

Hydrofoil On Neva River At Leningrad

Russian Impressions: Leningrad

Come to find out, when the train pulled into Leningrad, not many of the 20 in our group had slept well, so we were a pretty "unappreciative" bunch on the morning sight seeing tour, after having been checked into the Leningrad Hotel and a hasty breakfast. Here we found cooler weather, and some showers. It didn't behoove tourists to get off the bus to make photos of each and every monument.

Guide Lidia is still with us, and we pick up local guide Emma who does a magnificent job of detailing the glorious history of the city, originally known as St. Petersburg; later changed to Petrograd (to get away from the German "burg") and later renamed to honor Lenin, the man held high by the Russians.

It was a free afternoon, with an evening at the ballet coming up, so Gay Nell and several of the women tried the Russian beauty operators. ("Not bad", but not like at home). Some of the men got 50c hair cuts, but after seeing their cuts, which were indeed, 50-centers, we brought our long locks back home, even to being locked in some quarters here for "going hippy".

Ballet, as much or more universal in language as music, was a real treat. As stated, the Bolshoi was out of the country, so the company, Kerov we saw in Leningrad is considered second best. The concert hall far surpassed Tchaikovsky Hall in Moscow. In fact the school here produces dancers far both. Program for the evening was "Bayerka", which loosely translated could be the "Sorcerers", and has to do with an Indian legend in which a prince is denied marriage to his pauper girl friend, even in spite of the sorcerer's help. It could of course be construed as propaganda, if you choose. After all, so much had been heaped on our heads, a little more wasn't going to hurt. It just ran off like water. The music is good; by Minsk; and the staging, costuming, and the house itself are a thrill. We photographed much (no restrictions), and a friend recorded the music, so we're going to exchange tapes and films. The native Russian loves the ballet and they excel in the art.

Coming out late we discovered something strange: it was still daylight, at say, 11 or 12 midnight. What gives? we asked, and the guides explained "White nights", wherein there are but 2 hours of darkness this time of year. A month earlier it had been light all night. Leningrad is further north than Anchorage, Alaska. Many people were out and active.

The next morning brought a quick tour of the museum. The Hermitage, which is made up of the 1,057 room Winter Palace, and adjoining buildings, facing the river on one side, and Revolution Square on the other. It is a treat with 300,000,000 relics (guide's quote) from the Russian past, dating to Peter the Great, Catherine the Great, Ivan the Terrible, etc., etc., and I'd hate to have to take a test on that history. There was so much dealing and double-dealing among the rulers. The museum is one gold-leafed, satined, crystallized, precious stoned-room after another. Robes, crowns, carriages, thrones and palatial extravaganza extraordinary.

One is given, and can imagine, the reason for the revolution, and you can see too the Russian attitude toward the church, when you realize that it too, was intertwined in corruption with the Czars and Cyarrinas. Such extravaganza you've never seen.

Art seen here included some by Leonardo De Vinci, Michelangelo, Rembrandt, Picasso, etc. I believe it was here that Lidia paid Gay Nell and me, what we later decided, is the supreme Soviet compliment. At one of our bus loadings when other members of our group were tardy, she told us, "You're to be complimented. You're well disciplined."

In the afternoon we went by hydrofoil into the Bay of Finland to the Summer Palace of the Czars, the Petrovets. These sophisticated boats ride on a curtain of air, and holding some 100 passengers, are as smooth as silk, with only the aft part touching the water. We learn that they are built in several models and sold around the world, including the U.S. (There's even a small four-seat model).

The Summer Palace, like much of Russia, was virtually destroyed during the war and is still under reconstruction. We walked its grounds, photographed its elaborate fountains, and inspected the small cottage that Peter the Great, who succeeded in westernizing Russia, built himself. The Germans occupied the main palace and sacked the treasures. We were bussed back to the hotel and passed many apartment buildings.

The evening program was a visit to a fine Russian restaurant for a feast and ultra-typical musical entertainment: consisting primarily of stringed instruments including the balika, three string guitars, models of which our people bought at $7 each in the shops. On top of the caviar, vodka, champagne, wine, offerings included fancy crepes which looked a lot like pancakes to us, onto which they put sour cream and some sweets.

A trip to St. Isaac's Cathedral proved interesting. Naturally it's a museum, and the most ornate former house of worship you can imagine. When in use, 14,000 could stand (the Russian Orthodox manner for worship) in it. Rich tapestries, the famous Russian icons (religious figures painted on wood), and of course a goodly number of tombs. The church was heavily damaged during the war and is being repaired. It's a favorite visiting place for locals and tourists. There's a lot of gold leaf to be seen.

Last tourist call in Leningrad was the Peter and Paul Fortress, an island compound in the river where political prisoners were held prior to the revolution of 1917. Tombs of practically all the Czars and their families are seen in Cathedral of 1700's here. The prison is of course, a dreary place, and the small cells are marked to this day by flowers placed in honor of Russia's first freedom fighters. Out from the tyranny of the czars and into that of the Soviet. Will history repeat itself?

Leningrad, like Moscow, is metropolitan; heavily industrialized, and as you might guess, polluted. It was interesting to note that guides were careful to point out that much is being done to improve the environments, and it sounded almost like a recording made in the states, when they began to say, "The trees are lungs of the city, and we're adding more green spaces for the enjoyment of our people, and to improve the quality of the air."

Leningrad has 19 active churches. Sixteen Orthodox, one Baptist, one Moslem, and one Synagogue, we were told.

Our Hotel Leningrad overlooked the Neva River. And believe it or not, we didn't have to buy one bottle of water! The water was safe everywhere we stayed, but tasted and smelled fishy in Leningrad.

Funeral Services Thursday At 3 For Wendell Siebert

Wendell T. Siebert, who retired June 30 after 19 years as superintendent of Eastland Public Schools, died at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday in Eastland Memorial Hospital following an extended illness. He was 57.

Funeral will be at 3 p.m. Thursday in the United Methodist Church. Officiating will be the Rev. Ben Marney, pastor, assisted by the Rev. Haston Brewer, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Burial will follow in Eastland Cemetery, directed by Bakker Funeral Home.

Siebert had been ill since Jan. 23. He underwent surgery at Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene for removal of a brain tumor in February, and recently was readmitted to Eastland Memorial for further treatment.

He moved to Eastland at an early age, attended Eastland Schools and graduated from Eastland High School in 1934. He attended University of Texas from September, 1935, through August 1939. While at the University he was an outstanding track star and was anchor man on the mile relay team that set a Southwest Conference record that remained unbroken for ten years. He was captain of the University track team during his senior year and worked as trainer for the Longhorn football team for three years. During radio broadcasts of the Longhorn games, Kern Tips often used him as spotter to assist him in the press box.

Mr. Siebert was currently serving on the Longhorn Hall of Honor Council which selects athletes for the Longhorn Hall of Honor.

He received his BS degree in August 1939 and began his teaching career in the fall of 1939 at Lamesa Ind. School District. He entered military service in June, 1942, where he served as Athletic Director, United States Air Force. He was honorably discharged in 1946 and had attained the rank of Captain in the Air Force.

Mr. Siebert returned to Eastland to begin his long teaching career in the fall of 1947. He served as assistant coach under the late Johnny Little and together they piloted the Mavericks to win District, Bi-district and Regional titles in football. At that time, Class A football did not go farther than region.

The Eastland Schools selected him as head coach and athletic director in the spring of 1948 and he served in this capacity until elected Eastland High School Principal at the start of the 1952-53 school year. On July 1, 1955, he was elected to serve as Superintendent of Schools and served until June 30, 1974, when ill health required that he take early retirement.

During his administration the following important events were accomplished in the Eastland district: integration of all schools during 1963, construction of the new elementary school and gymnasium completed in 1964 and 1965, and the consolidation of Eastland and Olden Independent School Districts by majority vote in each district in October, 1969.

Mr. Siebert served on the Texas Surplus Property Agency board of directors for some fifteen years and was instrumental in the establishment of the Region XIV Education Service Center in Abilene which serves the schools of this area. He was a member and past president of the Eastland Lions Club, the American Association of School Administrators, Texas State Teachers Association, Oil Belt Teachers Assoc., and Eastland County Teachers Assoc. He was a long time member of Eastland Chamber of Commerce, having served a number of years on the board of directors of that organization. In 1963 he was named Citizen of the Year at the Chamber banquet. He was a member of the First Baptist Church at Eastland but for many years had been active in the First United Methodist Church where he led the evening song service for 25 years. He also taught Young People's and Junior High Sunday School classes, and served as an adult teacher and assistant teacher of the Men's 9-49 class. He also sang in the Methodist choir.

Mr. Siebert did graduate work at the University of Colorado and Hardin Simmons University and received his Master of Education Degree from HSU in August, 1951.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Lou; a son, Mike of Eastland; a daughter, Mrs. Bert (Shelley) Montgomery of Henrietta; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Siebert of Eastland; and a brother, General of Waco.

All present and former school board members who served during his administration will be honorary pallbearers. The family requests that remembrances be made in the form of contributions to the Eastland chapter of the American Cancer Society.

There will be an open house in Olden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Butler from 2:30 p.m. until 4:30 p.m. Sunday, August 4, given by the children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Z.Z. Butler, formerly of the Staff community. There are eight children still living. All friends and relatives are invited to attend.

Educator Wendell Siebert Praised at Time of Death

At the time of his death shortly after noon Tuesday at Eastland Memorial Hospital, former School Superintendent Wendell Siebert was being honored in a special way in a meeting far across town.

Mr. Siebert died at 12:30 p.m. following a lengthy illness.

Almost simultaneously, school board president James Reid, in introducing recently-elected School Supt. Ray Pruitt to members of the Eastland Lions Club at the Ramada Inn, asked that members remember Mr. Siebert and his family in their prayers.

Word of Mr. Siebert's death came immediately following the meeting.

Among the first words said by Mr. Pruitt were words of praise for Mr. Siebert and the Eastland School System that he had helped build.

He said of his predecessor: "Wendell and I have been friends for a long time. Eastland has an efficient school system, and in Mr. Siebert it has not only a top educator, but also a fine Christian gentleman."

I recognize my task, he said, in working to maintain the type of school you want. And when he gave members a report on what he thinks a school should do for students, it could have easily been Mr. Siebert talking. "The dignity of work...the importance of honesty...the need for politeness, morals and manners..."

"I don't plan a lot of changes now", he said, "but as the board and I work together, we'll always strive to offer the best education we can."

"You've got to have discipline", he said in response to a question, "but it's primarily a matter of mutual respect between teacher and pupil. I believe there's a time and place for spanking."

In the education field for the past 21 years, Mr. Pruitt

Rural Areas Have Twice As Much Poverty As Urban

WASHINGTON--Tell a prosperous rural or smalltown community it has more poverty than city areas and you may be in for an argument. You may lose too, because that's only true on the average.
Proportionately, rural America has twice as many people living in poverty as do urban areas. But your chance of breaking out of poverty is much better in rural communities because neighbors give you more help, according to Will Erwin, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for Rural Development.
"Poverty often runs in cycles from generation to generation, thereby perpetuating itself.

And the cycle is so difficult to break that government can't do it alone.
"Neighbors in rural areas often form close, meaningful, person-to-person relationships with some of the less fortunate in the community, helping them cope with their problems.
"Government must and is recognizing that man is a complex product of people relationships--not a tax-dollar robot. Man's problems are too complex to be met by government alone.
"And now that rural, non-farm job opportunities are increasing at a faster rate, it's getting easier to help the poor break out of their circumstances."

Secretary Erwin points out that following the depression of the 1930's Americans surrendered to government many traditional people-to-people functions. Volunteerism took a nose dive. That's why rural neighborliness is currently so appropriate and helpful.
In addition to helping the less fortunate get a job, neighbors try to substitute acceptance, involvement, confidence and pride for rejection and isolation of the poor.
Such friendships start in childhood and run through old age. This sort of initiative and human empathy is a basic part of the American tradition. The attitude of "let government do it" is more recent.

"Government, however, can, and generally does, provide assistance in filling the physical needs of the poor," Mr. Erwin explains. "But it simply doesn't have the capacity to take the place of neighborly actions--actions that help fill the psychological and emotional requirements of individuals of all ages.

"Only neighbors are able to provide the understanding, involvement and compassion needed to end the poverty cycle.

"It is for this reason that we have tailored rural development programs to deal with more than such things as job-producing, economic development, community facilities, and the creation of a wholesome environment. We have tailored these efforts to include 'people' development.

"Rural America, including its towns, has the people capacity to turn families now locked into poverty, into constructive forces in the life of the community," the official said.

Production Determines Farm Land Price

COLLEGE STATION--Does agricultural production and income influence the price of Texas farm land?

According to Kenneth E. Graeber, economist in real estate for the Texas Agricultural Extension service, it does.
"Despite the varied reasons for purchasing land, such as recreational use, inflation hedge, prestige and speculation, and an apparent discrepancy between land prices and productivity, agricultural income has tremendous impact upon the value of certain lands," says Graeber.
"Prices of crop land, which has little aesthetic value, are more closely related to agricultural productivity than the more appealing wooded and grazing lands," notes Graeber.

He points out that productivity and profits are influenced by the soil type, crop hazards such as droughts, floods, insects and disease, the farm layout, location with respect to markets and roads, and other improvements. In addition to these physical factors of productivity, management strongly influences yields and profits.
"However, productivity and management generate only part of gross farm income; price represents the remainder," says the Texas A&M University System economist. "In 1973 agricultural commodity prices began to rise, and the returns to land encouraged land purchases by full-time agricultural producers who wanted to expand. In addition, investors found their holding costs reduced, thus encouraging additional investments. The result was a substantial increase in land demand and prices."

Net income and net returns to land are considered important in determining land value. Net income and net returns are dependent upon producing costs, which include operating, fixed and management costs. Thus agricultural investors must know the costs for major crops within their area to aid investment decisions, points out the economist. These data are available through the County Extension Office.

To evaluate agricultural land values, Graeber suggests, "Capitalizing" the net income to land from agricultural production by dividing the annual net to land by an appropriate capitalization rate. This rate is normally determined by the market, with many farm land owners historically accepting about a 4.5 percent return on their land values. The capitalization rate must be determined by each potential investor.
"What can you afford to pay for good crop land?"
According to Graeber, there is no one answer. "Not only does it vary with land, management, yield, and price expectations, but it also varies with the method of financing, sources of outside capital, expectations of future values, rate of return required and even the tax strategy for the investor."
"However, by considering only one specific case at a time and taking into account the aforementioned factors, you can pretty well estimate what you can afford to pay for the land from an agricultural standpoint," notes Graeber.

Inventory Of County Records Is In Progress

An inventory of county records in the Eastland County Courthouse is underway, according to County Judge Scott Bailey.

The inventory is conducted by Bill Summers, a University of Texas at Arlington graduate student. The holdings of the county will be available in a publication entitled "The Inventory of Eastland County Records".

Part of a statewide project designed to determine to kinds and condition of records in the county courthouses of Texas, the inventory is being conducted under the auspices of the North Texas State University Center for Community Services, a division of the School of Community Service, which received funds for the project under Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Faculty members from eight colleges and universities are participating in the project, according to Mary Pearson, project director at NTSU. Students from classes and seminars in Texas history and government are taking the inventories. Consultant to the project is Dr. A. Ray Stephens of the NTSU history faculty.

The NTSU inventory publications will allow the format of the pilot inventory made in Ector County and published by the Regional Historical Resource Depository Program, the local records program of the Archives Division of the Texas State Library.

According to Marilyn von Kohl, assistant director for field operations of the division, information from these inventories will be used in assisting counties in more efficient care and management of their records and will provide an opportunity for taking stock of conditions of permanently valuable county records in Texas.

MEMORIES OF THE PAST... picture shows the iron bridge over the south fork of the Leon river at the end of the S. Bassett street in 1962. The picture, which was taken by Pete Tindall of Eastland, with cameras facing north, shows Tindall's grandchildren, Beverly Tindall of Garland, then 3 years of age; and Cindy Tindall, also of Garland, who was one year old at the time.

The bridge, which was built at the turn of the Century, was placed across the south fork of the Leon when the road was the only way of going to Gorman and Carbon. The bridge was torn up and cut into scrap metal during the construction of I-20. Tindall said he was unsuccessful in trying to buy the bridge and had planned to have it moved to his pasture.

Calvary Baptist

To Hold Revival

Calvary Baptist Church will hold a revival August 11-16. Evangelist for the services will be Rev. Gary Worden, pastor of Temple Baptist Church in Stamford. Services will begin nightly at 7:30 p.m. The Trinity Trio of Strawn will present special music. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. Siebert Was 1st Golden Winner

Wendell Siebert was the first person selected when the Eastland Chamber of Commerce began a program of annually citing its citizens for outstanding contributions to his fellow man.

The Chamber of Commerce named him the recipient of its first Golden Deeds Award, presented May 12, 1963, in formal ceremonies at the annual chamber banquet meeting at Lone Cedar Country Club.

Later Mr. Siebert became more or less the official introducer of succeeding Golden Deed Award winners, and his manner and style made his presentations even more coveted, coupled with the fact that he had been the first to receive the top award.

In introducing each honoree, Mr. Siebert would mix poetry, philosophy and large amounts of the milk of human kindness, all of which were an integral part of his makeup.

At the time he received the Golden Deeds Award, the 46 year old chief school administrator was cited for his unselfish contribution to the education of Eastland's youth; his faithfulness to his church; his untiring efforts in behalf of the city and its chamber of commerce.

A native of Eastland, Siebert graduated from the school and entered the University of Texas. There he excelled in athletics as a member of the track team and graduated with honors in 1940.

After a hitch with the Air Force where he served as an athletic director, he returned to Eastland as an assistant coach in 1946. A year later he was named head coach.

In 1955 he was invited by the board of trustees to consider the superintendent's chair. Accepting, he has led the school since that time, through one of the most trying times it has known, one of Siebert's "Bosses" (a school board member) says.

M.H. Perry, longtime chairman of the board, calls Siebert "One of the best school men in the state of Texas, and he's recognized as such by the authorities." As administrator, Siebert has led the school academically upward, and financially forward--from bankruptcy to solvency.

The school, like many others in the state, suffered bankruptcy in 1941, and operated under a Federal Court Order until February of 1963.

After passage of a bond issue, the school launched into its first building program since the mid-30's, paid off its old indebtedness and got "out from under" the court order.

A giant stride was made too when the school was integrated without incident, which helped remove the system from the state's "warned" list. (It was placed on the list for inequities in its former dual school system.)

Siebert was instrumental in instituting a "tightening" scholastic program to better qualify local graduates for college and university work.

"He saw the need long before we", Perry said, "and helped us set up goals to increase the teaching efficiency of our school."

These projects include among other things, addition of an extensive testing program and of the phenetic system in the lower grades.

Recently the Olden School was consolidated into the Eastland system under his administration.

Siebert and his wife, Mary Lou, have two children, Mike and Shelley. The family attends First Methodist Church where they are active. He has worked with young people of the church for many years.

Siebert was a member of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce and a member of the school affairs committee.

Extension Courses To Be Offered

Teachers who are interested in taking courses to apply toward Learning and Language Disabilities Certification or Master's Programs will have the opportunity to attend extension courses in Eastland this fall. Mr. Cedrick Bettis, Supervisor of Plan A Special Education for the East End Co-op, urges all teachers who feel that they may be interested to contact him at 817-734-2020 in Gorman as soon as possible, so that exact planning can proceed. The classes offered will depend upon the number of teachers interested as well as interest in specific courses available. Classes are scheduled to begin around the 1st of September. Please write East End Co-op, Box 717, Gorman, Texas.

1.32 Inches For July

Eastland Countians sweltered under record-breaking heat in July, with the mercury rising to all-time highs on three occasions, the highest during the 64 year history of National Weather Service record keeping in Eastland.

The thermometer reached and exceeded 100 degrees 15 times during July, with record-breaking temperatures being recorded on the 21st, 22nd, and 23rd. The all-time high of 119 degrees on July 23rd, tied the temperature in Wichita Falls on that date, which also was the high for the nation. Readings of 108, 106, and 107 degrees were also recorded toward the latter part of July, with a record breaking high of 107 degrees being reached on July 25th.

The hot temperatures, dry winds, and lack of rain during the most of July compounded the County's extreme drought conditions, as Eastland County officials sought federal and State aid for farmers and ranchers.

The high reading for the same period in 1973 was 101 degrees and July of 1973 produced a total of 3.66 inches of rain. Rainfall for the month just past was only 1.32 inches, with 1.06 inches of that total being recorded near the end of the month on July 29. Total rainfall

BAKKER Funeral Home

Dear friends,

We believe that many people have questions about funeral matters, yet are hesitant to ask them.

For that reason, we would like to discuss our service with you, and have chosen this method, a series of brief "open letters", which we are sure you will find informative.

Please watch this space. They will appear regularly.

Respectfully,
Oale C. Bakker

Control Lesser Cornstalk Borer

with DASANIT Spray Concentrate insecticide/nematicide

Just band DASANIT Spray Concentrate as a directed basal spray on each side of peanut plants when lesser cornstalk borers infest your fields. Gives 80% reduction of borers within two weeks, residual control for up to 28 days.

Look at these results of research conducted with Texas and Oklahoma growers:

MORE YIELD. Plots treated with DASANIT Spray Concentrate produced yield increases up to 844 pounds per acre, with most tests averaging much more than untreated check plots.

MORE INCOME. In some tests where there was no increase in yield, reduction of immature and small nuts resulted in higher grades that increased the value of the crop $4 to $51 an acre over untreated plots!

Make DASANIT Spray Concentrate your choice for effective, economical lesser cornstalk borer control this year! Order from your chemical supplier now.

Control Southern Corn Rootworm

with DASANIT 15% Granular insecticide/nematicide

DASANIT 15% Granular insecticide/nematicide gives fast, long-lasting control of southern corn rootworms. Stops these underground pests that destroy peanut roots and pegs.

CONVENIENT TO USE! NO ROOT PRUNING!

You don't disturb root systems needed to produce big, healthy yields. Just apply a 12- to 18- inch band of DASANIT 15% Granular over the rows at pegging time. DASANIT goes to work fast. Stops pests that destroy young pegs; cause immature small nuts that lower grades.

Order DASANIT 15% Granular for outstanding control of southern corn rootworms from your chemical supplier.
