

IN E.C.T. CONCERT - - Diana Dill and Ben Karnes, both of Dallas, discuss a musical arrangement during rehearsal. They will present the music of Jerome Kern at Bell Hurst Theatre tonight.

Music Of Jerome Kern At ECT Thursday Night

The music of Jerome Kern, Ben Karnes of Dallas, both American composer, will be presented by Diana Dill and a special bi-centennial treat for those of this area during Music Week. Their performance at Bell Hurst Theatre will comprise the entertainment portion of Eastland Civic Theatre's annual picnic concert.

The public is invited to the picnic, which will begin at 7 p.m. and to their performance which will follow immediately. There will be no charge, although guests are asked to bring a "covered dish" to the picnic.

Diana Dill, who is beginning her career as a singer has recently been appearing in one of Dallas' French restaurants. A graduate of the University of Texas, she studied afterwards for a year in France.

Karnes, who taught music in Breckenridge for 11 years has presented a number of programs in Eastland. Since 1971, he has been pianist for the Old Warsaw Restaurant in Dallas.

Graduating seniors who have participated in productions at Bell Hurst will be honored at the program as presented a gift from the theatre by its director, Virginia Garrett Seelig, contralto, Assistant Professor of Voice, School of Music at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. Her accompanist will be Dr. Frank Stovall, Virginia graduated from Hardin - Simmons University with a music major and received her Masters degree from North Texas. She has also studied under many well known voice teachers in Washington, D.C. and in California. She spent six months of her sabbatical leave from the Seminary last year taking opera training and voice under a very noted professor at the famous Mosarticum, Salzburg, Austria.

Virginia is a concert soloist of renown in Texas and the southwest. She has made numerous recordings for Word Record Co., has appeared for many productions at Casa Manana in Fort Worth. She is in constant demand for solo concerts for churches, clubs and civic organizations. She was with the Billy Graham team during the London Crusade. One of the Fort Worth Seminary personnel remarked that when Virginia sings, it is like organ strains drifting through.

She has taught voice at Southwestern Baptist

Cong. Bureson Announces $324,000 FHA Loan Projects

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Congressman Omar Bureson announces the approval of a $324,000 Farmers Home Administration loan to Rogers & Rogers Investments of Fort Worth to construct a rental housing complex at Eastland.

The project will provide 24 apartment units (8 one-bedroom, 16 two-bedroom) to be operated on a limited profit basis and rented to families of low and moderate income.

Construction is expected to begin soon on a location facing West Sadosa St., on an L-shape lot east and south of the present Sabine Terrace Apartments, it is reported.

Concert VII To Be Sunday

In observance of National Music Week, the Eastland Music Study Club and Patrons of Music will present Bicenennial Festival Concert VII May 9, 1976, at 3:00 p.m. in the First Baptist Church. This final Festival Concert, "Salute to America's Music", is the climax of Music Week, sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs. The theme for the day, "Even though I could speak with the voice of an angel, Music's voice is softer still; it lightens the burden of the heavy laden, it gives inspiration and fortifies courage" was written by the late G.W. Collum, a former Eastland High School band director and father of Mrs. Varge Daniel, past Music Club president and presently one of the Friends of Music.

To be featured in the free concert is an Eastland native, Virginia Garrett Seelig, contralto, Assistant Professor of Voice, School of Music at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. Her accompanist will be Dr. Frank Stovall, Virginia graduated from Hardin - Simmons University with a music major and received her Masters degree from North Texas. She has also studied under many well known voice teachers in Washington, D.C. and in California. She spent six months of her sabbatical leave from the Seminary last year taking opera training and voice under a very noted professor at the famous Mosarticum, Salzburg, Austria.

'In The Spirit Of '76' Theme Little Miss Eastland Pageant

"In the Spirit of '76" is the theme of the annual "Little Miss Eastland" Pageant, to be held Saturday, May 8, at 7:30 p.m. in the Eastland High School auditorium.

Twenty-four young ladies, aged 3-5, will compete for the title now held by Lisa Tyson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tyson. Out of town judges will be used and will be introduced the night of the pageant.

During judging breaks, several talent acts will be presented. These include a musical trio composed of Terry Bradley, Brian Haun, and Randy Wharton, Eastland High School students; selections by Linda Lyndell Perryman and Dorothy Shaw of Ranger; and singing and dancing by the children of Zeta Pi sorority members with Mrs. Andy Taylor at the piano. Children performing include Shawn Alsop, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Alsop; Andrea, Kevin, and Lance Bailey, children of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Bailey;

County Party Conventions will be held Saturday, May 8. County Republican Convention will be at 10 a.m. in the Eastland County Courthouse. County Democratic Convention will take place at 2 p.m. on the third floor of the courthouse.

The Zeta Pi chapter of Beta Sigma Phi is sponsor of the event. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50c for children under 12.

Morren Withdraws Sheriff Race

A MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE OF EASTLAND COUNTY FROM JOHNNIE MORREN:

Recently, as a part of an ad in my campaign for Sheriff of Eastland County, a photograph was published showing myself with certain Eastland County officials. It was not my intention to place such officials in a position indicating their support of my campaign. However, the circumstances apparently have caused much public embarrassment to such individuals, for which I am truly sorry. I have personally assured each of the men involved that I merely meant to show my activities within the law enforcement network by that picture and the others appearing on the same advertisement.

I have personally apologized to each of the men involved and now apologize to the citizens of Eastland County for whatever wrongs committed by the publishing of the photograph. My main interest has always been in the protection and preservation of the public safety and welfare through good, solid law enforcement. I believe that if this campaign were to go forward, good, solid law enforcement and the people of Eastland County would suffer and would take a back seat to other items of less importance. Therefore, I am withdrawing my name as a candidate for Sheriff of Eastland County, Texas. In so doing I pledge to you, the people of Eastland County, to work diligently, faithfully and cooperatively with your new sheriff and with all others in the enforcement and judicial branches of our government to insure the continued protection to which my fellow citizens are entitled.

I wish to thank my many friends who have worked tirelessly in this campaign and who have contributed financially; your help and assistance will always be revered, cherished and held close to the hearts of my entire family and me.

Johnnie Morren

In viewing TV contest shows, one usually hears contestants asked, "Where are you from?" Invariably, you sense a pride in the person's reply when the town is mentioned. The contestants are mostly ordinary people; no spellbinder, no do - gooder, no politician. It is this sort of civic loyalty and pride that has helped America become big and strong...and envied.
In our American way of life, we take many things for granted - including our home town. Maybe once in a while we ought to adopt and dedicate ourselves to a personal creed, somewhat along these lines -
"This is my home town. My home is here. My business or work is here. It is where my vote is cast; where my children are educated; where my neighbors dwell; where my life is centered. My town is entitled to my citizenship; not my partisanship. It is entitled to my friendship, not my dissensions; my sympathy, not my indifference. It supplies me with protection, trade, friends, education, friendly and reliable merchants, schools and churches. It has done some things better than others. The best things I should seek to make better, the worst things I should help to suppress. My town supports me. My town, including the merchants that help support my town, are entitled in turn to my support and loyalty."

Primary Results

A total of 4,660 voters (probably less than half of those qualified), WENT TO THE POLLS Saturday and made some important decisions in the Party Primaries.

Apparently a number switched parties in order to vote for (or against) President Ford. The Democrats voted 4,421 in nine boxes in the county and the Republicans turned out 239 in one combined box highest ever here.

The Democratic nomination for county sheriff went into a runoff between R.B. White (who got 48 percent of the total vote, lacking less than 200 votes for a clear majority) and Johnnie W. Morren.

A number of state runoffs and one Constable runoff in Rising Star will be on the June 5 runoff ballots.

Eastland County Democrats stayed with representatives in Austin but voted less strong for the two. Incumbent Sen. Tom Creighton probably got fewer votes in the county than ever before, and Incumbent State Rep. Joe Hanna had an Eastland County opponent which cut down his total.

Most Eastland County voters voted like a lot of other Texans in the Railroad Commission race, going for a familiar name (Jerry Sadler, longtime state land commissioner) but will get another vote when that contest goes into a runoff in June.

Likewise the state supreme, criminal appeals and civil appeals court races were confering for voters here and across the state. (A novice with a popular name (Don Yarbrough) got many a vote.)

The County Commissioners Court composition remains unchanged as Commissioner Precinct One Danny Woods was re-nominated without opposition, and Commissioner Precinct Three L.T. Owens of Rising Star successfully defeated a Gorman challenger.

An attempted effort to secure delegates for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen failed in Eastland County (as it did in the state) as Georgia's Jimmy Carter swept the county - and the state.

Over at the Republican balloting, Movie star and Ex-Governor Ronald Reagan outdid President Gerald Ford here - and across the state.

Eastlander Mike Collins, a Bentsen delegate candidate, put together 800 votes, but locally - unknown Carter delegates scored above 2,000 each to swing the delegates to the Georgian.

Highest single delegate total for Ford was 70 while greatest Reagan delegate support read 166. (Democrats were picking three delegates and Republicans, four).

Here's the Democratic delegate voting in Eastland County:

Baker for Bentsen - 647
Nunneley for Bentsen - 624
Collins for Bentsen - 800
Glasgow for Carter - 2082
King for Carter - 2082
Bolton for Carter - 2047

FGBMFI Meet

The F.G.B.M.F.I. meeting will be held Saturday May 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the Women's Club Building on Plummer Street.

Billy Simmons was born and raised in Fisher County. He graduated from high school in Roby, Tex. and attended college at Hardin-Simmons University.

He married Karyl in 1962 and they have been blessed with three lovely daughters. Billy is employed by Texaco Inc. and he and Karyl come from a Methodist background. It has only been in the last four years that they have both known the Living Jesus as Savior, Baptizer and Lord. Billy spent two weeks in Nigeria, Africa last year preaching, teaching, and witnessing and he has many beautiful and miraculous experiences to relate from that trip. He and Karyl will receive great joy in sharing Jesus in testimony and in song.

We look forward to fellowship in Christ with all of our family there in Eastland... In His Love-The Simmons Bring a Friend.

Visitors

Weekend visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tucker were in Larry Walker family of Crowley, the Glen Stennett family of Nimrod, the Fred Tucker family of Flatwood, and E.T. Tucker and Pete Tucker, both of Eastland.

Athletic Director Speaks At All Sports

By Vance O'Brien

Abilene Christian University Athletic Director and Head Football Coach Wally Bullington complimented and challenged Eastland athletes at the annual All-Sports Banquet sponsored by the Quarterback Club Tuesday evening.

After all the public school athletes and their coaches enjoyed a steak dinner, Coach Bullington called them winners and urged them to try to better themselves.

"Put others ahead of yourself," he advised, "and don't be afraid of failure." Join in being proud of our system and look for good things coming, he said.

Eastland Head Coach Doug Dallas introduced EHS footballers and Coach Charlotte Mason introduced her girls basketball, track and Junior High teams.

Coach Joe Bagwell introduced his basketball teams and Coach Jerry McPherson introduced the track teams. Coach Larry Duncan introduced his tennis and golf teams and Coach Hughes introduced the Junior High School athletic teams.

Coach Don Adair told of the physical education program and thank his helpers.

Seniors were introduced by Coaches Mason and Dallas. Athlete Mike Stutz recognized Coach McPherson's accomplishments and programs.

Dear friends,
Dr. Wm. Lamers, psychiatrist, says, "In my experience, in my research, I have found a funeral to be of great value over an extended time for those who participate in it, for those who make it a part of the way in which they respond to death. I was so impressed, that I have made speeches and appeared on radio and TV to discuss how I, a psychiatrist, felt about funerals.

Local Pigeon Club Enters Laredo Races

Clear skies and light winds greeted one-hundred thirty eight racing pigeons belonging to the Eastland and Abilene Racing Pigeon Clubs. Thad Kelley and Charles Bode both of Breckenridge released the birds at 7:30 Sunday morning May 2, from Cherokee.

In the A race Charles Bode was first with 1437.21 ypm; Curtis Young was second with 1344.51 ypm; Floyd Frady was third with 1338.08 ypm; fourth was Thad Kelley with 1330.56 ypm; fifth was Richard Gregg with 1090.96 ypm; sixth was Kenny Kelley with 1064.64; seventh was Ricky Kelley with 1048.82 ypm; Dan Schuette was eighth with 960.06 ypm; and ninth was Rod Dominey with 672.60 ypm; Wiley Walker failed to clock a bird.

In the B race Charles Bode was first with 1380.35 ypm; Floyd Frady was second with 1370.11 ypm; Curtis Young was third with 1365.24 ypm; Thad Kelley was fourth with 1316.87 ypm; fifth was Richard Gregg with 1076.43 ypm; sixth was Kenny Kelley with 1064.75 ypm; sixth was Kenny Kelley with 1064.75 ypm; seventh was Ricky Kelley with 1049.60 ypm; Rod Dominey was eighth 956.13

Dan Schuette and Wiley Walker did not trap birds in this race.

In the April 25th race from Pleasanton it was reported that Charles Bode won both A and B races. This should have been Ricky Kelley in A race with 1068.54 ypm and Charles Bode second in A race with 1057.34 ypm. In the B race it should have been Ricky Kelley first with 1068.06 ypm; Floyd Frady second with 1057.45 ypm and third, Charles Bode with 1056.97 ypm.

The highlighted race of the season will be flown May 8 with the release point being Laredo. Birds from lofts throughout Texas will participate in this race. It is considered an honor to have birds in this race and the Eastland and Abilene clubs plan to have their lofts represented.

SEEDS FROM THE SOWER

By Michael A. Guido, Metter, Georgia

Orphaned at seven years of age, John Newton became a wanderer. After sailing with his sea-captain father, he then joined the Royal Navy. He deserted, was caught, put in irons and whipped publicly.

Angry and defiant, he then signed on the lowest of all sea-going craft - a slave ship. The wife of the slave trader took out her hatred for her husband against John and she treated him like a dog. She threw his food on the floor and he was compelled to eat off the floor or be beaten. He escaped and made his way to the coast where he attracted a ship by building a fire.

John hardly knew how to read, but he knew the sea, and he was made a mate. One day he served rum to the crew and they got drunk. The captain beat him so brutally that he was knocked overboard, but he rescued him by throwing a harpoon and spearing him. He carried that scar until his death.

On a voyage from Brazil a storm all but sent the captain and his ship to the bottom of the Atlantic. John called upon the name of the Lord and was saved, and he wrote the words, "Amazing grace! how sweet the sound, that saved a wretch like me!" How thankful he was and I am that "the Lord is gracious" - Psalm 145:8.

At Pleasant Hill

The Rev. Lee Fields of Carbon, longtime Eastland County minister, has been called as interim pastor at Pleasant Hill Baptist Church—the church where he began his preaching.

Rev. Fields and members of the Pleasant Hill Church joined in urging the membership to return for services and to extend invitations to all to attend.

You can't teach your kid the real value of a dollar and expect him to have any respect for it," says Blackie Sherrod, Dallas Times Herald sports writer.

Valley View News

The residents of Valley View Lodge were very busy during the month April.

We had our monthly birthday party on the 20th of April. The residents that were honored are as follows: Arda Tibbs, Lois Walton, Johnny Hart, Trannie Lasater, Lillian Nordyke, Addie Allen, Nellie Caraway, and Myrtle Downs.

The featured entertainers were the "Rhythmic Valley Boys." This group of talented singers and players of musical string instruments was highly entertaining for the residents and the general public. Cake and punch was served to all by the volunteers.

The residents enjoyed the Mission Friends of the First Baptist Church of Eastland. The children presented an Easter program and the residents passed Easter baskets that they made and filled with candy.

Next Sunday, May 9th, is Mother's Day, but for some very special people in our community, it has another significance.

Mother's Day is the first day of Texas Nursing Home Week. Nursing homes in our community are holding Open House to bring people like yourselves into nursing homes to visit and talk with the residents there.

Community participation in the lives of residents is essential. Our residents need a purpose to get well. Even though they participate in many activities, undergo therapy, and have the finest medical and nursing care possible, without the added knowledge that someone outside the nursing home cares, they still can feel quite lonely. You can help many people along the road to recovery simply by showing YOU CARE.

Valley View Lodge extends an invitation to the public to come and visit us at any time. Games of Bingo and Dominoes are played every Monday and Thursday at two in the afternoon. Sunday School is every Sunday at 9:45 a.m. Church worship is at 7:15 every Thursday night.

Be sure to come and look at our work while you are visiting us. We have a variety of items that are for sale. The money we receive for the items will help us to buy materials we need for our workshop. Our work will be on display in the lobby and in the occupational therapy room on hall 4.

Remember, only by your presence can you demonstrate that you truly care.

The Winning Bicentennial Essay "My Colonial Hero"

MY COLONIAL HERO: PATRICK HENRY

If it were possible to turn time back to the Colonial days, I would want to be like Patrick Henry. He had many characteristics which I consider important, characteristics which I would like to have. Although he failed at his two attempts to run a store and at his attempt to farm, his life was definitely not a failure. He finally settled down to a career as a lawyer, and, as a lawyer, he became a leader of the people, respected by many. Although he faced almost unbeatable odds many times throughout his life and career, especially during his fight to convince people of the need for independence, he never gave up hope. Patrick Henry always stood up for that in which he believed, no matter what or how much it cost him. This quality, among others, was what attracted me to Patrick Henry.

Patrick Henry had a very interesting childhood which influenced his accomplishments and helped to make him what he was. He enjoyed being outdoors, and he had the reputation of lying around in the forest, apparently lazy. Yet he never shut his eyes to go to sleep; he was always wide awake, observing nature. As he grew up, he never lost his alertness or his reputation for being observant.

Once he suffered a broken collarbone resulting from a fight with a bully who had killed a small boy's kitten. For, even as a child, he stood up and fought for that in which he believed. During his recovery, thirteen-year-old Patrick, accustomed to being up and about, chafed at having to stay in bed. However, his time was not wasted. He continued his lessons, and he learned to play the flute. With the help of his flute and his music, he became well acquainted with Sarah (Sally) Shelton whom he later married.

At the age of seventeen, Patrick tried his hand at being a storekeeper. However, he failed in that because he was over-generous with his credit customers. Although it was a failure money-wise, Patrick learned many things, including how to feel out other people and how to get their reactions to his suggestions. During his time between customers, he read books and thought deeply about the current affairs of the country. Then when a customer came in, Patrick told him about his ideas and carefully listened to the customer's opinions. Thus, he learned how to communicate with people and how to get their reactions without making them feel like they were being questioned. The experience and procedure were both very useful later, in his career as a lawyer.

After his first failure he married Sally and settled down to farming. This was very hard for him to do, for the farm required all of his attention as well as his time. He no longer had time to read or to think about anything except how to make the farm prosper. However, his farm, too, was a failure, for after two years of hard work his home burned, taking all of his possessions with it. Since his crops were unsuccessful, he decided to try to run a store for the second time, but again he failed. Although he failed repeatedly, he never completely gave up; he strived to succeed.

Patrick Henry was very upset about his unstable life. Therefore, at the age of twenty-four after a quick, but thorough, study of the history of the common laws, Patrick Henry went to Williamsburg to John Randolph, a famous lawyer. He persuaded Mr. Randolph to examine him for the bar. After the examination Mr. Randolph agreed to give him a license, and two other examiners joined him to authorize it. However, George Wythe refused to have anything to do with him because he felt that Patrick did not know enough about the laws. The other examiners felt that Patrick Henry was capable of being a good lawyer, for with his determination and persuasive voice, he was very convincing, especially when he spoke about the people's rights. Thus, Patrick Henry, finding his feet on the ground at last, stood up and became a leader of the people, determined to help the people as much as possible.

Patrick Henry, the lawyer, was soon respected (as I hope to be respected) by many people. He was even considered somewhat of a hero because of his part in the Parson's Cause in 1763. The Parson's Cause was Patrick's first big publicized case, and he did his best to defend his clients properly. He defended three tax collectors who had been sued by Reverend James Maury because Reverend Maury wanted to be paid with tobacco, not with paper money as the Two-Penny Act allowed. This act, a Virginia law, allowed debtors to make payments with paper money instead of with a stated amount of tobacco when a small crop increased the value of tobacco as currency. Peter Lyons, Reverend Maury's lawyer, claimed that the King had vetoed the Two-Penny Act; thus, it being void, payment had to be made with tobacco. However, Patrick, always the defender of rights and principles, made a speech as his argument. In his speech, spell-binding and convincing, he protested that the people in America should not bow to the King's veto of an American law, for if they allowed the King to tell them what to use for currency, then the King would force the colonists to obey other unjust rulings. Patrick Henry said that the Americans had the right to make their own laws and that it was not right for the King of England to tell the Americans what to do.

In 1765, a neighboring county elected him to represent it in the Virginia House of Burgesses. He gladly accepted the post and made the people proud of him, for only nine days after taking his seat he, a "rookie," proposed seven resolutions, five of which were passed, denouncing the Stamp Act. He illustrated how bothersome the Stamp Act was by acting out a somewhat exaggerated scene in which a bridegroom prepared to put the wedding ring on his bride-to-be's finger. Suddenly, he stopped and pulled out a stamp. After sticking it on an imaginary document, he placed the ring on her finger and said, "With this stamp, I thee wed." Thus, he illustrated once again that he protected people's rights and that he could propose the necessary action to uphold his beliefs.

Even though the scene was exaggerated, it convinced about half of the burgesses that the Stamp Act was an outrage and that it should not be tolerated. In the final vote the resolutions barely carried, but they did. Some people referred to "the Virginia resolves" as the "springboard of the Revolution". This showed that even though he was young, Patrick Henry was convincing. Patrick Henry served the public as a burgess until 1774. That year he was chosen to be one of the seven delegates from Virginia to attend the First Continental Congress in Philadelphia. There he met Sam Adams and John Adams, both of whom he came to know and like. The three of them respected each other for their accomplishments and ideas, especially Sam and Patrick. Sam was considered to be the leader of Massachusetts while Patrick was the leader of Virginia. They considered it their duty to make their respective states the leaders of the other colonies. Thus, Patrick Henry joined "forces" with other leaders of America and became a leader of Americans, not just Virginians. In this way he helped spread the nationalistic feelings of loyalty to a country instead of to a state.

When Congress adjourned in October, 1775, Patrick returned home, convinced that a war was inevitable. Therefore, he went to work organizing a militia for his county. Other counties in Virginia soon followed suit, and many of the groups sent word to George Washington requesting that he take command of them. Here again, as a leader he stirred the people who trusted him to action.

Up to that time, Patrick Henry, a spell-binding speaker, had made many stirring speeches. However, it was not until March, 1775, while attending the Virginia Convention in Richmond, that he made his most famous speech. He felt that war was inevitable; therefore, Virginia should be prepared to defend America's independence. He knew that Virginians could, and would, put all of their energy into preparation for war, but only if they gave up all hope of unity with England. In his famous speech he convinced many people that it was necessary to quickly prepare for war. His dramatic, yet sincere speech ended with "Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take - - But as for me, give me liberty - - or give me death!"

Since Patrick Henry convinced the people of the need to prepare for war, he was elected as Commander-in-Chief of Virginia's militia. However, his authority was limited because the committee to which all of his decisions were subject was headed by an old rival. Therefore, very soon after Sally's death in 1776, he resigned from the military because he felt that it was not fair to the people to have a Commander-in-Chief who had his authority limited. Thus, he illustrated that he put the people above his personal ambitions, that he cared more for the people than for personal titles or glory.

However, his political career was not over. Later in 1776 he was elected as Virginia's first governor after serving on a committee which wrote the state constitution, including a Bill of Rights. During his first several weeks as governor he suffered from malaria. He met and fell in love with Dorothea (Dolly) Dandridge while he was sick and recovering. He married Dolly because he needed someone to help him serve in society as a governor was expected to do. He also enjoyed her because she understood his work, and he could discuss his problems with her. Governor Henry served for three consecutive one-year terms from 1776 - 1779.

At the end of his third term he took his huge family and moved westward. There he bought a large plantation and settled down to enjoy life and his family. He often amused his family by stepping outside and yelling to a field hand one-half mile away. He also continued to play the fiddle, and he even had time to ride and hunt again. Although he spent much of his time trying to recuperate from the hold that the malaria had on him, he answered the call of duty to continue to help his country. Thus, for the five years that he lived on his plantation, he served as a state legislator, attending meetings as often as his health permitted. For the next two years, from 1784 - 1786, Patrick served his fourth and fifth (final) terms as governor. Patrick Henry "retired" several times, but he always felt duty - bound to help the people when they asked him for help.

In 1787 Patrick Henry was asked to attend the convention in Philadelphia to decide how to amend the Articles of the Confederacy. He refused to attend because he felt that the government should have had a constitution, including a Bill of Rights, like Virginia's constitution.

From 1787 to 1790 he served as legislator again and was chosen as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention. There he strongly opposed the adoption of the constitution because it did not contain a Bill of Rights. He finally convinced enough people that their rights needed to be expressed, not taken for granted. When assured that the amendments would cover the rights, he voted for the constitution.

Even though many people respected him, some turned against him because of his views about the constitution. He knew this, yet he continued to fight for what he believed was right. Though some did turn away from him, many people still believed in him and elected him to several posts which he refused because of his health. The general public also showed its feelings for him by calling him the "Father of the Constitution" because his opposition caused the Bill of Rights to be added.

In 1794 Patrick again retired. However, in 1799 at the request of several politicians he ran for the Assembly. There he hoped to bring harmony to the government by showing it how to operate under the Constitution. He was elected, but he never got the chance to serve. For on June 6, 1799, at the age of sixty-three, Patrick Henry died at his home.

Thus, a great American hero's life ended. It was sad that his life had to end then. Yet America prospered from this great man's life of devotion to his country and to the causes in which he believed - independence and freedom.

I know that it is impossible to live exactly as Patrick Henry did. However, I can cherish the two things - independence and freedom - that America is privileged to have today because of Patrick Henry's lifetime devotion. I can also respect Patrick Henry for several admirable qualities, especially the determination to uphold his beliefs.

NATIONAL MUSIC WEEK

BY RICKY RAY HONEA
Music is a cultural activity of mankind. Music has probably existed in some form from the earliest days of man. Man was created with the ability to express himself without the aid of a musical instrument for he undoubtedly since the beginning of man expressed himself with his voice. For thousands of years music existed as a simple form of natural voice sounds, which expanded with the aid of a wide variety of musical instruments. Composers of early music memorized their music, but today, composers write their music down using special symbols and even rhythmic tempos that correspond with the mood and style of the music that is played.

Music reflects many different ways of life. We appreciate music because it translates something to us which we find satisfaction in listening to. It is easy to accept music as a quiet background sound that helps provide a pleasant atmosphere. The way to enjoy music is to find music that interests you and listen to it. Then by concentrating upon the lyrics, the every now and then music becomes a great and exciting way of enjoying the real effect of its meaning. A composer writes music so that he can relate the music's feelings with that of his audience because he knows that the greatest enjoyment of music comes when we can fully understand it. Intelligent listening is an active process which takes concentration upon the real soul movement of the music. The more you familiarize oneself with music the better understanding and appreciation one will have for music.

Only persons who know of the musical language can enjoy the fullest pleasures derived from music. But one can train himself to look for the finer and more musical sounds than unfamiliar music can express, because all music has a form of sound that is communicated with its listeners.

Music has many possibilities for those who partake in the ideas of making music their career. Musical fields of unlimited varieties are opened to those who decided to make music their career.

Music has a part in each and every life of all humanitarian societies. Music will be in existence even when man no longer physically exists.

BY VICTORIA WILSON
While Casey waltzed with his strawberry blonde and the band played on, people all over the world of different race, creed, and color danced to the beat of many different tunes. When the orchestra leader raises his baton or one can hear the one, and a two, and a three, and a four, young and old alike gather around to enjoy the relaxation of the musical atmosphere. Music is not only a form of relaxation, but for composers and music lovers everywhere it is also a form of expression and deep personal feelings. Composers are gifted with the talent to bring happiness and pleasure to their listeners.

Music has no specific nationality so its meaning can be appreciated in all nations. It is a bond that ties us all together. The history of music goes back to the times before Christ and was possibly used then for more religious purposes. Time progressed on and music, written to fit the respective times, progressed in many forms and fashions.

Music is a part of our culture and should be appreciated with the same respect as art and great literature, and in as much as literature and art have changed, music also has kept up with the pace.

Music today is the most widely known form of enjoyment. The people of the world could not possibly be as close by or enjoy life as much without starting each day with a song in their hearts.

TESCO Cuts Ties With WTU

Texas Electric Service Company has severed interconnections with West Texas Utilities (WTU) following WTU's violation of an agreement to keep interconnections between the two companies part of an intrastate system only.

The action came Tuesday after WTU connected a portion of Public Service Company of Oklahoma's systems to the WTU intrastate (within the Texas) system. WTU's intrastate system is connected to Texas Electric.

That action violated a contractual agreement between Texas Electric and WTU that requires both parties to keep connections between the two as part of systems operating only within Texas.

WTU and Public Service Company of Oklahoma are both subsidiaries of Central and South West Corporation, an electric holding company. WTU has maintained one system completely within Texas and another connected across state lines.

Because of WTU's action yesterday, Texas Electric disconnected its transmission ties with WTU.

"We can serve our customers more economically and reliably by maintaining an intrastate system", said W.G. Marquardt, President of Texas Electric. "We are large enough to have economies of scale and we've acquired a substantial long range fuel supply."

Game Day Set

ARE YOU GOING? Game Day is all set for Friday morning beginning at 10 a.m.

All sorts of games will be played, prizes awarded in each game, Bingo prizes, a door prize, AND a big surprise awaits those who attend.

Guests are welcome for lunch even if they do not participate in the games.

All this for $2.50 so plan now to bring your partner or a foursome, or as many guests as you choose.

Let's all get together July 4th and have an unforgettable time!!

Let's all get together July 4th and have an unforgettable time!!

Connecting the Texas Electric System to Interstate Facilities

Connecting the Texas Electric system to interstate facilities would require a substantial investment without adequate benefit, according to Marquardt.

"We don't think it is reasonable to ask our customers to pay for facilities whose benefit, if any, will be for customers of other electric systems", he said.

Texas Electric, Dallas Power and Light, and Texas Power and Light are the operating subsidiaries of the Texas Utilities Company system. The companies maintain interconnections with each other and with other electric utilities in the Texas interconnected system, a group that maintains interconnection completely within the state of Texas.

Elect Officers

Eastland Band Boosters met Monday night, May 3, at the Band Hall. Officers elected were: Buddy Rowch, president; Ben Marney, vice president; Mary Jane Rowch, treasurer; Mary Colman, secretary; and Jean Coleman, telephone committee.

Outgoing president is Grover Hallmark.

The Eastland High School Band will go to Six Flags Saturday, May 8, and the Junior High Band will go to Abilene Saturday, May 15.

An Ice Cream Supper was held after the meeting.

Suit Against 4 County Men Dismissed

A suit against four persons seeking $14.3 million for an Eastland man who claimed he was forced into a mental institution by conspiracy was dismissed Friday in federal court in Fort Worth.

Defendants in the case were Dr. E.E. Addy, Dr. Ayres R. Cermin, Joe Woodward Jr., and Eastland County Criminal Dist. Atty. Emory Walton.

They were sued by Woodward Sr., who claimed they and three other persons conspired to have him admitted to the Wichita Falls State Hospital for a temporary confinement in the summer of 1973. Woodward Sr. stayed at the hospital 43 days.

The commitment came after a 1973 incident in which Woodward Sr. proclaimed his religious views in a supermarket parking lot in Cisco. Woodward Sr. claimed his sons had him committed solely on the basis of his action at the time, and claimed the two doctors who executed affidavits to county court here July 6, 1973, examined him outside a clinic without psychiatric tests.

Woodward Sr.'s suit claimed he was deprived of his civil rights when he was committed not through a trial, but by affidavits presented to Eastland County Judge Scott Bailey in absentia.

It also claimed that commitment papers were drawn up by county officials in the judge's chambers.

Woodward Sr. also said he was released from the mental hospital after 43 days of a 90 day commitment after the hospital staff concluded that for a man his age (70), Woodward was in "good health, mentally and otherwise."
