

Public School Week will be March 3 - 7. Mr. Hill, principal at Eastland High School, has announced that the public is invited to visit at any time during school hours. If anyone wishes to eat with the students they should let the school know by 9 a.m. the day they wish to eat.

Mr. Baze, principal of the Elementary School, asks that if you plan to eat lunch with your child, please send your name and money with your child so that they will be sure and have enough food. They will not accept extra lunches after 9 a.m. each morning.

Open house will be observed on Thursday night from 7:00 till 8:30 p.m. at the Siebert Elementary School.

Delbert Biggs, a 23 year resident of Eastland, filed Thursday in order to try and gain a seat on the Eastland City Commission. Delbert issued this statement

Friday I have lived in Eastland 17 years, attended Eastland Schools and graduated from Cisco Junior College in 1972 as a Licensed Vocational Nurse. I im treasurer for the Eastland Jaycees and chairman of the Eastland Chapter of the Northeast Diabetes Association. I married the former Becky Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.A. (Bill) Green. We have one daughter. Holley, who is 18 months old. I am employed at Arrington Funeral Home. The reasons I have for running for the City Commision are many. Mainly they are because I want to see and be a part of Eastland's growth which is evident more and more each day. I want Eastland to be a town that people will be proud to live and raise their families

There are also things in Eastland that need to be done. If I am elected I will make two omises to the people of Eastland--first I will listen to you -- the public -- and second bring your views as I would my own, before the commission.

"The Battle Of Sabine Pass" As Told In February Issue Of Texas Parks And Wildlife Magazine existence and a historical

SABINE PASS .- The battle to keep Union forces from invading Texas during the civil war is detailed in an article entitled "The Battle of Sabine Pass" in the February issue of TEXAS PARKS AND WILDLIFE maga-

Reg.

Four poorly equipped and badly functioning shallow-draft gunboats of the U.S. Navy--the Author Stanley W. Taft, park superintendent in Sabine Pass Battleground State Park, gives Clifton, Sachem, Arizona and this account: 'On Sept. 7, 1863, 21 Union Granite City, under the command of Lt. Frederick Crocker, ships assembled at the mouth of Sabine Pass to begin the were to escort and support the landing of 17 transports carrying more than 2,000 troops of the Nineteenth Army Corps. It was supposed to be a relatively easy task since Union information indicated the Confederate-held pass was weakly protected. But the northern orces were in for a surprise. Word had leaked out about the Union's intent and construction had begun during the summer on a new Confederate battery position, Fort Griffin at Sabine Pass (also referred to as Fort Sabine), to protect the vulnerable Texas port near Sabine City. It was not yet finished.

The three-sided earthen work was situated on the high ground, surrounded by marshlands, overlooking the oyster reef and sandbar that split the pass into Texas and Louisiana channels. Fort Griffin's armament consisted of two 32 pound long-iron smoothbores, two 24 ound long-iron smoothbores and two 32 pound brass howitzers (short-barrel cannons). which were also unrifled. Their range was 1,800 to 1,900 yards at a five-degree elevation. The Federals only had knowledge of the first two guns and were not aware of the additional artillery.

Manning Confederate Fort Griffin's unfinished battlements was Company F., known as the Davis Guards, one of seven companies in the Third Battalion Texas Artillery, Recruited in Galveston in 1861 as a result of the Union blockade of the Texas coast, the men of Company F. principally Irish dock workers, were under the command of Captain Frederick H. Odlum. When the Union fleet was sighted off the coast, Odlum left Fort Griffin for Sabine City to press for reinforcements. Lt. Richard W. Dowling, who had married Odlum's niece, commanded the remaining 47 men during Odlum's absence. In the early morning of Sept. a sentinel informed Dowling the federal fleet was signaling. and, fearing attack, Dowling ordered his men to cover--he was determined not to fire until the ships were well within range of their guns. His gun crews had daily practice in firing at stakes driven in both channels of the pass and had zeroed in on every inch of the area they would defend.

The Clifton, with Crocker on board, opened the action at 6:30 a.m. Sept. 8, by lobbing 26 shells at the fort with a 30 pound Parrott rifle from a position near the Louisiana shore lighthouse, which still stands today. Firing ceased at :30 a.m. Dowling refused to return fire so as not to disclose his strength.

At 11 a.m. the Sachem fired three shells at the Confederate side of the pass to the Confederate garrison's fire, the Clifton, followed by the Granite City, slipped up the Texas side. The ships were only 1,200 yards away before Dowling called his gunners from their shelters to man the artillery and return the Union fire.

On the second or third shot, however, one of the Confederate howitzers fell off its platform, cutting their firepower at a crucial moment. But skill and practice paid off to make up for the loss. Dowling's men scored a direct hit on the Sachem as she steamed up the far channel.

'I opened fire with the whole of my battery on the foremost boat (Sachem), which, after the third or fourth round, hoisted the white flag, one of the shots having passed through her steam drum," Dowling reported.

The 32 pound shot actually exploded the steam drum. crippling the boat and blocking the trailing Arizona from further advance.

Shot and shell continued to rain on the defenders from the sharpshooters aboard the stalled ships.

Despite the pressure, Dowling's men turned their firepower on the rapidly approa-ching Clifton. When it was within 500 yards, a cannonball damaged the gunboat's tiller rope. The warship went out of control and ran aground below the fort.

"The Clifton withstood our fire some 25 or 35 minutes when she also hoisted a white flag. During the time she was aground, she used grape and her sharpshooters poured an

Eastland County Law Enforcement

Association Meets Members of the Eastland County Law Enforcement association met Friday for lunch at the Ramada Inn in Eastland. Chairman for the luncheon was Eastland County Judge Scott Bailey who helped conduct the meeting which focused on the new Central Dispatch Radio system.

The new dispatch system has been in the making for the past several months and with completion in sight in the next few weeks all towns that will use the (which will be all towns in the county except Gorman at present) system are anxiously awaiting its operation.

Members of the Eastland and Cisco law enforcement divisions told the gathering that the foundation and siding had been secured and that the tower for the antennas is all that is now being waited on, with all other equipment now in Abilene waiting to be installed. Other business that was looked after at the meeting was the appointment of Eastland incessant shower of minie balls into the works (fort)", Dowling's report continued. Crocker and his men had continued the fight until the ship's boiler exploded from a direct hit. Piled with dead and wounded the Sachem and Clifton had surrendered and the Arizona and Granite City, seeing the channel blocked and knowing the accuracy of Dowling's artillery, withdrew from the pass.

In the fight, which lasted only 45 minutes, the Union troops had 19 killed, nine wounded, 37 missing and 315 officers and men taken prisoner, all at no cost to the defenders. Several burned Union soldiers later died and were buried by the citizens of Beaumont A handful of Texans had prevented the Union Army from landing troops at Sabine Pass, saving the Texas railroad between Beaumont and Houston from falling into Union hands. Had the North succeeded in the drive, it might have weakened Texas and the western Confederacy, and severely crippled the Confederate cause since Texas was the chief supply center for the western

The unexpected repulse of the Union fleet kept an occupation army out of East Texas and kept the port open to blockade runners, vital to the southern effort during the Union's Red River campaign. Today, the valiant and successful efforts of Dick Dowling and his men are still remembered.

In these early days, the purchase of anything for pleasure or entertainment depended on the success of the production in the "money" crop by the family. It was one of those years when one of the more progressive families of the community raised a bumper crop of cotton. After it was gathered, hauled off to the cotton gin and sold, the father and mother decided they could afford to buy a phonograph for the children as a Christmas present. They had read where Thomas A. Edison had invented the machine in 1876 although it was not put out for sale and use until early 1900. The contraption consisted of a rotating cylinder, with an arm

Public School Week

How much do you know about your local school district? A surprisingly high number of citizens know very little, yet these same people would no doubt agree that a strong and vigorous public education sys-tem is absolutely esential for ensuring the continuing quality of life in Texas and the nation. March 3-7 has been desig nated TEXAS PUBLIC SCHOOL WEEK across the state. Schools in our community will be open for visitation and inspection. Students' work will be on display, and teachers and faculty will be on hand to answer questions from the public. We, as parents and concerned citizens, have a duty to ask those questions. Unless we understand how the system works, we can't determine its effectiveness, and we can't be sure our children are getting the high quality of education they will certainly need to deal with the future. It all starts with us. Observe TEXAS PUBLIC -SCHOOLS WEEK this year,

March 3-7.

There is a sentinel we see around many lakes, bays, ponds, and rivers all over Texas, who is somewhat of a unique creature. The Belted Kingfisher is the only bird except the Tern that dives headlong from air into water, and this to secure his all important meal. Fish is the main diet, and he prefers chubs, and morsels not exceeding three inches long. The Kingfisher hovers looking for a meal, and then suddenly plunges head first to grab it. He guards his fishing rights vigorously, with an uneven wingbeat, and a loud high rattle. When his water hole is dry he eats mice, and insects. Wintering through much of the state, the Kingfisher breeds south and west to the Pecos. The name means chief of fishers, and belted refers to the breast band.

Blue gray above and white below, this big headed, big billed fellow has a bushy crest besides the broad gray band. The female has a second chestnut colored band. Normally you see this specie in singles. They burrow in a river bank or sand bank 3 to 15 feet, digging with their beak, and scratching out sand. kicking with both feet. At the end of the tunnel he prepares a nest for laying eggs, and incubation. The male does most of the work, and in burrowing he often prepares extra nesting areas which swallows take advantage of. The female lays 5 to 7 white eggs which are incubated as a joint project 16 to 17 days until hatched. In 2 to 3 weeks these youngsters can fly and dive. A few days later they are on their own.

The Greek name for this bird comes from the Greek "Halkyon". Halkyon days in a Greek myth were calm days at sea. These days were calm so that the floating nest of the Kingfisher would not be disturbed during brooding period. The story says that the days were kept calm by the order of the gods to honor Alcyone, daughter of Aeolus, god of the wind, who when widowed, threw herself into the sea, and was transformed into a Kingfisher, along with her mate. To this day both roam and nest on the sea. The next time you are out driving, keep an eye out for the Kingfisher perching above water.

There are signs of spring all around. The Robins are coming in from the woods, and are moving dead leaves, searching for food. The fat Robins in our area are evidently finding plenty. The Wrens are singing and examining the bird houses, while other birds have been preparing for new broods. It will not be long before Purple Martin time. You may wish to put up a house this year to see what happens. Whatever happens will be a source of pleasure.

The 575,000 kilowatt Unit #1 at the new lignite coal-fired Monticello generating station is now in operation. Right behind is Unit #2, which will have the same capacity Introducing Monticello: The newest in a whole new generation of power plants.

The first 575,000 kilowatt generating unit at the new Monticello power plant near Mount Pleasant, Texas, is now in service.

Monticello is the second lignite plant Texas Electric has built in cooperation with two other electric companies. The first, Big Brown, is near Fairfield and has been in operation for three years now

These lignite plants are an important part of Texas Electric's system. We're building them because new supplies of natural gas and oil, our traditional fuels, are hard to get and extremely expensive

In 1975, about 20% of our total generation will be fueled by lignite coal. By 1980, we'll add two other units at Monticello and four at a new site near Martin Lake. Lignite will then account for almost one-half of our total generation. Power plants that use lignite fuel are much more costly. But lignite itself is less expensive than other fuels. Its use will help us keep the price of electricity from increasing as much as it would if we tried to depend on expensive new supplies of natural gas and oil.

At Texas Electric we're continuing the orderly development of our power system so that you'll continue having the electricity you need. New lignite plants like Monticello are helping do the job.

The late John Wannamaker once said, "Half the money I spend in advertising is wasted. But I have never been able to figure out just which half Maybe he was jesting. Maybe not. We don't know. But we do know there are problems in even attempting to do any funeral home advertising. Almost all funeral homes can and do say the same things. The ads usually stress quiet, dignified service; reverent care; sympathetic understanding; reputation for attention to detail "and so on. Actually however, when funeral home services are needed, the selection is nearly always made for reasons of reputation.

Through the years, our firm has earned a deservingly good reputation. Many families already know this. Even so, to better acquaint everyone with who we are, what we stand for, how and what we think, '- this new column will appear every week in this paper. Watch for it. Read it. Recipients of three scholarships awarded by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and their families, are (left to right) Jim Puryear, Mike Puryear (second place), Pepper Puryear (first place), Bruce Elsom (third place), and Dr. and Mrs. Jack Elsom.

Three Area Students Receive VFW Scholarships

Students win more than awards and scholarships when they participate in the V.F.W. Voice of Democracy Scholarship Program", said Commander

Jack Mathis of V.F.W. Post 4136, as he announced the winners of the script-writing program conducted annually by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Some of the fringe benefits, according to Commander Mathis are increased self-confidence and poise, experience in communicating with others, and valuable training in self-expression. For the state winners, there is also the broadening experience of a five day tour of receive a total of $22,500 in Washington, D.C. and the opportunity to make lasting friendships with the other state winners.

In the 13 years that the Veterans of Foreign Wars has been the sole sponsor of the Voice of Democracy Program, more than 3,000,000 high school students have participated. Participants write and then record a three-to-five minute broadcast script expressing their views on their "Respon-sibility as a Citizen". From among the state winners, five national winners are chosen to scholarships. Local winners wre Pepper Puryear, Cisco, first place and a $100 scholarship to the school of his choice; Mike Puryear, Cisco, second place and a $75 scholarship, and Bruce Elsom, Ranger, third, and a $50 scholarship. "One of the greatest benefits to young people who take part in the program, is that thinking, writing and speaking on their Responsibility as a Citizen, they gain a better appreciation of their obligation to maintain our freedom heritage", Commander Mathis said.

New Peanut Seed Available more in dryland areas. This COLLEGE STATION, Feb. -

'An average peanut yield increase of seven per cent may soon be possible for Texas peanut producers with the use of a newly - released high . yielding Spanish peanut variety, Tamnut 74.

The new variety contains medium - size pods and is adapted to all peanut production areas of Texas, according to Texas Agricultural Experiment Station Driector Dr. Jarvis E. Miller.

"Comparisions of Tamnut 74 and Starr have been made since 1969 in peanut yield tests throughout the major peanut growing areas of Texas. During this time, Tamnut 74 exceeded Starr by seven per cent in average yiely and was equal to Starr in grade factors measured," said Dr. Olin D. Smith and Dr. Charles Simpson, Experiment Station peanut indicates that it should perform as well as Starr under moisture stress, but has the capability to utilize optimal moisture conditions more effectively than Starr, explained the researchers. Tamnut 74 has been compared with both Starr and Spanhoma in 44 tests in Texas since 1970, and producer high yields than each variety in 32 on the tests.

The Tamnut is similar to commercially grown Spanish varieties in product quality. It has averaged 48.5 per cent oil and 28.1 per cent protein in the samples analyzed. Also, shelling plant date indicate that the peanut will be quite acceptable for commercial shelling operations.

Besides the high yields, Tamnut 74 peanuts are characterized by uniform pod size and symmetrical pods, ting in uniform seed siz breeders. In the field tests, the new variety yas yielded eight per cent more than Starr under irrigation and three per cent

The seedlings are vigorous, resulting in rapid early growth. Maturity range of the new variety is similar to that of Starr, and ranges from 115 to 135 days depending on growing and climatic conditions. 'Tamnuts are comparable to Starr in reactions to pathogens and insects, but the new variety has consistently averaged lower in the percentage of damaged kernels," the scientists said. Foundation seed of Tamnut 74 are available to registered seed growers this season. They may obtain seed from the Foundation Seed Service of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, College Station.

The variety was developed by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the research was supported in part by the grant from the Texas Peanut Producers Board. Tamnut 74 was jointly released by the Texas, Oklahoma and Georgia Experiment Stations. As seed become more generally available, the new Spanish peanut variety is expected to replace the popular Starr variety because of its higher yield and more uniform pod size, the scientists said.
