instead of being rippling acres of grain, almost ready for the binder, it would have been a barren field, endangered by the threat of blowing, he calculated. Neighbors estimate McDonald will harvest 50 bushels per acre.—Hereford Brand.

It is reported that Father Coughlin will start a newspaper. The father will find that he has tackled a job even more difficult than the one of getting this country to change its system of handling its finance.—Ochiltree County Herald.

A Jack county man who rubbed 20c worth of salt on two hides, then jineyed them into town 18 miles, and received 90c for the two. The same day he paid $2.98 for a cheap pair of shoes. Now he wants to know how much was allowed him for skinning the hides off, because he knows some body skinned him. He thinks he'll start a shoe factory.—Donley County Leader.

Mrs. Preston Briggs and children left Pampa Monday to join Mr. Briggs at Bartlesville, Okla., where they will make their home. Mr. Briggs, son of George W. Briggs, former BCD manager here, has been employed at Borger by the Phillips Petroleum company and is being transferred by that company to their engineering department at Bartlesville.—Pampa Press.

At a recent gathering in a neighboring town, visitors were given copies of a small 4-page "throw-away" sheet that purported to be the town newspaper. Many remarked that the town should have a better newspaper than that. The truth of the matter is that the town does have a better newspaper, one of the outstanding newspapers of the Panhandle, but the visitors did not know that—and perhaps the merchants who make the "throw-away" possible do not think of the impression given their town by an imitation newspaper.—McLean News.

The friends of the F. A. Talley family were grieved when a message was received last Friday morning that little Charles Talley, the baby boy, had died of a heart ailment at Minco, Okla. About a week ago Mrs. Talley went for a visit with her sister, Mrs. J. M. Downey, and had been there only a few days when Charles became suddenly ill and without warning passed away within a few hours. Mr. Talley was in Miami at the time but left at once to join his bereaved family.—Miami Chief.

Congress adjourned Saturday night. Business interests of the nation always feel much better after congress gets through and leaves Washington. Everyone knows that it takes lots of money to run this government, but nearly everyone is hoping that congress will be able to place the burden on the shoulders of the other fellow.—Canyon News.

Paving work on Highway 5 through Donley county was completed Wednesday morning at 9:20 o'clock and the barriers were removed, throwing the fine new highway open to traffic. The completion of the highway marks the culmination of a fight by Donley county good roads enthusiasts covering a period of 10 years, and is heralded with rejoicing by citizens of the county.—Clarendon News.

Have you noticed how the people's attitude has changed toward those who were classed as "conscientious objectors" during the late World War? For some reason or other, induced by a violent fever of artificial patriotism, they were looked down upon. But now that the smoke of the World War has cleared away and other wisps of war smoke are arising, the people realize that those "objectors" were rational, sane-minded men who could see quite a bit farther than most of the others. Their senses were not clouded by pseudo patriotism and their ears could hear more than the call-to-arms roll of the war drums.—Floyd County Hesperian.

Mrs. W. O. Puett and daughters, Misses Anna Mae and Orveta, Mrs. J. C. Perryman and Rev. Taft Holloway made a business and pleasure trip Monday to Amarillo.

BIG TEXAS PLANE

A great commercial airplane with a wing spread of 55½ feet, capable of attaining a top speed of about 250 miles per hour, carried a load of philatelic mail and first covers from Dallas, June 12, as the plane, which is to be christened the Texas Sky Ranger, hopped from Dallas for Paris under sponsorship of the Texas Centennial exposition.

Calling All Boys! Free Trip to Texas Centennial

Beginning today, any boy between the ages of 10 and 15 may register his name at this station and compete for a free trip to the Centennial Exposition at Dallas. Nine other Texaco stations of the county are participating in this event. Boys may register at only one station and are advised to work with the one in their home community. Ask your parents and friends to purchase New Texaco Motor Oil or Havoline Motor Oil Waxfree and place the votes received with these purchases to your credit.

The boy at each station who has the most votes at the close of the contest will join with boys from all other stations and be taken to the Texas Centennial for a big 3-day trip with all expenses paid. Privileges include good hotels, comfortable beds, excellent meals and seeing all the interesting and educational exhibits at the Centennial.

CONTEST RULES

1. Open to all boys between the ages of 10 and 15, except relatives of Texaco dealers below and relatives of any persons connected in any way with Texaco distributing agency.
2. Boys may register today at any ONE of the stations listed below, or may register at any time during contest.
3. Entrants will not be allowed to solicit votes on the drives or premises of any station.
4. Any one purchasing New Texaco Motor Oil or Havoline Motor Oil Waxfree may vote for his choice at the rate of 10 votes per quart of oil purchased from the station where his choice is registered.
5. Contest officially opened Wednesday, July 1, and closes at midnight on August 15.
6. The boy receiving the highest number of votes at each of the stations listed below will be selected to make a trip which will be made within 10 days after contest closes.

The boys will be in charge of a responsible party who will be with them from the time they leave home until they return. This contest is sponsored by the Texaco dealers of the county who will be glad to explain details of the plan.

Our idea in putting on the contest is primarily to make it possible for local deserving lads to attend the big Dallas show. We do not expect to make a lot of money out of it. We do not expect the youngsters to break their necks working to win one of the free trips, but boys who really want to put in a few hours of their spare time have an excellent opportunity of winning a worth-while trip.

Register today and get started. Remember, there is nothing to sell—the stations attend to that. Boys are expected only to ask their friends and neighbors to vote for them when purchasing New Texaco Oil or Havoline Motor Oil Waxfree. They are not to urge the buying of unneeded oil, but to ask that when buying oil to vote for them.

COLLEGE STATION.—When the federal government's new business with farmers came into the State of Texas four months ago, action and speed became the keynotes of the agricultural center at the Agricultural and Mechanical college.

The two-wing building, shown in the upper left, was built by the A. and M. college in which to house the 325 trained workers of the general auditing and general accounting divisions. It has 18,820 square feet of floor space.

The brick building, on the campus of A. & M. college, shown upper right, with a floor space of 4,000 square feet, was rapidly turned into the disbursing office, a branch of the U. S. treasury with a personnel of 83 who are busy writing checks for the Texas farmers participating in the various agricultural programs.

Lower left to right.—Here are the 325 men and women carrying on the auditing and accounting work of clearing the remaining old AAA contracts, the checking and certifying of the cotton price adjustment program applications and the working out of the details of the agricultural conservation program with its more than 300,000 farmer co-operators.

A majority of the work of these divisions, during the last few months, has been on the cotton price adjustment program. An average of 4,000 cotton price adjustment applications per day are being certified for payment, amounting in number up to date to 186,082 and totaling $6,880,503.28.

Lower middle.—The State Agricultural Conservation committee holding its first meeting at A. & M. college to plan for the tabulation of the work sheets of the 300,000 farmers who have indicated their intention to cooperate in the 1936 agricultural conservation program.

From left to right, they are: George Slaughter, Wharton, chairman; V. L. Cade, Slaton; L. C. Trousdale, Houston; A. H. Montgomery, Darrouzzett; A. L. Smith, College Station, executive secretary; J. H. Watson, Newcastle. In the back row: George G. Chance, Bryan; A. A. Terry, Clarksville.

Further information and dates for examinations will be given later, say officers of the association.

Clint Small Makes Vigorous Campaign

Out-Wits Summer Heat by Speaking to Many Audiences in Cool of the Evening

Senator Clint C. Small, conducting a vigorous campaign for re-election to the Texas senate, contrived to out-wit Old Sol this week when he adopted a policy of speaking to Panhandle audiences at night rather than asking an audience to brave afternoon heat to hear his discussions of regional problems.

Good-sized crowds at Tulia Tuesday night and Hereford Wednesday night heard his analysis of Texas financial difficulties and his pledge that funds for prompt payment of old age pensions will be provided at the next session of the legislature. He will speak at Perryton Thursday night.

The senator has spent his days in renewing acquaintances and has visited more than 50 towns in the district since officially opening his campaign at Spearman 10 days ago. A speaking schedule is being arranged, according to Binford Arney, youthful campaign manager.

Arney urged that communities planning picnics or political rallies notify him at the Clint Small Headquarters, 307 Polk Street, in Amarillo so that it might be arranged for Senator Small to attend.

"If he is already engaged for that date," Arney said, "we will send another speaker. However, Senator Small is anxious to meet every individual in the district and will be there if possible."

The headquarters office, where visitors in Amarillo have been invited to register, was donated by the Amarillo building owners. Small has maintained a law office in the building since he moved to Amarillo from Wellington nearly five years ago.

Small has paid little attention to the predictions of friends that he will be re-elected by a three-to-one majority and is making a more intensive tour of the district than he made in either of his two previous campaigns for the senate.

His speeches so far have called attention to his agricultural legislation, his defense of the Panhandle's natural resources and the fact that he was the only man in either the house or senate to offer a bill by which old age assistance money would have been provided. His omnibus tax bill was passed by the senate but permitted to die in the lower house at the last session of the legislature.

NEW KIND OF CIRCUS SAYS IT WITH GIRLS

"BRING ON THE WOMEN," ECHOES BRAINY BOWERS IN ROSE SPECTACLE

When Billy Rose set out to produce a new kind of circus he did. Truly it may be said that "Jumbo" is the first upset to tradition in the sawdust ring in 100 years. As Brainy Bowers, the comic character in the big show observes with scorn, "Women? Women in a coitus? Dames wid big muscles. No sex appeal. Sex appeal, dat's what dey want." And that's precisely what they get in "Jumbo" which is one of the main attractions at the Fort Worth Frontier.

BY TWO CONTESTANTS

J. E. TINDALL

"When we entered the contest, we were not informed what we were to do, other than keep books," wrote Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Tindall of the Twitty community in their story about the Centennial Home Beautification contest.

They continue their story: "As we do not own the place where we live we did not feel that we could put any money on improvements. However, I did build a poultry house 10x18, and a brooder house 10x12. I had two old poultry houses that were all to pieces and not properly ventilated. These I tore down and used all the sheet-iron and some of the 2x4's. Had to buy material amounting to $40 but this I did from the sale of two calves which were my own and egg money I had saved. I hope to have 200 hens another year.

"Have received $50.54 from the sale of eggs and $82.20 from the milk, butter and cream.

"We do not have an adequate food supply on account of dry weather.

"All our farm is terraced and we think it pays.

"We hope since planting soybeans and cowpeas we will be able to keep the farm under our own fence another year.

"Our home is badly in need of repairs.

"The porch floor is in bad shape, the house needs painting and inside needs to be papered. I hope to get one or two rooms papered this summer. We have adequate closet space.

"We have a Maytag washer, radio, gas for cooking, lights and for heat in the brooder house. We also have an Electrolux, which the whole family enjoys.

"The income from crops, cows, dairy products and eggs sold, together with the rental, parity and pool payments is $1,954.47 from September to May. The expenses for cows, poultry, hogs and farm living expenses are $758.90. This leaves $1,195.57. From this, rent has been paid for one-fourth cotton and one-third feed."

C. A. DYSART

"We found that we had quite a start after invoicing our year's work to begin our Centennial contest," wrote Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Dysart, Centennial demonstrators in the Mobeetie community.

They continue their story: "We are in a Jersey bull circle with 11 Jersey cows from the full circle and 11 Jersey calves from these cows and the circle bull. We also have 11 purebred Hereford cows.

"It gives us much pleasure to have our barns, sheds and fences in good repair as well as having rebuilt poultry houses and a pit type toilet. We have painted, papered, and cleaned the entire house and given the outside a coat of paint. We have cabinets and closets where needed and shelves in our pantry to fit our food supply.

"By keeping records since September 1 of canning, curing meats, feeding livestock and farm expenses in general has proved to us that it pays educationally and financially. Our greatest pleasure came from the added conveniences to our home, the improved fences, the terraced land that we have reaped the benefit from since our extension agent advised it in 1931. We are also practicing conservation of soil on our pasture land.

"All our improvements make us feel that we are approaching a new place and lets us know that with plenty of hard work, co-operation and a little money that it can all be done. We have spent 25 cents for nails and $11.60 for paint and paper. We hope to continue our improvements until we have the most homelike place possible.

"The income from crops, cattle, dairy products, poultry, eggs and hogs sold and parity, corn-hog checks, etc., is $1,454.98. The farm expenses are $1,079.65, leaving a profit of $375.33. This is from September to May."

CARD OF THANKS

We take this method of expressing our sincere thanks to all the neighbors and friends for their many acts of kindness following the death of our loved one, J. R. Thomas.

As the delegate first elected to attend Short Course has gone to California and will be unable to attend, Mrs. Charlie Homesley was elected to go with Mrs. Zura Bullock at alternate.

Those present for the meeting were: Mesdames Harrell Nixon, Mary Usrey, Elmer Powell, Charlie Homesley, Zura Bullock, Misses Viola Jones, Beulah Mitchell, Zelma Usrey and the hostess.

Club will meet July 8 with Mrs. Mary Usrey.

Allison Homemakers Club

A paper was read by Katie George which pertained to directing the delegate when attending Short Course. Credential cards, duties of delegates, and other topics were explained for the benefit of the 1936 delegate. The number of delegates our club is entitled to was discussed, and the delegate was determined.

Amanda Richardson, Annabell Abernathy, Edna Richardson, Winnie Kiker, Nell Ball, Olive Warren, Ruth Trout, Theo Trout, Lucille McMillin, Rubye McCoy, Daisy McCoy, Edith Levitt, Maud Levitt, Ann Hamilton, Bera Parks, Hattie Owens, Della Drake, and Alvada Levitt were served refreshments by Naoma Butler and Irma Hickerson. Mrs. Pat Huff was a visitor.

Prominent Speakers

A. & M. Short Course

Colorful Array of Men and Women Listed for Session Opening on July 20

The Centennial Year Farmers' Short Course will open July 20 at A. & M. college with a colorful array of distinguished men and women speakers.

Dr. W. K. Stouder, extension veterinarian of Iowa State college at Ames will point out and explain animal parasites, diseases and sanitation of livestock every day. Other men scheduled to appear are: Dr. T. O. Booth, state veterinarian, Livestock Sanitary commission, Ft. Worth; Maurice R. Cooper, agricultural economist, USDA, Washington, D. C., and C. E. Huff, president, Farmers' National Grain corporation, Chicago. Speakers of familiar names to talk at the general assembly periods each morning are: H. R. Tolley, Carl B. Fritsche, Edward O'Neal, Dr. Minnie L. Maffet, Mrs. Helen Higgins Davis and G. B. Dealy, president of the Dallas News, who will announce the winners of the Centennial Farm and Home Demonstration contest.

Among the women speakers scheduled to appear are: Miss Eula Whitehouse, botanist and author from Austin who will talk on Texas wild flowers; Mrs. Erceel S. Eppright, head of the home economics department of Texas State College for Women, Denton, and Miss Bess Hefflin, home economist from the University of Texas, both of whom will talk on child training; and Miss Josephine Hodge, beauty specialist from Houston, who will speak on "Looking Your Best."

Officials of the Short Course say that night entertainment will be packed with excitement and action this year with the Gainesville Community Circus and its new acts based on the Centennial theme. Other attractions are an amateur night, an old-fashioned medicine show; a style show; a musical program; the awarding of the gold stars to 4-H club members; and the awarding of the prizes to the state winners of the Centennial Farm and Home contest.

Methodist W. M. S. Meets

At 4 o'clock Monday afternoon the W. M. S. met at the Methodist church for a regular meeting, with Mrs. W. W. Adams as leader of the program from the World Outlook magazine. She was assisted by Mrs. H. M. Wiley and Mrs. Jess Carver. Mrs. D. A. Hunt read the devotional.

During the business meeting the quarterly report was given. Those present were Mesdames W. W. Adams, D. A. Hunt, Fred Farmer, J. D. Merriman, J. M. Lawrence, H. M. Wiley, J. Edmund Kirby, Bob Bowers, Alfred Bryant, H. E. Nicholson and Jess Carver.

PATTERNS OF WOLFPEN

THE STORY

PRELUDE—In 1785 Saul Pattern of Virginia came into the beautiful virgin country of the Big Sandy valley in Kentucky. Chief of the perils were the Shawnees, who sought to hold their lands from the ever-encroaching whites. From a huge pinnacle Saul gazed upon the flat bottoms and the endless acres of forest in its primeval quietude at the mouth of the Wolfpen, and felt an eagerness to possess it, declaring it a place fit for a man to LIVE in! Five years later he returned with Barton his fifteen-year-old son, and built a rude cabin in the hollow. For a time all was quiet. Then in Saul's absence the Indians attacked Barton and wounded him so badly Saul was forced to return with him to Virginia. In 1796, when it was reasonably safe, Saul returned with his family and a patent for 4,000 acres, this time to stay. He added to the cabin, planted crops and fattened his stock on the rich meadows. Soon other industrious settlers came and a settlement was established.

CHAPTER I—A century later, in the spring of 1885, we find Cynthia Pattern of the fifth generation following Saul, perched on the pinnacle from which her great-great-grandfather had first viewed Wolfpen Bottoms. The valleys, heretofore untouched by the waves of change sweeping the Republic, are at last beginning to feel that restless surge. Her dad, Sparrel, and her brothers, Jesse, Jasper and Abrael, have been busy converting the old water-wheel mill to steam power. Surrounded by neighbors, mostly skeptical, Sparrel's triumph is complete when the golden stream of meal pours forth at the turning of the steam. Cynthia feels that something out of the past has been buried with Saul. Cynthia is a pretty and imaginative girl in her late teens, who often re-created Saul and her other forebears, and fancied them still living.

CHAPTER II—Sparrel proudly brings home the first meal out of the steam mill, and Julia, his wife, is pleased. Generation after generation has added comforts and conveniences to Saul's homestead, and Sparrel has not shirked. He plans his spring work. Julia favors sending Cynthia to Pikeville institute. Sparrel does not fully agree.

CHAPTER III—The family goes easily into the work of the new season, due to the simplicity of life designed long ago on the Wolfpen. The men are busy in the field, Julia in her garden, and Cynthia in the house. Joy is abundant. Jesse tells Cynthia he plans to study law.

CHAPTER IV

"And yet you have to pay taxes on the entire place, don't you?"

"Yes." Then, "Just what are you aiming at?" Sparrel asked directly.

Shellenberger filled his pipe carefully and when the pipe was going, Shellenberger turned to Sparrel.

"I need good timber, Mr. Pattern, and you've got what I want. I looked at it pretty carefully as I rode over here. You own everything from here to the river, don't you?"

"I Need Good Timber, Mr. Pattern, and You've Got What I Want."

"Just about, I reckon."

"What do you think that land is worth to you?"

"Well," Sparrel said, "I just hadn't thought anything about what it's worth. There's a fine stand of timber in there."

"I'm told that land in this country is valued from a dollar to a dollar and a half an acre. Of course bottom-land alone is worth more. I'll tell you what I'm prepared to do, Mr. Pattern. If you'll sell me a few thousand acres of this timber hill land, I'll pay you four dollars an acre for it. You would still have more land than you could keep your eyes on; it wouldn't touch your farms or your meadow land."

Sparrel was in no hurry to speak. The proposal lay in the space between them.

"I hadn't thought anything about selling off any of it. I guess I'd just about as soon have my land," he said.

"I am offering you a price about three times what hill land is worth," Sparrel thought about this a few minutes in silence. Cynthia in the kitchen could hear words from the talk and she began to see the hills trapped like the poor ewe and laid waste by lumbermen.

"There's still a sight of timber below me. Why did you come way up here to my place?"

"Well, I'll tell you exactly why, Mr. Pattern. Most of the good timber down along the river has been bought and cut. There is a lot of it on the sides of the hill away from the river, but you can't get at it profitably. Your place has a fairly good outlet; Big Sandy river on one side, Gannon Fork on the other and smaller creeks cutting into both streams. I'd want to look over the land a little more carefully, but it seems to me that nearly all of the marketable timber could be snaked right into one or another creek, then brought to the two big streams and rafted and floated out. It's worth nothing to you now as it stands; I noticed a good deal of the timber is falling and decaying, and a fire would play havoc with it. I'd rather get what I need in a large tract than bother with a whole lot of small stumps. That's why I am here and that's just why I offer you such a big price for it. It'll never be worth any more, and it's liable to be worth a lot less, especially if fire should get into it."

Sparrel let the sales speech die away. "I don't guess I want to sell any land," Sparrel said.

Shellenberger attacked once more. "You can't eat it. I can't carry it away. These natural resources were put there for us to use, Mr. Pattern. You haven't any right to hoard up timber when it's needed to develop the country. This country's got to develop sooner or later, you know. It can't just lie here on a vacation forever for you to look at. We must develop with the country."

"I don't take much stock in this development, the way it's carried out," Sparrel said, still slowly and clearly. "We've developed this place for about a hundred years, but it's some different from the way they've developed the Peach Orchard section by taking nigh onto a million dollars a year in coal and timber out of these mountains, and bringing into it nothing but a lot of ignorant, drinking, fighting people from down the river to do it with. That is the way the country's being developed, looks to me like, Mr. Shellenberger."

Shellenberger pulled at his pipe for a while. Then he dropped his voice to an easy friendliness.

"Well, there's not much danger of that in my proposition, Mr. Pattern," he said laughing. "When I buy some land from you, I'll be a neighbor of yours, and we'll see that it stays respectable and everybody benefits. I don't want you to decide right off about it, anyway. Think it over a few days. I want to go down Gannon Creek, and I have some business over at Pikeville. We can talk about it again."

With that Shellenberger turned more to the boys and began to tell them about the mills at Pittsburgh, about the river traffic, and the Ventura passenger boat, and his travels to Philadelphia and New York, and to Washington. He told of the endless miles of railroad being laid in the West, and how the people were flocking to the cities and farms in the new states and helping business. The boys were excited by the thought of all that was going on beyond the valley where they had spent their peaceful lives until now without disturbance.

Cynthia sat by Julia in the kitchen door, a little way withdrawn from the men, listening to the talk of the great world that lay beyond the mountains. And for a long time after Julia had called to Sparrel that the beds were ready, and the menfolk had left the porch and gone upstairs, Cynthia went on with her round of thought.

"It seems a long way off from here, mills as big as the orchard and garden put together. Sometimes when I lie here by the window and look out down the hollow I can feel the fingers of the world creeping up the river and edging in here; Jesse wanting to go off to read the law, me thinking of the Institute over at town."

CHAPTER V

Shellenberger was in good spirits the next morning. He rose early with the family, and instead of using the blue washbowl which Julia had placed in his room, he came down to the yard and joined with the boys at the wash rock, dashing cold water from the well over his face and neck. He talked easily with them about the lumber business back in Pennsylvania and spoke further at the breakfast table of the way the country was growing, the cities booming, and the Ohio valley filling up, and markets expanding, and how that made it just the right time to open up a big tract of timber like Sparrel Pattern's because it was worth more now than it had ever been before or would likely be again. He disconcerted Julia by offering to pay for his night's lodging. He gave Nelson a coin for guiding him over the mountain, and went with Sparrel to the barn to get a mount for his journey. Sparrel let him have one of his saddle mules, as a part of his hospitality to the stranger, and told him how to leave it in Hardin Slusser's stable below the courthouse at Pikeville and he would get it when he rode over at the end of the week on his monthly trip to town.

"You think over my proposition for a few days, Mr. Pattern," Shellenberger said. "You can't afford to turn it down. Look me up at the hotel at the end of the week." He climbed awkwardly into the saddle as the mule jumped about under him.

"You just follow the creek right on around and you won't have a bit of trouble finding the way," Sparrel said.

When Shellenberger had gone, the whole family understood that some intangible alteration had affected the atmosphere of Wolfpen Bottoms. At dusk the night before it was one thing and they were used to it and at home in it; in the morning of the next day a new element had come into the valley and disturbed the spiritual equilibrium to whose tensions they were accustomed. The values by which they lived had endured for just a hundred years. They had been sufficient to order a way of life which brought satisfaction and meaning into the activities of four generations of men and part way into a fifth. They had produced their culture. Now, suddenly, new pressures were there. Shellenberger had unhinged the easy swing of life. He brought with him a strange restlessness and left a portion of it in Wolfpen Bottoms.

Julia looked over the palings of her garden into indefinite space and tasted the feeling of disturbance. Jesse rubbed the black saddle of the shepherd which had bounded back from the barn. Jasper stood by the woodlot playing idly with the catch on the gate, and then walked down toward the sheepfold.

Cynthia sat on a stool near the kitchen door looking into the cloud tangles above the Pinnacle. "The white clouds are soft as lambs' wool in a bag and there could be no bars to pick out of it. If a body could sit on a fold of cloud and lean back against a fluff of woolpack and move about and be high above all the land that man wants to lumber, and then the groaning of the big poplar trees when they fall and crush the little under trees might not sound any louder to you than the rush of an oriole's wing, and that wouldn't pain something inside of you. I guess it must be because a body's soul squats too much on the ground where so many things are hurt right before your eyes and cry into your ears that keeps it troubled. And then again, it might reach all the way up to Heaven, and when that man wants to cut down our trees I reckon Grandfather Saul feels an ache in his long legs, and Grandfather Tivis, well, I just imagine he sees the whole valley filling up with unpainted, rough-sawed, siding houses. Still, if you sat all night in Cassiopeia's Chair and went about above things under a veil of moonlight when evil is hidden and the moan of trees and the cry of a young ewe can't be heard because stars sing and you breathe the sweet influence of the Pleiades, and in the daytime you watched the wind play in the white cloud mist under you and wave it the way a breeze from the hollow plays in the beard of the wheat before a storm, then maybe a body wouldn't think about the hurt things in the world at all."

While she was dreaming farther and farther away into the blue bend of the sky, a black cloud in a dragon's shape crashed into the white puffs above Cranestrest.

"The breakfast things are getting dry and harder to wash, Cynthia," Julia said.

The kitchen was dark after the sharp sunlight. They worked in silence for a while, Cynthia washing the dishes, Julia mixing yeast into the white flour and setting it in a wooden bowl on the hearth. Then Cynthia spoke, the words making audible a fragment of her thought as it passed easily out of the silence.

"Will Daddy sell him any of our land?"

"That's for your daddy to say, Cynthia."

"I'd not like to see our place look like some of the hills over on Sandy where they've logged."

"Maybe people do need lumber to build houses with in the towns and we oughtn't to hold it just because a Pattern happened to see it first and wanted a county full of timber about him to look at and hunt in."

"I couldn't hardly think of Wolfpen without the timber to be like green sea waves moving off into the sky."

"It wouldn't be cut right around the place here, and we could use a little ready money. Maybe you could go over to Pikeville for a winter." It was the first mention of it she had ever made to Cynthia.

"Oh, could I?" Then I could be there when Jesse is."

"Where is Jesse going?"

"There I go blurring out what I was not supposed to. But I don't reckon he'd mind only to tell you himself. He wants to read the law."

"He never said anything about it," Julia mused, thinking on the quiet way of Jesse with her and how he was turned different from the others. "Jesse ought to be right good at following law."

"But we wouldn't have to sell off any land to do that, would we?" The feeling had returned.

"That's for your daddy to decide, Cynthia," Julia answered. Their thoughts slipped back privately into silence. Julia rolled the flour paste from her hands and went to her garden to be with herself. Cynthia watched her for a while from the door, pondering the great contentment of Julia as she put seeds into the fine ground of her garden. Then as she went into the weaving-room to make cloth for winter shirts for the men, she meditated on Julia's words and the change of mood on Wolfpen since she sat last at the loom.

Jesse drove the cows up the lane by the garden and into Mossy Bottom meadow. There he leaned on the bars watching the cows spread up the hollow, hearing them tear the crisp new grass with their rough tongues.

Abrael, coming back from seeing Nelson on his way up the branch, found Jesse leaning on the bars.

"What did you think of that feller?" Abrael said, climbing on the top bar and biting at a straw.

"He was all right I guess."

"I'd like to see all the places he talked about. Why do we always just live right here all the time?"

"It's a good place to live. Patterns have always lived here and done well," Jesse answered.

"Sure it's all right that way, but a feller might go out and then come back. Even the old Patterns had to come from somewhere else before they could get here, didn't they? If one of them hadn't come from the old country and another one of them hadn't come over here from Virginia, we wouldn't be here would we? We'd already be some place else."

Jesse remained silent for he liked Abrael when he plunged headlong with one of his notions.

"I'd like to see some of the world and drive cattle down the river for a drover, or be a drover myself maybe and buy cattle. I'd like to take a raft down the Big Sandy and go up to Pittsburgh on a boat and run a coal barge down to Cincinnati, and do a lot of things."

"Dad couldn't hardly spare any of us off the place during the season," Jesse said.

"He got along all right when we were little, didn't he? And he likes it. If he'd sell some of it off to that feller for all that money."

"I don't think he'll sell," Jesse said.

"Well, just the same he ought to," Abrael said.

"Yes, and we ought to finish up the Long Bottom and get it planted. Half the morning's already gone. Come on," Jesse said.

Sparrel closed the gate behind Shellenberger. He stood with his right hand still lifted in farewell, observing that the man did not know how to put his knees into a fine saddle mule. As Shellenberger disappeared down Wolfpen, Sparrel turned back through the lot toward the barn, feeling that the morning was advancing and the self-contained mood which had always borne him through the spring work was suddenly broken. He should be caring for the new lambs and getting the boys into the Long Bottom and carrying forward the daily work of the place, but some fragile quality had been shattered out of the delicate balance which had made all the yesterdays full of content in these things. He went into the barn through the thick smell of horses; then he crossed the harness-and-saddle room through the sweet odor of leather, and went into the alcove where he prepared his herbs and mixed his medicines. But his mind was on the words of the man riding down the hollow, and on their portent for him and his children.

"I just never thought about selling any; a man buys land if he can and he sells only if he has to. I'd rather have my land. A family ought to have plenty of land around them. But here I'm getting along and it stands to reason in a few years it'll go to the children. Sometimes it 'pears like it's coming to the place where you have to have more money instead of making your own things. And I could saw on that new mill. I'd like to see how a big wheel saw the size of a millstone would go through a log when my new engine twirled it."

Jasper found him there among his herbs and canisters enveloped in a smell of turpentine, ginger and tar. Through the small window came the bewildered bleating of the new lambs.

"How are they?" Sparrel asked just as though he were not thinking of Shellenberger.

"They're dropping pretty fast right now," Jasper answered, making the same pretense.

"How's that young ewe?"

"She's not making it."

"We'll try this," Sparrel said.

They walked around behind the barn to the railed lot where the ewes were penned. Sparrel treated the afflicted one; then they stood apart from her against the low fence.

"What did you think about that though his thoughts had suddenly and without warning become audible.

"I haven't had a chance to think about it much yet, son."

"We better take it."

"Why so?"

"It's a good price. That'd be a sight of money."

Sparrel regarded the lambs making friends with their mothers, and made no reply.

"I want to get married before long, Dad," Jasper said with a boyish shyness.

Sparrel turned to look at his eldest son who was covering his words by moving a new lamb against its mother. He was a well favored man at 24, wide in the shoulders, clear-eyed, a young mustache which emphasized the gravity of his bearing.

"I allowed you'd be getting married one day, son. I didn't know. Who do you favor?"

"Jane Burden over at Pike." It was emotional to utter her name.

"I guess she's a good girl all right. She comes of good people."

"I ought to have a place to take her to."

"You can have the Marebone farm. There's a fine place for a house there."

"That's just it. I want a house with things in it and money to start on."

"We can soon saw you up a house on the new mill if you don't want to come into the home place for a while."

"We ought to have that money, Dad. There is no sense to it. You sell and let me have my part while it'll do me some good."

"A body gets attached to things, Jasper. Don't you feel that?"

"Not to a lot of timber-land we never see much of anyway and it won't move."

They were silent again. Sparrel watched the pained efforts of the young ewe grow weaker.

"She can't make it, but it's a pity to kill her just because she wasn't made right to start with."

He stood apart delaying for several more minutes, but when the poor creature fixed her agonized eyes upon him, he opened his long hunting knife and slit her throat.

No one said anything more about Shellenberger or his offer, but the spirit of unrest he had brought into the family continued and multiplied in silence through the week. Sparrel would have to decide, and when he had made up his mind he would say what was to be done. In the meantime the responsibility lay heavy upon him. All the daily purposes of his life grew easily out of tradition: that is the way it had always been done on Wolfpen. But for this problem there was no precedent, and Sparrel found it bewildering to settle on what was best to do. He could think about buying land and building a new mill, because three generations before him had bought land and made new mills. But there was nothing about selling. And how was a simple, honest, hospitable man like Sparrel Pattern to know anything helpful about partnerships or royalties or selling off surplus timber while reserving ownership of the land or the marketing of logs.

He sat with his perplexity in the corner by the fireplace in the evening, fingering slowly at his trimmed beard and looking into the white oak-bark ashes smoldering in the circle Julia had arranged purposely for baking the fluffy wheat biscuits for his supper. He loved her and her way of speaking to him through such personal gestures as ash-baked biscuits on the evening when the butter was sweet from the churn.

He took down the second volume of the history of the United States and held the yellow-cornered pages open in his hands. There was the tale of the growth of these states and of the westward sweep of restless men who were always leaving one thing and seeking out another. Now they had done all that while he and his fathers lived out their days in the self-contained fields of Wolfpen.

The rough sketch must now be filled in. The fact was certain, but the manner rested with the makers of the future. Would it be continuous destruction and debris, dirt and ugliness, wasted land and destroyed timber like the Ohio end of the Big Sandy? Or might it be in the orderly manner of Wolfpen? Haste and greed would never pause for vision or plan. The Ohio was filling, the West was filling, the mountains were filling; everywhere (from what he could learn) the unrest of men and the inexorable pressure of trade. The outside had pushed into Catlettsburg, then up to Louisa, on to Richardson and Paintsville, and now the Big Sandy boats were towing it right into Pikeville. Most of the timber on the lower Sandy was gone and the hillsides were gutted with washouts. The demand was increasing; the hungry mills must be fed, and now Shellenberger was up here on Gannon and Wolfpen wanting logs and land. And after all, why not? No telling but the demand might cease. His children needed the money more than the stumpage.

There was the new mill that could run a saw. He had been so busy with the planting he had hardly seen his mill. It was no crime to sell timberland at a profit. Sentiment could never prosper a man. He closed the worn history-book and put it back on its shelf. He wound up the weights on the clock, and bathed his feet, and lay on the bed, waiting for Julia. When she had put out the lamp and had taken her place by his side, he laid his hand on her face, stroking it gently, and said, "We won't miss the land Shellenberger wants and the money will come in right handy."

"I think that's best, too, Sparrel," Julia said, just as though they had had a long talk about it.

"We didn't think much about not having real money when we were young, did we, Julia?"

"We had this fine place to start on, and it wasn't a bit of trouble to make things."

"I reckon it's not that way with our children."

"We can see them all get a good start now," Julia said, thinking, as always, of her children and not of herself.

"You're going over to town in the morning?" she said.

"Yes."

That was the talk they had about selling four thousand acres of timberland to Shellenberger.

Cynthia was awake when the first undecided birds in the orchard chirped uncertainly for the morning. By the time they had swelled to a full chorus with the coming of daybreak, she was in the barnyard opening the gate and watching Sparrel and Jasper ride down Wolfpen toward Gannon on their way to Pikeville. Before they disappeared around the lower orchard, Sparrel turned in the saddle and waved goodby to Cynthia.

She was still leaning on the gate when Jesse came out of the barn with his own black gelding.

"You open the gate for me, will you, Cynthia?"

"Why, Jesse, wherever are you going to?"

"I just took a notion to go over to town, too. I don't feel at rest in my mind this morning, and I'm going to try to see Tandy Morgan about what I told you about the other day." He rode through the gate. "Will you water the sheep and tell Mother?"

"Yes, Jesse." She had never seen him in a flurry before. She waved goodby to him also and watched him ride hurriedly down the creek after Sparrel and Jasper.

He overtook them at the Gannon creek ford.

"Where are you going to, son?" Sparrel asked also in surprise.

"I thought I'd just go over to town, too," Jesse said.

"I thought you went up to the field to look after that last piece," Jasper said, and there was an irritation in his voice.

"Abrael's looking after it."

"What about the sheep, son?" Sparrel asked. It was as near as he got to reproving Jesse for coming away.

"Cynthia will water them all right," Jesse spoke quietly, riding on with his father and brother up the bank.

Sparrel said no more; he rode off at a lope up Gannon.

"What are you going to do over at town anyway?" Jasper demanded.

"I've got some business of my own to attend to, Jasper," Jesse said.

They rode in file—Sparrel, Jesse, Jasper—with ease and rapidity up the creek, the fall of twelve hoofs, muted in the soft dirt, beating quick in rhythm as if there were only one rider, and then nervously out of rhythm as though there were nine. They rode without words, the only sounds the mild friction of saddle leather and the quick intervals of the hoofs collecting into a more insistent one and then shattering into many.

BRAINS—BUT NO CIVILITY

C. C. MERRITT, Pastor, Church of Christ

MANY of us are like the colored man who was chafed when some one told him he had no brains. He replied sharply and very boastfully, "Man, I got brains I never has used yet."

When one's mind is defiled by envy, bitterness, prejudice, or uncleanness, he acts with a marked degree of the lack of civility towards the one who is the object of his abject thoughts. No mind can think clearly, righteously and kindly that holds grudge or revenge.

Joseph's brothers were jealous of him because of their father's favoritism towards him. They envied him. They could not think clearly even for their own good. Their minds were poisoned and easily deceived, reasoning that they could be revengeful and not naturally have to suffer in the end more than their victim.

Saul, King of Israel, heard others praise a very young man for his brave ability as a warrior more highly than they praised him and he was never able again to use all of his brain in wisdom towards young David.

Haman, the honorable at the court of the Persian King, was greatly distracted in mind because of what seemed to him to be the offense of a Jew against his dignity. His brain shriveled, filled with mud and filth in his plotting to annihilate the entire race of his supposed enemy. Because of his hate, his thinking was impaired and he unwittingly plotted his own destruction.

Truly did the wise king say, "As a man thinketh in his heart SO IS HE." The squint of his eye; the lines in his face; his posture; his stride, all tell the sad tale of his unused brain.

Can a man imitate the actions and words and mannerism of a wise man and be wise for that reason? No, he must begin at the right place and purge the source of his life from foolishness if he is to be a kind and good and great man.

Let me give you the words of the greatest scientific advice towards the super task of the proper use of your mind, "Whatever things are true, whatsoever things are honorable, whatsoever things just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

Is there a bitter grudge in your heart against a fellow being? Find something honorable and true and just and pure about him and think and talk of those things to others and you will be surprised that your knave has turned into an honest upright man, and that the fool has become noble and manly. And, what's more, you will have sealed the heights of a larger life and you will have become an appreciated benefactor.

Do not kid yourself into thinking that you can be bitter towards others and still retain the ability to get the best out of life. All ill-tempered people rob themselves of virtue and of genuine skill for that kind of thinking that makes wise and great men.

Befriend the one you dislike. Speak kindly to the one who provokes you. Do good to them that hate you. Speak of some good thing in the man that has defamed you. And you will be climbing the peaks to a purer air that will bring health to your mind and power in your leadership for nobler things. For, out of the abundance of his heart, man feeds and builds character.

Brains are much like tools. A wood saw needs not to strike a nail. But, if it does, it can be sharpened. Rust impairs and sometimes makes useless a tool, but it can be polished. Don't throw your brain to the bats.

Two Westerns—Double Program

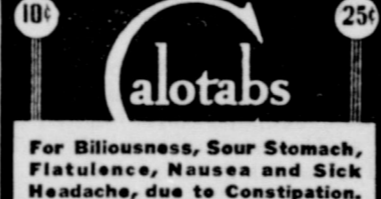

Patrons of the Rogue theatre have a real treat in store for Friday and Saturday, July 3-4, when two full length feature pictures will be shown at the regular admission price of one show. Hoot Gibson will strut his stuff in an old fashioned western, The Lucky Terror. Ken Maynard will make his appearance in Heir to Trouble. Both of these pictures are full length, complete stories and are offered as a special Fourth of July attraction for only one admission.

The Country Beyond

As a usual thing a story of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police is ample drawing power for any picture. Then, too, any story penned by James Oliver Curwood is worthy of your attention. Now put these two excellent elements together and you will have a combination found in "The Country Beyond" which is in reality the story of two dogs of the frozen Northlands. It is resplendent with beautiful scenery of mother nature in her golden glory of winter's blast. It is intensely alive with human emotions laid against a background of God's glorious North. It's on at the Rogue, Monday and Tuesday, July 6-7.

The Thin Man

For those who keep Watch Night the Rogue offers for Thursday, July 9, one of the best pictures that it has been the writer's privilege to see. Yes, it is an old picture, but that has not dimmed its excellence. It is one of the most talked of pictures of the year. The title is The Thin Man featuring William Powell and Myrna Loy. The management of the Rogue has thrown out the challenge: "Anyone who will see half of the picture and then get up and leave the theatre and not see the remainder of it will be refunded double admission price." Ask about the HOT SEAT plan at the Rogue on Thursday nights and also Saturday matinees.

North County Farmer Dies Here On Tuesday

Jim Thomas Succumbs to Injuries Received from Burns—Lived North of Mobeetie

Jim Thomas, 54, a farmer living nine miles north of Mobeetie died early Tuesday morning from severe burns received when his clothing caught fire Monday evening.

Jim Thomas was born Aug. 1, 1881, and died June 30, 1936, at a hospital in Wheeler at the age of 54 years, 10 months and 29 days.

On Sept. 10, 1914, he was united in marriage to Miss Maggie James. To this union six children were born. He had been a faithful member of the Christian church for a number of years and had many friends in the communities where he had lived.

Besides his faithful wife he is survived by six children: James, Hazel, Ollie, Wanda Lee, Billie and Donald Thomas; four sisters, Mrs. Hattie Gaines, Mobeetie; Mrs. Mary Glover and Mrs. Lucy Stokes of Oklahoma, and Miss Nora Thomas and two brothers, Will Thomas, Mobeetie, and Elmer Thomas, Mangum, Okla. Also a number of more distant relatives and a host of friends.

Funeral services were conducted by C. C. Merritt, pastor of the Church of Christ at the Hunt chapel in Wheeler, Tuesday morning, with burial in the Mobeetie cemetery in charge of Hunt Funeral Home.

New Hospital Shows Erection Progress

Evidence of erection progress on the new Wheeler hospital is visible from the outside this week as its permanent covering of metal tile is laid over the frame and rubberoid base. It is reported that similar progress is being made on the interior of the structure, moving it rapidly along toward completion.

According to Dr. Glenn R. Walker of Mobeetie, who will be associated with Dr. H. E. Nicholson in operating the new enterprise, the next 20 or 30 days should see it ready for occupancy.

Devastated Fields May Be Replanted

Rules Applying Where Cotton Crop Has Been Destroyed by Worms or Hoppers

To answer numerous inquiries received at his office in regard to "what crop may be planted on cotton land where the cotton has been destroyed by worms or grasshoppers," Jake Tarter, county agent, offers the following statement:

"Cotton is a special depleting crop, and it is not necessary that a work sheet signer have any cotton at all in order to be eligible for the conserving payment. In other words, if a farmer's cotton base is 100 acres, he can get payment on 35 acres of this 100 acres if he doesn't have an acre of cotton. On the other hand, if his feed, corn and wheat base is 100 acres, he doesn't have to have an acre to get his payment on the 15 acres, or 15 per cent.

"The main part of the compliance is easy, as a man can plant his feed acreage back up to 100 acres and not have an acre of cotton, and get payment on the 35 acres of cotton land, if he has a soil conserving or building crop on the 35 acres. He has until July 31 to get the crop started, which means that he can take all diverted acres out of his cotton and get payment on the 35 acres. But if he plants his full 100 acres to cotton and takes the 35 acres out of his feed and other crops, he will only get payment on the 15 acres he diverted from his feed and other crops.

"It should be borne in mind that plantings on the diverted acres is a part of the crop, and is not to be let grow up in weeds, but given a chance to grow the crop like any other crop such as feed, corn or cotton. The question is asked 'What is a stand of peas, cane or sudan?' A stand, under the regulations, is the same as if this crop was grown for any other purpose.

"If the cotton is destroyed and the farmer wishes to get his full payment on both cotton and feed crops, the acreage destroyed should be planted to sudan, cane or peas, which are soil building and conserving crops. Sudan can be harvested off any acreage, but cane or peas cannot be harvested, except seed. Sudan can be harvested for hay or seed, or grazed, and still be a conserving crop and all payments can be received.

"But if sudan is not harvested, $1.00 per acre extra can be drawn and still get the large payment, which is the diversion payment, or is the same as the rental payment under the old contract."

Open-Air Services at Methodist Sunday Eve

Miss Gilmore to Give Violin Solo—Miss Merriman to Sing at Morning Service

Last Sunday night a large crowd filled every available seat, and some sat on the grass, at the evening service on the back lawn. More seats are being moved out for the services next Sunday. Come and bring your friends and worship with us in a beautiful place where it is cool and restful. Helen Gilmore will give music on the violin. The pastor will preach on "How to Live a Happy and Useful Life." Visitors are always welcome.

Get up Sunday morning and come to Sunday school. Are you interested in yourself? Do you want to be somebody? Then come to Sunday school and learn of Him who was the greatest person that has ever lived, and who promises abundant life to all.

At the morning service Florence Merriman will sing. The pastor will preach the first of a series of two sermons on "Happiness." This is something that all of us are interested in, and Jesus gives us some very definite instructions about what makes a happy life. Attend the two services Sunday and find out what Jesus teaches about happiness.

Contest Judges View High District Farm

George E. Adams, assistant state agent and Miss Dilworth, assistant state nutrition specialist, both from College Station, were in Wheeler Wednesday afternoon following inspection of the J. E. Willard farm, east of town. The pair are judges in the Centennial Home Beautification contest in which it will be recalled that the Willard farm won first place in the district.

Present competition is to determine the state winners, which carry with them handsome cash prizes. Results of the contest will be made known at Farmers Short course, late in July.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Crump left this morning for a few days trip to Mineral Wells, where Mr. Crump will take the baths and treatments.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Breedlove of Clarendon were in Wheeler Tuesday afternoon on business. She visited Mrs. Jake Tarter while he attended to business.

HIGH SCHOLASTIC HONORS FOR WHEELER YOUNG LADY

Through the news bureau of that institution, The Times has learned that Miss Mary Lou McIlhany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. McIlhany of this city, has been accorded scholastic honors at Texas State College for Women (CIA) on the basis of her work during the second semester of the past session.

Her name will be inscribed on the dean's honor roll, and special recognition will be given her by the college. Miss McIlhany is majoring in chemistry.

Your Fortune Told and By a Preacher

That may not seem so easy. There is something else much easier and much more successfully done.

It is answering these questions: "Who are you, and why are you what you are?" Because human nature is always human nature is the fundamental principle by which Bro. Merritt is going to deal with the subject: "Why People Follow Jesus." That will be his theme for Sunday evening at the Church of Christ. Do you know why you follow Him? If you are not a follower of Christ, do you know why you are not? Give your own answer and go see how much you have missed it.

A very unusual phase of a very common subject will be dealt with at the Sunday morning hour. That subject is: "Members of Christ's Body." Do you know what that means? Is there anything mysterious about it to you? As a minister of Christ a gospel preacher is a steward of the mysteries of God (1 Cor. 4:1), and he is to speak "God's wisdom is a mystery." This subject is vital to every Christian. As a member of the body of Christ you are urged to hear this discourse.

Open air service for the Sunday evening preaching hour is being planned. Everyone knows how nice it is to have meetings out in the open during this hot weather. You are invited to enjoy this comfort and helpfulness.

Assembly of God to Start Revival Soon

Saturday Evening, July 4th, Date for Beginning Old-Time Gospel Revival

Giving next Saturday evening, July 4th, at 8:30 p. m. as the date and hour, Rev. Pete Love pastor of the congregation, states that an old-time revival meeting will start at the Assembly of God church in the east part of town.

Evangelist Thelma Koenig of Canadian will be the principal speaker during the series of services. Miss Mattie Hilton of Briscoe will be the song leader.

Rev. Love extends a hearty and cordial welcome to all who care to attend the services, which are to continue for an indefinite period.

McLean Young Lady Weds McAllen Man

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Morris of McLean announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Miss Mildred Morris, to Mr. Garland Ross of McAllen. The wedding took place at McLean, June 9, 1936, with Rev. Sharp, pastor of the Methodist church reading the marriage vows in the presence of the bride's parents and a sister of the groom, Miss Aline Ross of McAllen, and Miss Fern Myers of Mobeetie.

Mrs. Ross has many friends in Mobeetie where she had made her home with her parents until recently when they moved to McLean. She went to Amarillo high school three years and for her senior year she went to McAllen, where she graduated in 1935, and at that time met Mr. Ross.

Mr. Ross is a fine young man and has spent most of his life at McAllen, where he finished high school and has just completed an electrical course and is employed in his home town where they will make their home.

Anvil Park Offering Spectacular Events

Annual Rodeo Activity to Rival that of 3-Ring Circus—Dates are July 2, 3, 4

From the opening scramble, with four fast chutes delivering yelling cowboys mounted on wild horses and Brahma steers, to the closing number which is the Brahma steer riding event, there will be a beehive of activity that provides ten times the action of a three-ring circus, when the 14th annual edition of the Anvil Park Rodeo, 5 miles east of Canadian, gets under way, July 2 for three days.

The most spectacular of all events will be those conducted in the spacious arena, where the cowboy pits his skill and cunning against untamed horses and wild cattle. Western sports are one among those conducted honestly—because no one has ever been found that could frame a wild bronk.

The committee is assured a field of high class contestants, Buster Brown of Houston, Earl West of Perryton, Bill Van Vactor and Ace Henson of Carter, Okla., Eddie Smith of Wellington and others of note have indicated their intention of entering the various events.

Each contestant pays an entrance fee and the only method of receiving any remuneration for his services is to place either in the day money or final money in the handsome prize list put up by the committee.

The specialty acts, consisting of trick and fancy riding and roping, are the only events in which performers receive pay for their services. Virgil Stapp, and his mule "Jerb," has been contracted to appear at the Anvil Park Rodeo daily. There will be a large group of special trick and fancy ropers and riders, which are essential to a well balanced program and add color to the rodeo.

Friday, July 3, is old-timers' day. Those who came to the Panhandle previous to 1892 will be given special consideration. Pioneers from every section of the Panhandle will gather in Canadian at the city auditorium to exchange greetings with each other and reminisce of the days that are past.

Entertainment for the evening hours will be dances by Avil Schneider and his orchestra who will play the nights of July 3 and 4 at Canadian's spacious city auditorium under the sponsorship of the Northeast Panhandle Feeders association. Harley Sadler and his company will appear nightly in their tent in Canadian under the auspices of the American Legion.

Miami Young Lady Is Wedded to Pampa Man

Miss Thelma Gill, Former Wheeler Resident, Weds W. L. Karn on June 16th

Announcement of the marriage of Miss Thelma Gill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Gill of Miami, to Mr. W. L. Karn of Pampa was received this week. The wedding took place June 16, at Sayre, Okla., with Rev. Mooreland, pastor of the Methodist church, reading the beautiful ceremony.

Mrs. Karn has spent most of her life in Miami, where she graduated from high-school in 1926. Afterwards she attended Texas Tech at Lubbock. She has been employed as book-keeper at the Eagle Buffet in Pampa since the first of the year. Previous to that time she made her home in Wheeler and was saleslady at the People's store, where with her cheerful disposition and pleasing personality, she made many friends during the years she was employed there.

Mr. Karn is said to be a young man of excellent character and much ability. He is a musician of some note, having traveled over 46 states with an orchestra. At present he is employed as announcer at station KPND, Pampa.

The young couple will be at home to their friends at 406 N. Russell, Pampa.

Miss Ann Ford made a business trip Tuesday to Pampa.

POPULAR BUT HAZARDOUS PASTIME

Thrills, spills and action and plenty of excitement is dished up at the Anvil Park Rodeo every afternoon when cowboys start leaping from saddles and take a death grip on a pair of "handle bars" in an effort to win the bulldogging money. It's an event that brings chills to the novice and there will be many when wild-eyed Mexican longhorn steers start cavorting at the Anvil Park Rodeo at Canadian, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 2, 3 and 4.
