School Study Is Underway

Olden and Eastland school districts met Saturday in Eastland for their first session to study a proposed single high school for the three districts. Under the guidance of Dr.

James Whittington, the group di vided into three working committees and will hold their next meet June 20 in the Eastland Chamber of Commerce.
Wendell Siebert of Eastland,

Travis Hilliard of Olden and G. B. Rush of Ranger-the three school superintendents-will work during the first month to find their idea of the ideal system "under the present known circumstances with the addition of a single new high school." This curriculum.

Wilson Guest of Ranger and Virgil Seaberry Jr. of Eastland are to work out the financial and legal details. They are to study to the questions.

Jim Everett of Olden and Dr. Whittington are to work with the press and radio to find out from the people of the area any suggestions they might have about the school system.

During the second month the group will devote their time to an analysis of the material obtained and seperate the practical from the idealistic and set a goal which 'is practical and within our financial ability." The third month will be devoted to detail work in Austin and the area to see just how much of the plan can be obtained.

Dr. Whittington explained, "At the end of the third month we will present the preliminary study to the school boards to take any action that they desire. If they like the preliminary report and wish a further and final study about cost and details, we will, at their request, continue the
