Jaycees Get Advice: No Job Is too Large

Charter Banquet Success for Club

The Junior Chamber of Commerce doesn't try to build communities, Dick Wadsworth, state Jaycee president, told some 200 attentive listeners Tuesday night at the Eastland Jaycee's Charter Night banquet, "it builds men, and it is men and women who build communities."

Wadsworth talk came as a highlight of the banquet, which was held in the White Elephant restaurant. The 31-year-old Irving man urged local Jaycees to make themselves a vital part of this community.

"Nothing you ever do with a worthy cause will ever fail, or fail to be appreciated," he told Texas' newest Jaycee organization. Jaycees from Cisco, Abilene, Stamford, Irving, Snyder and Brownwood were on hand to help get the Eastland club off on the right foot. And local officials also handled the fledgling club a warm hand of friendship and cooperation.

Mayor and Mrs. Cyrus Frost represented the city, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Tanner and Clyde Young the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Deaton the Rotary Club and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Guess the Lions Club.

Earnest Sears of Snyder, state vice president, installed officers of the new club and Lewis Timberlake of Stamford, national director, made the presentation of the club's state and national charters.

Dick Spalding, president of the club, accepted the charter. Other charter officers of the Club are Virgil Moore, first vice president; Donald Kinnaird Jr., second vice president; Mike George, secretary-treasurer; James K. Smith, state director and Ben McKinnis, Elton Ables, Ralph Ross and John Megson, directors.

John Slaughter was chairman of the banquet committee and others Jaycees who served with him were Dr. James Whittington, Phil Hewett, Willard Griffen, Mike George, Lester Meador, James Johnson, Billy Brewer, Joe Ed Ingram, Jerry Holt and Jimmy Horn. Mrs. Marene Johnson assisted with the special decorations. Lloyd McGrew, state director of the Cisco Junior Chamber, spoke briefly and told of the Cisco club's pride in having helped Eastland have a Jaycee organization. He pledged the help of the Cisco Jaycees whenever the Eastland club issued a call.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by the Eastland High stage band. The group, directed by Phil Hewett, played "Train," "Mood Indigo," and "Cinnamon Kisses." The 18-piece band drew the largest applause of the night for their performance.

Decorations, made by Mrs. Johnson, featured an autumn theme with purple thistles and clusters of handmade graces gracing the banquet tables. Small bags of peanuts were used for favors, setting in a plug for the Jaycee's first big project, the Sept. 24 Peanut Bowl between Fanner College and Cisco Junior College.

Spalding saved one big announcement for the last of the banquet.

He announced at that time that the club had reached its quota of 50 charter members. Wadsworth, who will speak Sept. 14 at the Mexico National Jaycee Convention in Mexico City, sent Eastland Junior C-C members away from the banquet eager to work. No job is too big and no job is too small for the Jaycees, he declared. He said Jaycees believe in luck, and they have found that the harder they work the more luck they have.

Speaking of the international situation, he lashed out at this nation's complacent attitude. "We have our freedom," he stated, "it was handed to us." He warned Jaycees that they must prepare now for leadership for the "world is looking to us."

"Junior Chamber International is one of the answers to world peace," he emphasized. In conclusion he said, "It is high time that we realize democracy does not give us the government they want, but the one they deserve."

Prominent Gas Co. Official to Make Home Here

He was general chairman of this Committee in 1949 and served on its Executive Committee for nine years. He has announced plans to move to Eastland.

In 1953 Terrell was made a member of the American Gas Association Measurement Committee and became chairman of this Committee in 1957. He has served as a member of the American Gas Association Managing Committee, Operating Section, since 1957. The American Gas Association conferred the Award of Merit upon him in 1958 in recognition of his work on various committees, including chairman of the Task Committee for the "Gas Measurement Manual."

He was a member of the American Gas Association committee which recently completed research on the Effect of Pipe Roughness on Orifice Meter Accuracy.

Terrell has been named editor of the forthcoming American Gas Association Gas Measurement Manual and will devote his time to this work until the manual is published.

Cisco Invades Maverick Stadium to Test Locals

Eastland's Mavericks, the only team in the county to post a victory last week, will try to take their first step in winning the county high school championship here Friday night when they host the Cisco Lobos in a non-district battle. Kick-off time is 8 p.m. at Maverick Stadium.

MOORE'S PICKS

Eastland will get an upset win over the Cisco Lobos. Albany will take Merkel. DeLeon will ease past Cross Plains. Earl will defeat Gorman. Goldthwaite to win over Santa Anna. (Last week: Three right, two wrong. Avg. 609.)

Cisco, undisputed county champions for the past two years, may not have things so easy this year. Gone are the sensational backs who earned them high honors for the past two seasons. The Lobos have a big strong line, however, and they will be hungry since they took a 36-6 whipping at the hands of a strong Hamlin team in their opener last week.

Both teams have worked hard on pass defense this week since both teams showed weakness in that department in their opener.

Department of Public Safety Has Marked 25 Years of State Service

The Texas Department of Public Safety has marked its 25th anniversary as the state agency responsible for the enforcement of laws protecting the public safety and providing for the prevention and detection of crime in Texas. Governor Price Daniel and other state officials congratulated Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., department director, and all employees of the department upon the occasion of the agency's quarter-century of progress in the field of modern law enforcement. The Governor said:

"Texas' Department of Public Safety in its first 25 years has become one of the outstanding law enforcement agencies in the world. Much of the credit should go to Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., who has directed the department for 22 years. I congratulate Col. Garrison, his staff and all members of the department on this 25th anniversary."

Garrison, who served as assistant director for the first three years before being named director, said:

"All of us who have been concerned with the public safety in Texas are proud of the strides that have been taken in the state law enforcement and the regulation of the traffic flow in our state since the inception of the Department of Public Safety on August 10, 1935."

"However, we face today much the same challenges we did 25 years ago this week—a relatively small force to combat increasing crime and traffic accidents due to ever-changing techniques and population increases."

Garrison pointed out that the DPS in its first year had the task of patrolling some 20,000 miles of rural highways with a force of 140 patrolmen; while in 1960 it is responsible for 53,000 miles of rural highways with 773 patrolmen.

"Statistically speaking," he said, "this would mean that in 1935 we had one patrolman for every 145 miles of highway, and in 1960 we have one patrolman for approximately 70 miles of highway."

"While this would appear to be an improved situation, however, it is completely offset when it is considered that there were less than a million and a half vehicles on the road then—compared with four and a half million today."

In today's modern operation of the safety agency, Garrison as director is in charge of enforcement of laws relating to the operation of motor vehicles, criminal law enforcement in cooperation with local authorities, educating citizens in public safety and law observance, police training, police records, scientific crime detection, and a statewide police communications system. He performs his duties under plans and policies established by the Texas Public Safety Commission, a three-member board appointed by the Governor.

In a 1957 survey report, the Texas Research League said the department "has earned an enviable reputation for the manner in which it has served the people of our state over two decades. This reputation extends beyond the borders of Texas. National recognition has repeatedly been given the department for outstanding accomplishment in the fields of criminal law enforcement and motor traffic control."

The Research League noted at that time that "few states have gone as far as Texas in placing in one state agency so many different functions in the general field of crime and highway traffic control."

The DPS was created by an act of the Legislature on August 10, 1935, at a time when it was recognized that the state's part in crime prevention and traffic control was inadequate and improperly organized.

A meagre Highway Patrol at that time was under the jurisdiction of the State Highway Department. It was deemed necessary that this police function properly belonged under a police agency. The only existing state police force for criminal activity was the Texas Rangers, which was under the State Adjutant General's office. These two components formed the nucleus of the Department of Public Safety. Many other functions have been added to its responsibilities since then.

First director of the department was the late L. G. Phares, who was succeeded in 1937 by the late H. H. Carmichael. Garrison, who has been a senior captain in the old Highway Patrol, was named assistant director at the outset, and succeeded Carmichael as director on Sept. 27, 1938.

The Rangers today, operating under the direct supervision of the director, are the criminal law enforcement agents at the state level. Their duties cover the broad field of criminal investigation both as independent agents and through concerted efforts in assisting local, county and federal law enforcement officers.

While the principal duties of the Highway Patrol are in traffic supervision, it also is assigned many general responsibilities in the field of crime prevention and public safety.

The "line" operations of the department are broken down into six regions, with headquarters at Dallas, Houston, Corpus Christi, Midland and Lubbock. Each Regional Commander is responsible in his area for the Patrol service, the License and Weight service, the Communications service, Drivers License service, the Safety Education service, and the Motor Vehicle Inspection service.

Each regional headquarters has a limited crime laboratory, backstopped by a complete, modern laboratory located in the state headquarters in Austin.

The four main divisions of the state headquarters and their responsibilities are as follows:

Driver and Vehicle Records: Conducts the drivers license issuance and driver improvement programs, maintaining driver records for 4,500,000 Texas drivers. Supervises clerical staffs and records functions of the Motor Vehicle Inspection and Safety Responsibility programs.

Identification and Criminal Records: Maintains a crime laboratory consisting of chemists, fingerprint operators, fingerprint experts, ballistics experts, photographers, and handwriting analysis experts. Maintains a Modus Operandi section, which serves as a filing agency for all criminal intelligence available from department and local police agencies, as well as the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Maintains a master criminal records file which at present involves 1,050,000 individuals.

Personnel and Staff Services: Is responsible for the training program at the department's Law Enforcement Academy in Austin, fleet operations, general office services, reproduction and supply, headquarters message center and protection. Maintains a statistical section which compiles, tabulates and analyzes traffic accident records, all traffic arrests and crime reported from all governmental agencies, as well as all activity reports from field personnel.

Inspection and Planning: Serves as special staff to the director, in assisting with policy program development. Conducts studies and research into new programs in police science, develops test areas and promotes pilot studies of suggested programs, and makes general field inspection to ascertain that programs and policies are being followed by the field service units.

The department has two groups of plainclothesmen—the Intelligence Section and the Narcotics Section—both of which work closely with local officers in their respective investigative fields.

Both are part of the director's staff.

The Intelligence Section conducts criminal and subversive intelligence investigation and surveillance, collects, correlates and maintains intelligence records and files, and cooperates with federal, state and local enforcement agencies.

The Narcotics Section was established and is dedicated to assisting all law enforcement agencies in combatting the dual menace of narcotics traffic and addiction in Texas.

First Baptist Church Notes Busiest Months

The months of August, September and October are the three busiest months in the life of the First Baptist Church. During these months the entire program for the coming year is planned and adopted.

Committees are working hard on the selection of almost two hundred workers that fill places of service in the four major organizations of the church: Sunday School, Training Union, WMU and Brotherhood.

The planning and promoting of a church budget is a big undertaking. Through the plan called the Forward Program of Church Finance the First Baptist Church adopts a suitable budget for its operation during the coming year. September is Church Music Month at First Baptist and the activities include enrollment of choirs, organization of new choirs, enlargement campaigns, hymn sings, election of choir officers and other activities.

The climatic note of the Sunday School year, as well as the church year, is Preparation Week. During this period, Sept. 18-25, the new workers and church members joined minds and hearts in the study of the program for the new year.

General Church officers elected for the new year are: Sunday school superintendent, W. E. Chapman, brotherhood president, Johnny Grimes; WMU president, Mrs. Gordon Goldston; church treasurer, Charles Layton; chairman of deacons, Earl O'Brien; chairman of forward program of church finance, Frank Sayre; association board member, Herbert Ekert; organist, Mrs. R. B. Hall, Jr.; pianist, Mrs. M. A. Treadwell, Jr.; librarian, Miss Doris Bounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Howell Sledge of Fort Worth, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Morris and Terry of San Angelo and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Gist and Greg of Abilene visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Mitchell over the holiday weekend.

Mrs. Sledge and Mrs. Morris are the daughters of the Mitchell family. Mrs. Gist is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. Veon S. Howard will go to Fort Worth this weekend to attend the christening of their granddaughter, Mary Ellen Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Thomas. The christening will be held in the Ridgely Methodist Church in Ft. Worth. Mrs. Thomas is the former Jeanine Howard.

New TWA Terminal

Changes Classic Idlewild Skyline

One of the most dramatic designs to grace the panorama of New York International Airport in New York City is beginning to take shape.

Designed by famed architect Eero Saarinen, the terminal is being built by Grove, Shepherd, Wilcox and Kruger, Inc., of New York City.

Work on the project marks another phase in the progress of TWA's jet age plans and installations at the New York airport. Already accomplished: a new $15,000,000 hangar and the operation of a fleet of huge jet aircraft to major U.S. cities as well as world centers abroad.

The new terminal site is conveniently located opposite the parkway entrance to Idlewild and directly to the left of the International Arrivals Building. The TWA terminal is expected to be completed in the summer of 1961.

On the passenger loading side, the terminal will afford ten positions for boarding and deplaning passengers on jet aircraft of today and of the future.

The terminal will be immediately recognizable to passengers entering the airport by its soaring central structure, suggesting the flight of a giant bird. The vast concrete shell will consist of four interacting vaults forming a huge umbrella over all passenger areas.

The complete facility will occupy approximately three acres. Passengers and visitors in the main waiting area will find every convenience attractively displayed. One feature will be a semi-circular lounge with upholstered chairs arranged as in a theatre from which spectators may watch, through an expanse of all-glass walls, the drama of flight.

I GIVE YOU TEXAS

By Boyce House

This is the mystery of the disappearing body.

When I began newspaper work, I was assigned to the police run. This was in Memphis many years ago.

The most remarkable member of the police department and one of the grandest men I ever knew was Capt. Mike Kehoe. A big, ruddy-complexioned man he was, with graying hair, kindly and considerate but firm as iron when serious situation arose, and also utterly void of fear.

One night, a patrolman called in to report that he had seen a man going down an alley, with a sack on his back. At the officer's call to halt the man began to run and the officer fired low. But the bullet must have ricocheted from the cobblestones for the man fell and when the policeman reached him, he was dead.

As the story was being related, we were walking up the alley and still looking up, the officer stopped, pointed down and said, "There's the body."

Our gaze followed the direction indicated by his finger — and there was no body there.

Shrinks Hemorrhoids Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. At all drug counters—money back guarantee.

Texas Republicans Look to State Level In Bid for Two Party State

Texas Republican campaign headquarters—a handbook prepared for state candidates—called today for election of a state government that would squarely face such problems as economic growth, taxes, school and water.

The GOP attacked the Democrats for trying to meet the revenue crisis with "quickie" taxes—a dab here, a dab there.

A product of several months of research, the manual urged realignment of school districts in the interest of efficiency and the best use of funds.

It appealed for intensified efforts to stimulate industrial growth. This growth, it added, would depend substantially on improvement of schools to turn out high-quality workers, acceleration of highway construction, boosts in the water supply.

Asserting that this interrelated development demands better leadership in the state government, the handbook said:

"Texans can choose 'normal growth' and barely get along, or they can choose growth upon growth and become the possessors of one of America's greatest industrial and economic complexes. Democrats have failed so far to lead the way."

The manual said GOP candidates would avoid Democrat factionalism, cooperate with private research groups and public spirited Democrats—help Texas meet the challenge of the "Crucial Sixties."

Pointing to the 56th Legislature's tax fight as a vivid illustration of Democrat factionalism, the manual said:

"They tried to solve the dilemma with 'quickie' taxes—a dab here, a dab there, with the 'Governor's boys' and the Speaker's boys' at each other's throats to the last minute before adjournment."

"Texas needs elected officials who will be free on political factionalism, free of pressure groups, free of jabs, free of stagnant minds, and free of power politics."

The policeman exclaimed, "It was here, I tell you!" Captain Kehoe looked at me and I looked at him, then we both looked at the patrolman who, we now strongly suspected, had been drinking and had imagined the occurrence.

Suddenly, I had a hunch and said, "Follow me," with the brushiness of a cub reporter. They did. We walked around the street and, guessing which was the building that was in line with the spot where the body was suppose to have been, I stopped. The front was in darkness. I pointed to the sign, "Unfettering parlor." I pounded on the door and a light appeared, then the door opened.

"We're from headquarters and want to see the body," I said. "Certainly," came the reply. The patrolman in relief. —Elementary

Carolyn Jean Weaver Is Wed To William Fred Seay August 20

Wedding vows were exchanged at 7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 20, in the First Methodist Church, Ranger, by Carolyn Jean Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Weaver of Ranger, and William Fred Seay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Seay of Ranger.

The Rev. Lively Brown, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The vows were read before a background of greenery and baskets of white gladioli and beauty astors. The candelabras formed an arch which centered a lighted cross. White satin bows marked the pews.

Wedding music was presented by Miss Maxine Vandergriff, pianist, and Miss Jimmie Mae Miller, vocalist, both of Ranger. Miss Vandergriff accompanied Miss Miller as she sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer." Other selections were "Oh Promise Me" and the traditional wedding march.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white lace and satin gown designed with a fitted bodice, which featured cap sleeves and a square neckline, and a bouffant skirt. She wore short white gloves and carried a white orchid surrounded by stephanotis.

Her veil of illusion fell from a headpiece of seed pearls. Her jewelry was a pearl necklace with matching earrings, a gift from the groom.

Miss Brenda Weaver of Ranger, attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a dress of white organza with blue trimmings, and she carried a nosegay of blue flowers.

Travis Watson of Floydada was best man. Ushers were Jim Swinney of Ranger and Don Farnsworth of Cisco.

Mrs. Weaver chose a blue sheath dress with blue accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Seay wore a blue silk dress with black accessories. Their corsages were of white carnations.

The reception was held at the Community Clubhouse. The table was covered with a blue cutwork cloth over white and centered with an open Bible, encircled with flowers and three white candles.

Miss Viola Seay served the wedding cake and Mrs. Robert Watson of Burkburnett ladled the punch. Presiding at the registry table was Miss Pat White of Ranger. Others in the house party were Mmes. M. E. McGee, F. G. Wheat, B. G. Thompson and David Weems.

For a short wedding trip the bride wore a dress of white and moss green checks with matching jacket and white accessories. The couple are making their home at 124 Walnut Street, Ranger.

Mrs. Seay was a 1957 graduate of Ranger High School and a graduate of Ranger College. She is now employed at Texas Electric Service Company. Her husband is a graduate of Ranger High School, and he attended Ranger College. He is employed at Burton-Lingo Lumber Co.

Good Taste

By Emily Post

When asked what she would like

Dear Mrs. Post: When people ask me what I would like for a wedding present, is it proper to give them a direct answer by telling them what I really need or should I answer casually by saying, "We could use almost anything." My fiancé thinks it is correct to tell people what I want and says that they wouldn't ask me if they didn't want to know. I find it embarrassing to mention a specific item as I do not know what people can afford to spend and if I do say something definite they might feel obliged to give it to me.

Answer: With no idea of what they want to spend, I think your own suggested answer is perfect, or you might perhaps name several items varying in price from May he wear business suit?

Dear Mrs. Post: Would it be proper for me to go to a dinner party dressed in a business suit when all the other men will be wearing dinner coats? This is the situation: I received an invitation to a dinner party at a private club. The invitation stipulates "Black Tie." However, I am only visiting in this city and did not bring evening clothes with me. Must I decline the invitation because of this?

Answer: I would say that a dark blue business suit with dark blue bow tie would be permissible.

with men who are wearing tuxedos, but it would be best to telephone your host (or hostess) explaining your predicament and ask for his (or her) approval.

Not fair to the others

Dear Mrs. Post: When a group of women go out to dinner together and the bill is always divided evenly among the group, isn't it bad manners for one or two in the group to order the most expensive dishes on the menu? Shouldn't all try to order food within the same price range when the bill is split?

Answer: They most certainly should. To order expensive dishes to be paid for by the group, is most unfair, or at the very least, thoughtless.

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I are giving a large cocktail party shortly for friends and relatives. Many of the guests will be strangers to each other and it will be impossible to introduce everyone. Would it be in good taste to have all guests wear name tags, and if so, will you please tell me how this is handled?

Answer: Name tags for your guests would be in very bad taste; please don't even consider them.

Good Drivers Play Position Carefully Like Ball Player

A good driver plays position as carefully as a professional baseball player. That is, he plays his position in relation to other vehicles in the traffic pattern.

In order to avoid accidents, the safe driver knows where his car is in relation to the cars directly in front, back and to both sides of him. He also is aware of the positions of vehicles several car lengths to the back and sides, and as far ahead of him as he can clearly see.

With this knowledge, he won't make sudden moves that could cause accidents or create breaks or bottlenecks in the traffic flow. If a car is overtaking him from the rear, he can assume the other driver will try to pass on his left. He won't swerve or drift to his left into the path of this oncoming car.

If the car ahead slows down, the driver who knows his position in the pattern is not likely to swing out into the side of a car next to him.

To play his position in the traffic pattern, a good driver uses all the aids at his disposal. His rear-view mirror and side mirror, properly used at frequent intervals, help him keep conscious of other vehicles around him. He glances from side to side frequently to orient himself to traffic flow. And, he looks as far ahead as he can see in order to detect possible accident situations in plenty of time to avoid them.

At night, when visibility is severely limited, playing position is naturally more difficult, even if headlights make it easier to detect vehicles at a distance.

The wise driver makes use of every positioning aid he can. Reflective traffic signs and direction signals that glow far ahead in his headlights help him plan his moves in advance. Reflective road markings are a further aid. Many commercial trucking firms have added large reflective striping or trademarks to help following drivers make them out more clearly in the darkness.

All of these are aids, but in the long run, good positioning is up to the common sense of the driver himself.
