BUILDING

More Than 200 Attend Opening

Persons from the Stephensville Production Credit Association here Sunday.

The 1440 square foot building, at the corner of Lamar and White Streets in downtown Eastland, "will provide improved and more complete facilities for its agricultural customers," C. M. McCain of Eastland, a director of the agricultural credit organization said, in a brief dedication speech.

The Eastland field office serves stockholders in the Eastland County area with short and intermediate-term credit.

Others appearing on the dedication program included Field Office Manager Dick Wesson, Association President R. Cal McCurdy of Decatur, General Manager W. M. Irwin of Stephenville, Rep. Scott Bailey of Cisco and Eastland Mayor Cyrus Frost.

Mayor Frost praised the services of the Production Credit Association to farmers and ranchers of the area and welcomed the new building as a valuable addition to the downtown area of Eastland.

Frost joined McCain in ribbon-cutting ceremonies to dedicate the building officially. Special scissors were presented from a felt-covered tray for the ceremony by Miss Donna Pugh of Eastland, Texas Pecan Queen and Eastland County FFA Queen.

"Donna is now also our PCA queen," declared Wesson.

J. A. Clement of Gorman, a PCA member, delivered the invocation. Special guests included Wichita Falls PCA Manager Garland Eubank and Field Representative Sloan Baker of Breckenridge; Robert Norwood, C. C. Russell and Margaret Herring of the Stephenville PCA central office; James Bumpas and Darlene Loudermilk of the Comanche field office; Leon Atkinson of the Decatur field office and Director Tom Mazurek of Cisco.

Refreshments were served to all guests at the open house following the dedication. Wives of directors and employees and three former secretaries in the Eastland office served as hostesses at the open house. The former secretaries were Mrs. Bernard Hanna of Eastland, Mrs. Neal Hurt of Prescott, Ariz., and Mrs. Julia Hooper of Dallas.

There will be work in Royal Arch degrees Friday night at 7:30 p.m. A degree team from Brownwood will confer the degrees on Royal Arch Masons. Refreshments will be served.

The Eastland National Bank Greenbacks handed the Ranger teenage team their first league loss this week, posting a 7-4 win.

A major fire was narrowly averted in Eastland Tuesday morning when a city patrolman spotted an air conditioner in the KP Lodge on fire. The fire was put out before it could spread.

A former Eastland woman, Hazel Lou Adams, 24, a McCamey school teacher, remains in Eastland Memorial Hospital following a two car accident about four miles east of Eastland on Highway 80 Sunday night. Mrs. Adams suffered extensive internal injuries.

Races will be held Saturday at 7 p.m. at the GO Kart Track in Eastland.

Schools Get Warning And Many Compliments

The team which was responsible for the Eastland Independent School District's second accreditation warning came up with three failures of the local district, Douglas School being the chief objection, but at the same time they found 15 different improvements they could note.

The following changes and improvements were noted: The assessed valuation of the district had been increased from $5,225,000 to $6,533,343. All valuations in the district were increased 25 percent for the 1960 tax year.

An additional frame building has been moved to the high school campus for band and choir groups and the vocational agriculture shop has been moved into the high school building area previously occupied by the Band.

Some classrooms have been redecorated since the 1960 accreditation visit, and such work is to be continued during the summer of 1961, with particular emphasis on the Junior High School building.

Twenty acres of land have been purchased as the site of a new elementary school building. Equipment for over one hundred new pupil stations has been purchased to replace old furniture. New equipment has been added for science and homemaking instruction.

A number of new charts and display tables have been added to the science department. A complete inventory has been made in the chemistry laboratory; old materials of no value have been discarded and new materials ordered. Since Chemistry and Physics are alternated, teaching supplies and equipment for Physics will be ordered for next year.

Approximately one hundred and twenty-five books have been added to the Junior High School library plus five sets of reference books. Since the sixth grades are self-contained units, a library is set up in each classroom, and a new set of World Book references has been placed in each. Additional books have already been ordered for the 1961-62 school year.

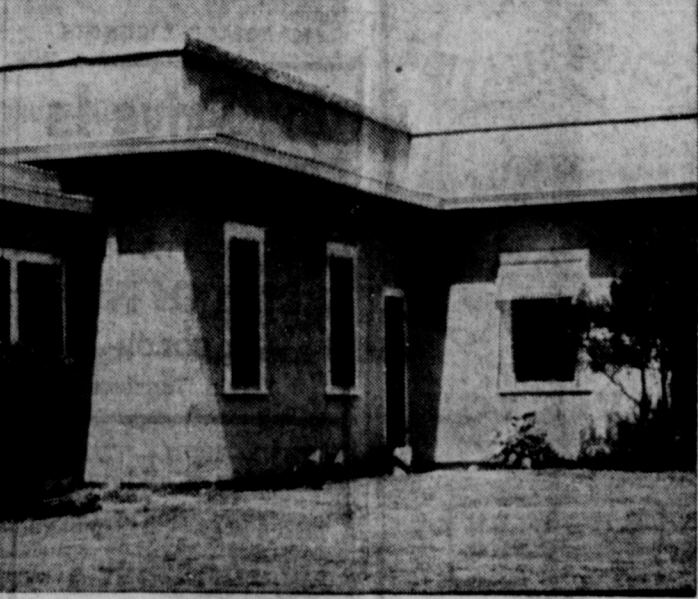

The library in Junior High School was neat and organized so as to permit easy access to books. A written plan has been developed for a guidance program which will become effective during the 1961-62 school year. An in-service program has been planned for the accomplishment of the guidance program.

Improvements made at the Douglas Schools were as follows: The entire school has been completely repainted on the inside since the last accreditation visit. New lighting fixtures have been installed. Ventilation has been improved and all the gas heaters have been vented.

Custodial help is provided. Laboratory facilities have been installed, and new teaching charts have been added for General Science and Biology. Additional specimens and teaching materials are obtained from the Eastland High School department when needed.

Two of the three classrooms have been equipped with new furniture. Plans are to replace a like amount during the next school year. The central library has been eliminated and new library shelves have been installed in each of the three classrooms in order to make books readily accessible to students. Reference books are available at all grade level within the room. Over one hundred other books, including fiction, have been added.

State Warns School District Negro School Is Inadequate

One High School Teacher for Nine Pupils Not Enough, Say Inspectors

Facilities at Eastland's Negro school have caused the local school district to receive a second warning from the State Commission on Schools Accreditation. The Commission has again warned the local district of conditions that do not meet state accreditation standards.

Chief complaint of the three member team which inspected local schools was that only one teacher is assigned to the upper four grades at Douglas School. Supt. Wendell Siebert was quick to point out that while the Negro school does have just one teacher for the upper four grades, the one teacher had just nine pupils to teach this past school year and three of those students were from Cisco.

Twelve County Citizens May Attend Reunion

Twelve Eastland County people have been invited to attend the nation's most unusual reunion.

The reunion will be a gathering of former patients of the Texas Rehabilitation Center of Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation and will be held at the Center near Gonzales Sunday, August 13.

About 350 of the Center's former patients will return to TRC on that day to visit with their physically disabled friends and to share common experiences. It will be a strange looking homecoming, because many of those attending will be in wheelchairs or on crutches.

The first annual reunion was held five years ago when TRC former patients met at the Center to organize the United States' first former patients' association. The organization has as its goals benefiting its members, helping other physically disabled people, and supporting the program of the Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation.

The people from Eastland County who have been invited to attend the reunion are Bedford H. Butler, Gorman; Mary Jane Maddux and Robert Mathews, Ranney; Gailon Ables, Maria Gutierrez and Blair Lewis, Eastland; and Lavelda McGough, Wilburn McKinney, Patsy Ruth Nance, Charles Stroud, William Taylor, and Phanna Anna Travis, Cisco.

Victor Canavespie of Bryan, president of the association and in a wheelchair because of paralysis of his legs, said, "Our big task is public education—telling our neighbors what we can do after rehabilitation and why they should support programs of rehabilitation for the physically disabled."

"There are more than 23,000 Texans who need physical rehabilitation. Add to this the fact that the Texas Rehabilitation Center is operating at half-capacity because of a lack of funds, and you'll realize the great need for rehabilitation in the state," he said.

to point out that while the Negro school does have just one teacher for the upper four grades, the one teacher had just nine pupils to teach this past school year and three of those students were from Cisco.

The inspection team complained that while classes at Douglas School in the upper four grades now meet the 55 minute requirement, several subjects are taught at the same time by the same teacher. Pupil membership in the four grades was as follows (during the past semester): one pupil each in the ninth and 10th grades, four pupils in the 11th grade, and three pupils in the 12th grades, making a total of nine pupils in grades nine through 12."

W. R. Cate, assistant director of the Division of School Accreditation of the Texas Education Agency, told Siebert, "When a school district operates two 12-grade programs, it has been our practice to accept a staff of six people to teach the smaller school as sufficient to meet the intent of the accreditation standard if the remaining standards are satisfied. In your district, the interpretation requiring a staff of six would be applicable to your 12-grade program for Negro pupils. Admittedly, with your small enrollment of Negroes, this would provide a rather high ratio of teachers to pupils, but I know of no other means of offering an instructional program of equal calibre in your two high schools."

Siebert said that to meet the standards the local district would have to hire three additional teachers and pay them out of local funds on a cooperative basis between Eastland and Cisco, each paying half of the salary. Under present state regulations only two teachers are allowed at Douglas School on the basis of average daily attendance.

"To hire the extra teachers as required would cost the local district approximately $10,000 per year, plus the cost of providing adequate facilities," Siebert explained. He estimated that the district would have to increase taxes 25 percent to meet the requirements.

A warning from the Accreditation Commission is serious in that it means the Commission is warning that if conditions are not brought up to standards the local district could be removed from the list of accredited schools.

Cate told Siebert, "Even when the school district is warned for violations of accreditation standards we have never attempted to set a specific length of time as a mandatory period for completing corrections—applicable in every instance in every school—because there is so much variation in local situations. Reasonable progress has been the governing criterion. All of us in this office know of your problem with a Federal court decree, and realize some of the difficulties you face therefrom. I have no authority that would permit me to waive application of an accreditation standard to the Eastland program, but I have no plans for carrying the present situation for enough to threaten your accreditation while you are trying to clear your court problems. I regret that I must leave the matter in such condition, but the only alternative would be for you to develop

Commissioners Okay Dog Clinic At Monthly Meet

Eastland City Commissioners had a short, routine meeting Monday night with little on the agenda.

Commissioners authorized City Manager Jimmy Young to arrange for the annual dog vaccination clinic and approved a year's lease on grass land around Ringling Lake. High bidder on the land was O. J. Treadway.

City Dads also discussed the possibility of stricter controls of carnivals.

Earl Bender Receives Award For Attendance

Rotarians were told Monday that they can't be true Rotarians just by joining a Rotary Club. District Gov. Briggs Todd of Abilene told Eastland members of the service club that Rotary is something which has to be learned.

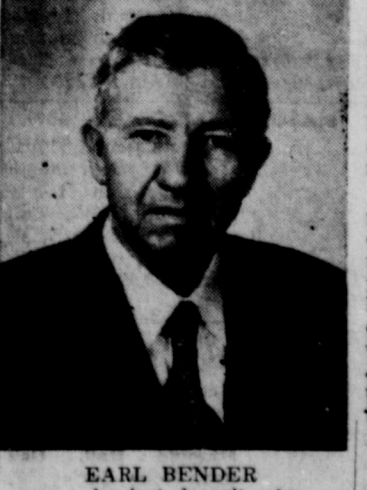

The Abilene banker challenged local members to resign from the Rotary Club if they can't better serve their community, one another, your vocation and your country by being members of Rotary International.

Todd told his fellow Rotarians that Rotary must have three things: action, communications and leadership.

One of the highlights of the meeting was the presentation of an award to Earl Bender for 32 years of perfect attendance in the Rotary Club. Twelve members in all received recognition, but Bender came within one year of equalling all of their attendance records.

Frank Deaton received an eight year award, Jack Muirhead a seven year award, Tom Lovelace five years, Veon Howard three years, and Ronald Burton, I. C. Inzer and Frank Sayre, two years each. Receiving one year awards were Mac Beitzley, O. H. Dick, Jim Horton and Dr. James Whittington.

Scott Bailey Introduces School Bill

Representative Scott Bailey of Cisco introduced his Budget Balanced School Bill shortly after the convening of the first Called Session. The Budget Balanced Bill, Bailey stated, is an economy measure and in keeping with the Governor's call for the first Called Session.

The Budget Balanced Bill was explained as follows:
Under the present laws, the revenues are placed in the State Available School Fund by both Constitutional and Statutory provisions. These funds are distributed to the schools of the state as the per capita apportionment provided by law. The plan of financing the Foundation School Program calls for charging the Foundation School Program cost in each District with the amount of the Available School Fund that has been allocated to the District. In this process, approximately $1,475,000. from the Available School Fund is paid annually to Districts that show a budget balance, which, because of adequacy of local revenues, have no need to participate in the Foundation Program funds. Therefore, these monies do not contribute to the financing of the Foundation School Program.

The affect of the Budget Balanced Bill would be to reallocate these monies to the Foundation School Program Fund, which are presently allocated to the State Available School Fund by Statutory provision.

Bailey maintained that the enactment of this bill would make about $500,000 annually available.

Scott Bailey Introduces School Bill

Available School Fund by both Constitutional and Statutory provisions. These funds are distributed to the schools of the state as the per capita apportionment provided by law. The plan of financing the Foundation School Program calls for charging the Foundation School Program cost in each District with the amount of the Available School Fund that has been allocated to the District. In this process, approximately $1,475,000. from the Available School Fund is paid annually to Districts that show a budget balance, which, because of adequacy of local revenues, have no need to participate in the Foundation Program funds. Therefore, these monies do not contribute to the financing of the Foundation School Program.

The affect of the Budget Balanced Bill would be to reallocate these monies to the Foundation School Program Fund, which are presently allocated to the State Available School Fund by Statutory provision.

Bailey maintained that the enactment of this bill would make about $500,000 annually available.

Bus Tour of Athens Is Described By Perkins

(Editor's Note: Joseph M. Perkins is now back in the United States, but this article was written while he was still on his world tour.)

By JOSEPH M. PERKINS

Since my last letter we have crossed the Adriatic Sea, made a stop at Piraeus, the port of Athens; paid a brief visit to Marseilles in southern France, and yesterday spent a few hours at Lisbon, the capital of Portugal, England will be our next stop.

At Piraeus we went on a bus tour to Athens where again I visited the inspiring Acropolis, that high suburban hill with its remains of the finest Greek temples, including the famous Parthenon, and the Caryatids, those beautiful stone women carved from whitest marble, who through the centuries have been standing as pillars supporting on their heads the roof of one of the smaller temples.

Later our tour took us through the most attractive streets of Athens, with a brief pause at the King's Palace, a beautiful building nearly hidden from the street by trees and shrubs. At the entrance stood and armed guard at attention, looking straight ahead and motionless. I wondered what would happen if he should have to sneeze! Piraeus caused me one pang of regret. The most beautiful young girl on the ship left us with her parents at that port. She is the daughter of a Greek who went to Australia years ago and got an Australian wife. This girl is 11 years old but looks more like a 16 year old, with classic Grecian features, tall and stately.

Only a few hours were spent at Marseilles, France's leading seaport, with its fine shops and busy streets. I noticed that a number of large new office buildings are being constructed.

Yesterday morning we entered the mouth of the Tagus Ruins and docked at Lisbon. There we went on a bus trip about the city. Our woman guide was unusually good as she explained things along the way. Lisbon is larger than Houston, and it has doubled in population since 1940. As we left the pier our bus rode along the waterfront where we saw many women fishmonger carrying baskets of fish on their heads. Our guide told us that they sometimes carry loads as heavy as 80 pounds. Lisbon is a clean, attractive city, and its new residential section contains a great number of fine apartment buildings where bright flowers hang down from each balcony. They are the finest that I have ever seen in any city. In another new area we saw hundreds of one story homes built by the Portuguese government for the working class, and rented at a very reasonable figure. After paying rent, computed at about one-fifth of a man's wages, for 25 years, the renter becomes the owner. Lisbon is 95 percent Catholic. One interesting thing that our guide explained is that the Lisbon children are divided into two sets for schooling, the boys going to one school and the girls to another. This continues until students enter the universities. Also, and this I think is excellent, no child under the age of 12 is permitted to go to a movie, and from the ages of 12 to 17 they are permitted to see only certain films that are deemed suitable.

A stop was made at St. Gerono Church where one finds many carvings over the doorways of the tomb of the famous Vasco de Gama. Our next stop was perhaps the highlight of our Lisbon visit, being the Cancer Museum. Here we were able to see and examine closely 65 old horse-drawn coaches, most of which were used by royalty. Some date back to the 16th century while others, made in England, were of the early nineteenth century. The older coaches were very heavy, elaborately decorated with wood carvings and painted scenes, and required six or more strong horses to pull them. They had certain features in common. All were suspended on heavy leather straps that acted as springs to absorb the jolts of rough roads. The rear wheels, often five feet or more in height, were roughly three times the size of the front wheels. The interiors were elaborately furnished with carpeting, cushions and wall coverings of leather or velvet. Few had brakes, but one was equipped with shoes that were fastened securely to the undercarriage in such a way that a post rider on a platform at the rear of the coach could, when necessary, place these shoes or sleds just ahead of the rear wheels so that they slipped beneath the wheels and caused them to stop turning. They probably were quite effective, yet cumbersome, as the coach had to stop and back up in order to release them. This coach museum is said to be the finest in the world, and I can well believe it.

That evening we were advised, over the public address system, that at about 11:45 we would pass the P&O Orient Line's new flagship Canberra on its maiden voyage. According, we played cards until nearly that time and then went for our coats and binoculars. Soon the lights of the ship appeared ahead and in due time she passed us on our starboard side going better than 30 miles per hour. As she went within a mile of us we had a fine view of her, brightly lighted. Here one unusual and distinguishing feature is her single short smoke-stack located well aloft of the center of the ship.

Reunion Is Held By Carbon Exes In Eastland Park

The 1933 senior and junior classes of Carbon High School held their reunion in the Eastland City Park Saturday, July 8.

After picnic lunch the classmates spent the afternoon reminiscing. Plans were also made to have another reunion in two years.

Seven of the 29 graduates attended the class reunion.

Attending were Helen Wooley Eubanks of Odessa; Ina Mae Norris Duncan, her husband, Cecil, and daughter, Ethelene, of Garland; Anna Faye Snodgrass Murray and her husband, Sam, of Midland; Jack Jordan of Kerrville; Meredith Black Baze, her husband, Ray Neal, and son, David, of Ranger; Glen Justice, his wife, Marcelle and son, Harry Glenn, of Carbon and Vivian Fox and daughter, Carol, of Olden.

Only three of the juniors and their families attended. Attending were George Gilbert of Fort Worth; Marion Gilbert Craddock and daughter, Donna, of Colorado City; and Irene Norris Burge, her husband, Al, and son Freddie of Garland.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

To Eastland:

From the penthouse (or rookery) greetings are sent to friends in the wide open spaces. The apartment my son and I are renting is on the third floor and the designation derives from my frame of mind after making the climb. Ours is a garden-type apartment and from the window I can see more trees than I remembered were in existence. In fact, when I first came back here I could not imagine why the streets looked so gloomy. Suddenly it occurred to me it was because almost all streets are lined with trees. When trees must be removed to accommodate increased traffic, new ones are planted as soon as the new paving is completed.

When I left Eastland I had hoped to get settled here before the hot weather developed. I was unduly worried about that problem. Following an unusually severe winter, we are having a cool summer. In fact it is almost too cool to make good sense. I left Eastland the 20th of April. When I arrived here I had the unique pleasure of seeing spring come the second time. Lilacs and other early blooming flowers had not begun to bloom until after I got up here. Stoles were much in evidence on Mother's Day. Not from style, but from necessity.

Following the years in Eastland, I find the traffic in Washington very awesome, but I am becoming re-adjusted. One thing I am enjoying is the many and diversified stores and shops available. Until you have been away from them for a while, you never give them a thought.

Washington is a city in a state of change. I wonder if all cities are? In my teen-age days, several areas which in the Post Civil War era were considered good if not excellent addresses had begun to go to seed. Some of these homes were as excellent examples of colonial architecture as any of the highly touted Georgetown residences. By the time we moved to Texas the areas had become strictly commercial, or even worse, slums. Now under the incentive of Urban renewal etc. the business places and slums are being replaced with extremely elaborate apartment residences, and are being advertised as "Washington's newest best address". Rents for efficiency apartments start at $105 per month. What more can I write that will be of interest? I can hear some of you saying well she could at least answer my letter—and you are so right. I have plenty of time, but no incentive to do much letter writing. I miss all the Eastland friends and acquaintances very much. Mid-summer is not the best time in the world to try to make new friends. Everything is in a summer recess status. Even the churches have little to offer after the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning.

Next time I write I hope I will be able to have something fairly interesting to report on. Sincerely, Eunice F. Gallagher

ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

AUSTIN—Texas consumers of foods, drugs and cosmetics will come out on the long end of an almost completely new state law which goes into effect late next month.

The new law, aimed at consumer protection against adulteration, mislabeling, and false advertising, was passed by the 57th session of the State Legislature with strong support of a major segment of the food, drug, and cosmetic industry.

It becomes effective August 28, and represents the first major overhaul of the State's basic food and drug law in more than 50 years.

State health authorities say the law is good as is in force anywhere in the nation. It puts Texas on the side of the proponents of uniformity in state food and drug laws.

An old law made no provision for checking on the wholesomeness of cosmetics, whereas the new act requires truthful advertising, complete labeling as to ingredients, forbids the use of harmful ingredients, and requires that products be produced and held under sanitary conditions.

The law also brings therapeutic devices under control by outlawing worthless contrivances such as "cancer belts" and "arthritis rings" and similar quack appliances which take advantage of the desperation of afflicted people.

Under present Texas law the use of certain additives in food or drink is illegal. But after August 28 it will be permissible to use additives to enhance taste, color, texture or preservative qualities of certain foods. However, the burden of proving the additive is not injurious to human health will be on the manufacturer rather than on the enforcement agency as has been the case heretofore.

"Advances in food and drink technology over the past several years indicate a definite place in the food industry for chemical additives," says Joe F. Lakey, director of the State Health Department's food and drug division. The department takes its task of consumer protection seriously. Lakey says division inspectors had supervised the destruction of 997,978 pounds of food as unfit for human use in the period between

I Give You Texas

By BOYCE HOUSE

How do you go about writing a bio?

The first step—and much the most important—is the gathering of the material, assuming that you are not going to write on a subject which you know at first hand—your recollections of a famous friend, or a winter you spent in the Antarctic.

Then the materials must be grouped, so as to be easily handled. If it is a biography, the groupings would be the boyhood and early schooling, college days, beginning of career, etc. After the groupings, material must be given time to assume shape and significance in the writer's mind.

Last of all comes the writing—which often takes the least time of all.

Research is fascinating. A while back I became interested in the subject of William Jennings Bryan, so all the biographies—five or six—were read.

When Bryan ran the first time for president his opponent was William McKinley—and so the biographies of McKinley and of Mark Hanna, the mastermind of McKinley's campaign, were examined. The next race, the Republican candidate for vice president was Theodore Roosevelt and he and Bryan were rivals thereafter—hence the biographies of "T. R." were read; similarly, with William Howard Taft, Bryan's opponent in his third campaign.

Then, since Bryan had much to do with the nomination of Woodrow Wilson, came the reading of chapters in the Wilson biographies.

Also there were contemporaries who had contracts with Bryan, such men as Bourke Cockran, Grover Cleveland and John Peter Altgeld. Then there were journalists who wrote their recollections of "the great and near great."

Besides, there are the writings of professors on government, who have analyzed the methods and influence of various political leaders. And sometimes a biography of someone, a recollection of Bryan. Besides books, there are temporary magazines, accounts of the various nations and campaigns, newspapers, too.

The search for facts and color becomes tedious.

Child's Arm Turns Hard, Stony; Medical Treatment Slows Process

Christine Versluis, who is nine and lives on the shores of Lake Ontario at Hilton, N.Y., is unable to straighten her right arm because of rheumatic disease.

Nine-year-old Christine Versluis must hold her right arm in this awkward upright position because it is turning into hard, stony substance. But there's hope for her in research sponsored by The National Foundation.

Her arm and parts of both shoulders are becoming increasingly calcified, which means change of the muscle tissue into a hard stony substance.

This somber-faced child is the tragic victim of dermatomyositis, one of the forms of rheumatic disease. Another form is rheumatoid arthritis. The majority of people don't know that children suffer from arthritis; they believe mistakenly that arthritis afflicts only the aging—someone's grandfather or grandmother, surely not the very young.

But there is urgent reason today why grownups and parents especially should be intelligently informed about arthritis among children. Dr. William S. Clark, director of medical care of The National Foundation, whose expanded program embraces arthritis, birth defects and continued work in polio, said this week:

"Rheumatoid arthritis is a type that can make children very ill indeed. They may become severely crippled. Their joints may 'freeze.' Happily, we can now demonstrate today that with proper treatment and care, most of the crippling caused by juvenile rheumatoid arthritis can be prevented."

But the cardinal point, Dr. Clark emphasizes, is that thousands of children have rheumatoid arthritis without knowing what the disease they suffer from really is. Their parents may dismiss the aching in neck, knees, wrists or elbows (or, more rarely, in all these joints simultaneously) as "growing pains"; or for a variety of other reasons, the right diagnosis is not made.

"We now estimate that in the United States, more than 50,000 adults who suffer from rheumatoid arthritis had their actual onset of the disease in childhood," Dr. Clark added. "Had they received modern treatment at that time, most of the crippling in maturity could have been prevented. That's one reason why The National Foundation's program in arthritis and patient aid for the young is so significant."

Child victims of rheumatoid arthritis are estimated to total 30,000 in this country alone, with 16,000 a year ill enough to need medical care. About 5,000 or 6,000 of these may require treatment as intensive as the rehabilitation needed for those stricken by paralytic polio.

There are at least 11 millions in the nation today who suffer from some form of rheumatic disease, including arthritis. Rheumatoid arthritis victims total about 1,500,000. The disease is the nation's No. 1crippler.

To return to Christine, the little girl with the arm and shoulders turning into a stony element, she is receiving treatment at the March of Dimes-supported Arthritis Study Center at the University of Rochester School of Medicine—one of four National Foundation arthritis centers around the country. Her doctors hope they are slowing the advance of calcification but the outlook at this time is not certain.

Uncertainty, then, is the disquieting prospect facing this little girl. Her mother, Mrs. Eugene Versluis, hopes that if enough people support National Foundation research, perhaps in time Christine's right arm will fall back where it belongs and the stoniness will disappear; and that eventually the appalling figure of 30,000 children with crippling rheumatoid arthritis each year will decline.

Siebert said that enrollment at Douglas School this next semester will be about the same as last year when 49 were enrolled. Last year 40 of the 49 students were in elementary grades and were taught by two teachers. The other nine high school pupils had one teacher. Siebert said it is anticipated that 12 students will be in the high school grades for the 1961-62 school years, eight from Eastland and four from Cisco.

The inspection team also complained that the gymnasium and agriculture shop at Eastland High School are inadequate.

Debris on the school grounds near the gymnasium and the band building constituted safety hazards.
