Perkins Finds Ship Voyage Interesting

(Editor's Note: Joseph M. Perkins, well known Eastland citizen, is sailing from New Orleans to Casa Blanca, Africa. His story of the trip will appear in a series of articles in the Telegram, beginning with this article.)

By JOSEPH M. PERKINS

The Norman Lykes finally cast off from the Army Base Docks in New Orleans at 8:10 last night, five days after the scheduled sailing date. With a river pilot on the bridge and a tug to turn the ship about we started down the river on a warm, clear, moonlight night. For the first hour we passed between bright lights on both shores but after that the navigation beacons and channel markers were the principal lights to be seen. Late in the evening we smelled sulphur as we passed the Freeport Sulphur plant in the swamps of South Louisiana.

This morning is warm and sunny and life on board is pleasant indeed. The ship is making 17 knots, or about 20 miles per hour, across the Gulf of Mexico in a calm sea. This is fairly rapid progress for a freighter, but I think any able bodied gull flying with one wing folded, could keep up with us. This ship was built 15 years ago, is 492 feet long, 68 feet wide. It carries fresh water in tanks to last 10 days, using 100 tons daily. It also has an evaporating machine which converts seawater to fresh water but the cost of running it is rather high and it is used only when the supply of water in the tanks is low.

Yesterday it was interesting to watch the loading of cargo into the five hatches, three forward and two aft. Heavy steel boxes of food and supplies for our Air Force in Casablanca were lifted from the wharf and swung into the open hatches with the greatest skill. Below deck they were skidded into position by a small tractor that also was deposited in the hold. After the cargo was all loaded three thicknesses of canvass were battened down over the hatches, being fastened around the sides with steel bands which were lightly wedged against the canvass with wooden wedges driven in tightly with a heavy hammer. No matter how rough the sea may be, no water can get below decks through the cargo hatches.

Sunday, Feb. 7

All day yesterday we cruised around the tip of Florida and then up along the east coast, keeping in the Gulf Stream about 20 miles off shore. Riding to Gulf Stream we were able to increase the speed of our progress to about 21 knots. During the day we overtook and passed several ships, mostly all tankers, headed north. In the distance we could see other ships on their southward ship lane nearer shore where their progress is not impeded by the Gulf Stream. About midnight our northward course ended at a point nearly opposite Vero Beach, Florida, and our present course is a great circle that is generally east to Casa Blanca.

Ever since leaving the Mississippi Delta I have watched four sea-gulls that have been following this ship, flying in circles overhead, sometimes behind us. After each meal has been served the table scraps are dumped overboard and the gulls have a feast. I have been thinking of them as the "Faithful Four" as they have followed day after day. This morning I was on deck and happened to see the cook's helper dump the garbage overboard and I was amazed to see not four but thirteen gulls swoop down and fight over the food. From now on I shall regard the gulls not as "Faithful Four" but collectively as the "Following Feathers".

Wednesday, Feb. 10

Four of us were given a tour of the engine room. The chief engineer showed us what makes the ship go—oil fired marine boilers, a steam driven turbine, gear-box, and a solid 20 inch drive shaft that turns the 21 foot propeller at 80 revolutions per minute. It was all very complicated and impressive. We were also shown the food lockers where the meats, fish and vegetables are kept, a several weeks supply in cold storage.

The food is varied and good. The dining room has seven tables each seating four. The ship's officers and the passengers eat together. The crew eats the same kind of food in another

Local Girl Chosen to Appear On Television

A 17-year-old Eastland High School senior will appear on a national television show Tuesday, March 8.

Ina Hunt has been chosen to participate on the "About Faces" show in Hollywood. Ben Alexander of "Sgt. Frank Smith" fame is master of ceremonies of the show.

Ina is to leave today for Hollywood, accompanied by Mrs. Allen D. Dabney. They will motor to Dallas and fly from Dallas to California via jet airliner. The TV show will pay all expenses.

Altman's and Harelk's have furnished Miss Hunt with a complete wardrobe and Mildred's Beauty Salon furnished her hair styling.

Ina is an honor student at Eastland High. She was chosen after a group of Eastland business and professional men wrote the director of the program asking that she be considered. James Dabney organized the efforts.

The EHS student holds down three jobs to help support herself and her 15-year-old brother. She works at Moderne Studios for two hours each afternoon, then works at the Dairy King or the Hotel Coffee Shop until late at night. In addition, she works in the school lunch room at noon.

The show will be video-taped Tuesday and will be shown over the ABC network the following Tuesday, March 8 on Channel 8.

Miss Hunt was chosen because of her determination to work her way through school and maintain high grades despite hardships and long hours, a studio spokesman said.

Rhodes' Roundup

By Oran Wayne Rhodes

Hello Again!

It looks like I'm running behind schedule in everything this week. The snow came and much to everyone's relief, school turned out for a brief vacation. There have been quite a few happenings around school this past week and it looks as if everyone will be very busy for the next few weeks.

Last Friday morning the Eastland band gave a concert to the student body of the Eastland schools. They played several conventional numbers and then they played some popular songs. The band sounded very good and if that is a taste of their March concert, I know that I certainly don't want to miss it and I certainly urge everyone to be sure to hear the fast improving band at this opportunity. As you know, the band has been trying to raise enough money to buy new uniforms for next year. The students of E.H.S. are proud of their band and they, as well as the band, urge you to give your support and wish to thank those that have helped in this present drive.

The senior girls of E.H.S. made the proclamation last Friday that this past week and next week would be twirp week at Eastland High School. This is the time of year that the girls take over the dating situation and ask the boys. The girls furnish the car, unless arrangements are made, furnish the money, and make all the decisions. The boys are especially leary of twirp week this year since it is leap year. Putting the shoe on the other foot will perhaps make both boys and girls more respectful of the other's troubles.

Curtis Baker, the director of the school plays for this year was set to the hard task this past week of choosing the play casts for the junior and senior plays.

For the junior play "The Girl Next Door," which will be put on sometime in March, the following people were chosen: Suzanne Butler, Alice Frazer, Carroll Garner, Karen Taylor, Mickey Garner, Tony Jordan, Bill Moyland and Roger Taylor.

For the senior play, which will be put on in April, these people were chosen as the cast: Gerry Haynes, Linda Huckabay, Beverly Moser, Jan Robertson, Charlotte Vaught, Marvin Agnew.

I just received word concerning the all district girls basketball team. Congratulations to Judy Seaberry for making first team all district forward and to Judy McMillian for making the second team at guard. It is very pleasing to see these two girls make the district teams since it is the first time in years that Eastland has placed a girl on any of the district teams.

Judy Seaberry is a freshman this year. She played basketball in junior high last year. This year she was a starting forward on the basketball team. She plays tennis and volleyball. She is a member of the Double Seven Club. Since Judy is only a freshman, we will be expecting great things from her in the future, hoping not to be disappointed as we have by a few things in the past.

Judy McMillian, a sophomore, had played two years of high school basketball. We certainly will look forward to seeing Judy play next year, with another year of experience. Judy also plays volleyball and is a member of the Socialists.

These two girls making these teams certainly does not take away from the rest of the team. As in almost all team sports, they couldn't have done quite so good a job if they hadn't had some help. As I have said many times, I am certainly looking forward to seeing this team play next year.

I have almost run out of wind, so I suppose that finishes it up for another week. See you around.

Rising Star Teacher Has Book On Home Economics Published by U. S.

Masters degree research by two North Texas State College home economics graduates is reported in a survey of outstanding contributions to the improvement of college home economics programs just published by the U. S. Office of Education.

The studies are those of Mrs. Billie Hopper Nowlin, now a teacher at Rising Star, and Mrs. Patsy Taylor Wilson, a Rankin teacher.

The work is summarized in the new 144-page book, "Studies on the teaching of Home Economics in Colleges and Universities, 1955-56."

Mrs. Nowlin and Mrs. Wilson received master of science degrees in home economics education from NTSC in 1956. Their research was supervised by Dr. Editha Luecke.

Purpose of the publication is to make readily available findings and techniques from home economics studies which have implications for the improvement of college programs.

State committees appointed by state supervisors of home economics reviewed graduate studies in their states and recommended them for consideration by the office of Education.

The final report is based on 52 of these studies selected from 25 schools in the United States. NTSC is the only Texas institution represented in the list and is one of 11 in the country from which more than one study was selected for inclusion in the book.

Reports of the two Texans appear in a section dealing with predicting professional success in home economics.

Mrs. Nowlin's primary purpose was to classify home economics courses into aptitude areas and to find out what relationship existed between these areas and the areas of the differential aptitude test.

She analyzed the records of 75 home economics education majors who graduated from NTSC between 1952-1955.

Instructors teaching the 22 required home economics courses analyzed and classified them as to the proportion of the course content requiring any one of the eight aptitudes measured by the differential aptitude test.

Mrs. Nowlin found highly significant statistical correlations between success in the courses and aptitude scores in verbal reasoning, numerical ability, abstract reasoning, and sentence aptitudes. Significant relationship occurred in mechanical reasoning and in clerical speed and accuracy.

Mrs. Wilson's study analyzed the extent to which the success of home economics teachers could be predicted by their scores on interest and personality tests. She used data from the records of 44 homemaking teachers.

A comparison was made between an 18-item rating scale checked by the teacher's school administrator and her scores on an interest and a personality test.

Mrs. Wilson found significant correlations between 10 of the 18 items and one of the characteristics of professional interest, agreeableness, objectivity, and cooperativeness.

Here's Your Chance To Help EHS Have A 70-Piece Band

Eastland fans have been thrilled this year at the great improvement shown in the high school band. The wonderful thing about the band is that it is composed of younger students. Students who for the main part will return next year, the year after that, and the year after that. In fact, Eastland High will field a 70-piece band next year. IF...

You are the one who will have to answer that big IF. For the EHS band must have new uniforms (There aren't 70 uniforms of any sort) before next year. The Telegram feels this is important enough to donate this ad. We think you will feel it is important enough to help to. Pictures of the proposed two-uniforms-in-one are shown above. There are 70 squares below. Each square represents a prospective band member. You can put a uniform on a member for $79.20. Note the squares already checked off which have the Band Boosters signature in them. The Boosters have already raised enough money to buy that many uniforms. Will you put your name in one of the squares and put a bandsman on the field for your school next year. Send your check today to the Band Boosters Club, Box 29, Eastland. (If you can't give $79.20 join a friend and buy a uniform together).

A large grid of 70 squares for band member sign-ups, with names and signatures in some of the cells.

Mrs. Perkins-

dining room at a lower level. One kitchen cooks for all—our food arrives at a small pantry by dumb waiter from below. At breakfast, eggs, toast and cereals are prepared in our pantry. It is well stocked with milk, breads, crackers, meat and cookies.
Passengers and officers are free to wander in and prepare what they wish before retiring, a privilege well exercised late each evening. Bowls of grapes oranges and apples appear then too.
A privilege that I enjoy is the freedom of the navigating bridge and chart room where I go daily to talk with the officers, check my watch with the ship's clock and get the latest weather report. We are now in the mid-Atlantic and seldom see another ship. The passengers all have plans for the weeks ahead. Two couples are going on board and enjoy the Mediterranean and return to New Orleans on this ship. The Danish couple from Houston, with their own car on board, plan to tour southern Europe during the cold weeks and then drive north to their former home in Denmark. My cabin mate will tour Italy and Spain and plans to find a comfortable spot and stay there two or three months (He is an engineer from California). The young mother and her three nice youngsters leave the boat at Casa Blanca.
Monday, Feb. 15
Yesterday was rainy and we did not see the sun. At night the ship rocked and we rolled in our bunks. Everything in our cabin is fastened to the floor except a chair and wastebasket. These we wedged between the writing desk and a bunk.
One of the services available to officers and passengers is the use of a washing machine, hot and cold water and soap. It is not uncommon to see a line fastened across a corner of the deck with clothing blowing in the breeze.
The ship's course takes us south of the Azores and north of Madeira and while between these we encountered several large schools of porpoises. These graceful and intelligent sea dwelling animals are quite remarkable. According to our Chief Mate they average about six feet in length, swim 70 miles per hour, and are great shark killers. They find sport in hunting in a pack and no shark can survive their attack, for they are armed with a long, sharp frontal spear. They live at the surface of the sea and must have fresh air at frequent intervals. Their young are born directly from the mother instead of hatching from eggs, and the young ones, two feet long, are seen in company with the adults.
We are now about 300 miles from Casa Blanca and on the Cargo deck there is great activity. Heavy pulley blocks are being fastened to the booms and the wire hoisting cables are being treated to a nasty black grease to enable them to slither gracefully over the pulleys. Rope and tackle is being readied for tomorrow's unloading. The ship's engines have been kept at full speed ever since we left the Mississippi River and with unusually fine weather on the southern Atlantic crossing the captain hopes to reach our first African port a full day ahead of schedule.
Tuesday, Feb. 16
We are at anchor awaiting a berth at the docks which are fully occupied at the moment. The city looks quiet modern with several high office buildings I will report more fully in a later letter. Greetings to all.

Christian Science

Christ Jesus' inspiring mission of healing and redemption will be the central topic at Christian Science church services this Sunday.
The Lesson-Sermon entitled "Christ Jesus" will include this passage from John (10:37,38): "If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not. But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the works: that ye may know, and believe, that the Father is in me, and I in him."
And from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, this citation will be read (28:14): "Divine Truth, Life, and Love gave Jesus authority over sin, sickness, and death. His mission was to reveal the Science of celestial being, to prove what God is and what He does for man."

It's Our Move

Yes, the carpenters are going to move in and we've got to move out! A complete remodeling of the bank building is due to begin MARCH 7.

This is the way we go...
Our temporary headquarters will be 108 East Commerce
(Next door to Texas Electric Service Co.)

Saturday and Sunday, March 5 and 6, we're going to be real busy moving to the building formerly used by Hollywood-Maxwell, next door to Texas Electric Service Co. The construction men tell us it will take three months to complete all the work they have to do to the interior of our building, so we decided that rather than put our customers to the task of dodging under ladders and trying to stay out of wet paint we would move across the street during that period.

We will still have all the banking facilities that we have now, but we must admit that they will not be quite as nice as you are used to. We think that you will be proud of your new bank building when it is completed, and we do want you to know in advance that we are sorry for any inconvenience we may cause you. Look for more details of our move in the near future in this newspaper.
