SPORT SLANTS By Alan Gould

The hazards to peace of mind in sport are pretty well known. That the physical risk is likewise great is revealed by an insurance company's report that one out of six adult persons injured in accidents of all kinds last year was hurt while engaged in sports and recreational activities.

A quiet afternoon on the golf course, it seems, is apt to be the most dangerous spot in all fields of competition. More adults were injured while playing golf than in any other game, 12 per cent of the total accidents having occurred last year on the links.

More than 60 per cent of the injuries suffered by golfers were the result of slips and falls on uneven ground, says the report, while the next largest number of golf accidents was due to being struck by flying objects.

Golfers undoubtedly would consider football much more hazardous, but the rougher and tougher gridiron sport produced only two per cent of the accident quotas as compared with golf's 12 per cent, baseball's 11 per cent and basketball's five per cent.

Picnics, outings and dancing, if they are included in the recreational fold, accounted for 10 per cent of the mishaps and winter sports four per cent.

THOSE SPITBALLERS

The major league regulations against admitting any further spitball twirlers into the big show have kept at least one star in AA company—Frank Shellenback of the Hollywood Club champions of the Pacific Coast league.

At the pace he has been pitching Shellenback and his moist ball would be useful in any league.

The veteran spitballer wound up the 1935 season with a string of 14 straight victories and he won five more in a row by the end of April this season, to extend his streak.

Several years ago, the majors decided to end the use of moist ball fingers by allowing no more to come up with this style of delivery. The existing spitballers were exempted, of course, and four of them still survive at advanced ages—Clarence Mitchell of the Giants, Bugtich Grimes of the Cardinals, Red Faber of the White Sox and John Quinn of the Robins.

The slippery slim clan will be extinct when these veterans pass from the big show.

The Pacific Coast league licenses the spitballers and Shellenback is one of a few operating with his delivery. He won 19 and lost 7 last season.

THE ODD YEAR HABIT

Columbia's variety crew, coached by Rich Glendon, may also have decided to adopt the "odd year habit" somewhat prevalent in these sporting times. The Columbians ruled the intercollegiate waves at Poughkeepsie in 1937 and again in 1939. After an off-year they are back again with a great crew, already the victor over Navy, Yale and Pennsylvania, with high hopes of winning again up the river.

RECALL LATE SNOW

CANYON, May 14 (AP)—With Spring at high tide in Randall county, wartime residents have recalled that on May 6, 1917, 8 inches of snow fell. The snow remained on the ground for thirty-six hours.

The new baseball is having its effect on games, is the belief of all of the major league solons. They point to low scores as the foundation of their argument. The ball gives the pitcher the slight advantage, there is no doubt. When Grover Cleveland Alexander sat on the bench at Dundy Diamond and nodded, he expressed the opinion that the ball was holding down the hitters, and working in favor of the twirler. He too quoted scores of 1930 and compared them with the tallies of 1931. The higher seam gives the chunker a grip that it was impossible for him to get on the onion skin orbit of the past season. And once gripped, a good pitcher needs little else but a strong arm, and if he is a southpaw, a weak mind.

Fred G. Lieb, speaking to the Sporting News, says, "The ball still can go Ruth but a home run off Earnshaw that was as hard a hit ball as ever left the Bambino's bat. Bill Terry's feat of hitting a ball over the right field roof at the Polo Grounds indicates the ball still can travel if a human sees his hold on it. But could figures show it is not being hit as often or as far as in the last few years. And in another place, 'Some of the boys tried to spoof me when I said there would be an appreciable falling off of home runs this year. I now believe the crop will fall off even more than I anticipated. In 1930 there were 1,245 home runs in the two majors, 992 in the National league and 671 in the American. Right now I want to go on record as predicting the crop will be reduced to something like 1,000 home runs."

It might be said that it seems the old ball, which is in use locally, is not being clouded with the usual gusto. Only one home run this year, and few triples. Batting averages are unusually low, although we haven't had the time nor inclination to take up the old adding machine and bite leads out of pencils to figure them up.

For the first time in several weeks we got a good look at "Wild Willie" Flowers, the chief athlete at the Big Spring high school. The football backfield ace looks to be in excellent condition. He is the main carryover from last year's hefty football team, and the season's basketball quintet. He will be the jewel of Obie Bristow's backfield in 1936 unless things change considerably.

Flowers, with a summer of manual labor, should place a bit more poundage on his frame before the fall sets in and the leaves start leaving. Young Heblson, whom Bristow probably will remove from the forward entrenchment and place in the backfield, also is in excellent spring condition. He looks, although it is possible he may not be much heavier than he did last fall. The question confronting Bristow is where to find the avoirdupois to use in the line, a center to replace the fighting Elmer Pastine, another hefty or so for the backfield, and a couple of behemoth ends to bear down on the opposition. That's not much of a problem.

It is always gratifying to coaches to know that in the majority of cases the opposition is carrying over the same little knotty problems.

One who has been in close touch with athletics at Abilene informs that there is between $40,000 and $50,000 in the high school athletic fund of that city beautiful. There should be more at the end of this year's grid campaign, inasmuch as Dewey Mayhew has his eye on the state championship, and is using a bunch of elephantine hunkies for his eye glasses. The district title, although it won't be a summer breeze, should find itself tucked away in Abilene's trophy chest when the time for an accounting comes. It's Abilene's year, so sayeth the dopsters. Local school officials should feel relieved that the Steers won't have to go up against the aggregation of heavyweights in a district contest. Even at that Bristow is likely to send his charges against the "Athens" eleven just for target practice.

Those that wonder what become of the immortals of baseball will find that Howard Ehmke, the hero of the World's Series two years ago, is twirling still. He is playing manager of a club at Lancaster, Pa., an independent outfit.

Tentative Agreement Reached On Congressional Districting Bill by Conference Committee

AUSTIN, May 14.—A tentative agreement was reached Tuesday by a majority of the conference committee apportioning the state into new congressional districts, but the matter was not finally determined because of a threatened motion to reconsider made by Gus Ruasek of the senate contingent after the other two members of his committee split evenly. The report was agreed to so late that it could not be submitted, therefore, Julian Greer, author of the original senate bill and head of the senate conferees, presented the new measure and served notice that he would fight the adoption of the report on the floor of the senate with a motion to reject and appoint a new committee. If Mr. Ruasek refuses to sign the report, Mr. Greer's motion will be unnecessary and the present committee must resume its deliberations. Senator Carl Hardin is in accord with Mr. Greer while Senators Clint Small and Charles Galner are against him and for the committee majority bill, which also was agreed to by Mr. Ruasek, who is reported as wavering. The house conferees are Penrose Metcalfe, A. P. Johnson, Paul Finn, John M. Mathis and E. T. Murphy.

Unjust, Says Greer

"They have given the West three light districts and a new congressman," says Mr. Greer, "yet have given East Texas extremely heavy districts. The El Paso district has 214,000 population compared with 31,000 for the Beaumont district and 281,000 for the third district, taking in the East Texas oil fields where there are 100,000 more persons than the census recorded. It is unjust, and I will not accept it."

Congressman Clay Stone Briggs of Galveston was given a separate district, which also left Congressman J. J. Mansfield of Columbus in a district to himself. No two congressmen are placed in the same district. There are three new districts, one in the West, one in the Panhandle and one in the southern part of the state.

As agreed to by a majority of the committee Tuesday the bill apportions the State as follows: First—Bowie, Cass, Marion, Upshur, Camp, Morris, Red River, Titus, Franklin, Hopkins, Delta, Lamar.

Second—Nacogoches, Shelby, San Augustine, Sabine, Angelina, Tyler, Jasper, Newton, Hardin, Orange, Jefferson.

A Healthier Life

ONE of the favorite dreams of this scientific age has been that human life, at some time in the future, will be measurably lengthened. The "average life span" that we hear so much about has been stretched in the last generation or so; most of us have a sinking hope that it will eventually go far beyond the scriptural three score and ten.

However, the experts, on such matters are a bit dubious about it.
There is, for example, Lee K.
Frankel of the Metropolitan Life Insurance, who led the American Philosophical Society recently that the actual number of years which an individual can attain will probably never be much greater than it is now.

Still Mr. Frankel is an optimist.
Human beings of the future may not live much longer than human beings of today, but he believes they will be a great deal healthier.
They will support fewer hospitals and orphanages, and their de-ceases will be kinder, preventing disease than curing it.

And this, after all, is about all that any sensible man would hope for. The yearning for everlasting life seems to be one of mankind's fundamental traits, but it is always assumed that immortality will be enjoyed in another world than this. The earth has too many imperfections. Few people care to linger on it indefinitely.

But the more length in years, of one's earthly existence is not a prime consideration. Whether we are to have 50 years or twice 50 the most important question is what are those going to be like?
In promising better health for our grandchildren, Mr. Frankel holds up a brighter picture than would be the case if he simply promised longer life.

To have life and to have it more abundantly has always been the race's greatest earthly hope. It is back of every great migration of nursed tribes and nations, back of every revolution, back of many Moody wars; the hope that somehow something can be done to make the ordinary man's existence a little bit less bare, a little bit more full of those moments of contemptment of ecstasy or of achievement that give its significance.

With that special, more, length of days has little to do. We need not be disappointed if science finds it self unable to promise a longer life.
It is promising a better one—a life more free from pain, a life in which men can more fully use the powers that are in them. That is enough.
We would be foolish to ask for more.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Railroads And Their Earnings

Kansas City Times:
THE railroads have taken a somewhat disproportionate share in net earning losses. They are obligated to meet not only those shipping losses due to conditions, but also have to meet increasing competition in transportation.

For example, Standard Statistics, Inc., informs us that the net earnings of twenty railroads for the first quarter of this year were 61 per cent less than for the same period of last year, and still larger decrease from two years ago. Net profits of 155 representative industrial corporations sustained a shrinkage of 48 per cent. Sixteen big utility companies, mostly power and light, reported an increase of 4 per cent. Nine steel companies showed a drop of 84 per cent.
Eleven motor car manufacturing corporations had a loss of 43 per cent. Ten chemical companies were down 30 per cent. Fifteen companies in the food industry showed a loss of only 5 per cent.

Relatively, therefore, the losses in net railroad profits are high. The fifty railroad presidents who met in Chicago Friday undertook to reach conclusions as to means of relief. Private industry must work out its problem in its own way.
Railroads and other public utilities naturally come back to the public

Mad Pursuit
BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

SYNOPSIS: Like a snake eternally wiggling out of its skin was Julian Lake. So mused his motherless daughter, Nora, in the garden of the Italian villa Mrs.
Nevers had lent them. His wanderlust never satisfied as he dabbled unprofitably at painting.
Lake led her an uncertain life.
One sweet memory she cherished —that of a bicycle trip in England and the youth of 20 she had met. Even after their casual farewell, his philosophy and poetic aspirations had left their impression on the girl five years his junior. Half forgotten, his name Jonathan Thayer, comes to mind when she recalls that her father's guest, Nicholas Thayer, a painter, has the same family name. The rising sun disturbs her reflection, that perhaps he knows Jonathan.

"I WANT TO LIVE!"

THE house was still, asleep when Nora had come in from the garden and dressed. She made the strong black coffee her father liked, and two slices of toast. Balancing her father's tray carefully, she went to the door on the second floor and knocked.
When they need help, at least they do come and help, when other means of relief have failed.
It is manifest that the railroads have effected economies in operation. They have taken steps to expedite freight deliveries to compete with trucks. They have improved their passenger service. In every way they are giving perhaps the best service they ever have given.
Whether they have done everything possible—short of wage reductions to keep themselves in doubtful Yet they may have come near to the end of this thing. They are opposed to wage reductions. In this attitude the country is sympathetic with them.
Of course, railroads should not be helped to prosperify artificially while other interests fight out their depression problems. Yet railroads are a public necessity. It should be remembered, too, that the basis of railroad rates no longer is challenged as it once was when water-stock was a factor in rates. According to the reports of the interstate commerce commission, the valuations on which railroad rates are based at this time are low rather than high. In this respect the railroads differ from those public utilities that are not subject to interstate regulation such as power and telephone corporations. In the structure and superstructure of which there are numerous arbitrary and sometimes extensive charges against the public.
The railroad executives were concerned about net earnings, but even more, it would seem, about the factor of credit. There are outstanding about 2 billions in railroad bonds that require earnings and one-half times the interest rate.
However, in seeking rate adjustments to increase their net earnings, the railroads also have to take into account the effect that increases might have in retarding business recovery, which is the essential thing. There are at this time more than 600,000 idle railroad freight cars. It is in volume of business the railroads need. That is what the country needs. The people will be sympathetic with the transportation companies, even, no doubt, as to reasonable rate adjustment proposals. But the times are not favorable to general rate increases. There was a time, before regulation, when the railroads were wont to charge "all the traffic will bear." In times of general depression, it is incumbent that the service, along with other interests, bear all they consistently can.

into delighted laughter.
She tried to be very dignified, opened the door with one hand, but the tray tilted and a cup slopped over and she set it straight with a bang. Outside the door she heard her father's chuckling laughter.
Still smarting with anger at the taunt her father had flung at her, she walked past Nicholas Thayer's room. The door was open. But he was not there. She stopped, arrested, by something she saw on the table.
It was a small painting propped up against the wall. The picture seemed to draw to it all the light and interest of the room. An old peasant woman sat before her dark hearth, looking through her open door. Sunlight keen and brilliant streaked across the earthen floor, lay on her patient folded hands, her bent head in its white coif, the blue of her cotton skirt.
Nora moved back and continued to look at the picture. The trembling sunlight, the polished panes of the window, the woman's dark lined face.

The painter had laid bare the life of the old woman. In the patient resignation of the face, the folded hands: It was so unlike the clashing colors in which her father painted, that it was as though Nicholas Thayer had used another medium.
She hurried downstairs, set the tray with a crash on the table in the salon and saw that Nicholas Thayer was walking up and down the room. He was the very person that she wanted to avoid, but she was intensely curious about him.
To the girl of twenty this man in his early thirties seemed fairly middle-aged. He was a tall and "haggard fellow in gray tweeds that had taken on the easy lines of his body. The curt "Good morning" he gave her showed that she was only an interruption.

Observing him narrowly she saw the structure of his face was vicious, with its jutting nose and strong chin. The glance with which he swept her was penetrating and cold under a heavy line of brow.
"I wanted to tell you I'm going away today," his voice was harsh like his personality. Nora wondered what could have attracted her father to such a man.

Dead, alive—or married? What a difference to Nora tomorrow when Thayer answers her question concerning Jonathan!

be spread by insects, particularly the common house fly.
However, the person actively sick with typhoid is not as great a danger as the so-called well typhoid carrier. The person who is sick is usually in bed, and under careful supervision and quarantine.
The typhoid carrier is not sick with typhoid fever but harbors the typhoid germs in his body, usually in his gall bladder. He sheds the bacilli in his excreta and, if he is unclean in his habits he will contaminates almost everything that he touches.
Though typhoid may be spread through food, milk, shellfish, vegetables and the like, contaminated waters are responsible for many cases. The babbling brook may carry death in its clear waters. The old well may be a "romantic sight but the very pit of destruction." Do not use any waters but those of certain safety. In the case of necessity, boil the water before drinking. Those residing in territories known to be typhoid-infested should have themselves vaccinated.
The effectiveness of this precaution was demonstrated during the war-time when every soldier was immunized against typhoid and our army in consequence had the lowest death rate from typhoid fever.

SPRINGTIME TYPHOID Spring showers may bring out the flowers, but they also bring typhoid fever.

Melting snows and spring rains wash down and carry infectious material, typhoid germs included, into brooks, rivers and reservoirs.
The result is a marked rise in typhoid cases, beginning in May and continuing to October. Rural sections suffer most, especially those in the southern parts of our country.
Typhoid is caused by the typhoid bacillus, which may be passed on

But one tough young actor recently

that's why Humble 997 Oil WON'T BREAK DOWN!

When you buy motor oil, you want it to fight Heat and Friction—that's its job. It must protect your engine against those twin racketeers that levy big repair bills. But you want it also to be stable.

That's why we use only 2% of the crude in making 997—the part that contains friction-fighting molecules only. Then we refine, drill and realign those molecules until they form an oil that has a new high in boiling points—997° Fahrenheit. This guarantees a protection heretofore unattainable against heat and loss, and assures lower oil consumption.

Get the extra protection, extra economy and extra stability of Humble's 997 Oil. Say the word and the nearest Humble dealer will drain and refill your crankcase today.

Science knows that all matter is made up of little invisible bodies called molecules. They're in continuous motion—some fast, some not so fast, and some slow. In petroleum crude, it's the middle ones that are born friction-fighters. They're the only kind we use in 997.

The piano set in one corner, the davenport in another, the table in the middle of the room.

"On the table I had a tall vase and above my piano I had a picture of a river scene. On the east wall above the davenport I had a picture of a snow scene. On the east wall was a mountain road picture.

"I had a wool rug on my floor and my draperies were rayon mulberry in color. I had lace panels and my curtains had scalloped and fringe. My glass door didn't have anything over it.

Looking At Television

No. 6—Problems Facing the Beginner

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD (Associated Press Radio Editor) NEW YORK, (AP)—Television, just beginning to attract the attention of the average listener, offers many new problems to the beginner.

To start with, the television signal must be disagreeably loud when it is cut into a loud speaker. Otherwise it will not actuate the neon lamp sufficiently to produce a clear picture. Synchronization, once a problem of picture transmission, is not so big a stumbling block now. Where the receiver gets its power off the same lighting wires as the transmitter, there is nothing to worry about when the synchronous motor is used. The picture will hold its position for a long time.

GRANDMOTHER BOUGHT FOOD FROM BARRELS

BUT KNOWN BRANDS CHART PURCHASING COURSE FOR TODAY'S HOUSEWIFE

Grandmother, even if she happened to have a telephone in her later years, didn't use it in buying the food for her table. She went to market—couldn't even trust the purchasing to the maid. That was the day of the cracker barrel—the tin of lard on the counter—the green coffee bin—the boxes of dried fruits and rice and macaroni. Walking between and around these barrels and boxes and bins and cans, grandmother tasted here, sniffed there, and ended by buying, partly in faith, and partly through exercise of carefully developed discrimination. That was before the day of standardized products and familiar packages—before advertising had

War Between Ranger and Racketeer May Break Out In State AUSTIN, May 14 (UP)—It will be ranging racketeer in Texas if legislative plans pass out, and if the wily racketeer decides to move to Texas.

Both branches of the legislature have voted to increase the ranger force, but neither has yet concurred in the other's plan. The senate voted to increase the force by 30 members, thus running the total to 62. The house decided the force should be made up of 46 members. Legislators thus indicated there was quite a demand for an increase in the force.

Negro Charged With Sending Death Threats

DALLAS, May 14 (UP)—Letters threatening violence to three Dallas business men today led to the filing of four charges under the new kidnaping law against Arthur Williams, negro Pullman porter. Conviction carries a minimum penalty of five years in the penitentiary.

Complaints allege Williams wrote threat notes to Nathan Adams, president of the First National bank, and to E. Gordon Perry and J. H. Shelton, automobile dealers, promising death if they failed to issue $1,000 in bills behind a signboard on a designated vacant lot.

Officers arrested Williams when he picked up a faded package near the signboard.

How One Woman Lost 102 Lbs. of Fat

Almost Unbelievable—Nevertheless True

Dear Friends: You advertise Kruschen Salts for reducing, so I finally tried them and when I started I weighed 219 pounds and when I took them for a year and 3 weeks, I lost exactly 102 pounds.

I am 23 years old and I look at least 5 years younger now than I did when I was fat. I have a picture of myself before and after so if you want to see them let me know.

I am always telling my friends about the wonderful salts. I am always advertising them. I took 2 bottles every month for a year and 3 weeks. It amounted to $25 for reducing 102 pounds but it was worth it.

If I can be of any help to you let me know. Yours truly, Miss Nellie Simpson, 1903 Wayne Street, Swinvale, Pa., Oct. 31, 1930.

The Modern Safe Way—Right Way to Lose Fat

Just take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

You can hasten the reducing action of Kruschen by going lighter on potatoes, pastry and fatty meats.

Unlike other Salts, Kruschen doesn't reduce by rushing food thru your system. Rather it's an ideal blend of 6 separate mineral salts which help every gland, nerve and body organ to function properly.

Women everywhere are overjoyed with this marvelous reducing treatment. Frequently pound by pound of surplus fat leaves and soon you possess that trim, slender figure you've always craved.

FLOWERS FOR SMART HATS, LONG TABOO, RETURN FOR SPRING IN TRICKY EFFECTS

By DIANA MERWIN (Associated Press Fashion Editor) PARIS (AP)—Dressy hats for the modern maid are as gay with flowers as grandmother's bonnet.

Floral trims, long banished from the hat picture, have come back to their own this spring.

The chapeaux, which Miss 1931 will wear for formal afternoon functions and informal evening affairs are bright with blooms, although the flowers generally are sparingly used.

There are close-fitting black caps finished with a band of geranium tinted roses, framing the face; these are black skull caps worn tilted to one side with a line of white or green gardenias nestling against the hair, and there are white berets encircled by blue and white hyacinth blooms.

Other close-fitting cap-like models are covered entirely with small bright flowers and worn with a nose veil.

The hats worn with street ensembles are simpler in effect, but more complicated in design. With these the brim, banished for the last two seasons, returns to indicate spring chic.

Gibson girl sailors with shallow round crowns and stiff brims will be smart with spring-tailored silk ensembles. They will be accompanied by bicorns, tricorns and chapeaux with intricately draped brims while dressy afternoon costumes will be worn with hats having brims of Merry Widow proportions.

The new hats, often combining two fabrics and colors, make the two sides of the head entirely different in silhouette. They are worn well back from the forehead on a diagonal line, high on one side.

A detachable brim makes this pert hat wearable day or night. Designed of pale rose georgette with matching flowers, it may be worn with the satin brim (left) to an afternoon tea, or without it to an evening theater party. It is by Germaine Gaby.

Lingerie Touches Enhance Femininity Of June Brides' 'Going-Away' Outfits

By DIANA MERWIN (Associated Press Fashion Editor) PARIS (AP)—Femininity is the fashion edict for the traveling costumes of June brides.

The "going-away" costumes designed for summer trousseaus are replete with unusual colors and lingerie touches which make them as feminine as roses.

A frock of soft crepe worn under a simple wool coat is the favorite traveling ensemble for the American bride.

A smart combination for the dark-haired girl is a noxhound crepe de chine frock finished with white and dark red incrustations, worn under a full length coat of oxblood wool designed with a fitted waistline and simple reverse collar.

For the blonde there is a silk crepe frock of an unusual green-black tint, made with three-quarter sleeves and finished with collar and cuffs of pale pink English eyelot embroidery. It is worn with a matching long coat with single pink gardenia tucked into the draped scarf collar.

The girl who embarks on a motor honeymoon may choose a suit of grey flannel barred in white, worn with a white dotted Swiss blouse and accompanied by a full length cape to protect it from dust.

And the bride who travels across the continent may entrain in a crepe de chine frock of dark blue designed with detachable white lingerie collar and cuffs worn with a simple collarless navy-blue wool coat.

Yellow beige is another fashionable color for bridal traveling costumes. One of the smartest consists of a yellow beige wool coat trimmed with leopard, worn over a yellow beige crepe de chine frock.

It is accompanied with a brown hat and gloves stitched in orange and yellow beige.

NATION'S YEARLY FOOD BILL IS TWENTY-THREE BILLIONS

Vast Sum Being Judiciously Spent By Women of America

Twenty-three billion dollars a year! That's a lot of money. And yet we women spend about that much every year for food alone.

It's no wonder to me that storekeepers and manufacturers alike try to win our good will.

And most of them try very sincerely, too. I think it is fairly wonderful the great improvements that have been made in selling food products during the last twenty-five years.

Clean, sanitary packages have replaced many bulk methods. New and attractive foods have been brought to us at very reasonable prices.

Every day, through advertising we are told of the merits and prices of good things to eat—and wise things to buy.

I have talked with hundreds of women about their menus, and frankly, I've been astonished to learn that nearly all housewives today know many, many times as much about wise eating as their mothers.

You know, it's supposed to be fine to talk about the "good things mother used to make." Why, I cared to any others.

honestly believe that the average woman sets a far better table—and, I know, a more beautiful one—than was ever done a generation or two ago.

Most manufacturers and retailers have helped us do this by advertising. And by giving us advertised products that we know are good.

But, of course, there are always a few less conscientious manufacturers—firms who want a part of the $23,000,000,000 we spend—but don't want to do much to get it.

These, often, are the folks who make unbranded, unadvertised merchandise and offer it as "just as good as the advertised product."

Usually, it isn't just as good as at all. Frequently, it is simply an inferior imitation of some popular brand on which the manufacturer hopes to make a big profit.

Thank goodness, very little of our food bill goes for such things. The women of this country have proved, beyond all question, that advertised products give them the best values—and they buy such products by the thousands.

Why, I cared to any others.

Journemen Bakers Win In Wage Dispute

FORT WORTH, Texas, May 14 (UP)—Journemen bakers here won their fight against a 29 per cent cut sought by fifteen master baker employers when a contract was signed with the Fort Worth Bakers Union for employment of 100 men for another year at the same wage scale.

The contract was signed Tuesday. Bakers announced they would walk out Wednesday morning if any slash was made in their pay.

DENTISTS CONVENE HOUSTON, May 14 (UP)—More than 500 Texas dentists and their ladies "got together" Tuesday night at the Rice hotel, closing the first day of their four-day annual convention with dancing and night club entertainment.

The reception and entertainment was sponsored by the Houston Dental Society.

Members of the Texas State Dental Society heard one of the profession's leading figures at its afternoon session yesterday. He is Dr. James Brady of Philadelphia, one of the national dental authorities here to address the convention.
