Egg Cartons Aid Band Hall Work

When they started remodeling the building once used as a medical clinic there was strong suspicion that members of the Band Boosters Club had slipped their cog. Reason for the concern was that members of the club were seen hauling in more than 2,000 egg crate fillers.

The fillers, as it turned out, were one of the essential needs of the workers. They were used, on the advice of several recording studios, on the ceiling of the main rehearsal room and the practice rooms, for acoustical effect.

And they worked wonderfully, as Band Master Phillip Hewett can tell you. An additional surprise to Band Boosters was the beauty they added to the building.

Eastland citizens will have the opportunity to judge for themselves Tuesday night. An open house will be held in the band hall immediately after a dedication concert at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

Refreshments will be served and the public has been urged to attend the concert, by the Junior High and Senior High bands, and the open house.

Band Boosters have heaped praise on many firms and individuals, particularly Dr. M. A. Treadwell, who made the new band hall possible. Hewett has thrown a large share of the credit to members of the Band Boosters club, however.

"Without the wonderful work of these Band Booster members we couldn't possibly have this fine building today," Hewett said. He credited the mothers and fathers of band members for their generous contribution of their time and money.

The band concert Tuesday will be dedicated to those persons who made the building possible.

Jack Manry, director of bands at Sam Houston State Teachers College, will be guest director.

New Telephone Directories On Way to Citizens

The new directories for Eastland will be mailed to subscribers here March 3, Archer Marx, Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. manager, announced today.

The new directories for Eastland will be mailed to subscribers here March 3, Archer Marx, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company manager, announced today.

Old directories should be thrown away as soon as the new ones are received. However care should be taken to remove any items such as photos, letters, and notes which might have been placed between the pages, Marx added.

The Eastland directory has a green cover and contains 14 "white" or alphabetical pages and 28 "yellow" or classified pages. Approximately 2,970 copies of the directory have been printed.

A number of extra copies are printed as replacements for those used in public telephone booths and other places where much use occurs, Marx added.

"The telephone directory," he added, "remains one of the 'best read' books in Eastland."

You can save time by referring to it, if you are not sure of a number or need assistance of any kind. The yellow pages are a convenient listing of almost every business in town, he added.

In our talk in your office on Tuesday you said you had seen a copy of Mr. Poage's letter to the Highway Commission and you had to admit that there was nothing in his letter showing that he had tried to bring pressure on anybody. I already knew this as Mr. Poage sent me a copy of this letter and anyone interested may see it.

Freeman Labels Telegram Highway Story as Vicious

(Editor's Note: The following "letter to the editor" gives "the other side" of the Highway 6 story.)

By O. L. FREEMAN
In the last two issues of your paper you have made a vicious and unwarranted attack on Congressman Bob Poage of Waco on his stand against the rerouting of Highway 6 down Walnut Street.

I think any fair minded person would agree that since Mr. Poage's wife owns property on Walnut Street and since he has been a taxpayer here for more than 20 years, he had the same right as any other citizen to make his views known.

In our talk in your office on Tuesday you said you had seen a copy of Mr. Poage's letter to the Highway Commission and you had to admit that there was nothing in his letter showing that he had tried to bring pressure on anybody. I already knew this as Mr. Poage sent me a copy of this letter and anyone interested may see it.

EASTLAND TO HOST NEXT MEETING

Seaberry Named President Of Oilbelt Texas U. Exes

The University of Texas Ex-students Association of the Oil Belt District met Thursday night at the Lone Cedar Country Club for their annual meeting.

Johnny Bates, of Ranger, president of the association, was master of ceremonies and made the arrangements for the banquet.

One of the largest crowds ever to attend the district banquet was present. There were 116 exes and guests on hand to hear Hal Woodward, member of the Texas Highway Commission, from Coleman give the principal address.

Members of the Association voted for Eastland to be the host town for the annual banquet next year. The banquet is planned for March 2, 1962.

Virgil Seaberry Jr., was elected as new president of the Association. Mrs. Cyrus Frost is secretary and vice presidents include Charles Milliken of Ranger, Fred Douglas of Albany, T. C. Williams of Cisco, Don Radtke of Breckenridge and Ronald Burton of Eastland.

Members of the Association attending the banquet were from Ranger, Eastland, Cisco, Albany, Breckenridge, and Gorman, and guests were from Coleman, Brownwood and Amarillo.

Woodward told the exes that electronic highways, radical new types of motor vehicles, and powerful new fuels are some of the remarkable developments in highway travel that we can expect in the future.

The Highway Commissioner predicted great strides in speed and safety for highway users during the next half-century, made possible by automatic safety devices and new types of highway facilities.

However, he told the Texas exes "this complex travel future will only come to pass if the University of Texas and other schools continue to produce people who will invent and develop the new devices and ideas we will need in highway transportation."

He told the exes that they owed much to the University of Texas for the education they received there and the debt will not be paid until each of the exes make something of themselves that will stand as a tribute to the University.

The link between today and tomorrow, Woodward said, is the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways. "These are the highways of tomorrow - - being built today," he said. "They feature the most up-to-date design and construction that highway engineers can devise. Such safety features will make them three times as safe as ordinary highways."

Woodward said this area is most fortunate to be a part of the Interstate System, with Interstate Highway 20 now under construction to link Ranger and the entire area to this national highway network. "It puts this area right on the economic life-line of America," he said.

The Commissioner said the economic effect of I. H. 20 will be felt here through the influx of new dollars brought by (1) the Interstate route's construction and (2) heavy volumes of traffic using it after its completion. He noted that land values in the vicinity of Interstate routes consistently tend to rise sharply.

Woodward predicted that "this Interstate route will see amazing improvements in vehicles, fuels, and safety devices."

"The biggest obstacle yet to be removed before man can travel faster is his own slow reactions," he said. "Human vision and reflexes are not equal to the task of traveling safely at the great speeds that will be possible in the future."

"The next logical step may well be to eliminate the human driver and replace him with a machine which can function efficiently at high speeds," Woodward explained. "The so-called 'electronic highway' (Continued on Page Two)

Commissioners Says Finances Stopped Work

"We are always willing to consider anything," Hal Woodward, Texas Highway commissioner from Coleman, told the Telegram Friday in a telephone interview.

Woodward made his remarks after being asked if he was correctly quoted by the Abilene Reporter-News in a story which appeared Friday morning quoting him saying, "If the city government of Eastland can show cause for the need to route Highway 6 down Walnut Street to Highway 80 east to Seaman St. and North on the old Highway 6 route out of Eastland toward Breckenridge, I see no reason why that route could not be considered."

The commissioner said that any additional data showing the need for the extension of the highway would certainly be considered. And he went on to say that if a definite need is shown "... we will do something about it when we get the money."

The Reporter-News quoted remarks Woodward made to a group of Eastland Texas University ex-students before the Oilbelt Ex-Students banquet was held Thursday night at Lone Cedar Country (Continued on Page Two)

Same As Usual! No Contested Races On Ballot

It appears that an Eastland tradition will be retained for at least one more year. As of noon today there were no contested races for school board or city commission seats.

The deadline for filing for the school board was Wednesday and Rev. W. E. Hallenbeck and J. T. Gregory were the only candidates to file. They are both asking re-election.

In the city commission race Saturday midnight was the deadline. As of Saturday morning only three candidates had filed for three vacancies. Jack German and Bob Perkins are asking re-election and Milton Fullen is running for the seat being vacated by Virgil Seaberry, who revealed he would not be a candidate.

It has been many years since there has been a contested school board or commission race. The result has been extreme voter apathy, with less than 100 voters usually showing up at the polls.

Eastland Schools Plan Activities During Week

Schools will join in Public Schools Week this week and all schools and parents and other interested persons to visit schools week.

Lions have announced plans to meet for their regular meeting Tuesday in the high school cafeteria and will hear a program on local schools. Other activities are also planned.

Gov. Price Daniel issued the following proclamation: "For each of the past 11 years, Public Schools Week in Texas has been set aside as a special time to place increased emphasis on our educational system. "During this period, parents are encouraged to visit the public schools, and all citizens are urged through special programs to recognize the tremendous importance of our system of education. Our goal is to make Texas public schools the finest in the nation, and to achieve this our citizens are urged to take an active interest in the school systems and to cooperate with their school boards, superintendents, principals and teachers. Commissioners

Club. The Telegram did not have a reporter at the meeting or at the banquet, at which Woodward was the main speaker.
Woodward said that the Highway Commission at no time discussed routing Highway 6 around Eastland. He stated that traffic counts on the highway show that most of the traffic is local and a route around Eastland would be totally impractical.

He definitely denied that the highway had been "killed," saying the work was just being delayed.
After being read the official Commission order stating that the route would be adequate to serve traffic requirements for the next five to 10 years Woodward was asked if the delay would be that long. He replied he hoped not, and said it would not be that long if traffic counts at any time show the need for the improvements.

Woodward flatly denied that Cong. W. R. Poage of Waco had anything to do with the Commission's decision to stop the highway construction on or near the south city limits of Eastland. He said he had received two letters from Poage, but had personally not been in contact with him.
"We (highway commissions) would have made the same decision if no one had protested the route," he declared.
Woodward said that Eastland County has a lot of needed highway projects and that in many instances there is traffic count to justify the work. He said that Highway 6 and Highway 183 which goes north out of Cisco to Breckenridge both need improvements.
Summing up the Commission's ruling on stopping the proposed improvements which had been programmed on Highway 6 through Eastland, Woodward said he and other commissioners could not justify the large expenditure of money necessary to change the routing, which he said was adequately handling the present traffic load.
When the commission issued the order halting the improvements they said officially: "Whereas, strenuous objections were raised by citizens who reside adjacent to the proposed relocation along Walnut Street; and whereas, the present route through Eastland will adequately serve the traffic requirements for the next five to 10 years . . . the work is ordered terminated at or near the south city limits of Eastland . . ."
No mention of lack of financing was made at that time.

Texas-

vehicles, or by using a self-contained electronic guidance installed in the vehicle itself, he said.
Other safety devices which may eventually aid highway travelers, Woodward said, include:
Mirrors or electronic warning signals used on the approaches to hill crests or curvature of the highway obscures the view of approaching traffic.
Radar braking in fog, rain, sleet or snow by use of radar or photo-electric cells which would sense the engine heat or exhaust of cars ahead.
High-frequency radio waves which would slow down or stop vehicles automatically in case of an accident in the road ahead.
Woodward said future highway travelers may also be able to enjoy riding on thin but strong and smooth plastic highways—or on the soil itself. "Chemicals are used to stabilize soils and make them usable as present highway bases over which concrete or asphalt is poured," he said.
"If further chemical stabilization can be attained, someday you may be able to use the ground you walk on as highway surfaces."
To use these improved types of highways, vehicles using electricity, atomic energy or solar power may be developed, he said. "Instead of wheels, vehicles of the future may ride on rails or on a soft blanket of compressed air a few inches above the earth."

Woodward tied this vision of a push-button future directly to the continued ability of the University of Texas and other schools to produce competent engineering and scientific graduates. "If we are to enjoy the advances in motoring speed and safety which we anticipate, it will be through the efforts of experts in the field of highway transportation who have studied at schools such as our own University of Texas," Woodward said.
A member of the Highway Commission for the past two years, Woodward and LLB degrees from the University of Texas spoke to exes from Callahan, Eastland, Ford, and Stephens.

Are you playing the game fairly or are you hitting below the belt?
You take the position that when Bob Poage was elected to Congress 22 years ago, that somehow he lost his rights as a citizen and taxpayer. I know that they take away your citizenship when you are sent to the pen but you are the first man I have heard of that wants to take away a man's citizenship because the people elected him to Congress.
In your column on Sunday you seem to be threatening Hal Woodward, member of the Texas Highway Commission, when you say the "Tea Sippers" would have something to say to him. Now I ask you who is trying to throw their weight around? Who belongs to the "exclusive" club you call the Tea Sippers? I am sure they must be the real "elite" of Eastland. I know we poor people can't afford to belong to the Lone Cedar Country Club.
There is something else I can't understand. You told the highway men that one of the reasons for moving the highway off Seaman Street was because of the danger to the children of South Ward but what you neglected to tell them was that the city has already bought land to build a school and that South Ward will be abandoned. Of course, everyone knows that the real reason was that the people on Seaman saw a chance to get rid of something they did not want, namely Highway 6. They did not seem to worry about what it would do to business to move it four blocks west on Walnut.
I am wondering if you will print this. I know you can dish it out but can you take it, also?

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas

A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

CONFIDENCES PROTECTED

Under the law what you as a client tell your lawyer in confidence he may tell no one else without your consent.

Nor can a judge order him or his professional employees (like secretaries) to reveal such communications in court.

Why have such a privilege? Chiefly, to do justice; it encourages clients to tell their lawyers what they have to know to help and to advise them fully, things about their family, business, and private affairs, their hopes, fears, and ambitions.

No lawyer may speak of certain things, even after a client dies. For a client may well have to give his lawyer details which, if revealed, might harm those he most wanted to protect.

Yet, in some very rare cases, to help carry out the client's desires after death, a lawyer may have a reveal a confidence, under certain safeguards, to uphold his client's purposes.

What are confidential communications? Anything a client tells his lawyer when he seeks advice about his personal, business, or legal affairs—talks and letters, photographs, charts, and other documents and records.

Confidential communications protect you as the client, not your lawyer. If you break the confidence, a lawyer may also have to talk, for the communication is no longer confidential. You may break a confidence by testifying about it, or by having unauthorized persons hear or see what was communicated.

No lawyer may keep quite about a crime or fraud a client has told him he plans to commit. But afterwards, an accused person may talk freely to his lawyer. Even if guilty, he has a right to have his side of the story presented to the court as it may affect his punishment. A person in trouble needs to talk to someone without fear that what he says will become public.

In some states certain other professional people, such as physicians and clergymen, may receive privileged communications. However Texas, law makes no provision for privileged communications with physicians and clergymen.

(This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Maintaining more than a B average in all her subjects at Texas State College for Women, Miss Frances Ringold of Ranger is entitled to class exemption this semester. Students with this high scholastic average make applications in the Registrar's office and following approval from that office are not subject to compulsory class attendance.

Judge B. W. Patterson of the 88th District Court, in empanelling his grand jury for the March term, charged that body to look into purported violations of various laws he later named and whether they found evidence to support indictment or not, to make recommendations that might be used in efforts to have such laws enforced.

Fiji Island Natives Are Contented and Healthy

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles written for the Telegram by Joseph M. Perkins, who, with his wife and sister, is on a world tour.)

By JOSEPH M. PERKINS

On Sunday the 19th, we docked at Suva, the seat of the British government in the Fiji Islands.

Before arriving we had purchased tickets for a half day tour and our bus awaited us on the dock. Soon we were riding through tropical forests where many kinds of trees, shrubs and ferns made a solid green curtain on both sides of the highway. Occasionally there was an opening through which we could glimpse the harbor and the distant mountains, some being 4,000 feet high.

After climbing for a considerable distance, we emerged into more open country where there were many homes. Some were grass houses, others were built of lumber and all were neat and clean. We passed through small villages where Shell and Mobile gasoline stations were in evidence.

The Hong Poo Bakery was closed, I noticed, but other small stores were open for business. As usual in British territory, the traffic drives on the left, a thing that I find difficult to get used to. The telephone poles were nearly all made of concrete, as was the case in the West Indies, so that birds cannot peck holes in them. We were on a volcanic island and at one village, there was a good sized lava quarry which supplies the material for road construction.

I noticed that the Fijian people were healthy and contented looking. Some, in fact, were very good looking. They enjoy a far better standard of living than do the natives on the islands in the west Indies.

After perhaps an hour on the bus, we arrived at a landing on the Rewa River, a broad slowly flowing stream that resembles some of the larger rivers in southern Mexico. There we transferred to two launches, ours being the Sere Ni Wei, whatever that may mean. At the landing were several natives among them being a group of choir girls with Bibles and song books. They got into a long canoe and were off to some church, or possibly to an open air service. They were dressed in attractive white costumes and were barefooted.

The two launches soon were cruising down river amid dense green banks, with now and then a low tree covered island, so low that the waves from the launches washed in among the trees and caused them to sway.

There appeared to be no dry land on these islands. As we progressed towards the sea, the country changed in looks and became more open. Finally we put in at a very attractive small island called Nakulau with large shade trees and acres of soft green grass. Here we found bath houses and two of us went swimming in the nice warm seawater on a shady beach. The sun was hot and a few minutes in the water was enough.

Half an hour later we were again on the launch headed for the open sea. Tea and cakes were served by our launch hostess and later we were treated to delicious bananas and pineapple slices. At about 2 p.m. we docked near the Oriana at Suva after a very enjoyable half day trip. The cost was $2.75 6d, or about $6 U. S. money.

Later in the afternoon we took a taxi to the Fiji Museum and there we found a fine collection of interesting things, among which were small scale models of Fijian villages, great canoes and implements. The old canoes were 120 feet long with masts of 60 feet and carried 150 men. Also, there were relics of the Mutiny on the Bounty.

It is now late afternoon and we are packing our luggage as we will leave the ship at Wellington in the morning. This noon I happened to be with the Old Timer, when the bugle call sounded for dinner. It was an odd but rather unusual tune. When I commented on it he said that it is an old British Army tune which says "Come to the Cook House Door, Boys."

Some Pensions And Annuities Are Taxable

Pension and annuity payments received by individuals during 1960 come in three forms for federal income tax purposes: nontaxable, fully taxable, or partly taxable, according to Arthur E. Fogle, Jr., Administrative Officer, Internal Revenue Service, Abilene.

Tax-free pensions which should not be reported on Uncle Sam's tax return include Social Security payments, Railroad Retirement Act pensions, pensions to veterans, and family benefits and disability retirement pay of military personnel, if retired on disability resulting from active service, the IRS representative said.

On the other hand, he added, payments received by a retired employee from a pension plan provided by his employer, without cost to the employee, are fully taxable.

Taxpayers with questions on this subject may get Document No. 5018, "Retirement Income and Credit," from the IRS office.

Here's what's going on down at the Internal Revenue Service District office in Dallas, according to District Director Ellis Campbell, Jr.

Some taxpayers are filing forms 1040-A or 1040-W when their interest income of more than $200 requires they file a Form 1040.

Revenue urges taxpayers with more than $200 interest income to get a Form 1040 and re-file the correct form.

You may recall Uncle Sam's tax collecting agency anything you desire, but please make checks or money orders for 1960 taxes due payable to "Internal Revenue Service."

Send returns and payments to the District Director of Internal Revenue, 2101 Pacific Avenue Dallas Texas, not later than April 17. This word of sage advice comes from Fogle.

Red Cross Conducts Blood Research Program

During the past year Texas residents have received, through the American National Red Cross, blood derivatives valued at $124,372. Figures announced today in Houston by James L. Whitcomb and in Dallas by Dan C. Williams, Red Cross national fund vice chairmen for the state, indicate that 43,455 units of the derivatives were distributed in Texas for medical use.

Four derivatives or fractional parts of the blood are provided by Red Cross from blood given by volunteer donors through 55 regional blood centers throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. These derivatives are separated from whole blood not needed during the 21-day period it can be preserved. These blood fractions—gamma globulin, serum albumin, fibrinogen, and vaccinia immune globulin—are helping thousands of people every year.

In Texas, 43,330 units of gamma globulin have been allocated during the past year. Widely used in the prevention and modification of measles and hepatitis, it is also necessary in treating cases of gamma globulin deficiencies.

Serum albumin is used in emergency treatment for shock, burns, and in replacing lost proteins in the blood as a result of kidney and liver diseases. Here in Texas, 101 units of 100 cc each have been distributed to hospitals with an estimated value of $3,535.

The third derivative now in use is fibrinogen, used to control bleeding following childbirth. It is credited with saving many lives, and is supplied to hospitals at their specific request. Distribution totaled 24 unit in the state last year at an estimated commercial value of $1,680.

The fourth and newest discovery in blood fractionation research is vaccinia immune globulin, known simply as V. I. G. This derivative was prepared to combat the rare instances in which a strange reaction from smallpox vaccination endangers sight and occasionally life. At the present time, Red Cross, in cooperation with the armed forces, is the only source in North America for V. I. G. Limited quantities are available at 15 Red Cross regional blood centers for use by doctors.

The search for additional life-saving blood derivatives continues, Whitcomb pointed out. Although the cost to the Red Cross for processing these derivatives was $850,000 last year, the organization continues research in blood fractions and their uses.

In the 16-state Midwestern Area, Red Cross is currently supplying products for research to four universities. The success of this program is apparent from the discovery and study of V. I. G. at the University of Colorado Medical Center in Denver. Other research projects in progress include further investigation of plasminogen.
