Mass Raid By Superforts Is Reason For No A-Bomb Blow

By MAX BOYD
 AP Staff

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17. — The bombing of massed Korean Communists by B-29 Superfortresses underscores some of the reasons why atomic bombs are not now being used in support of American and South Korean soldiers.

With around 100 B-29s, the Air Force was able to spread approximately 1,000 tons of conventional bombs over an area in which North Koreans were concentrated for an expected attack.

The superforts' bombing runs were made without interference by enemy fighters, since U. S. and Australian planes completely controlled the air over Korea.

Whether the expected Communist attack will be stopped indefinitely by the single massive bombing is a question.

But should the Communists renege and reform for a drive to cut the American and South Korean defenses, the superforts can strike again. Their ability to do this is limited only by the need for continuing attacks on more distant reinforcement and supply centers, by the amount of bombs the U. S. has in the Far East and on the way, and by consideration of crew endurance and mechanical maintenance.

In an emergency, not only could the B-29s be used against troops massing for an attack; they could be joined by the hundreds of light bombers and fighter-bombers which the Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps are operating in support of ground troops all along the front.

Airmen say the total number of planes flying in Korea is not the maximum that could be used effectively there. But it is large enough to strike a continuous blow with conventional bombs when concentrated on a single target area.

Unless and until this conventional striking power proves inadequate, the use of atomic bombs is unlikely.

In the massive, superfortress bombing, the area attacked was seven and a half miles long and three and a half wide.

To cover such an area with atomic blasts of fatal force, it would take not one but something like half a dozen A-bombs of the power used at Hiroshima. Authorities agree, however, that they would kill far larger numbers of the enemy than would ordinary bombs.

For safety's sake, American troops facing an area under atomic attack would have to remain at a greater distance than if the zone were under attack with conventional explosives.

Some American authorities also are fearful that use of atomic weapons, even against purely military targets rather than city masses, would tend to turn people elsewhere in Asia against this country.

Furthermore, President Truman has said that the use of A-bombs in Korea is not under consideration.

But if the United States were fighting an enemy that had control of the air, stronger arguments could be advanced for using the atomic bomb against critical troop concentrations.

In such a case, fast jet bombers carrying the bombs could undertake individual sneak attacks. The 500-mile-an-hour Boeing B-47 might be used on such missions. Even if only one or two atomic bomb carriers got through to the target, they would exert as much destructive power as a substantial force of bombers battling their way through an enemy Air Force with conventional explosives.

Big Push On To Get Congress Out Of Town By End Of Month

By EDWIN B. HAACKINSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17. — A big push to get Congress out of town by the end of this month or just before the Labor Day holidays gained influential backing today.

Sen. Myers (D-Pa.), acting majority leader of the Senate, told a reporter that congressional chiefs are aiming at a legislative shutdown Saturday, Sept. 2.

"We've got an awful lot of important things to consider before we can quit but that's what we are aiming at now," he added.

The confirmed earlier reports by Senate Republican Leaders Wherry of Nebraska and Tamm of Ohio that they would cooperate in an effort to wind up major congressional business during the next two weeks.

It was the first time since the Communist invasion of Korea on June 25 that Senate leaders of both major parties agreed it might be possible to quit lawmaking on a certain date.

House leaders previously have urged an outright adjournment of Congress at the end of this month but Senate bosses doubted they could finish before Saturday, Sept. 2, just before Labor Day.

Even then senators favor a series of three-day recesses under an agreement that no major business

Congress Likely To Leave UMT On Shelf For A Year

By DONALD SANDERS
 AP Staff

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17. — Congress appeared likely today to leave on a shelf at least until next year a request from the Defense Department for standby legislation to require military training of the nation's youths.

President Truman gave second-hand backing to the request for prompt approval of a bill calling for six months of continuous training and another six in related activities for young men between 17 and 24.

But the White House made it clear, before Secretary of Defense Johnson submitted his request last year, that Mr. Truman will not press for such legislation this year.

The President has repeatedly asked for universal military training — commonly called UMT — but it has been quelled by White House spokesmen within the past few days as not wanting to jeopardize other defense legislation by pressing for it now.

Johnson proposed that Congress put the UMT law on the books at once, but that it give the President authority to say when the program shall start. He said the military could not now divert to UMT the trained officers who would be needed as instructors for some 850,000 youths annually.

The secretary, who said Mr. Truman approved his request, made no estimate of the program's cost. Recent official estimates have placed it at about $2 billion a year.

The bill which Johnson submitted to the Senate and House Armed Services Committees would divide the proposed training into two phases. After six months of continuous paid training, youths could elect a number of courses including active duty or service in reserve or National Guard units.

Sen. Gurney (R-S.D.), senior Republican on the Senate committee, expressed some doubt as to whether UMT could be approved this year. He said it is his personal feeling that Congress should stay in session long enough to do so.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House committee has said he will introduce any UMT bill the Defense Department wants, but that his group is so busy with other legislation he thinks the Senate should act first.

Chairman Tydings (D-Md.) of the Senate committee, saying he had not yet seen Johnson's letter, declined to speculate on prospects for action this year. He promised, however, that "we certainly will give it a hearing."

UMT has stirred up heated controversy several times over the last few years. Despite a growing congressional concern with the nation's security, it would be certain to do so again.

And since the lawmakers have already stayed in Washington longer than they had planned, leaders counseled privately there was little or no chance that Johnson's request would get any priority before next year.

Ladylike Charm Is Trend For Fall

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Newsfeature Beauty Editor

The little lady look will be so important for teenagers this year that a tomboy will stand out in the crowd. Gone are blue jeans and bobby sox for dressup wear. The modern miss will go to a party neatly coiffed, daintily dressed and properly scented.

She will not go to the extreme in selecting fragrances to go with her new found charm. A clear, light and refreshing floral scent can be enchanting.

During Elizabethan times English girls used to sew sprigs of dried lavender in the hems of their dresses, or in tiny bags for their clothes chests. They also dried lavender blossoms as stuffing for boudoir chairs and pillows. Teenagers today are likely to saturate small cotton squares with lavender sachet and tuck them into their evening bag, dress hem and lingerie drawers.

Sachet would seem to be the answer to feminine scents. Usually, they are fragrant without being overpowering conveniently carried, inexpensive and easy to use. When you find a sachet that suits your personality, use it alone. A dab on the inside of your cotton gloves, on your hairbrush or a sachet bag pinned to the ruffle of your petticoat can give you a wonderful feeling of femininity.

YOUTHFUL SCENTS . . . She tucks lavender sachet into her evening bag. Her scarf is of that ladylike lavender hue, designed by Vera for 1950 charm.

Schiaparelli Has Encounter With Custom Officials

NICE, France, Aug. 17, (Sp)—An encounter with customs inspectors and several hours of questioning by police may cost Elsa Schiaparelli, Paris fashion designer, more than $1,500.

The widely-known modiste was detained yesterday as she was about to board a plane for Tunis. The police asked her about $8,500 worth of jewels she reported stolen while playing bridge Aug. 5 at the French Riviera home of American Industrialist Norman Winston, next door to the Prince Ali Khan Rita Hayworth chateau. Gem jewels by other guests brought the reported theft total to $60,000.

It was reported some of the jewels said stolen were found yesterday in her luggage. The 53-year-old fashion leader explained these were pieces she thought were taken but later found in a bureau drawer.

"When I found the jewels, it seemed unnecessary to notify the police because the most important piece was still missing," she told newsmen.

Police said they confiscated $1,458 in American currency which Mme. Schiaparelli failed to declare. In addition, she faced a fine of $148.

It was the designer's second brush with customs officials. While enroute from the U. S. to Vichy, France, Jan. 7, 1941, a tin of vitamins and $236 were seized from her by authorities when the liner Stoney pausied at Bermuda. The vitamins were returned, but the government declared the non-

Cab Driver Obeys Order, Gains By It

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17, (Sp)—The cab driver did everything the holdup man told him to do. And the robber came off second best financially. Here's how:

A man entered Frank Donatucci's cab last night and told the driver to take him to 10th and Brown Streets. Before they reached that spot, the man produced a pistol and told Donatucci "this is a hold-up."

At 10th and Brown, he ordered the driver to hand over his wallet. Donatucci did so. The robber told Donatucci to get back in his cab and drive away. Again the driver complied.

At police headquarters, Donatucci reported the wallet contained his driver's license and personal papers. All his money was in his pockets.

Regulations Ignored For Korean Girl

TOKYO, Aug. 17, (Sp)—A young Korean girl was flown to Japan by the Air Corps contrary to regulations. But the Army is looking the other way.

The girl guided five wounded Americans of the Second Division to safety after they were cut off near the Pohang Air Field. Snipers wounded her on the way back. She collapsed at a field dressing station.

The 35th Fighter Group ignored regulations and flew her to a hospital in Japan.

A Bible Thought For Today—

Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.—James 1:27.

Big Push Is Getting Underway And Much Depends On Outcome

The heat is on in Korea. The North Korean commander in chief made an appeal in his massed armies confronting the U.S. UN forces to "drive them from Korea by the end of August." The Red commander declared time was running out on the North Koreans, and called for "annihilation" of the Americans and South Koreans.

"The longer this is delayed, the stronger will become the United States and South Korean defenses," he said.

This is, of course, quite true. The issue hangs on the results of the gigantic battle now shaping up along the perimeter of the U.S.-South Korean zone. If the all-out Communist assaults can be beaten off, if the line holds to even approximately its present outline, the defending forces have better than an even chance of mounting an offensive of their own, and driving the invaders from South Korea.

This is a battle comparable to the American Gettysburg in numbers involved on both sides, and in strategic significance. It is, however, infinitely more gory and intense than the fighting at Gettysburg, where two great armies stood and slugged it out toe to toe, and after three days both withdrew to lick their wounds.

The battle shaping in Korea is the climax of weeks of terrific fighting, with the United Nations forces the underdogs from the start. We do not know what General MacArthur has been able to assemble by way of supplies and reserves, but we do know that it will be tough and that it will be one of the most terrific battles in history.

The antics of Congress, the partisan bickering that is going on, seems like a sacrilege in the face of what's shaping up in Korea. It is as though the Congress had stopped to play marbles, just as things reach a climax on the fighting front. We have no doubt that our GIs will give their all; Congress will do well to emulate this awareness.

Difficult To Achieve Economy When Sacred Ox Is Being Gored

The House has voted to restore twice-a-day mail service, presumably negating an action taken several months ago by the postmaster general.

A measure which would restore delivery to a twice daily basis had been bottled up in the rules committee. Then a petition was circulated to force it to the floor. When this maneuver succeeded, members then stood up to be counted. There were 213 favoring restoration of the maximum service, 159 who thought the postmaster general's action was justified.

The measure now goes to the Senate. Here it may be bottled, too. But if it comes out on the floor, the popular vote-getting appeal is apt to win approval there. There is a possibility, even a probability, that the President will veto it. And that will be that.

The incident serves to remind how difficult it is to achieve economy. The post office department has had its operational problems, and it has had its brickbats from Congress because it has had to appeal time and again for appropriations to make up deficits. When an action is taken, however, to cut expenses, a bus and trolley—most of it within Congress and by carriers effected by the reduction—went up. The sacred ox had been gored. All of which gives pause to ask: Do we really want economy enough to let it begin with us instead of someone else?

Affairs Of The World—DeWitt MacKenzie

Korea War Part Of World Fight Between Democracy, Communism

YOU ARE A UNITED NATIONS SOLDIER (say "American") on a battle line across the inhospitable terrain of Korea, half a world away from home.

Why are you there? What are you fighting for?

Those are questions you are bound to ask yourself—and probably the answers don't come quickly. If you were at home defending your country from invasion, the answers would be easy.

But why Korea? That's a long, long way from your family hearth.

Is it an ideal you are defending? We found World War I "to make the world safe for democracy." Is that what we are doing now?

YOU OUGHT TO KNOW THE ANSWER to that, as you fight through the mud of the rice paddies or over the precipitous heights against a foe whose language and ways of life are wholly strange. What does he mean to you?

You are entitled to a good reason for your assignment. After all, war is concrete and it is cruel; ideals are intangible.

Well, idealism of course does enter into the sacrifice. America and other countries again are fighting "to make the world safe for democracy"—to protect a small state against aggression which it couldn't deal with alone. Furthermore we are doing it under the aegis of the United Nations.

However, we must look deeper than that. There are many Americans who feel this wouldn't be sufficient cause to send our boys to such a war.

WE FIND A FAR MORE SUBSTANTIAL reason in the fact that the Korean War is part and parcel of the world conflict between communism and democracy. From that viewpoint we are defending our own door-steps, and in a big way.

The Korean conflict is an important part of the rapidly swelling conquest of Asia by communism. There is a tendency in the West to overlook this fact, because the dangers and the trials of the European conflict have been so much slower.

But the Red offensive in Europe has lost its steam. Having overrun a vast amount of territory which was made vulnerable to it by the world war, it now has been halted by the firm stand of the western powers, backed by American assistance.

So we see Moscow shifting the weight of its offensive to the Asiatic theatre. Korea is an important phase of the Far Eastern conflict.

SHOULD RUSSIA OVERRUN THE Orient, its next main objective would be the Western Hemisphere. Thus, in the larger sense, when we send aid to Korea now we are in fact defending our own country from an assault which is bound to come if communism gains further ground.

And we must keep this unwelcome fact in mind: The new and terrible weapons of war already placed us within a potential enemy's reach, no matter how far away he may be.

That gives rise to another query: In view of these circumstances, must we keep right on sending our soldiers into far lands to fight?

If we are smart we shall side-step that question until we come up against it in a big way. But there are a lot of folks who certainly feel like saying "no."

Perhaps the ideal will be achieved—the creation of a United Nations "police force" strong enough to deal with such situations, assisted by powerful economic sanctions against aggressors.

Then all loyal members would contribute their share and no single country would be called upon to bear an undue burden.

Patrol Scout "Worries" When Operating Behind Enemy Lines

NAKTONG RIVER FRONT, KOREA, UP—How does a patrol scout feel while operating behind enemy lines?

"Worried," said Sgt. Carl D. Martin of Seagoville, Tex.

That pretty well sums up the attitude of most of the quiet heroes who have been slipping across the Naktong River to gather information on North Korean troop movements.

To Martin, member of the 5th Cavalry Regiment's reconnaissance platoon, his assignment is just another odd job to do for the Army he has served in eight years. He had made three trips over the river when I talked to him recently—two by night and one in full daylight.

"I JUST DON'T REMEMBER THE exact date," he said a little wearily. After men have been at the front for a while they no longer measure time so much by days and nights as by events that make for each separate calendar of his own—the death of a buddy, a letter from home, a trip back to the rear where maybe, if they are lucky, a surprise steak dinner and a couple of cans of cold beer may make their night's sleep out of danger doubly relaxing.

As the dusk-covered sergeant talked of the platoon's patrol sorties, several of his men were bathing in a creek under a tree that shielded them from the harsh sun. An expression almost of tenderness came over Martin's face as he watched them shouting and laughing like school-boys.

"You know some of those kids are awful young," he said. "But they have stood up something wonderful under this work."

"WE ARE SUPPOSED TO BE GOING only on recon missions and not to look for a fire-fight. But they usually turn out to be combat patrols. Once you get across that river you can't call the police if you get into trouble. And there aren't any traffic cops to give you the green light or the red light."

On that first trip the platoon went alone and went six miles beyond the heavily guarded river line. Each man carried only a cartridge belt, a couple of bandoliers of ammo and minimum field rations. They took turns packing the four radios they brought along to report their progress back to headquarters. The radios weigh 32 pounds each.

"Since then we have operated with the South Koreans," said Sgt. Martin. "They're very good soldiers. We go over by boats after sending a few men across first to scout the landing area."

GOP, Dixiecrat Alliance Seeks To Capture Congress Control By 1952

WASHINGTON. — Right-wing Republicans and Dixiecrats are secretly plotting a political alliance to capture control of Congress by 1952, then to take over the electoral college—key to the Presidency.

In brief, the plan calls for Republicans and Southern Democrats to join forces without changing party affiliations. However, they would merge their seniority and run Congress jointly. Then the next step would be to organize a similar coalition to dominate the electoral college and name a conservative President.

The ringleader is a stocky, muddly-faced North Carolinian, named J. Harvie Williams. Though comparatively unknown, he claims to have the support of such GOP leaders as Senators Karl Mundt of South Dakota and John Bricker of Ohio, Congressmen Charles Halleck of Indiana and Frederic Coudert of New York; also such Southern stalwarts as Senators Harry Byrd of Virginia and Dick Russell of Georgia, Congressman Gene Cox of Georgia, and Governor-elect James F. Byrnes of South Carolina.

Williams has set forth his so-called "political realignment" plan in painstaking detail in a series of "strictly confidential" memos, which are also marked "please do not discuss outside sympathetic circles."

"Our plan for political realignment is a simple one," he writes. "It involves nothing more than a normal alliance between Republicans and Southern Democrats in the Senate, in the House and in the electoral college."

Of the 64 Senators in the Republican-Southern bloc, Williams calculates that three Southerners and seven Republican Senators would refuse to join the alliance. This would still leave a majority of 54 seats to 42 in the House, he expects to lose 21 Republicans and 13 Southerners, giving the coalition control of the House by a 249 to 195 margin.

Williams explains: "In effect, this realignment would create a new party, but without the necessity of any change in party names. This realignment is legally possible now. The rules of the Senate and the rules of the House speak of the majority and of the minority rather than of Democratic and Republican and members of Congress are elected under the laws of the 48 states.

"Similarly," he continues, "presidential electors are elected under the laws of the several states. The 1948 'secession' of the Democratic parties in four Southern states indicates the method and the possibilities of extending realignment into the election of the Presidents."

Williams has already formed a "front" organization to carry out his plan. He calls it the Citizens Political Committee, though he admits frankly "its title does not disclose its purpose." Williams uses the Remington Rand Co., room 1200, 314 Fourth Avenue, New York City as headquarters—though he is not now on Remington Rand's payroll.

In a private letter, dated May 13, Williams named ex-Senator Albert Hawkes of New Jersey as the leading money raiser.

"Sen. Hawkes has agreed to handle that money raising for us," Williams writes. "I am not going to initiate any new prospects, and have turned over to him the names of the men he knows whom I've seen or corresponded with on the subject."

In another letter, dated May 1, Williams also writes: "Two things need to be done to put the realignment proposal in shape for presentation to a group for substantial financial support (about $200,000 for a one-year budget). Harold E. Taibot has agreed to arrange that group meeting. The two things are required by Southern Senate leaders. They are: (1) a rather detailed plan for the joint nomination in 1952, and (2)

a merging on paper of committee seniorities of Republicans and Southern Democrats."

As a sample of private congressional reaction, Williams received a letter from Sen. Mundt, dated May 16, and addressed "Dear Harvie."

"I am still inclined to believe that the merger at the congressional level has too many practical barriers to make it feasible at this juncture and that the most realistic approach is one which would handle this matter in the electoral college," the Senator from South Dakota suggested.

Williams' political thesis is that the United States is now a nation of "mongrels" with most of the "alien" elements concentrated in the urban North. His basis for realignment is a geographic unification of "white, English-speaking stocks" to elect a "conservative President." For this post, Williams favors Sen. Bricker or possible Sen. Byrd.

Jimmy Roosevelt, now running for governor of California, is frustrated over a secret public-opinion poll he took the other day. It revealed that 30 per cent of California's Democrats think Jimmy's opponent, Gov. Warren, is a Democrat.

When asked about the poll, Roosevelt grinned:

"I don't want to run a smear campaign, but I'm determined to expose Warren's affiliation with the Republican Party."

General William (Kishkait) Miller, doorkeeper of the House, is a great favorite with children, especially those of his Sunday School class at the Fountain Memorial Baptist Church in Washington.

After each service Miller stands outside the church and shakes hands with the youngsters. One little three-year-old girl, who had just attended her first Sunday School, rushed home to tell her father all about it.

"Guess what, daddy!" she exclaimed. "I got to shake hands with God."

GOP Attacks On Handling Of Foreign Policy Makes Cooperation Doubtful

WASHINGTON. — Republicans kicked off their 1952 campaign with the denunciation of administration foreign policy by the Republican membership of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

At the same time they placed in doubt the future of the bipartisan foreign policy. Those who think that policy is an imperative in America's battle with the Russians at Lake Success are eyeing the irate Democrats with apprehension.

They still believe that, if the Democrats will moderate their anger, enough Republicans can be found to save the day. What they most fear is an extreme reaction that will consolidate the Republicans in much the same manner as the Tydings report on the McCarthy charges did.

The Republican manifesto represents a concession to those Republicans who believe the Dewey-Vandenberg-Dulles policy of keeping foreign affairs out of the 1948 election caused their defeat. These dissenters now control the national committee and lead the Congress minorities. If they persist in the new campaign, the Korean adventure gives them an excellent chance of getting away with it.

Korea appeals to the emotions and the cold record on international cooperation, which favors the Democrats, does not.

Korea is going badly, so the bewildered and alarmed public is looking for scapegoats. The Democrats are in power and must take the rap.

If things are not going well in Korea by early October the Democrats are certain to suffer reverses, possibly serious ones. Billions of words will be said between now and November about how it is their fault. A few thousand words of good news from the front can save the day for them.

Actually, the Republicans probably do not need to beat the disaster drums. If we lose our shirts in Korea, public anger against the ins will be a tidal wave. If we are winning, people will feel fine despite past errors.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the ambitious freshman on foreign relations who aspires to Senator Vandenberg's role as his party leader in that field, is the moving spirit behind the critical manifesto. He had no trouble taking along the basically isolationist Senators Wiley and Hickenlooper while the misgivings of Sen. Alexander Smith on China policy put him in line.

They visited Senator Vandenberg in his hospital room last Friday. Senator Vandenberg has been in the Senate only once since June, and returned recently to the hospital for special care. He is described by an associate as not very happy about the idea but while he wouldn't sign it, he did consent to say that it was done with his knowledge and he was not in disagreement with it.

Chairman Connally of foreign relations, in a tantrum about the whole matter and feeling personally insulted, specifically excoriated Senator Vandenberg from his wrath. So do other influential Democrats.

Former Sen. John Foster Dulles, special consultant to the Secretary of State and Governor Dewey's foreign-affairs adviser, did not concur either in the fact of making the statement or in its substance. He saw an early draft and indicated some reservations regarding it. Some of his suggested changes were made; some were not. He had expected to see it again but no final draft was shown him and, after learning of Senator Vandenberg's agreement with it, he did not attempt to impede it.

One fact stands out with respect to Republican handling of the McCarthy issue and now of foreign policy. These people are in the saddle who believe that the only thing that counts in politics is whether you win or lose; they have been losing and they are going to try to win with whatever weapons they can find at hand.

Peace Can Be Attained, But There Must Be No Compromise

Early this week the nation quietly observed the fifth anniversary of V-J Day.

Just five years ago a happy and exultant people tore up and down the streets—from New York to California; from Portland, Maine, to Florida, and from Wisconsin to Texas.

Yes, throughout the length and breadth of America—in fact the entire world—people sighed with relief as the worst war in world history came to an end.

But, despite all the gaiety, there was a somber note as people realized that American boys lay dead in places no one ever heard of among the four corners of the globe. And people remembered, too, that one tomb was already set up in this the 20th century, dedicated to the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery.

And with all the fun and festivities, a tired, but resolute nation set as its goal—peace. We've tried hard in the past five years to reach that goal, but as the days drag on, it appears we are beginning to lose faith in peace on earth, good will towards man.

Another ground-gaining-by-force dictator has arisen to seek the lands and peoples that eluded Adolf Hitler. Thus far, he has managed to trample a goodly number of lands. But, he is still hungry—hungry for power and the right to dominate an entire world.

He will, in time, find out that you can take a person's body, but you cannot take his mind and soul. These two, no man on earth can take from you. They are yours, to keep and hold, until the day you die.

But how many of us are willing to realize that?

We see the monstrous forces of evil and injustice trample a nation, subjugate it under its will, whether it be reluctantly or willingly, and we say, "It can't happen here."

And many of us who do believe it COULD happen here, are not willing to halt the steady growth of this evil before it reaches maturity.

Perhaps you still feel, with the war in Korea, that we must not be too hasty in our actions, that Korea is too far away from us to worry about its effects here in good old U.S.A.

But success often breeds more understanding and success in Korea for the dictatorial forces, will breed further undertakings in other lands.

True, we promised our dead five years ago, just like we did after the first war, that they valiantly gave up their lives for a lasting peace.

That they didn't is our fault. If we had nipped aggression in the bud, if we had taken a firm stand, not alone as a government, but as a people, this war in Korea might never have been. Too, we were slow about realizing that to prevent troubles away from America could prevent trouble, in time, here at home.

So, five years after V-J Day, we fight again. This time, without war, America has gotten tough. We must remain tough if we are to keep our promises to our valiant dead, and to ourselves, to maintain peace.

There is no compromise with dictatorship. There must never be. To give in one iota to the whims of such men, is to seal our doom in time.

Now, as never before, we seek peace. But peace rests with the determination of a free people to secure peace at any cost.

Non-Operating Trainmen Seek Similar Gains As Brethren

WASHINGTON, UP—THIS IS AN ABC on the threatened rail strike. The dispute involves most of the railroads and two big unions—the conductors and trainmen—with 250,000 or more members.

Most workers are covered by the 40-hour week law—the wage-hour act—passed in 1938. It says a covered worker must be paid time-and-one-half for every hour worked over a 40 week.

But this does not apply to railroad workers. The law specifically says they're not covered. They get paid by the hour, day or trip, depending on the kind of job they do.

There are 21 railroad unions, numbering 1,250,000 men, divided into two groups: Five operating unions, and 16 non-operating.

The five operating unions are men who run the trains: Engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen, switchmen. The 16 non-operating unions are men who work around the station or yard but don't run the trains: Clerks, mechanics, station men, and so on.

THE NON-OPERATING MEN GET paid on an hourly or daily basis. The operating ones get paid by trip or mileage.

About two years ago they demanded a 40 hour week, with the same pay they got for working 48 hours.

When they and the railroad disagreed, the President appointed an emergency board to look into the dispute.

This board recommended for the 16 unions not only 48-hour pay for 40 hours' work but an additional increase of seven cents an hour.

This added seven cents was justified on the grounds that these 16 unions had lagged behind the others in wage adjustments.

These 16 non-operating unions are not involved in the present dispute. But the victory they won gave some of the five operating unions something to shoot for.

Now take the five operating unions.

ALL OF THEM GET PAID ON A TRIP or mileage basis but two of them, engineers and firemen, get something extra: The bigger the engine which pulls their train, the more pay they get. The other three—conductors, trainmen, switchmen—don't get that.

The engineers and firemen are not in the present dispute. But—

The other three—conductors, trainmen, switchmen—seeing what the engineers and firemen and the 16 non-operating unions are getting, make some demands of their own about a year ago.

(Only the conductors and trainmen are involved in the present strike threat, so the switchmen will be treated separately here, later.)

For those members of their unions the conductors and trainmen demanded what the engineers and firemen get. The bigger the engine which pulls the train, the bigger the pay. They didn't ask in this case for a 40-hour week since they get paid by the trip.

BUT THE TRAINMEN ALSO HAVE in their union some workers who don't ride the trains but work in the yards. They're called yardmen. For them the trainmen demanded what the 16-non-operating unions got:

Forty-eight hours' pay for 40 hours' work.

The railroads refused to agree. The government mediators tried to settle it. Finally, the President appointed an emergency board. This board didn't recommend what the conductors and trainmen asked. The board recommended:

Forty hours' pay for 40 hours' work (not 48 hours' pay for 40 hours' work) but to make up for the loss of the eight hours pay, the board suggested the yardmen get an increase of 18 cents an hour.

The trainmen's union rejected this on the grounds that the yardmen would need an increase of 31 cents an hour to make up for the loss of eight hours' pay (if they went on a 40-hour week.)

But—as for the demands by the trainmen and conductors that they get extra pay, according to the size of the engine which pulled their train, the President's board said "nothing doing."

AT THIS MOMENT, THAT'S WHERE the case stands with the 250,000 members of the trainmen's and conductors' unions threatening to strike.

Donna Reed Now Happy After Real Romance Scenes In Film

HOLLYWOOD, UP—After years of puppy love with Mickey Rooney and Platonic affairs with Alan Ladd, Donna Reed is finally getting some real romance on the screen.

"I feel like a new woman," she glowed. "I've got a new home, a new baby, a new contract and a new kind of role—the first I've ever had with any sex in it."

The sweet-faced actress from Denison Iowa, has just signed a deal with Columbia. She'll be in "The Hero" with John Derek, the most popular baby sex idol of the moment.

"It's a real witchy part," she declared. "I couldn't be happier, and for the first time I get to wear some appealing, clothes. I have the first low-cut evening gown I've ever worn in films."

Donna did 20 pictures in eight years at MGM and she was inevitably cast as the home-type girl. Either she ended up in a nunnery, as in "Green Dolphin Street," or she held hands with Mickey Rooney.

"Or I was a mother with three children."

"The only picture I had any romance in was 'They were expendable,'" she sighed. "I had some wonderful love scenes with John Wayne. But then the real-life counterparts of our roles saw the picture and complained that they were both married and that there had been no romance between them. So the scenes were cut out of the picture."

dream sequences. But at that time I'd Her film romances with Alan Ladd were no better.

"I played the widow of Alan's war buddy. The studio felt veterans would resent it if Alan tried to make love."

"And in 'Chicago Deadline' I was dead when the picture started. Alan and I were supposed to have some love scenes in fantasy had failed at the box-office and the studio didn't want to take a chance on it."

Russia Will Grab North Korea Before UN Can Restore Peace

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Staff
WASHINGTON, Aug. 17. — Many of the best informed American officials now believe Russia will openly grab North Korea—above the 38th Parallel—rather than let a victorious UN restore peace and unity to the country.

It is assumed here that the precise steps to be taken have been under negotiation between the Soviet Union and Communist China. It is also assumed they will act jointly when the time comes.

Administration officials, however, give little credence to reports which have come mainly from Chinese Nationalist sources that Russian Vice Premier V. M. Molotov has been in Peking, Red Chinese capital, negotiating with Premier Mao Tse Tung and other officials on this and related problems. Whether Molotov has or has not been there, the belief of responsible authorities here is that the Soviets and Chinese must be deeply involved in fateful talks at this time, concerning not only Korea but Formosa and other far eastern political questions.

Increasing evidence of the build-up of UN power in Southern Korea, it is believed, must now give the Russians and the Chinese virtual proof of the determination of the U. S. and other countries associated in the Korean struggle to drive the invaders out of the south. In other words, the Red strategists must now decide what means they will use to deal with a victorious UN coalition in Korea whereas up to this time they may very well have counted on a Communist victory.

For the UN the prospect of eventual success in South Korea has already raised the question, thus far unanswered, as to what UN forces should do when they reach the 38th Parallel. Should they then stop short on the theory that the invader has been driven out of South Korea? Or should they drive on in the belief that only by crushing the Communist military power can real peace be established in Korea?

There is wide-spread belief here that the latter course is the only defensible one. This belief, however, is based on an assumption that neither Russia nor Communist China will become directly engaged in the Korean conflict.

If the Russians, perhaps in collaboration with the Chinese Reds, reoccupy northern Korea which the Soviets left about two years ago, the whole problem for the UN powers will take on a new color. They will then have to decide whether to accept Russian domination of northern Korea as a fact to live with, or whether to try to drive the Red occupation forces out—which would mean fighting with Russia directly and which appears to be an unlikely course.

Informed officials based their speculation about Russia's probable action on the fact that Korea has great strategic importance in relation to Manchuria and the Soviet Pacific ports. They believe that if Moscow cannot dominate the country through Korean Communists it is determined to rule the northern half by occupation.

Speculation over Soviet-Chinese policy toward Formosa is much less definite. Mainly official Washington is trying to figure out why the Chinese Reds have not attacked the island yet—with the period of favorable weather for an amphibious operation about at an end.

One line of reasoning is that the Chinese Reds were not only ill prepared to launch an assault but also did not desire to become engaged in more fighting at this time even though the Russians may have been urging them to act in order to involve American forces on still a second front in the Far East.

Another line of speculation is that the Chinese Reds have been straining at the bit but that the Russians have prevented them from making an attack on Formosa because that would increase the dangers of bringing on a general war.

Kettle Creek Folks Still "See" Headless Frenchman

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., Aug. 17. (AP) — So you don't believe in ghosts? Well, maybe that's because you don't live near Road Hollow. For the headless Frenchman of Kettle Creek still roams the wilds in these parts.

At least, that's what the folks of Clinton County say. And a reporter and photographer for The Lock-Haven Express, who checked the authenticity of the legend, aren't saying yes or no.

Legend has it that the ghost belongs to a French explorer who robbed a secret cave of Indian silver some centuries ago. The Indians, it seemed, avenged their loss by beheading the Frenchman when he returned for more silver.

Reporter Pete Stevenson and Photographer Jim Patterson, acting on instructions from Hy Cramer, postmaster of the hamlet of Hammersley Fork, set out to track down the ghost.

On a chilly, misty night they parked their car near the bridge spanning Kettle Creek at Road Hollow. As they sat waiting, the only sound filling the night air was that of the distant pounding of a gas well drill working the night shift.

Suddenly a flickering, wavering form reared up less than 100 feet away. They edged toward the eerie, reddish-white figure for a better look. A sound like that of a low, almost painful, moan could be heard.

The figure glided away, up the bank and onto Road Hollow. It moved quickly in the faint moonlight. They ran to keep it in sight.

A metal filmholder fell from Patterson's pocket. They stopped to pick it up. When they looked up again, the headless Frenchman was gone.

Some say the Frenchman still roams the wilds of Clinton County looking for his head. Others say he's angry because "wildcaters" are drilling for gas.

As one valley resident put it: "It's his life blood, that natural gas, and these drillers are eating it all up. If they keep piping the gas out, the headless Frenchman will die."

Some scientifically-inclined folk scoff at the legend. They say the moan is nothing but methane gas seeping from crevices. A forest ranger offered the suggestion that the eerie, ghostlike figure is caused by glowing phosphorous clinging to moss and rotten logs in the damp woods.

And then there's the story of the silver. Woodsman Harry Walters showed Stevenson and Patterson a piece of silver the size of a golf ball. He said he found it in the woods. And there's a lot more of the Indian silver around, he said.

Disbelievers have an answer for that, too. They suggest it's some manner of ore which has become silverized over the years.

Anti-Red Bill Compromise May Untangle Issue

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
AP Staff
WASHINGTON, Aug. 17. — Senate Republican sponsors of an anti-Communist bill offered today to abandon their efforts to tie it to a home front mobilization measure—in exchange for a Democratic pledge.

The compromise proposed by Sens. Mundt (R-SD) and Ferguson (R-Mich) calls for a flat promise by the Democratic leaders to bring up the curb-the-Communists bill later for separate action.

"Those are the only terms on which we will withdraw the bill as a rider amendment to the economic controls bill," Ferguson told a reporter.

Sen. Maybank (D-SC), floor manager of the controls measure, said the Mundt-Ferguson proposal would have to await the return to Washington of Sen. Lucas (D-Ill), the majority leader. Lucas, who is in Illinois, is expected later this week.

Senate Democrats have arranged a conference for next Monday to discuss the tangled situation. The party's leaders, and Lucas particularly, have shown little sympathy for the Mundt-Ferguson version of internal security legislation.

Foes of the bill have argued that it would drive the Communists underground and make the problem more difficult to handle.

Maybank said that in his opinion the Mundt-Ferguson bill "doesn't stand a chance" of being adopted as a rider. However, he predicted approval of the bill, or similar legislation, if it comes up separately.

On the other hand, both Mundt and Ferguson said they are optimistic about the chances of nailing their program into the economic controls bill.

Their measure would require registration of Communists and Communist-front organizations, and would outlaw conspiracies aimed at overthrow of the government.

The home front mobilization bill scheduled for a Senate vote Monday would give President Truman an almost free hand to invoke wage-price-rationing controls whenever he saw fit. It also would authorize credit or allocation of scarce industrial materials, and other production controls.

Mundt and Ferguson, backed by the Senate Republican Policy Committee, have been trying for weeks to get action on their anti-Communist bill.

British And French Governments Won't Recall Parliaments

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The British and French Governments have turned deaf ears to demands they recall their parliaments from summer vacations immediately to deal with European defense problems.

Former Premier Paul Reynaud yesterday urged Premier Rene Pleven to recall the French assembly from the recess it began only 11 days ago.

Britain's Conservative Leader Winston Churchill and Liberal Head Clement Davies called on Prime Minister Attlee to summon parliament right away.

Attlee decried. He already has ordered commons to reconvene Sept. 12—a month earlier than usual.

Union of California No. 1 Cotton, Pennsylvania discovery four miles southeast of Brownfield, continued its strong shows.

This Terry county venture has 50 barrels of 41.2 gravity oil in 50 minutes from 3,959-10,002 feet.

Flowing bottomhole pressure was 2,150 at the start and increased to 3,825 pounds in 20 minutes.

Shut in bottomhole pressure after 17 minutes was 4,175 feet. Gas-oil ratio was pegged at 750-1, and the volume of gas estimated at 1,750,000 cubic feet daily.

Location is in section 91-T, DW.

Wolsh and Balboa No. 1-A Brooks, central section iron wildcat, topped the Ellingerberg at 7,701 feet on an elevation of 2,315 feet.

SHOOTING

The food was a pear and an apple apiece.

"We dug holes in the sand for water," Rudd said. "Then they kicked sand in the holes and hit us with their weapons."

"Last night they tried again to get us out. They took five out of our group of 43 and I never did know what they did to them."

"Later they took us back to the ravine. At daybreak they started a heavy firing engagement with some of our troops."

"We sat there all morning with our hands still bound behind us. I thought my wrists would be cut in two. My fingers still are numb."

"About 1:30 this afternoon they took us to a ravine below an apple orchard."

"We were worried because Cpl. Day had heard them talking the night before and an officer had said they should kill us if our own troops got too close. Otherwise we would be taken across the river."

"Our F-51 (Mustang) planes began bombing and strafing a hill and a patrol from 'G' Co. came towards the orchard."

"There were two guards watching us. They got on each end of the ravine and hollered something and about 14 Red soldiers ran up. Then the guards and soldiers opened up on us with burp (Russian automatic) guns."

Corp. Rudd said he was saved because he was lying on the ground and a soldier standing near him was killed and fell across him.

Corp. Day also escaped injury although a bullet ripped through his pants leg.

Insanity Plea Seen For Two Texas Youths

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 17.—Attorneys for a pair of teenage Texas hitchhikers charged with murder here are expected today to begin weaving an insanity defense.

The prosecution closed its case yesterday with a demand for the death penalty on Charles Opie, 18, and Albert Gene Riddell, 19, both of Waco.

They are charged with slaying Gustave A. Beaureau, 36, Los Angeles and Boise, Ida., photographic salesman.

Yesterday Opie took the stand in his defense.

"I was scared," he testified. "The man grabbed me the gun went off and I was scared."

"I was trying to get out of the car when the shot was fired. He had hold me my arm I was trying to get out of the car when the shot was fired."

"I thought I was shot. The gun was held under my arm when it went off. The result hit my arm."

"I said oh, Bobbs, Bobby you shot me."

Riddell is also known as Robby. Under questioning of his attorney Opie told of attempting to rob Beaureau, of the shooting and then forgetting everything in his attempt to escape.

Riddell was to take the stand today.

The defense has filed a notice of intention to plead insanity.

Showers Bring Relief From Summer Heat

Thundershowers skipped about over the area Wednesday afternoon and night, bringing relief from summer heat and beneficial seasoning to several areas.

The U. S. weather bureau reported 24 of an inch, but there were other sectors which had much more. Heaviest report was 2.65 in southeast Glascock.

Stanton had an inch and a half and northwest of there the fall was well over an inch.

The Moore-Fairview-Center Point belt through north central Howard county reported approximately an inch.

Forsan had a good shower Wednesday evening.

Some sections, however, did not get much rain. The heavier areas had enough to benefit feed and keep ranges in top condition. Both were showing signs of hurting in some sectors.

Arrival of showers, after a respite of more than a fortnight, was timed with the initial hatch on a new crop of boll leafworms in cotton fields. A prolonged spell of showers might pose some problems in poisoning.

Cecil Thixton, operator of the H-D shop, has in stock repair parts for 21 different types of lawnmowers. Trained mechanics are on hand to rejuvenate old mowers, either through adjustment or replacement of worn parts.

Thixton has installed a factory machine for repairing lawnmowers and his workmen have the know-how that makes reconditioned machines cut like new. Either motorized or manually operated mowers can be reworked in the Harley-Davidson shops.

Similarly, they can always count on finding quality feeds that help stimulate production in their flocks.

BARRING ANY UNSEEN BIRTHS

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 14 (AP) — Dogs and cats may be rationed as household pets in Newark.

The city commissioner is studying an ordinance limiting a family to not more than one dog and one cat. The legislation was recommended by city health department officials who believe that for sanitary and health reasons no household should have a lot of pets.

The ordinance, which comes up for public hearing and final passage Aug. 23, provides a penalty of a fine up to $200, 90 days in jail or both.

GETS MORE THAN HE ASKED FOR

WEYMOUTH, Eng., Aug. 14 (AP) — English Band Leader Harry Parry really picked a winner while running a child talent contest.

Parry asked a 13-year-old boy to step up on the platform and perform.

"But I can't do anything," the boy protested.

"What about a couple of rounds?" said Parry and dropped into a fighting crouch.

The boy got home with one left jab and broke one of the band-leader's ribs.
