

Perkins Sees Europe From Train Window

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles written for the Telegram by Joseph M. Perkins.)

By JOSEPH M. PERKINS
I am riding trains in the daytime and staying overnight in hotels so as not to miss seeing the country. My ride from Athens to Salonica was through rather poor country with small villages of shabby houses. Again I found the train running through tunnels in the low mountain country. Limestone cliffs were steep and the only cultivated land was in the narrow ridges between ridges. At one station I bought a unique lunch—pieces of lamb, broiled, impaled on a stick skewer about nine inches long with a slice of French bread on the top end of the stick, something like a tiny umbrella in form. We were in sheep country and the lamb was very good.

After an uneventful night at a hotel in Salonica I boarded the famous Simplon-Orient Express Tuesday morning for Belgrade, Yugoslavia border there was a change of train crew and immigration, customs and many control officers appeared and there were forms to fill out, much red tape. My passport was demanded, as at every border stop, and in every hotel where I register. I really think it would be less serious to lose my pants than to lose my passport! This train had a steam locomotive and traveled through southern Yugoslavian mountains, many tunnels again, and bridges spanning deep gorges. At every bridge I noticed a round building of either brick or stone. These were vacant but in times of war they are for the military who guard the bridges. It started to snow. The higher mountains were capped with snow and some of the valleys had a light covering.

We were still in sheep country and I saw tall shepherds in raincoats, and with tall peaked black hats. Also there were sheep dogs of enormous size, as large as a St Bernard, and they looked capable of tackling any predatory animal, even a mountain lion. The farmhouses in valleys and on the plateaus were small square white stone structures of two rooms and had red tile roofs. The barns and other farm buildings were of log construction and with thatch roofs were quite picturesque. It was unfortunate that the light was poor for taking pictures. Along some streams there were wooden waterwheels about 10 feet in diameter to life river water for irrigating the lands. At one place I noticed one of these wheels standing against an elm tree several rods from the river where floodwaters had left it, possibly miles from its former location. The country highways are pretty good, with crushed rock surface, but the side roads were very muddy and poor. Farm wagons were pulled by oxen. During the entire day I saw less than half a dozen motor vehicles in the country districts but there were many pedestrians and a number of bicycles being used. Plowing of the land is just beginning.

On this daylight ride I chose to ride in a second class compartment. There were five others in the compartment with me, though there was seating space for eight. The others were two Greek men, one Greek woman, one German young woman, one Yugoslavian woman and myself. One of the Greek men could speak English, of sorts, and all of the Greeks could talk German. We got along nicely together. All of the others had a lot of baggage, including food for lunches. I was the only one who went to the dining car at noon. My meal consisted of potato salad, pickles, olives, a nice breaded pork chop, French fried potatoes, cheese, French bread, and an orange. My train entered Belgrade, or Beograd, as it is called, at 9:20 last evening. Belgrade is not included in most European tours and I had some difficulty in finding out which hotel I should approach. In Rome I learned from Cook's Travel Agency that the Metropole was the best one, so I took a taxi from the depot and in a short time I was taken to a beautiful modern hotel where I have every modern convenience and every luxury. Last night I bathed in a fine white porcelain tub six feet long and later slept soundly in a cherry bed. I am on the same street and only a few blocks from Parliament Building where Tito is.

I took a picture of it this afternoon. I looked up Ambassador Rankin at the U. S. Embassy and had a nice social visit with him. He is a resident of Main and is a fine gentleman. He briefed me on the mineral and oil production in Yugoslavia and he also volunteered the fact that the Hotel Metropole is government owned and operated. Beograd has a population of about 800,000 and is growing rapidly. Today is sunny, but with a very cold wind from snow covered mountains to the north. It makes me want to return to Rome and I may do so later. Tomorrow forenoon I leave for Zagreb in the northern part of Yugoslavia where I will spend the night. Next day I will go to Vienna, Austria for over the weekend. In Austria my EURAIL pass will be effective and from then on I will pay no more rail fares while in Europe. (It will be noted that this Eurail pass was purchased in this country before JMP left the states—paid for in U S currency and good for two months.)

History Of Library Week Told by Leader

Mrs. Cecil Collins, chairman of Eastland's National Library Week Observance, today reviewed the past history of the movement.

Here is Mrs. Collins' statement:

National Library Week was launched in the Spring of 1958 with the slogan "Wake Up and Read!" It was the first concerted nationwide effort to focus public attention on reading as a source of personal fulfillment, on the importance of reading in our national life, and on the libraries of all kinds that can make reading accessible to all the people if they are used fully and supported properly.

Thousands of librarians, publishers, newspaper editors, broadcasters, civic and education groups and business, religious and professional leaders have devoted their time, skills and money to the success of this effort. The President of the United States and the two living former Presidents have joined with scores of other officials of government to remind Americans that the freedom to read is the privilege and responsibility of members of a free, democratic society.

The tremendous public response to the program from its first year is evidence of wide-spread belief in its objectives and a general concern for the quality of intellectual life in the community and in the nation. National Library Week is now an established, continuing year-round program.

The annual Week is an occasion for focusing unprecedented attention on the values of reading and the role of the nation's libraries.

PROCLAMATION
Mayor Cyrus Frost today issued this proclamation:

As mayor of Eastland I proclaim National Library Week for the period April 4-9 to call attention to the benefits which follow from the high thinking of the educated mind, and to evidence the truth that an informed public is the foundation of freedom.

The spotlight is placed on libraries and reading through thousands of newspaper editorials, magazine articles, radio and TV broadcasts and promotional displays, exhibits, and mailings. In more than 5,000 communities, citizens of all ages and from every walk of life take part in a wide variety of activities designed to stimulate interest in the community's reading and library resources.

But more than this, NLW is the culmination of a year's well-organized effort by thousands of people whose long-range goal is first, to create a climate of interest, and second to translate that interest into concrete action that will result in demand and support for better library service and encourage more people to want to read.

Two Day Open House Slated by Phone Co.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company will hold open house for the public at its Eastland new dial telephone building here Thursday and Friday.

"Everyone's invited to visit us and get a behind-the-scenes tour of our new dial telephone system," Archer Marx, manager for the company, said.

The open house will be held from 2 to 4 and 6 to 9 p.m. both days.

"We will have a number of special exhibits on hand for the open house," Marx said. "And telephone people will be on hand to explain the interesting dial equipment in the telephone office."

Among the exhibits that will be here for the open house will be the Bell Solar Battery and the company's famous Tie-Eack-Toe machine. The Bell Solar Battery is a recent development of Bell Telephone Laboratories. It captures the heat waves of the sun and transforms them into commercial power. The Bell Solar Battery has been successfully used to provide power for a small rural telephone system.

Open house visitors will see a working model of the Battery. It will be used to provide power for a radio.

Telephone people will be on hand to guide the visitors through the building and explain the telephone equipment and special exhibits.

"We think the telephone open house will be entertaining for everyone," Marx said.

Nine High School Golf Teams to Play Monday

High school teams from nine cities are to meet at Lakeside Country Club in Eastland Monday for an invitational golf tournament, Spike Dykes, Eastland golf coach, announced Saturday.

The tournament, an 18-hole medal affair, will match teams from Eastland, Cisco, Ranger, Stephenville, Breckenridge, Brady, Ballinger, Mineral Wells and San Angelo.

Brady is the big favorite in the meet. Brady has almost the same team back which marched to the state finals last year.

Each team will enter five men in the tourney with the four low scores counting. Playing for Eastland will be Martin Day, Don Wilson, Clark Conner, Mike Carothers and George Kinabler.

The Quarterback Club has purchased two trophies. One will go to the winning team and the other to the medalist in the tourney.

Dykes said that Eastland has a number of young golfers and that interest in the game at EHS is high.

The high school golfers will find the Lakeside Course in excellent shape.

Gray Matter

By JOE GRAY

Seeing some of the things kids and young people do today makes a fellow proud he's an American. There are some people, although I think they are relative few in number, who harp on the tune that young people are growing worse than their predecessors. But I'm not in that group. Along the way over the long-term trend I'm firmly convinced that young people today are better citizens in every respect than young people of a generation or so ago were.

Of course young people may get in the headlines these days more often than they did a quarter century or so ago, but most of the reason for that is that we have a little better communication today than then. Newspapers weren't looking for all the juvenile stories then that they look for today. And just a whole lot of the mischievousness of kids was never in the public press then as now.

Suppose a group of boys got together and shot out all the windows of the schoolhouse, as they often did then, there wasn't much, if anything, said about it in the press. The newspapers never got hold of that sort of information. The fathers were about the only ones who knew of such a thing. The school officials wouldn't have called the police and make a police case of it, as it probably is done in nine-tenths of American communities today. The kid's dads would warn the boys' backsides so warm the little lads would have to eat off the mantel for a few days, but the police wouldn't be called into the case at all.

Certainly today's kids are much better informed than they were in my day and surely have more temptation offered than my generation had. There weren't too many distracting things afforded a youngster in a small town a few years ago. But these days they know, or have heard, of just about all the things that can mislead a growing boy that any of the city duds have thought of. We were sort of left to ourselves when it comes to devilment, but today's papers carry every silly and foolish and silly stunt any city juvenile get himself involved in. News of these things sort of lent themselves to temptation for others, for some reason or other, and for that reason I sometimes wonder if it is good to publish the names of juveniles involved in things of this sort.

Some newspapermen think it's good to throw the light of publicity on it and to mention names and addresses of all the youngsters involved in some of the scraps juveniles get themselves in, but I doubt if it is a good policy. Surely news of this sort causes a lot of tongues to wagging who don't have an intention whatever of helping a youngster when he's in trouble, but are interested in the news of his trials and tribulations solely for the spice it will add to wagging-tongue's scandle-mongering conversation.

As example of the fine things young people do today I should like to point out the FFA—the Future Farmers of America and the organization the Future Homemakers of America. When I was a youth we didn't have either of the organizations, or at least they weren't active in Eastland County. About the only thing I heard of that was interested in youth in those days was the Devil and the Boy Scouts, and I sometimes think the Devil just about won the contest. Many parents seemed to abandon without a struggle their boys to the Devil but some mighty good men came from a condition that didn't look as if it offered much in the way of achievement for a young man.

Many a young man lost interest in farm life because it seemed to work him to death without too much return for his time and effort. The FFA is teaching young men these days that they themselves can become self-dependent and at the same time have a lot of fun on the farm and enjoy farm life. Farming is a basic industry and, contrary to some of the statements arising from the present Department of Agriculture, will always be with us and will always be the basic of the American way of life.

The idea of the American Constitution and the great nation came from a bunch of farmers. It was farmers, not city duds, who won this nation's independence from Britain and this nation will continue to grow great only as long as it has a fine agricultural population.

Life on the farm and in the small town stimulates thinking. Life in a city tennament stimulates nothing but delinquency. Those of our very important people in government and industry today who think they can completely industrialize America and run all of our foreign markets for the farmer are very foolish men indeed. And by the same token those who think it's fair for the American farmer to have to sell his product on a market based on free trade while at the same time buying the things he needs on a market protected by tariff walls are very foolish men too. But for some reason or other, the farmer has been exploited going and coming.

Today's politicians say that they can fool some of the people always, but they can't. The FFA and other organizations are doing things for the youth of America and the young people are in

How American Cancer Society Dollars Are Spent In Texas

Ninety Cents of every dollar raised for cancer control in Texas is used in the state to support community programs for year-round education and service to cancer patients, as well as maintaining research projects at Texas research institutions, it was revealed today by A. D. Jenkins, president of the Eastland County unit.

"Actually," Jenkins stated, "the Texas Division of ACS retains 60c of every dollar and sends 40c to the national society for the national cancer research program and development of the total cancer control program."

"But," Jenkins explained, "Texas is in a very advantageous position with a wealth of research facilities. More than 30c of each dollar is returned in the form of research grants to M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute and Baylor University College of Medicine, Houston; University of Texas Medical Branch, Galveston; and the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School, Dallas; and other institutions.

In addition to the 30c for research, the balance of the Texas crusade dollar, Jenkins stated, is spent as follows: 16c for professional education, 7c for professional service, 25c for public education, 13c for lay service, 5c for crusade and 4c to support its cancer control program.

Jenkins pointed out that 40c of each dollar raised in Texas is sent to the National Society with 25c being immediately earmarked to support the coordinated nationwide program of cancer research conducted by more than 1,000 top scientists in more than 140 institutions.

Twelve cents is used by the National Society to administer national programs of professional and public education and service. If this, only 2.8c is allocated for cancer administration and 2c for the annual cancer crusade.

The remaining 3c provides medical grants, scholarships and fellowships to nearly 600 young scientists for advanced training in cancer research.

"It is interesting to note," Jenkins stated, "that Texas is very fortunate with regard to the use of money raised in Texas each year during the educational fund raising crusade in April. For during the period 1958-59 research allocations to Texas scientists amounted to 30c for every dollar raised in Texas."

The ACS leader also pointed out that the Society's books are audited and made public through its annual state and national reports.

"The cancer dollar is used efficiently and economically in the best tradition of American business," he stated.

"The dividends we receive from this investment are in an ever-growing number of American lives saved from cancer—more than 1,000,000 alive today, cured of cancer. It is my deepest conviction that no better investment can be made than the contributions we give each year to the April cancer crusade and the time and effort spent in the overall program of cancer control by the Texas Division's more than 80,000 volunteers," he concluded.

Low Rent Project Bids Asked

Bids on the construction of a 12-unit low rent housing project in Rising Star are scheduled to be opened at the City Hall on Wednesday, April 27, at 2 p. m., according to an invitation for bids published this week.

The project will be of brick veneer construction, completely modern in design and architecture, and will represent an investment of approximately $135,000. It will be built by the City of Rising Star under a contractual agreement with the Public Housing Administration whereby the units will be rented to tenants of low income at less than standard rentals.

Title to the project will be vested in the Housing Authority of the City of Rising Star, an agency of the municipal government whose five directors are appointed at regular intervals by the City Council.

The project will be financed by bonds sold to private investors and guaranteed by the FHA.

THIS SHIFTING SAND

By Marie Boney

April 1 through the Be-Kind days. There are in Eastland County completely.

precipitated. Agonized groans at each question will not.

Regardless of your opinion as to what the government can and cannot ask you, the Census Bureau has the idea it can ask you exactly what is printed on the census forms. This census was not begun to inconvenience your personally. It is an event every 10 years. As long as you reside in the United States, you will be counted.

The sample questions about income are not to check on your income tax return. The census taker—indeed the entire Census Bureau—has no idea what you put on the return. Furthermore, they don't care to know. The income tax return went to a completely different government department. And it's said one department never loans a pencil to another department, much less information. Very truthfully said, in the case of the Census Bureau. Your answers will be used to form the basis of school need, voting precincts, and so forth. They will not be used to check on you.

Please do not ask to look over the census taker's shoulder while he records the information you give him. He has nothing to gain except possibly a huge fine and/or jail sentence by recording it improperly. But four households will be recorded on a single page in his book and you may not look at the information given by others. It will be seen only by officially sworn-in census employees.

It's unlikely that you'd learn a whole lot by looking, since it took three days to learn to read those little dots used to record information. But it's still against the law for you to look. Remember this and don't put the census taker in the position of having to explain it to you.

The census taker knows what he is doing and what he is supposed to do. Your responsibility in this matter is to answer all questions truthfully, politely. If you do not understand the question, say so, and it will be explained to you. The census taker will help you all he can. Will you help him?

Jehovah's Witnesses

JOE WATTS, Minister

Joe, Watts, presiding minister for the Eastland congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, announced plans today for delivering a special message to people throughout the world. Watts revealed some of the details of this special campaign, which includes sponsoring the public lecture entitled "Universal Disarmament by the Kingdom of Heaven," based on the scripture text Isaiah 2:4.

All 20,000 congregations throughout the world will participate. Mr. Watts will deliver this discourse locally, to which the public is cordially invited. It will be delivered at the Kingdom Hall, 204 North Dixie Street, April 3 at 3 p.m.

After the discourse, the message in printed form will be given free to each person in attendance. It is the desire of Jehovah's Witnesses to place a copy in every home. Advance preparation and the world-wide scope of this special campaign give indication that this may be one of the greatest religious proclamations in modern history," Mr. Watts said.

Other meetings for the week are as follows. Sunday at 3:15, following public lecture, Watchtower Bible class, Subject, "Seek Right Associations," Text, 1 Cor. 15:33.

Tuesday: Bible Study, Subject, "The March of World Powers," chapter five of textbook, "Your Will Be Done On Earth." Friday: 8 p.m. Ministry Development Class; 9 p.m. Ministry School as follows. Thirty-minute written review on material studied for previous four weeks. Reading of Psalms 12:10 to 13:28.

Also at the service center, 308 West Third Street in Cisco, Bible Study each Tuesday evening at 7:30. Text book being studied, "Your Will Be Done On Earth."

Beware of the March Winds—

... and the Spring rains, both sure and destructive weather elements that we can do little about except to expect and prepare for. The No. 1 cost to property owners in this season of the year is hail damage to residence and business properties, but windstorm damage to plate glass and antennae is a close second. Christian Science

Overcoming of fatigue and weariness through entirely spiritual means will be a theme dealt with at Christian Science services this Sunday.

Scriptural readings in the Lesson-Sermon on "Unreality" will include the following from Isaiah (40:28,29):

"Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding. He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength."

Among the correlative passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy is the following (385:15-18): "Constant and all untoward conditions, if without sin, can be experienced without suffering. Whatever it is your duty to do, you can do without harm to yourself."
