Wheeler Motor Co. Opening Saturday

Austin Building Completely Overhauled and Redecorated—Pitcock Is Manager

Announced for Saturday of this week, the Wheeler Chevrolet Co., Inc., is preparing for its formal opening and house-warming. For several weeks the L. C. Austin building, just south of the First National bank, has been in process of remodeling, renovation and preparation for the big opening. Thorough cleaning, new wall covering and paint worked a transformation in the structure to house Chevrolet sales and service, new and used cars. Austin has worked hard to bring the building up to a level comparable to the fine cars to be displayed therein.

If personnel may be used as a yardstick to forecast the success of an enterprise, then the Wheeler Chevrolet Co., Inc. is assured a glowing future. The men who assume responsibility for its progress are:

Homer Pitcock, manager; D. A. Hunt and Frank Buchanan, salesmen; E. C. Cecil, shop foreman, and Buster Clark, shop helper.

Pitcock is well informed on Panhandle conditions generally and of Wheeler county in particular. He is well known throughout this territory, having been engaged in the automobile business for several years. His genial disposition and cordiality, combined with wide experience in meeting the public, fits him for a managerial position.

Both Hunt and Buchanan have been residents of Wheeler for a number of years. They have been engaged in business of different kinds and have invariably acquitted themselves in a creditable manner, as well as commanding the respect and esteem of friends and acquaintances.

E. C. Cecil, shop foreman, is a stranger to Wheeler folks, but will soon gain a wide circle of acquaintances through his courteous and friendly attitude. He has been identified with the Chevrolet industry for 11 years, more recently in the Panhandle and Berger communities. He holds a high rating as mechanic, with extra knowledge of Chevrolet service.

Buster Clark, as shop helper, is a Wheeler boy known for his application to tasks entrusted to his care.

In announcing its opening for Saturday, in an advertisement on another page of The Times, the Wheeler Chevrolet Co., Inc., invites the public to visit the new agency. A complete line of passenger cars and trucks will be on display. Speaking of the approaching event, Pitcock declared: "We want the folks to come in and get acquainted, and see what we have to offer in new and used cars and service. We will be pleased to demonstrate the Chevrolet without any obligation whatever."

In its entirety, Saturday marks another step forward for Wheeler. The establishing of a car agency here, with the outlay involved by the new firm, definitely expresses faith in the town and community. Every citizen should, and likely will, feel if not actually extend congratulations to the Wheeler Chevrolet Co. and its personnel.

July Session County Court Jurors Named

Term Starts First Monday in the Month—Jury to Report on Tuesday Second Week

Meeting yesterday, the jury commissioners appointed at the January term of county court, selected petit jurors for the approaching July session, to start on the first Monday, July 6.

They are H. Briley, P. P. Corcoran, C. A. Dysart, H. B. Patterson, Wallace Robinson, A. M. Abernathy, Ed Henderson, A. H. Finley, Lewis Fleming.

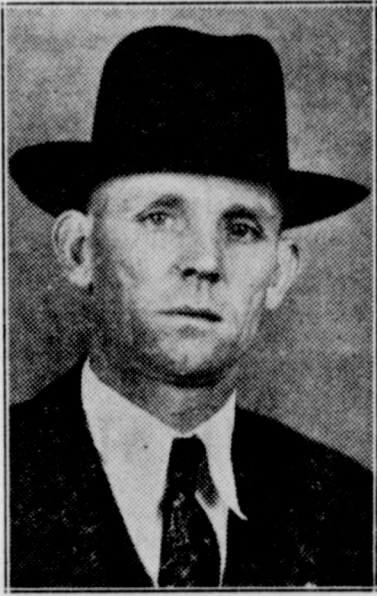

Sidney Johnston, C. F. Seago, Cabot Brannon, R. F. Douglas, Curtis Fuller, Less Handley, B. F. Holmes, Don Anglin and M. W. Burcham.

According to Miss Florence Merriam, assistant in the office of Dick Craig, county clerk, the above jurors are not required to report for duty until Tuesday of the second week. No jury cases are expected during the first week.

LOSE TOOLS IN PORTER OIL TEST WELL LATE WEDNESDAY

Drilling at a depth of 4,125 feet, a string of tools were lost in the Porter No. 1 oil test well south of town late Wednesday evening. It had not been learned late today whether or not they had been recovered and drilling resumed.

Candidate Farms

CLAUDE HILTBRUNNER

Because he is making a crop and has been kept busy in the fields, Claude Hiltbrunner who recently announced for sheriff, said today he had not been able to call on as many voters to date as he had hoped to. Hiltbrunner said he also realized most farmers were busy with their crops and did not wish to be disturbed. He said he plans to see as many voters as possible between now and election date, and to those whom he will be unable to see he wishes to assure you he will deeply appreciate any consideration you give his candidacy on July 25.

Minor Car Collision

About 9 o'clock, Wednesday evening, a car driven by Cicero Craig and one driven by Bill Owens collided on the pavement at the southeast corner of the square. Fortunately no one was hurt in the smash, but both cars were severely damaged.

Mobeetie Young Lady Passes Away Tuesday

Miss Fannie Belle Scribner Dies After Brief Illness—Funeral Rites Wednesday

IN MEMORY

Into our field the Reaper came, Calling this lovely flower by name; She bowed her head in submissive grace, For naught of fear bore she a trace. Jesus, the Christ, had shown the way— And she had followed steadfastly; Triumphant now, enrolled on high, Her spirit lives; she did not die.

Thus it may truly be said of Fannie Belle Scribner, who departed this life June 23, 1936, at 11:35 a. m.

Her beautiful Christian character, so strong and untiring, was an inspiration to all who knew her.

Fannie Belle Scribner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Scribner, was born at Mobeetie March 8, 1917, and spent all her life in Mobeetie, except to finish her high school work in the Wellington high school in 1934. She attended West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon in 1935-1936.

Ill only a few days, she passed away in a Wheeler hospital June 23, 1936, being 19 years, three months and seven days old.

She was converted and joined the Methodist church at the age of 19 years.

Survivors are her loving parents; one sister, Irvine; two brothers, Albert and Bud Carroll, and a host of other relatives.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. Edmund Kirby of Wheeler from the Methodist church at 3 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon. The large amount of beautiful floral offerings attested to the number of friends who mourned the passing of this beloved one.

Pall bearers were her cousins, Bill Bartram, Paul Powers, Jack Crump, Roy Fultz, Wilbur Sims, Dalton Scribner and Everette Sims.

Interment was in the Mobeetie cemetery, with D. A. Hunt of Wheeler in charge.

YOUNG SON OF HENRY MILLER SUSTAINS INJURIES IN FALL

S. D. Miller, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller narrowly escaped death and sustained serious injuries Monday evening when he fell from a scaffold while playing at the new house being built next door to the Miller home by C. H. Clay.

Examination at the hospital revealed a rib torn loose and undetermined internal injuries. The young man was resting well tonight, apparently out of danger from a very close call.

County Club Women to Camp Next Week

June 30-July 1 Dates Announced for Annual Picnic at Riley Swimming Pool

From the office of Miss Viola Jones, county home demonstrator, comes word that next Tuesday and Wednesday, June 30 and July 1, are the dates selected for the county home demonstration women's annual encampment. It will be held at Riley's swimming pool, south of Wheeler, again this year.

Each club plans to present an historical stunt, following the Centennial year celebration idea. Stunts will be judged by Miss Margaret Moser, home demonstration agent from Collingsworth county, and Miss Vera Martin, rural rehabilitation supervisor.

The club women are to assemble during the afternoon of June 30, bringing a can of water, picnic supper, bedding for the night, bathing suits (if they care for that sport), and supplies to cook breakfast.

Camp will break up Wednesday morning as soon as the group is ready to adjourn.

"We hope every club woman in Wheeler county will attend this outing," states Miss Jones, "and do as much to make it a success as our hostesses, Mrs. C. H. Riley and Mrs. Elmo Riley."

Carter Seeks Post as Justice of the Peace

Long-time Wheeler Resident Asks Election to Precinct Judgeship

The Times has been authorized to publish the following statement in behalf of Julius F. Carter in his candidacy for justice of the peace of precinct No. 1.

Carter has been a resident of Wheeler county for 31 years, coming from McCoy in Kaufman county, Texas, in 1905. For two years he and his family lived on a farm three and a half miles southeast of Wheeler, moving to town in 1907, and established his present home in 1908.

Carter has had considerable experience as an officer, serving as constable for four years, deputy sheriff of the county two years and deputy jailer two years; the latter position in 1927-28.

"I am now asking my friends to support me for the office of justice of the peace," stated Carter, "and will appreciate their votes and influence in my behalf."

NEW ICE CREAM PARLOR WILL OPEN HERE SOON

Arrangements have been made by J. E. Hill of McLean to open an ice cream parlor in Wheeler within the next few days. He has leased the middle room of the new Wiley block west of the post office and will occupy it as soon as decorations are completed. Hill has similar places at McLean and Shamrock.

Dougllass Speaker Here Saturday

Ralph Randel of Panhandle is scheduled to speak on the streets of Wheeler at 3:30 p. m., Saturday afternoon, in behalf of Curtis Dougllass, candidate for United States senator from the 31st district. Loud-speaker facilities will enable everyone to hear the address.

CANDIDATE GETS HONEY—STILL LOOKING FOR THE POLITICAL "BACON"

"Well," remarked a friend of J. R. Carver, candidate for tax assessor-collector, "Rube brought in the honey, and from indications he hopes to bring home the political bacon in the primary next month."

The observation was prompted by Carver's sharing—to a limited extent—in a horde of honey discovered in the Sweetwater school house, northeast of town, which is being torn down since consolidation of the district has been effected.

Compton and Wallace Pendleton, Herman and Herbert Whitener and Charlie Bradshaw are wrecking the school building. By careful strategy, Carver managed to get from them a wee sample which he brought to this office. The sample was brought in on a copy of The Wheeler Times that Carver had in his car. It isn't the first time, however, that something sweet and good has been found in The Times.

The sweet treasure amounted to some 15 or 20 pounds, it is said.

Girls' 4-H Clothing Contest Is Saturday

Two Divisions of Club Girls Will Display Work in District Court Room Meet

The girls' 4-H club clothing contest will be held in the district court room at Wheeler on Saturday, June 27, beginning at 1 o'clock, announces Miss Viola Jones, home demonstration agent. Two divisions of the girls will be established. All girls 12 years of age and under are to be classed as juniors. Those over 12 years compose the senior division.

Mrs. Gordon Whitener, home economics teacher in the Wheeler high school, and Miss Exie Creekmore, 1935 4-H club scholarship girl from Wheeler, will score the contest.

First prize in the senior division is a trip to Short Course. Mrs. J. H. Watts will select prizes for all other winners. A theatre party is offered the girls' club having the largest percentage of dresses on display according to membership.

Mrs. J. R. Jackson has been delegated the task of choosing prizes and having them ready for presentation to the 1935 4-H pantry demonstrators.

The general public is invited to attend this clothing contest, states Miss Jones, and view the handiwork of the girls.

Pioneer Celebration Declared Successful

Financial Returns Below Expectations—Huge Crowds Attend Rodeo On Both Days

Pronounced a success from the entertainment and interest standpoint, but somewhat deficient in its financial returns, promoters of the Pioneer Celebration held here Friday and Saturday of last week, are far from discouraged with the results. It is stated that with experience gained this year, improvements can be perfected by next season, that the event will be more widely known by then, and its sponsors anticipate much better returns. It was held under auspices of the American Legion post of Wheeler.

As indicated in the foregoing, present plans are to make of the celebration an annual affair, gradually expanding to provide accommodations for all comers.

The list of prize winners in rodeo events, as supplied by Dick Craig, follow:

First Day—Friday
Calf Roping—Lindsey Montgomery, first; Buck Standifer, second; Earl Moore, third.
Bulldogging—Jim Olson, Bill VanVactor, Ace Henson.
Steer Riding—Bill VanVactor, Jasbo Hester, Jack Obenhaus.
Bronk Riding—Jasbo Hester, Bruce Ross, Whitey Stewart.

Second Day—Saturday
Calf Roping—Buck Standifer, Bill VanVactor, Amy Gamblein.
Bulldogging—Dale Odainer, Bruce Ross, Jimmie Olson.
Steer Riding—Jack Obenhaus, Jimmie Olson, Whitey Stewart.
Bronk Riding—Whitey Stewart, Bruce Ross, Jasbo Hester.

The carnival, open all week in the city park, drew large crowds each evening.

FAMILY REUNION AND DINNER FOR VISITORS FROM GEORGIA

Mrs. C. N. Wofford gave a buffet dinner and family reunion in honor of her sister, Mrs. O. B. Wofford, and children, Mary Emma, Ormon B., Roy and James, of Atlanta, Ga., at the Wofford home on North Canadian street Monday evening.

Other relatives and friends attending were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Etter and sons, Pat and Earl B., Mr. and Mrs. W. M. McMurtry and son, Sam, all of Shamrock; Mrs. F. H. Hartzog, Mr. and Mrs. Gibson, John Crane, W. B. Wofford and son, Harry, Mr. and Mrs. Clint Wofford and daughter, Jerry Ann, Mrs. Inez Garrison and son, Harry, Deward, Earl and John Wofford and Miss Reba Wofford.

DISMISS MURDER CHARGE AGAINST SHAMROCK NEGRO

The hearing before County Judge Puett, held Wednesday, of Beatrice Craig, Shamrock negro, charged with murder of another negro woman in an altercation late Sunday evening, resulted in discharge of the accused. Liza Roberts was given as the name of the dead woman. She was allegedly slain with a knife after threatening advances on the accused. The defendant entered a plea of self-defense, but after the introduction of considerable testimony, the case was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Purveyer Enters Race for Representative

Wellington Young Man Places His Formal Announcement for District Office

E. C. Puryear has authorized the announcement of his candidacy for the office of representative of the 122nd district, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

E. C. PURYEAR

Mr. Puryear says that he is asking for the vote of the people on the following basis:

1. I promise, economy in government in so far as it does not curtail worthwhile functions such as schools, etc., and I will make an earnest effort to try to balance the budget in order that the state may not be constantly paying out more than it takes in, thereby piling up more indebtedness for the next generation.

2. I favor the payment of the Old Age Pension as voted by the people, and I believe it should be paid to all people who are eligible under the constitution and not to certain classes.

3. I promise that I will be your representative and that, if elected, that I will go to Austin with both hands and feet free, and that I will remember at all times that I am working for the people of my district and not for monied interests or powerful lobbies.

In all other matters I will do my best to try to represent you, with the interests of this section of Texas constantly in mind. I will appreciate your vote and your support and will do my best to justify your confidence.

Splendid Fight Card Here Tomorrow Night

Flood-lighted, Open-air Ring Offers Snappy Group of Numbers—Clark Arranges It

Sponsored by the local American Legion Post and arranged by Coach Bob Clark of the Wheeler school faculty, a splendid fight card, comprised of seven or more bouts, is promised followers of the sport here tomorrow night. A ring has been erected in front of the football field grandstand and here, under the floodlights in the open air—a place of comfort for contestants and spectators—will occur the bouts.

Clark, who is instructor at the Shamrock swimming pool for the present, discovered many of the fistic aspirants during a series of fights held here in the winter and spring. Himself an athlete much above the average, the Wheeler coach was quick to recognize real talent for ring work. Some of the best boxers of this region will appear on tomorrow night's card.

Among them is Cain, 140-pound youngster of Briscoe, who has never let an opponent stay with him two rounds. Another unconquered battler is Mills, 150-pounder of Shamrock. Sims of Wheeler and King of Twitty are also two that don't know what it is like to be on the canvas. Against these superior punchers, who furnished fans with thrills during the winter, have been matched fighters who likewise know how to "give and take it."

The complete boxing card is as follows: O. D. Conner, Wheeler (165) vs. Ross Mills, Shamrock (160), Max King, Twitty (145) vs. Pace, Briscoe (140), "Little" McIntyre, Shamrock (154) vs. Cain, Briscoe (140), Sims, Wheeler (145) vs. J. E. Shoemaker, Shamrock (155).

The above will be three one-minute rounds.

Bouts between colored boys will consist of four 2-minute rounds: Eddie Mack, Oklahoma City (160) vs. "Baldie" Twitty (145), Leon, Shamrock (160) vs. Island Brigham, Shamrock (160). Battle royal between five negro boys weighing 170 pounds each.

Misses Virgie and Alta Lamb of Corn Valley were week end guests of Geraldine and Patsy Williams.

Women's Club Gives Play Next Tuesday

B. & P. W. Sponsors Musical Comedy at Gym-Auditorium to Start Scholarship Fund

Rated as the biggest and best comedy ever to be staged in Wheeler, "Widows and What-Nots" will be presented at the local gym-auditorium Tuesday night, June 30, at 8:30 p. m. The play is sponsored by the Business and Professional Womens club of this city. The ladies are attempting to establish a students' scholarship fund for the benefit of Wheeler high school students unable to further their education.

This is a cause long neglected here and the club is to be commended upon its efforts to start such a fund.

"Widows and What-Nots" has been produced in some of the larger towns of the state and has proved an outstanding success. An unusual cast and ensemble will be seen in the production here. More than 50 local people, the best talent of the community, have been selected for parts in the show. Rehearsals have been in progress several days. Fifteen persons appear in the cast proper and 35 or more in the ensembles.

Some of the most beautiful girls in Wheeler are appearing in the choruses and are proving as capable as they are lovely. Special costumes and lighting effects will be used; also new hit songs are to be introduced.

"We can't let the public in on all the dope beforehand," confides a director of the production, "but as an example, some characters and details are mentioned as follows:

Bill Perrin and Gladys Gunter will play Mr. and Mrs. Brown, owners of the boarding house wherein the scenes of the play are laid. Mrs. Orchard, hard-boiled lady in charge of the house. Mrs. Melvin Howe is a scream as Alice, the strong-armed colored maid of the household. Four college students are aptly portrayed by Helen Green as Gloria, Anna Mae Puett as Frances, Joe Meek as Luhn and LaVeau Cole as Jack.

Mr. Houston, the leading man, is ably played by Taft Holloway; Brigham Young goes to town in the role of Wilbur Ashah Pendleton, colored peddler of powerful potions; Frank Buchanan, as Chitlins, negro flunky, warbles the catchy song "I see de New Bawn Shiek ob Araby." Mrs. Bill Perrin has the part of Widow Craig, who comes to town in hopes of marrying a millionaire and has her troubles when she mistakes Old Man Wallace for a wealthy man, decides she'll grab him and then falls in love with Mr. Houton, who she thinks is flat broke.

L. Darrel Gibson plays Mr. Wallace, the old bachelor who throws over his old girl friend, Blanche, the Widow Craig and then in turn is given the gate by the widow. Mrs. J. L. Gilmore is seen as Blanche, widowed daughter of Mrs. Orchard, and in love with Mr. Wallace. She is a regular Simon Legree until the college students hatch a plot that causes Mr. Wallace to "give her the air."

Many others, as previously mentioned, will help in producing an evening of entertainment and fun for a worth-while object.

Tickets are on sale at the drug stores and by B. & P. W. club members.

Allison Girl Making Name at Mary Hardin

From Belton, Texas, of recent date, comes the following special to The Times:

Miss Philo Mae Newsom of Allison is one of the freshmen at Mary Hardin-Baylor who is making a name for herself on the campus. She successfully passed the trials of initiation which the sophomore dealt out (nothing worse than a spoonful of Karo given for oil to blind-folded freshmen).

Then the junior class, traditional big sisters of the freshmen, held a training school to present to newcomers the traditions and ideals cherished by Mary Hardin-Baylor for all its 91 years. They also taught them the songs and yells of the college.

Miss Newsom, with other members of her class, is already making plans for Stunt Night, July 17.

Young Engineers Return Home

Demaris Holt and Jeff McCrohan returned Saturday evening from Los Angeles, Calif., where they attended Hemphill's diesel engineering school. They completed their course and received certificates and headed homeward Tuesday. Mr. Holt will be associated with his brother, Clarence Holt, on the Holt lease near Lefors for a while, and Mr. McCrohan will remain in Wheeler for the present.

CURTAINS!

Jim Jones lives out in the country, 20 miles from his office, and drives to work daily. The drive takes place largely on a modern highway, with the last few miles confined to busy streets.

The drive can be made safely in about 35 minutes. But Jim would feel ashamed of his record if he ever took that long. So, by "stepping on her" hard, he manages to make it in 25 minutes, and sometimes less. The other day, in fact, he did it in 22 minutes—a saving of 13 minutes over the time taken by more conservative pilots.

That saving of time is a great boon to Jim. It permits him to spend 10 or 15 minutes talking about golf to the boys at the cigar stand, or reading the funny papers. And the day he made his record he spent the saved time, plus quite a few minutes more, boasting about it.

Of course, Jim has to weave in and out of traffic occasionally, cursing the slowpokes who move along at a sedate 45. And sometimes he has to steal a right of way. Now and then he misses a crash by an inch, and after the first flush of nervousness passes, he chuckles to himself about what a good driver he is. Once he did have a minor accident, but the insurance company paid for that.

There are a good many thousands Jim Joneses driving cars in this country. They go on for years with nothing happening to them—and then the inevitable occurs.

LEARN TO SAY "NO"

Did you ever think what gullible suckers we voters are?

We know the stork doesn't bring babies. We know the magician doesn't really pick money out of the air. We know water doesn't run up hill. But we never seem to learn that political magic is no different from stage magic, except the price of admission is more.

A good politician can make us think he picks money out of the air just like a good magician. But while the politician holds our attention by promising to give us something for nothing but our vote, his hand is in our pockets taking out our money (taxes) to pay for his "gift."

Unless we learn to say "no" to the tempting "gifts" offered us, the political magicians will promise us a free trip to the moon with a golden chariot to ride in when we get there—but by the time we arrived, we

THE FARMER'S ADVENTURE

Every spring the farmers risk a bold and daring adventure. They put their seed into the ground, they devote unceasing labor and much money to cultivating it. Will they get any return?

In less enterprising countries, such people will plant only what they can utilize themselves. The American farmer is a business man who wants to take greater chances. So he sweats and pours out his money into the soil, and hopes for a just reward.

This act of faith has produced such abundant gains that the country is worried today, not because not enough is produced to feed our people, but because too much is grown. The farmer's bed is not one of roses. If he grows too little, his product is too small to support his family, while if he grows too much, the product is almost given away.

What the American farmer needs is the stopping of the importation of millions of dollars worth of agricultural products from other countries as now is being done. When from ten to twenty millions of people starve to death in a single year as has been the case in two or three countries, it would not appear that there could be any such thing as an over-production. It would seem to a country editor that there is something wrong with civilization that is not able to figure out proper and equitable distribution of food stuff.

—Lowell, Mich. Ledger.

STATESMANSHIP NEEDED

Seeing that our supreme court judges are clothed with such tremendous power, are responsible to no one, and hold office for life, should not our presidents use much more care in selecting them and the senate much more care in confirming them?

In selecting a supreme court justice just as in selecting a president of the United States it is absolutely imperative that America ask:

"What high qualities of statesmanship has he shown that we may trust him with such great power over our lives and liberties and property? Have his experience, training, education, and public utterances demonstrated that he understands and ever-changing social and economic problems confronting our people?"

"Does he know what farmers are up against? Does he know the needs of laborers in our shops, mines, and factories? Is he also fair to men of business and the professions? Is he constantly concerned about the welfare of women, children, and the American home? Does he know the special needs and problems of North, South, East and West?"

The supreme requirement for a supreme court justice today is not that he shall be learned in all the lore, the traditions, the technical principles of the law, essential as that is.

The supreme requirement is that he be a man of genuinely broad and profound statesmanship, including both a heart and head mastery of all the tremendous new social and economic forces of our twentieth century life. Without such a combined knowledge and sympathy he may become a blind Samson pulling down the whole temple of American government on our heads.—Clarence Poe in The Progressive Farmer.

FOR JUNE GRADUATES

Back of every business is a simple idea. How the railway express business grew from a carpet bag is a case in point. It begins with William F. Harnden, a New England railroad conductor. In 1839 he offered to carry packages for business men in New York and Boston. Travel was arduous and uncertain. Using his carpet bag, Harnden made the trip daily by stagecoach, steamboat, carriage and train, and eventually established what became the world's first express company.

His venture was opportune. The young nation was growing rapidly. Railroads were pushing westward. Transportation for men and goods was a need of the times.

Graduates of today may say there is no such opportunity today. Young men may have said the same thing in his day. But there is still great opportunity for the right kind of young minds in analyzing the trend of the times, and daring to risk their carefully planned opportunities.—Tulia Herald.

Our Exchanges

Items of interest culled from newspapers on The Times' exchange list.

The wheat continues to hold up in spite of the hot weather. Another half inch of rain would be acceptable. Harvest will not start for two weeks yet. The farmers are anxiously waiting for the time to arrive. A demand for hands to run tractors with which to plant row crops is giving employment to a number of men and boys who otherwise would be without work.—Miami Chief.

M. G. Koen, prominent farmer who lives east of town, plowed up an old cap and ball pistol last week. The old firearm was fully loaded, even to the caps being in place and each ball showing plainly in each chamber. However, the wooden part of the stock was gone. The old six-shooter was a .44 calibre and while pretty badly eaten by rust, is in fine condition for a museum piece.—McLean News.

An inhalator has been purchased by the City of Canadian for the fire department. It is an apparatus for resuscitating those whose lives are endangered as result of near drowning or other accidents. This apparatus will be placed at the disposal of not only the fire department, but also any physician in the city who may need it, Mayor Fisher says.—Canadian Record.

An itinerate magazine salesman stopped at a local hotel Monday night. Tuesday morning he reported to Deputy J. O. Newell that while he was at breakfast, another itinerate tossed his suitcase out the window, checked out of the hotel, recovered the case and nonchalantly "thumbed" a ride to Amarillo. Newell went to Amarillo and with local officers captured the 19-year-old boy on Highway 66 and returned him to jail here. The suitcase, along with a few unimportant personal items, contained the salesman's wooden leg!—Hereford Brand.

After a critical illness of several weeks, death came to Emory Anderson Sloan at his home here late Wednesday afternoon. He was 86 years, 3 months and 8 days old at his passing. Sloan was among the first cowpunchers coming from central Texas to the Matador ranch. He had a wide acquaintance with early ranchmen, having spent more than 50 years of his life on ranches. He has been a resident of Clarendon for some 30 years or more.—Donley County Leader.

Eugene Worley, fine young state representative from the district to our east, goes to the Democratic National convention as a delegate from Texas. He proposes to offer a resolution condemning the motion picture of Dr. Tugwell which has caused such a furore in the Panhandle. More power to Mr. Worley; but he will find conditions in the national convention harder to handle than in the legislature of Texas. Worley's resolution will probably be promptly squashed by the resolutions committee as a slap directed at the administration, and if offered from the floor will promptly be relegated to the waste paper basket. However, Panhandle folks are pleased that the national convention will be told by Panhandle people that the picture is objectionable, a libel on this section, and cannot possibly be of any benefit to the people of the nation.—Canyon News.

We are convinced that the Panhandle has one of the most healthful climates in the nation. If we were to relax in the Panhandle like people do in Florida, it would never be necessary to leave this country for a vacation and rest. People in this section seem so interested in their work that they will not let up while they are at home.—Dave Warren writing of a Florida trip, in the Panhandle Herald.

Announcement was made Friday morning that the Wellington Leader was awarded the Belo Cup as the best all-around weekly newspaper in Texas. The Leader was also given third place in regard to best set advertisement under 30 inches in size. The Leader was picked at the Texas Press association convention in Tyler.—Wellington Leader.

Construction of an auditorium building on the Pampa high school campus is expected to begin next Tuesday, following receipt of a work order this week. The job is a PWA project, will cost approximately $75,000 and the building will have a seating capacity of 1,250.—Pampa Press.

The Democrat each week chronicles the death of from one to four prominent Hall county citizens. The columns are seldom free of such sad news, and the thought that many sorrowing people will read the paper makes the task of publishing a bit harder to perform. Many of those whose deaths are chronicled are personal friends. Many are acquaintances, and some are unknown to the publishers.—Memphis Democrat.

Roping an eagle is not strictly in the line of duty for a cowboy, but it was rather profitable for Bruce Horner, who after displaying his catch on the streets of Clarendon Monday, sold the bird to a man for a pet. Horner, a cowboy of the Chenault Ranch, said he caught the young eagle after he had knocked it from the nest in a large cottonwood tree, ran after it on foot, then jumped on his horse and gave chase. He finally roped it some distance from the tree.—Clarendon News.

Wheat harvest in most areas of Floyd county has hit its peak, the first general cutting being in the vicinity of Dougherty and Sand Hill. Practically every community in the south half of the county, however, had combines going this mid-week. In the north part of the county the progress of the harvest has been a little slower, especially in the northwest area where the principal part of the acreage that will be harvested is under irrigation.—Floyd County Hesperian.

Encouraging Report from Highway Meet

Great Plains Association's Annual Session Reveals Progress—Wheeler Contributes

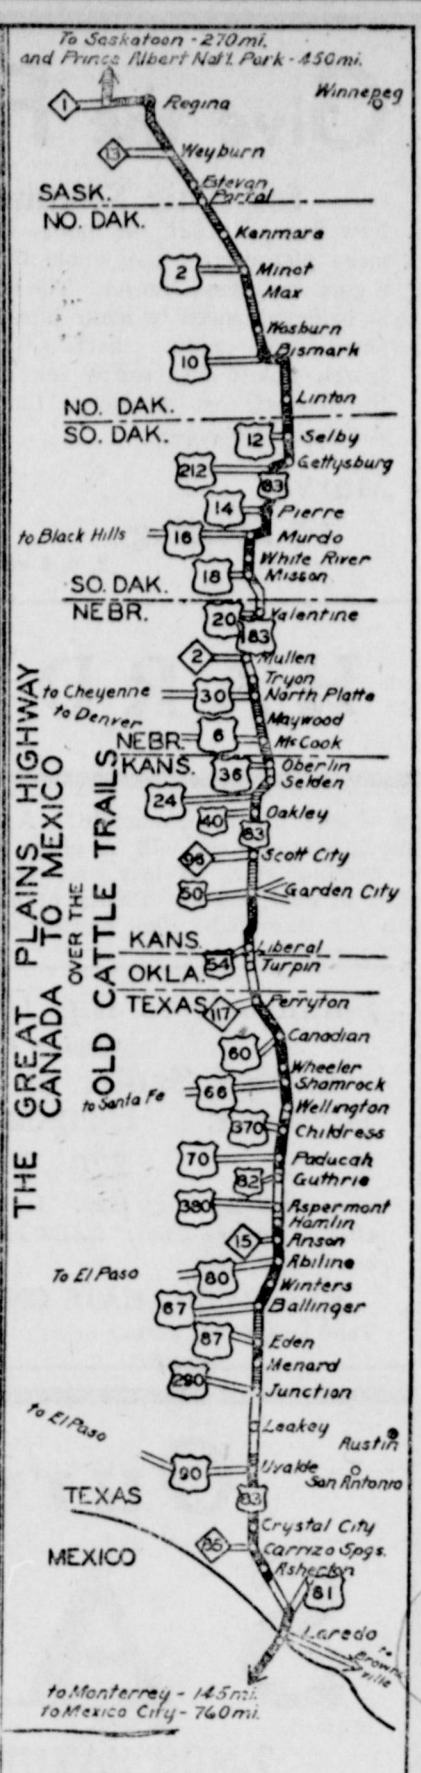

Under date of June 15 a report of the Great Plains Highway association's annual meeting held in North Platte, Nebr., on June 8 and 9, arrived too late for publication last week. It will be remembered that when solicited for funds to continue the drive to make the highway on which Wheeler is situated a north-south main thoroughfare from Canada to Old Mexico, local interests headed by the Lions club contributed this town's quota.

Unfortunately, no one could spare the time to attend from Wheeler, but next year with the meeting in Canadian, it will be easy for a large delegation to go.

The report, in part, is as follows: North Platte entertained about 65 delegates last week for the 12th Annual meeting of our association. We were sorry that because of various conflicts and the Republican convention, some of our delegates and speakers could not appear. We were disappointed by the lack of delegates from central and south Texas and the Dakotas, but Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma were well represented.

W. B. LaMaster of Perryton, Texas, reported that the highway south of Ballinger was now completed, that new oil mat was going in between Catarina and Laredo, that surfacing has been authorized north of Uvalde and would probably be completed in Collingsworth and parts of Ochiltree counties this year. A wire from our old member, Dr. Morrison, now a member of the Kansas Highway commission, stated that Kansas would complete the strip south of Oberlin, which would finish up the surfacing across Kansas. Reports from Oklahoma were that the grade was almost completed across the strip, and they had hopes for surfacing this year. Mr. Bowring also reported that he had recently met with the South Dakota commission at Pierre, and they were willing to finish off their last eight miles to the Nebraska line as soon as Nebraska would finish the 12 miles north of Valentine to the state line.

The financial report was a little

CENTENNIAL STORY

By MR. AND MRS. GEORGE CLOSE

"Just eight years ago we left the beautiful hills of West Virginia to make our home in the Texas Panhandle," wrote Mr. and Mrs. George Close in their story for the Centennial Farm and Home Beautification contest.

Mrs. Close continued: "I thought at first the wind would surely calm down soon but it hasn't yet for long at a time.

"My husband owned 400 acres of land here and wanted very much to live here if I could possibly stand it. Everything was so different—even the people—I felt sure I would never be content here. But we built a house, anyway; five rooms with bath and basement.

"Fixing and arranging our house took lots of our time and kept my mind off of 'back home' a lot.

"In the meantime I had joined the Lela Home Demonstration club which always has been more help to me than any other thing. For I didn't know very much at all about keeping house, as I had just gotten out of school and married. It is true I knew a few things about cooking and cleaning house and could almost sew a straight line. But I had never cut out a garment by myself. As I attended club I learned more all the time about home making, and Miss Jones was very willing to help me when I needed help.

"During the latter part of our second year we had an addition to our family, a boy. Also this year I started a pantry. I canned some beans and fruit. I could sew well enough by this time that I made most of the baby clothes. I was really learning to manage quite well when along came another baby boy to stay with us. It seemed after that that I couldn't get a thing done but cook and wash and clean house and care for those babies. However, I found time to attend club.

"The following year I was 4-H pantry demonstrator for our club. I took it in October when one of our members moved away. I won fourth place and was very proud of it. I canned 210 jars last fall and then in the winter I canned 60 jars of meat. I now have around 173 jars left in my pantry. We bought other canned vegetables with our cream and egg money.

"We now have 175 hens and get over 100 eggs per day. We bought 135 five-week-old pullets this spring.

"We have four milk cows and sell nearly two cans of cream a week.

"We never have to buy feed for our stock, as we raise plenty.

"We have worked hard the last three years and have managed to pay our taxes, buy a self knowledge library, an electric sweeper, a set of waterless cooking utensils and an Electrolux.

"Due to the depression, many of our plans failed. But some day we hope to have the most convenient and beautiful home in Wheeler county.

"The income from the farm from Sept. 1 to May is $1,433.16 for crops, dairy products, poultry, eggs and hogs sold. The expenses for dairy, chickens, hogs and farm living expenses is $834.53, leaving a profit of $498.63."

Voice of the People

MRS. BRODNAX WRITES

Sunday, June 21.

To The Times:

There is always something to be glad about if we take the time to hunt for it. I can truly say today I'm glad. I read in The Wheeler Times yesterday of friends and neighbors I never knew I had. Truly sorry they were worried about our welfare; will be glad if you will set them right.

Though to begin with, I'm not afflicted with rheumatism, nor anything else that I know of. True, I did lose the use of my right arm for about four months last fall and winter, but happy to say I learned to use my left one almost as well and regained the use of my other in time to care for my husband, two sons and daughter, who have been real sick for the past two months.

Please tell our unknown friends and neighbors the sick ones are convalescing nicely, thanks to Dr. Gaines, bless his old heart. We don't aim to wait until he dies to hand him some flowers. Life would have been dark to me, indeed, in the lonely watches of the night if it had not been for the knowledge that Dr. Gaines was standing by with willing hands and words of encouragement. He hasn't failed us in five years of trouble; he has given us all the aid we have asked or needed.

My son, Loyd, hired us a hand this week to help our baby boy work out our crop. It will be some time before the rest will be able to work, but I am glad to have them home again to "fuss at" and take care of.

Now I'm just a little old lady, weighing all of 90 pounds; have been knocked down lots of times, but never out, yet. As I said in the beginning, there is always something to be glad about—if you will learn to play the glad game.

Life is still full of fun. If you don't believe it, just come down some time and see me boss this bunch of cripples around. It's a new experience to me, and I get lots of kick out of it. My sons and sons-in-law call me "Hilda." Right name is Clomie Brodnax.

So I'll thank you in advance to tell my unknown neighbors we are all "oke doke."

Miss Virginia Wheeler and Cecil Perrin of Shamrock were Thursday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Perrin.

Movie Chatter

By a Rogue

Under Two Flags

Monday, Tuesday, June 29-30

This is a thrilling dramatic, romantic story of the French Foreign Legion in Africa. The drama of the dangers to which the Legionnaires are subject makes an alluring feature; a drama of love, jealousy and sacrifice. Cigarette, the darling of the Legion, played by Claudette Colbert, is exotic and infatuating. Ronald Colman and Victor McLaglin play exciting parts, riding hard and fighting hard across the desert sands. Excitement of the Legion in action packs a hefty punch. "Under Two Flags" is entertainment for any audience.

Chatterbox

Thursday, July 2

Ann Shirley and Philip Holmes put on a good show in "Chatterbox." And true to the name, Ann shows you she can really chatter. Very amusing, fine action and a good play. Fun for everybody. And added to this attraction is a Major Bowes comedy, the fourth of the series which has been showing at the local theatre.

Robin Hood of El Dorado

Friday, Saturday, June 26-27

This production is the biography of Joaquin Murieta, factual bandit but now regarded as one of California's most romantic semi-legendary heroes. This picture was filmed in the beautiful Sonora country, so why not sit comfortably in a cool place and see the beauties of California without burning and thirsting as you cross the desert in an automobile? And plenty of beauty and drama for among these scenes will be pictured everybody. Warner Baxter, star of an exciting story of love and hate, "Prisoner of Shark Island" and "Cisco Kid," makes another hit in this right against wrong. Plenty of action picture for those who like Westerns—

Wheeler County AGRICULTURAL News and Notes

By JAKE TARTER, County Agent
and
ERNEST GOULE, Asst. Co. Agt.

Farmers report wide infestation of web worms in Wheeler county the past few days. The web worm passes through the complete life cycle in about 52 hours and there have been as many as seven generations counted in different localities. To control the worms we recommend the following treatment:

Either paris green or white arsenic, 1½ pounds.

Builders lime, 1½ pounds.

Water, 50 gallons.

Calcium arsenate, 4 pounds.

Mix poison in about 4 gallons of water first, then mix this mixture with the other 45 gallons of water; keep the poison well stirred while spraying. It is very important to spray the plant where the worm feeds to get maximum results. We suggest that the plants infested be sprayed when the worms first appear in order to get the worms under control before too much damage is done.

We recommend the following treatment for grasshoppers:

Wheat bran, 12 pounds.

Paris green or crude arsenic, 8 ounces.

Lemon, juice and all, run through food chopper twice.

Molasses (black strap), 1 pint.

Water, 2 quarts.

Mix the bran and poison thoroughly, dry. Mix lemon, molasses and water thoroughly, then mix the above poison bran with lemon and molasses mixture thoroughly until even moist mixture. Put out late of evening and early of morning around fence and edge of pasture.

It is important that no livestock or poultry be permitted to eat any of the poisoned vegetation or poisoned grasshoppers, as they are poison and will kill anything that feeds on them.

SUMMER POULTRY HINTS

1. To secure most eggs in fall when prices are usually high, force the hens into early molt during June or July. This may be done by feeding only grain and keeping them on free range. Separate hens from the roosters where this has not already been done.

2. Do not wash dirty eggs. Clean with a damp cloth or steel wool; washing will cause them to go bad much more quickly than they otherwise would.

3. Hens must be provided with shade in some way if they are to do their best in summer. Trees, brush arbors, or anything that provides protection from the hot sun will be all right.

4. Caponize cockerels the latter part of June or July to get them ready for next year's Easter market. This is when they are usually in greatest demand, and they need 8 to 10 months to develop.

5. To produce quality eggs during summer carry out the following three simple rules: (a) keep eggs clean, (b) gather them three times per day, and (c) store in a cool place until ready to sell or use.—The Progressive Farmer.

Wheeler 4-H Club

The Wheeler 4-H club girls and their sponsor, Mrs. J. H. Watts, met in the club room at the court house Thursday morning to make plans for the encampment that will be held next month.

Wild shrubs and trees was the subject of the program.

Those present were Imogene Jamison, Eloise Keese, Lois Ficke, Mary Nell Burke, Silva Louise Ficke, Aline Buchanan, Orla Pearl Pugh, Alda Lee Coleman, Mary Helen Jones, Norma D. Robertson, Frances Noah, Frances Compary, Elsie Weeks, Elva Willard, Martha Jane Shipman, Ferrol Ficke, Helen Flynt, Mrs. J. H. Watts and Miss Viola Jones home demonstration agent.

Dixon 4-H Club

The Dixon 4-H club met June 22 in the home of Loraine Brown. Miss Jones was not present, so we worked on our club stunt for the encampment.

Those present and served dinner to were: Mable Alice Smith, Canna Faye Newman, Yvonne Burgess, Lois and Lola Meek, Syble and Tommie Cook, Loraine Brown and our sponsor, Mrs. Jim Selby.

The Mobeettie 4-H club met in the home of Laverne Dysart, June 23, at 9 a. m.

General call to order was gone through. Roll call was answered by each girl with "Why I like Texas Best," and the club work they had completed. The June Centennial program was on "Texas the Lone Star State."

Plans were discussed for going to the clothing contest and encampment.

ment. We then worked on some of our sewing.

Seven members and five visitors were present.

Briscoe 4-H Club Meets

"How Pioneer Women Blazed the Trails for Younger Women," was the subject which Miss Viola Jones, county home demonstrator, discussed before the Briscoe 4-H club girls June 15, in the club house.

Miss Jones, read a very interesting article telling how the pioneer women lived, and about their many hardships. They were brave, loyal and true or they wouldn't have attempted blazing those pioneer trails.

The program for the ice cream supper, which is to be held Friday night, June 26, was practiced. The encampment stunt was also decided upon.

Those present were: Betty and Joy Bill Riley, Fay Wilson, Clifferene Sivage, Delma Lee Satterfield, Oleta Dickerson, Mrs. Queenie Vise and Miss Viola Jones.—JOY BILL RILEY, Reporter.

By moving the back fence of the yard out 30 feet and sodding with grass, Imogene Purcell, yard demonstrator for the Lela 4-H club, has added a very desirable playground to their home.

She has also removed a dilapidated sun room from the side yard. From the front yard she has taken a rose bush, Bouncing Betty, chysanthemum and winter daisies and set them in the flower garden. Her clean-up campaign has added much to the attractiveness of the home.

Ripe berries are liked so well by the 63 Plymouth Rock chickens that belong to Dorothy Lamb, poultry co-operator for the Wheeler 4-H club, that she has to have a nice little pen and stucco poultry house to keep them out of mischief. Dorothy is a good co-operator in all her club goals. She has 11 trees and 7 shrubs out of the number she set this spring still living. She, with the help of her sister, has built protection for the flower beds so they will not be disturbed by the chickens. She has made a pair of pillow cases and has her dress for the clothing contest and club apron nearing completion.

Out of the 50 Rhode Island chickens that have been hatched by Viola Lamb, Wheeler 4-H club girl, only two have been lost. Twenty-eight of these are large enough to fry. Besides doing a good job raising chickens, Viola has set out 11 trees and 7 shrubs that are still living. She has made two pair pillow cases, two pillow tops and 1 cup towel. She has her dress for the clothing contest almost completed.

You can test your driving ability at the Warden Lawes Crime Prevention exhibit, at the Texas Centennial exposition, on instruments prepared by Harvard university. Without getting in a car you can find out how nearly perfect you are in all types of driving conditions.

PATTERNS OF WOLFPEN
By Harlan Hatcher
Illustrations by Oliver Myers

THE STORY
PRELUDE.—In 1785 Saul Pattern of Virginia came into the beautiful virgin country of the Big Sandy valley in Kentucky. Chief of the perils were the Shawnees, who sought to hold their lands from the ever-encroaching whites. From a huge pinnacle Saul gazed upon the flat bottoms and the endless acres of forest in its primeval quietude at the mouth of the Wolfpen, and felt an eagerness to possess it, declaring it a place fit for a man to LIVE in! Five years later he returned with Barton his fifteen-year-old son, and built a rude cabin in the hollow. For a time all was quiet. Then in Saul's absence the Indians attacked Barton and wounded him so badly Saul was forced to return with him to Virginia. In 1796, when it was reasonably safe, Saul returned with his family and a patent for 4,000 acres, this time to stay. He added to the cabin, planted crops and fattened his stock on the rich meadows. Soon other industrious settlers came and a settlement was established.

CHAPTER I.—A century later, in the spring of 1885, we find Cynthia Pattern of the fifth generation following Saul, perched on the pinnacle from which her great-great-grandfather had first viewed Wolfpen Bottoms. The valleys, heretofore untouched by the waves of change sweeping the Republic, are at last beginning to feel that restless surge. Her dad, Sparrel, and her brother, Jesse, Jasper and Abrial, have been busy converting the old water-wheel mill to steam power. Surrounded by neighbors, mostly skeptical, Sparrel's triumph is complete when the golden stream of meal pours forth at the turning on of the steam. Cynthia feels that something out of the past has been buried with Saul. Cynthia is a pretty and imaginative miss in her late teens, who often re-created Saul and her other forebears, and fancied them still living.

CHAPTER II.—Sparrel proudly brings home the first meal out of the steam mill, and Julia, his wife, is pleased. Generation after generation has added comforts and conveniences to Saul's homestead, and Sparrel has not shirked. He plans his spring work. Julia favors sending Cynthia to Pikeville institute. Sparrel does not fully agree.

CHAPTER III

The days were growing longer over Wolfpen Hollows. Cynthia spoke about it, watching the long shadows going before the blaze of sun into the timber earlier in the morning, and coming out later in the afternoon. She was in the fields for the planting. She loved to sense the changing moods of a day from the cool vigor of the early morning, through the slowed pace under the hot sun of noon, then the ebb and drowsiness of the first hour after dinner, the dreamy relaxation and fatigue in the afternoon, the tired joy of the end of day and the smell of the damp and plowed bottom-land as she walked back to the house through the dusk.

She liked best the long silence of the afternoon when the teams were scattered with her menfolk among the fields, near enough to be seen, far enough not to affect the moment around her. Then there was a whispering in the timber on one slope of the hollow, and an answering rustle from the opposite hillside. She thought of what the trees were saying and saw that the shadows which came silently out of the woods and hurried across the bottoms were the fingers of tulip trees which would soon be scattering honey-sweet brown dust from their bursting hearts' core.

The mood was different when she worked with some one, and at its best when she helped Jesse set out the sweet-potato plants. That time now came, and when toward three o'clock in the afternoon the sun was far enough toward the Pinnacle not to wither the plants, she went up to House Field where Jesse was building the ridges and leveling off the tops with a rake.

"Putting out the sweet-potato plants is about the best part of planting," she said, removing her shoes and letting her feet taste the soft warmth of the yielding ground.

They went to the hotbeds near the patch. They carefully pulled off the sturdy sprouts for planting and laid them roots down in a shallow basket. Then Cynthia dropped them at ten-inch intervals on the top of the ridge, and poured a gourd of water on their roots in the hole Jesse had made with his long fingers.

Cynthia filled the process with a delicate mystery, imagining that she was taking live people from dark beds where they were crowding one another to death, in the great cities she had read about, and giving them space to breathe in the sunlight and a place for their roots in the ground.

When they had done with the last row, and the sun had been behind the mountain so long a time that the dark was coming again, Jesse remained on his knees at the last plant, rubbing his hands and picking idly at the dirt on his nails. Cynthia was "Sure. Make it a whisky." They drank and commented on the spring weather. "Where you from?" the man asked. "Pittsburgh." "A feller could see you didn't come from no place about here. Where you headin' for?" "Pike County," Shellenberger said. "You goin' way up there? It's a long ways from here." "How's the best way to get up there?" "They ain't no best way, mister. They's only one way withouten you aim to walk. You take the C. & O. from here up to Richardson. That's as far as she goes. You ketch a boat up there and it takes you on up to Pike."

Shellenberger bought drinks again, and then went outside, following the main street back toward the hill to the railroad station. The Big Sandy train was crowded to the baggage car with curious men from the new towns and the mines up the river. They seemed to belong to a different face from Shellenberger—or Sparrel Pattern. Several of them were happily drunk.

Shellenberger in his neat gray tailored suit and polished shoes sat among them aloof but observing. After a while he sat by one who looked more intelligent, inquiring carefully about the work these men did, their wages, the number of surplus men who had wandered into the valley without a steady job. Many of them, he learned, belonged to the poor lower-river towns above Catlettsburg, where they picked up a few dollars around the mines.

The new railroad followed the Big Sandy back into the hills. Shellenberger sat by the window observing with particular interest the width and current of the river below him, appraising the rafts that were coming down from the timber-lands and the raftsmen who were straining mightily at the long oars to get the logs around the sharp bends without breaking up or grounding on the sand-bars. The train passed coal mines at whose base a depressing debris of hovels huddled darkly together. The hillsides, already deflowered of their timber, exposed naked ridges to the sun. Whole families of conventional hill type were out in the bottoms plowing and digging.

The railroad ended about fifty miles up the river at Richardson. Shellenberger and the remaining dozen passengers now got off and had lunch at the only restaurant before going down to the wharf. A half-hour after the train was in, the boat whistled for all those who were going on up the river.

"You're going on by boat?" Shellenberger asked of a tall black-hatted man tramping in long strides toward the wharf.

"Yes," Amos Barnes said. "We're right lucky to have a good boat stage. Takes longer by hack."

They walked on down to the log wharf.

"When is she due in Pikeville?" Shellenberger asked.

"Sometime tomorrow, if she's lucky. Pretty fast going, Catlettsburg to Pikeville in two days. That's traveling."

There was a score of passengers on the Fanny Freeze, all men save one, a travel-tired woman who sat with her baby on a chair on the upper deck mindless of the smoke. Some of the men idled about the narrow passageway, or leaned against the railing watching the families digging in the fields. Several gathered among the heap of freight on the lower foredeck. Shellenberger found Barnes sitting on a barrel of flour in the sunshine.

"Cinders ain't so apt to get in a man's eyes up front here," Barnes said.

"Yes, it's much better up here," Shellenberger answered. Shellenberger regarded Barnes, trying to take in all his dimensions. He was a large man in a dusty brown suit, the pants tight-fitting, hugging his knees, and squeezing down into a pair of straight black boots with brown ears to pull them on by. His sandy hair flared out from under a high crowned black hat and joined a flowing red beard which swept down from his ears to the fifth button on his vest.

Shellenberger filled his pipe leisurely. He could hear a young mountaineer describing his adventures on his first journey out of the hills.

"... I just give up that Catlettsburg was sure all afire and a-burnin' down the way everything was a-blazin' up like a brush heap in a clearin' and I yelled out to Taz, he was back at the tiller, Taz was, I says, 'Let's take and tie up, Taz, this dad-burned town's a-burnin' up!' And Taz he made a sight of fun outen me a-devil-in' me on account I'd slept clean a-past Catlettsburg and here we was already a-runnin' into Ashland where they got all them furnaces and things."

The laughter was frayed by the wind and carried back into the swirling smoke. "I suppose you've been down to Ashland or somewhere?" Shellenberger inquired.

"I rode the Greenup County circuit, and I'm going up to Pikeville to ride that circuit now."

"You are well acquainted with the upper Big Sandy then, I imagine?"

"I ought to be, brother. I've rid a sight of country in these parts in my day. I've rid about every single creek and holler."

Shellenberger spread out a map of the Big Sandy region.

"There's Catlettsburg at the mouth of the river. There's Louisa. And there's Richardson where we took the boat. That's Paintsville, there's the mouth of Gannon creek..."

"That's the mouth of Gannon we're just now passing," Barnes said, pointing to his left over a salt barrel.

"A man could float a good-sized raft down that stream. Is it that wide very far up?" Shellenberger asked.

"It's fifty to a hundred feet wide for a right smart piece up. I've rid the full length of it head to mouth many's the time."

"I understand there are some large tracts up in there, still held by the old original settlers. Is that right?" "That sure is right," Barnes said. "You couldn't find a finer lot of folks anywheres than along that creek. Some's been living there nigh on to a hundred years or so, wouldn't surprise me."

"Where'd you say we're at now?" "Right there. See? There's Gannon Fork running off there to the south. Here we are rounding that bend. There is Paintsville, Prestonsburg, there is Beaver creek going off to the southwest, and there's Pikeville, then the Breaks and the Virginia line."

"So you are well acquainted along that valley?" Shellenberger repeated. "About where is the Pattern property?"

"Well, now, let's see. The Harts would be about there, and, well, the Patterns would be just about there, near or far, I judge."

"It is a large tract, isn't it?"

"He's got a sight of land, I don't reckon he knows how much he has got. Clever man though, Sparrel Pattern is. He's got books and a deal of learning. He does doctoring. And his woman, there ain't a takeren woman on the creek than Julie Pattern."

While Cynthia and Jesse planted the last of the sweet-potato sprouts in House Field, the Fanny Freeze landed on the sharp bend at Prestonsburg and was tied up for the night to a big sycamore that shone yellow in the dusk. Toward noon of the next day, Shellenberger walked briskly down the gangplank at Pattern Landing. Barnes watched him go, saw him greet Nelson, Sparrel's grandson, and go up the bank by the wide path that lost itself in the willows.

Cynthia stood by the door to the kitchen in the evening listening for the live things on Wolfpen about to receive the dark.

"The days in the garden with the sun on your back are good days. They ought to go on and on forever. The evening always comes so fast when you've got things to set out. Then your body feels so good after work, just standing a minute before supper while another day goes out. A body can see the dark come in the same way you see the big hand of the clock move; you look away for the space of a little thought, and then when you look back again it has moved, or grown darker."

Jesse was coming in from Barn Hollow. He stopped at the beehives by the garden fence to straighten a rock under a corner of one of the boxes. Jasper and Abrial came up from the barn.

"How's the lambing?" Jesse asked. He poured out water in the pan on the wash rock.

"Thirty-eight lambs now, 14 pair twins," Abrial said. Jesse laughed at the way he said it. "There's Bible for it."

"That one young ewe is in some trouble," Jasper said.

"I feared that," Sparrel said. Cynthia felt a surge of pity for the poor ewe which was imperfectly equipped to bear the lamb she had conceived, and was now ruthlessly trapped in a snare whose purpose Cynthia could not fathom. There was a faint noise in the orchard path behind the house. Sparrel got up. The boys listened. Cynthia paused in the doorway. Julia came from the kitchen.

"It must be Nelson," Jesse said. Two men on muleback came from the path into the yard. Cynthia saw that it was Nelson and a stranger. She concentrated on the stranger whose features were obscure in the last of the daylight.

Sparrel welcomed the visitors from where he stood. "Howdy," he said in his deep voice. "Howdy, folks," Nelson said, still holding to the bridle of the mules. "I brought this feller over from the landing. He says he wants to see you, Grandpap."

"You're welcome," Sparrel said. "Come in." "Thank you, Mr. Pattern. My name is Shellenberger."

They shook hands. "These are my sons, Jasper, Jesse and Abrial."

"Howdy," the boys said, and shook hands one after the other. "My wife and daughter."

Shellenberger removed his hat and bowed.

Cynthia was taken by his bearing. "He's good-mannered; he says 'Missis' to mother, and he calls me 'Miss Pattern' and that sounds funny; nobody ever said that to me before."

"You are just in time for supper," Julia said politely. "It does smell like it, and it smells good," Shellenberger said.

From the end of the big table, Sparrel asked for the blessing of God upon the food before them. Shellenberger was making some rapid readjustments between what he had vaguely expected and what he actually saw. The log cabin of popular talk, filled with thin children and hounds holding soul and body together inadequately with corn bread and greasy bacon, had represented for him the four thousand square miles of the Kentucky mountains, and left him unprepared for Wolfpen Bottoms, with this big house, these people, and this table full of hickory flavored ham, candied sweet potatoes, mashed Irish potatoes, fluffy hot wheat biscuits, sweet yellow butter, and black honey tasting of clover blossoms and wild flowers.

"This is an unusual section of country up here, Mr. Pattern," Shellenberger observed.

"There's not a finer piece of country anywhere than right around here," Sparrel said.

The silences at the table were natural and unstrained, broken occasionally by Shellenberger's remarks and Sparrel's replies. Cynthia wondered what Jesse was thinking about this man who had so unexpectedly appeared at their supper table. How he changes the evening and the room! A minute ago it was just like it always is. Now it's—His hair has a bald spot and a cow-lick in it, and there is a funny ridge right above his eyes in his eyebrows and across between his eyes, and his nose is stumpy, and his eyes are deep in. He talks nice, but I don't believe I like him much.

Abrial seemed to be interested in him.

"Whereabouts do you come from?" Abrial suddenly asked.

"Well, I suppose I come from a great many places," Shellenberger answered. "I move around wherever my business takes me. I've just come from Pittsburgh to Catlettsburg on a boat, from there to Richardson on a train, and from there to your father's landing on a Sandy River boat."

"Pittsburgh is a long way off from here, ain't it? How long does it take to come from there?" "Most of three days."

"Why did you want to come way up here to Wolfpen?"

Shellenberger laughed, and Sparrel smiled at Abrial's serious and insistent questions.

"You mustn't pry into other people's affairs so, Abrial," Julia said.

"Not at all," Shellenberger said. "I wanted to see this fine country up in here, and see if we couldn't do some business with each other, your father and I."

They left the subject there during the rest of the meal. The men got up. The evening was balmy and they sat on the long banistered porch, looking down Wolfpen toward the black mass of Cranesnest Mountain.

"You have a big place here, Mr. Pattern."

"It's a good-sized place," Sparrel said. "My great-grandfather took up about five thousand acres when he came in here and it's been added to a right smart since, maybe another thousand."

"What do you do with all of that acreage?"

"Why, we have about 60 acres of good bottom-land in crops, a good deal in grass, and there's this part here with the house and garden and orchard; my two girls have farms on it, and the rest is just land to have around you to look at and hunt in. I hadn't thought much about what I did with it." Sparrel spoke slowly and clearly. Shellenberger noted the pleasant sound of the voice.

"Then you get all your income from 150 acres, let us say, and all the rest of the 6,000 lies idle and unproductive." Shellenberger balanced between question and assertion.

"Why, if you think of it like that, yes. Only land, at least a right smart of it, was made to just be there to be around a body and be looked at. I spend part of my time just looking at Cranesnest and the Pinnacle. They don't have to have any use only that."

Thompson Advocates Conservation of Oil

Chairman of Railroad Commission, Seeking Re-Election, Points to Achievements

The stable condition of the oil industry and the stopping of waste of Texas oil and gas resources were cited by Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the Railroad Commission, as proof of the wisdom of the commission's oil conservation policies.

Pointing out the huge amount of oil pays in taxes for support of Texas schools and other branches of the government, Thompson has strongly urged the conservation of Texas' oil resources and the prevention of waste of petroleum.

The permanent school fund of the state, he pointed out, has grown to $100,000,000 from oil revenues.

"It is only necessary that you be interested in the education of Texas school children to be interested in oil," Thompson declared in a recent address. "In the hands of our youngsters soon will rest the future of our state. Theirs is to be the torch. Oil today is paying a very large portion of the money that is necessary in maintaining our schools, and it is most important that this oil not be wasted and jeopardize the future of our schools."

Oil pays $37,500,000 of Texas' annual $150,000,000 tax bill, and it is under the railroad commission that the oil regulatory laws are administered.

Thompson cited the huge losses suffered by the state from the indiscriminate use and lack of conservation of soil and forestlands, but reminded citizens of the state that unlike soil and forests, which can be rebuilt and replanted, oil, once taken from the ground, can not be replaced by man.

The commission, he pointed out, has found that the best way to recover the maximum amount of oil from the sands and prevent physical waste is to take it out no faster than the gas or water, which create the pressure to force it from the ground, can refill the voids left by removal of the oil.

Since the railroad commission's conservation policies have been put into effect in East Texas, estimates of the ultimate recovery from the field have grown from two billion barrels to four billion barrels.

"This," said Thompson, "is 100 per cent return upon the investment of conservation."

Thompson's strong advocacy of and successful efforts for conservation of oil resources have gained him widespread support over the entire state, and friends from all quarters confidently have predicted his re-election to office this year by a large majority.

When Christianity Hung In the Balance

C. C. MERRITT, Pastor, Church of Christ

IT WAS the testing time. It was the crucial moment. It was "now or never" for Christianity.

No, the failure of Christianity to convert the whole world in these past 19 centuries does not disprove Christianity. The fact that the influence of Christianity in the so-called Christian nations has failed to bring about wholesale changes for the better, both socially and politically, does not warrant the laying down our claims for Christianity. Though the last Christian church in the world were closed and the last man had utterly rejected the Christ, even that would not be the balance in which Christianity hangs.

We must go back about two thousand years when a much greater crisis arose for that crucial test. It is this: Did Jesus Christ arise from the dead; or did he not?

One day the world contemplated His crucifixion. The next was an abysmal Saturday. The Light that had come into the world was hidden. The darkness of the rock-hewn tomb "shut His glories in." That was the day when the balance was closely watched. Not by His disciples, for they had not yet believed that He would rise from the dead. But the world that had crucified Him remembered that He had said, "On the third day I will rise again."

The day following that abysmal Saturday gave testimony to His disciples, enabling them to glory in the Resurrection.

After that fact was established for them, the words of Christ, "Thy sins are forgiven thee," rang in their hearts and thrilled them with joy.

Yes, He is risen and, therefore, God—"God manifested in the flesh" to die the substitutionary death for the sinner as the "Lamb slain" for the sins of the world. Truly, "on Him, Jehovah laid the iniquity of us all." "If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins."

We are living in a day in which a gospel as weak as water is being preached. What difference does it make to our contemporary Modernist whether Christ be raised or not? All he needs is the establishment of the facts that Christ did live and that He is the author of the greatest philosophy that has ever been introduced to man. He has no need of the atoning blood of Christ and, therefore, he needs no establishment of the Resurrection.

But the man who needs a Saviour God, the man who has sinned and looks to the heavenly Father for cleansing, for forgiveness; that man needs to know that the Resurrection was a scientific fact. I say "scientific" for when God does a thing it is scientific, whether it comes under man's definition of that term or not.

Happy will he be who is "able through the eye of faith to re-capture—and grasp its ineffable significance—quoting Chesterton, 'in the semblance of the gardener God walked again in the garden, in the cool not of the evening but the dawn.'" Yes, "very early in the morning, the first day of the week," he will be giving thought to that greatest of all events that proved Christianity and brought light and immortality to light. To him these are blessed words, "I am the Resurrection and the Life; he that believeth on Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die."

with this COOLER summer gasoline

Before the scorching sun turns your engine into a gas-eater... here is the simple, easy way to avoid overheating, knocking, and lost power.

Just fill the tank with Phillips 66 Poly Gas. That "conditions" your motor. Gives you first-hand proof of the hot weather benefits of this 100% custom-tailored gasoline.

It's the greatest summer motor fuel that Phillips has ever offered... because it is enriched with extra energy units by the scientific POLYmerization process... and accurately matched to your climate, besides!

Phillips 66 Poly Gas actually anticipates the changes in your weather. Every gallon you buy is a localized gasoline, engineered to your temperature requirements as determined by U. S. Weather Bureau standards.

It is not merely a summer gasoline; this month it is actually a June gas. Next month it will be a July gas. As different every month as the weather differs from month to month.

Try a tankful of this cooler, finer, summer gasoline. You get sweeter running. You get extra power and added flexibility. You get increased mileage. And a real bargain, too, because you can Phillip-up with Phillips at no additional cost.

High, Wide and Handsome

Any old port in a storm, but this cowboy is doing his best to stay put on the hurricane deck of a wild bronk. Scenes like this will be common during the Anvil Park Rodeo at Canadian which gets under way next Thursday, July 2nd.

Classy Stock Secured for Anvil Park Rodeo

Management of Canadian's Annual Event Has Spent Years at Choosing Animals

Canadian, Texas, June 24.—There will be approximately 250 head of livestock consisting of horses, cows, calves, Brahma steers and Mexican bull-dogging steers rounded up for the 14th Annual Anvil Park Rodeo, held here July 2-4.

Marion McLain of Sun City, Kansas, who is the arena boss this year, guarantees that this year's show will be faster and more thrilling than ever. With six fast bucking chutes, steers and bronks are literally going to be poured out.

The rodeo committee has been selecting stock for the last month in order that it have the right type. It has to go to old Mexico for the bull-dogging steers, and south Texas for the Brahma riding steers. The entire Panhandle is combed for bucking horses at all seasons of the year. Twenty-five head of long horned Mexican steers came right out of Old Mexico and will be on hand for the doggin' contest. These steers are going to be plenty fast and many of the hungry loops of the cowboys are going to be "leaky" before this event is over.

Brahma calves used in the calf roping contest are raised right on the ranch where the rodeo is held.

The directors of the show own the bucking horses and have scouts in the field the year round selecting the proper type. About one out of ten is accepted of those submitted. These horses have to come up to rigid requirements to make good at the Anvil Park Rodeo.

There will be horses and then some. Just a few words about some of this horse flesh. "Crazy Boy" is probably the oiliest bronk of this entire lot. He hasn't been in the game long, but has a good many cowboys to his credit, that have "bit the dust." "Burl K," "Davis Y," "Black Bottom," "Tony Warface," and others usually give a good account of themselves.

The management has been since 1922 selecting these bucking horses, some of which make good, and others that have to be weeded out of the string from time to time. They are looking for the toughest horses available. The average weight of this herd will be from 1,000 to 1,200 pounds. In looking over this string you might think that they are saddle horses but you will change your mind when they unwind.

Lumber Yard Manager Seeks Colorado Gold

Birl Hight, new manager of the Woodbridge company lumber yard here, left the first of the week for Eagle, Colo., to visit his family and assist his son, Edwin Earl, in preparations to investigate the possibility of profitable gold mining operations on a claim in that vicinity. Hight is expected to return here tonight.

During his absence, G. C. Austin of Shamrock has been in charge at the local yard.

Mrs. Lula Canutt and son of Hollis, Okla., were Sunday guests of W. H. Scott.

Mrs. L. D. Smith and two children of Mobeetie spent Wednesday night and Thursday of last week with her father, W. H. Scott.

Club Council Meet Held Here Saturday

Transplanting Discussed by Miss Riley—Program Outlined and Committees Named

"If you take a plant from low, moist soil and transplant to a high, dry location you are apt to be disappointed with the results," said Miss Tamsey Riley of Briscoe to a group of council members Saturday, June 20, in the club rooms at the court house.

Continuing, Miss Riley said to re-set plants under the same conditions as they were found as nearly as possible. Find the plants while in bloom and mark them so you may be sure of getting the right one later—and transplant them while the plants are dormant.

Miss Riley said cuttings rooted better in sand, as there was no decaying matter in sand, but were hard to remove from container for re-setting. To overcome this difficulty, mix a little grass through the sand; slip a knife around edge of container, slanting knife a little toward bottom to remove plant for transplanting.

Three-sided, bottomless boxes made of cardboard large enough to hold one cutting, was also demonstrated by Miss Riley. Place these small boxes, filled with sand and containing one cutting, in a large wooden box. When cuttings are ready for transplanting remove one side of wooden box and gently lift out plants, boxes and all. Set in desired place; Cardboard will soon decay.

Council voted the following measures:

Annual encampment to be at Riley's swimming pool June 30 to July 1. To secure reservations for club delegates at Dallas Centennial, to be used on the return trip from Short Course.

To set council meeting time up to 3:00 o'clock for the duration of the summer.

Mrs. Jim Trout, chairman, appointed the following committees: Mrs. J. R. Jackson and Mrs. J. H. ## Committeemen Listed for Primary in July

Most of Democratic Precinct Heads Chosen in 1934—Several Vacancies Filled

Names of precinct committeemen who will officiate in the approaching party primary on Saturday, July 25, was announced this week by A. B. Crump, county Democratic chairman. Most of these precinct heads were elected in the 1934 primary, the same procedure to be followed again this year for two years hence.

Due to various causes, five vacancies had occurred during the past two years. These have been filled by the county committee and are preceded by a star in the following list. Chairman Crump has been empowered to fill by appointment any vacancies occurring between now and election date.

Given below, in their order, will be found the precinct number and name, the number of registered voters, the committeemen and their addresses. "Unders," those becoming of age and registered since Jan. 1, 1936, are included in the figures. "Overs," of which no legal record is kept, are not included.

GIRL SCOUTS WORK ON SIGNALING IN TUESDAY MEET

The Junior Girl Scouts met Tuesday evening at the regular time and meeting place. The afternoon was spent working on the signaling tests.

Each girl selected a flower to study and report on to the entire group; this is a requirement for second class work.

At the last meeting, Miss Marilyn Wiley showed the girls how to carve soap; the articles carved will be on display in a down town window soon.

The Girl Scouts are selling the official Centennial badges; they will see you Saturday, so be sure to plan to buy one, as they will make very good souvenirs, and they will be worn throughout the state during all this year.

HUBBARD AND VEALE NOW IN CHARGE OF SERVICE STATION

After several changes of management during the past few weeks the gasoline service station in a building belonging to C. H. Clay at the southeast corner of the square, now appears to be in the hands of a couple of young fellows who will make a success of it.

Milton Hubbard and Tucker Veale are associated in operating the place and have given it the name of Super-Service Station. They are handling Magnolia gasoline, oils and greases.

TOWNSEND CLUB PLANS PICNIC EARLY IN JULY

Meeting in regular session Monday evening of this week on the court house lawn, the local Townsend club discussed future plans. Among other things, a picnic on Sunday, July 12, in the city park was considered.

Next regular meeting will be Monday evening, July 6.

Several members of the Wheeler club expect to attend a meeting of the McLean club tomorrow night.

Sadler Show at Shamrock

Harley Sadler announces a three-day engagement of himself and his own company at Shamrock, starting Monday night. The Sadler organization, in its tent theatre beautiful, offers new plays, history, drama, comedy, romance—music and vaudeville. A group of 40 people is advertised as composing the aggregation.

Mrs. T. P. Morton has been quite ill since Tuesday noon.
