TEXAS FACTS FOR TEXANS.

Texas natural gas pipeline project out of the Panhandle field alone represents an ultimate cost of $213,000,000 and, according to the Public Service News, within a year Texas gas will be serving distant cities and communities in the west, middle west and central west.

Texas marketed 6,000,000 pounds of fresh or preserved figs in 1929 and the fig crop is an important source of revenue in several sections in south Texas. Its value is expected materially to be increased by adoption of the freezing process which permits distant marketing of the early bruised fruit.

First contracts for a thousand miles 24-inch gas pipe line have been let, starting from Moore county, Texas, and ending in Chicago. It will transport Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas natural gas to Chicago and other cities along its route.

Texas counties, districts and municipalities voted and issued $88,299,002 in various kinds of improvements bonds in the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1930, or nearly $20,000,000 more than in the preceding year.

It is well for Texans to keep their eyes on Texas' developers and Texas' development. The builders are in evidence and they are making the grade. This for the pessimist. This for all concerned.

SPEAKING OF SCHOOL TEACHERS AND THEIR DEMANDS.

Let us forget the 52nd annual convention of the State Teachers association resolved for a legislative provision for a tax survey of Texas covering all resources and for a scientific method of levying taxes; a law for immediate relief of real property of its present tax overload by seeking out other sources of wealth and provisions for a tax commission to revise and equalize assessments on general property for state taxes.

Some Texas lawyer was debating at the mid-week whether he wants to accept a $7,500 a year job on criminal appeals court commission for the next five years.

Gov. Moody had not received a reply to his offer of the post when he returned to the capitol from his hunting trip.

His definite statement that the post was offered dispelled the speculation and gossip that was growing in the capitol during his absence, that possibly Gov. Moody might himself accept the judicial place at the hands of his successor.

Sen. Walter C. Woodward of Coleman was among capitol visitors. Judge E. A. Berry, Houston, who assisted in the first trial of John W. Brady as one of the attorneys who gave his services without cost, was in criminal appeals court on another case when the Brady sentence was affirmed.

In saying the Texas insurance commission cannot fix fire insurance agents' commissions, this civil appeals court laid down the rule that restricts power of practically every board and agency of the state in supervising business.

Texas oil wealth has been estimated at billions of dollars; its natural gas is worth tremendous sums; sulphur, potash and other minerals represent huge fortunes.

This condition was fully established in raising the assessments on sulphur-bearing lands in Wharton county; but has not yet been extensively reflected on the state's tax rolls as a whole.

Not one Republican voted in dissent when the senate voted in 1929 to give the president discretion in handling the $115,000,000 relief appropriation.

That the president intends to press his fight was indicated at the White House today when it was said he is determined to stay in here through the session, without taking his usual winter fishing trip to Florida.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
CONVERSION: ITS NATURE AND EFFECT

Text: Acts 22:3-15.

I am verily a man which am a Jew, yet brought up in this city at the feet of Gamaliel, and taught according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers, and was zealous toward God, as ye all are this day.

And I persecuted this way unto the death, binding and delivering into prisons both men and women. As also the high priest doth bear me witness, and all the estate of the elders: from whom also I received letters unto the brethren, and went to Damascus to bring them which were there bound unto Jerusalem, for to be punished.

And it came to pass, that, as I made my journey, and was come nigh unto Damascus about noon, suddenly there shone from heaven a great light round about me. And I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice saying unto me, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

And I answered, Who art thou, Lord? And he said unto me, I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest.

And they that were with me saw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they heard not the voice of him that spake to me. And I said, What shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said unto me, Arise, and go into Damascus: and there it shall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do.

And when I could not see for the glory of that light, being led by the hand of them that were with me, I came into Damascus. And one Ananias a devout man

A Newsie 40 Years—and Success!

After selling newspapers for 40 years in Chicago, Dominiac Pintozi has gained the success for which he has been working. The eldest of his nine children has just returned from Italy as Dr. Nicola Pintozi, a graduate of the University of Naples and a full-fledged surgeon at the age of 28. Pintozi celebrated the occasion by selling papers as usual, explaining that he plans to give his other eight children good educations, too.

According to the law, having a good report of all the Jews which dwelt there.

Came unto me, and stood, and said unto me Brother Saul, receive thy sight. And the same hour I looked upon him.

And he said, The God of our fathers hath chosen thee, that thou shouldst know his will, and see that Just One, and shouldst hear the voice of his mouth.

For thou shalt be his witness unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Dec. 14, "Conversion: Its Nature and Effect," Acts 22:3-15.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist. When we speak of conversion we are apt to think of it too exclusively in terms of the transformation of the sinner into the saint. We think of a man or woman of notoriously evil course of life, whose sinfulness may have brought about degradation, who is suddenly arrested in this course of evil or ruin, and through the power of Christ brought to newness of life.

We may be thankful that the records of gospel triumph include many such evidences of the salvation that Jesus gives. But we may be thankful, also, that records such as this in our lesson show that the power of Christ is sufficient to effect other transformations than that from wickedness and moral laxity to goodness and consecration.

All sin is not included in crimes and immoralities. There are sins of the spirit that in their effect upon the individual and upon his fellows men are often almost as serious as the grosser sins of life. A bigot by his narrowness and prejudice may do much to defeat the forces of truth and bring sorrow and suffering to men and women of gentler and finer spirit.

Pride Causes Harm

The man whose heart is consumed with spiritual pride is not by that pride, even if he be professedly a good man, do much to hinder or overthrow the purposes of love; and the man whose soul is filled with ambition for power and with petty tyranny, though he may be very scrupulous concerning his outward observations of the moral law, may become in reality a scourge to his fellow men.

Here in our lesson we have the example of a man well trained in home and school—a man of more intensity, anxious to do the right—who had sought from the time of his earliest memories to live in all good conscience, and yet this man's integrity in some respects only made his life the more devastating for its intensity and earnestness exercised in the wrong direction; and despite his eagerness to obey the voice of conscience his narrowness and his bigotry had brought him to the place where he had really been an accomplice in murder.

He had stood by and held the garments of those who stoned Stephen to death, and it may well have been that Paul had such experiences vividly in mind when he speaks of himself at a later time as the chief of sinners.

What Paul needed was conversion, that is, a turning about and a finding of the right way and the true goal of life, and that in precisely what Paul found. When he met Christ on the way to Damascus and there shone around him a great light with the challenge, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" the probability is that this final experience of his conversion came after questionings and misgivings had already arisen in Paul's mind.

The spectacle of Stephen with calm and gentle courage calling upon Jesus and saying, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit," was evidently not lost upon the youthful Paul. As he began to question the party of his motives, and the soundness of his actions, Paul was prepared for the voice that arrested him, that turned him from his course and brought him into the true way as a devout follower of Jesus Christ.

To this new Christian service he brought all the intensity, all the courage, all the consecration that had formerly characterized his life. The zeal that he had shown in persecuting the Christians and in dragging them before the magistrates became now the zeal with which he suffered persecution, and the zeal with which he bore every burden and every privation in the course of his service of his Lord.

Conversion brought into his life the sense of the right way and the true goal. Where prejudice and bigotry had ruled before, love became now the ruling power of his life enlarging his heart, enlightening his mind, making him one of the noblest and greatest figures in all history.

Analyzed Love We must think of him not simply as Paul the theologian, writing many things in his letters that Peter said were hard to understand, and that many people find it hard to understand today; we must think of him as the author of the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians, describing and analyzing the love that has become the supreme power of his own soul and that is, as Henry Drummond has characterized it, "the greatest thing in the world."

This was Paul's more excellent way, and that is what conversion is in every life. It is the power that lays hold of us when we are in wrong courses and turns us into the right way. It is the power that lays hold of us when we are in lesser ways of life even though they do not deviate entirely from love and truth and leads us into the more excellent way—the highest way of all.

For conversion it should be added, is a progressive process. There are measures of its reality and effect and as grace is the power that transforms the hearts of men, so it is possible for men to grow in grace and in the knowledge of the Lord Jesus.

Nobel Prize Is Presented To Sinclair Lewis

By FREDERICK KUH, United Press Staff Correspondent, STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 12.—Sinclair Lewis formally accepted the 1-50 Nobel Prize for literature today and at the same time, delivered a pungent condemnation of the state of civilization in the United States.

In his speech of acceptance before a distinguished gathering of Scandinavian scholars, the American writer derided "American commercialism," which he said assigned an "inferior role" to the arts and literature.

The lanky, red-haired author told his hearers that "the artist does not count in a country producing 89-story buildings, millions of automobiles and billions of bushels of wheat."

Characterizing himself as "honest but indiscreet and a little impetuous," Lewis extended his sweeping attack over broad fields, declaring "business lords rule the United States" which he described as "the world's most contradictory and depressing land."

He derided the United States universities and colleges and the American academy of arts and letters came in for "strong criticism, while the author denounced American teachers of literature and critics.

In concluding the hour-long speech, which he read from a manuscript in addressing members of the Nobel committee and the Swedish academy, Lewis, however, struck an optimistic note as to the future of literature and art in America.

"The United States is emerging from the stiffness of safe, sane and dull provincialism," he said.

Without mentioning any names, Lewis referred to Henry Van Dyke, president of the National Institute of Arts and Letters in the United States and one of the Americans who criticized the Nobel committee for awarding the prize to Lewis.

The author expressed the hope that his former diplomat will not demand the landing of United States Marines at Stockholm to protect American literary rights.

Lewis also suggested that the Swedish academy "honored America by assuming that Americans are not a puerile, backwoods clan afraid of criticism, but rather mature and able to contemplate dissection of their land."

"The novel which is assured of popularity usually must assert that all American men are tall, handsome, rich, honest and powerful golfers" said Lewis in reference to literary tastes in the United States. "And also that American girls may be wild, but they always change into perfect wives and mothers. Americans mostly revere writers in popular magazines who, in chorus, chant that America with its 120,000,000 population, is still as simple and pastoral as when it had 45,000,000 population."

"These writers assume the relationship between husband and wife is the same in an apartment in a 3-story palace today—with three motor cars below and five books on the library shelves and a divorce imminent—as a similar relationship in a five room cottage in 1880."

Lewis recalled that the awarding of the Nobel prize to himself "was not altogether popular in America." He then praised the work of Theodore Dreiser, Eugene O'Neill, James Branch Cabell, Willa Cather, Henry L. Mencken, Upton Sinclair, Joseph Conrad, Ernest Hemingway, and Sherwood Anderson.

A woman of the night, her philosophy was "Take 'em as you find 'em—but be sure and take 'em."

FAMILY MENU

BY SISTER MARY NEA Service Writer

ONE of the most popular meats during the fall and winter months is pork sausage. Although any kind of meat can be made into "sausage," the word generally signifies pork, in this country particularly.

Both fat and lean meat are used in the making of sausage, but never more than one-third as much fat as lean should be used. Link, bulk and country sausage all are made from finely chopped pork.

The small link sausages make a most attractive garnish for roast chicken and turkey. Cooked to a crisp brown, their highly seasoned richness provides a pleasing contrast to the more delicately flavored fowl.

Bulk sausage often is added to combination dishes to give flavor. Veal birds are made more substantial if sausage is added to the dressing used for stuffing. An excellent "crown" roast of pork uses spare-ribs and sausage in place of the more expensive cut from the loin. The ribs are shaped and tied to form the crown, which is filled with sausage.

Combination dishes made with vegetables or cereals and sausage unusually are good. Potatoes stuffed with parboiled sausage and the whole baked, sweet potatoes and sausage scalloped together, baked macaroni and sausage, casserole of rice and sausage, sausage in a casing of baking powder bread, are a few of the many ways it can be used to give variety to winter menus.

Meats must be carefully planned when sausage is to be the meat. Vegetables must be served that will supply bulk as well as mineral and vitamin content. The coarse-fibered winter vegetables are ideal for this. Crisp celery and cabbage always are appealing accompaniments for pork in any form. Apples should appear some place in the menu, raw in a salad, baked in a pudding, or dessert, or in sauce as an accompaniment to the meat. Fruit or a light pudding lacking in fat makes a suitable dessert.

Sausage may be baked in a hot oven instead of baked on top of the stove. But no matter how it is cooked, it must be well done.

Daily Menu BREAKFAST—Chilled apple sauce, cereal, cream, sausage cakes, buttermilk pancakes, syrup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Cream of spinach soup, crackers, macaroni and salmon salad, graham rolls, canned strawberries, milk, tea.

DINNER—New England boiled dinner, head lettuce with Thousand Island dressing, elder jelly, whipped cream, milk, coffee.

In order to insure thorough cooking without drying out and overcooking, it is an excellent idea to put a sausage in each place. Be sure to prick the skin in several places to prevent bursting.

Sausage Rolls Two cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, water, 1 parboiled small sausage.

Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Rub in butter and put in water to make a soft dough. Put on a floured rolling board and roll with a floured rolling pin into a sheet about one-half inch thick. Cut into oblong pieces a little larger than the sausage and put a sausage in each. Fold edges together and place on an oiled and floured pan. Bake in a moderate oven until a golden brown. Serve with cranberry or apple sauce as soon as removed from oven.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

BEN TICKNOR may be All-America center and all that, but he doesn't "rate" in Boston society, according to "Audacious," a Boston writer who classifies the Harvard men according to their social prestige in exclusive Back Bay circles. . . . Audacious classifies the Harvard students in four groups, A, B, C and Z. . . . and Ticknor, who is a scion of one of New York's wealthiest families residing in an ultra-select part of New York's Park avenue, didn't even rate "Z" though he is one of the best-liked men on the campus. . . . the A1 students are those invited to all the smartest debutante affairs. . . . two Harvard football players were named in this select group: Charlie Devens and Charlie Cunningham (the sly rascals!). . . . Art Huguley of Swampscott, who caught the forward passes that beat Yale, was given a "Z" rating, which means he is invited to affairs where the crowd is just a bit large, you know, old fellow, and most democratic. . . . It Must Be Like That

TO the Englishman sport is fun, writes John T. Tunis in Harper's. The Englishman would rather play than watch. He is an excellent hockey player, a mountain climber, fair at tennis and pretty useful at rigger (football). He refuses to train, to concentrate, to break records and so whenever an international sporting contest rolls around he is sure to lose. It must be true, John, especially as concerns the heavy weight boxers.

Army To Play Navy Saturday In Benefit Game

BY UNITED PRESS. NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Less than 24 hours from now the Army and Navy will be resuming athletic relations for the benefit of the unemployed at Yankee stadium...

To be sure the relation is only temporary and probably will leave the two academies further apart than a hawk could fly in a week. But the 70,000 persons who will watch the game Saturday afternoon are not interested in next year's schedule.

The ticket sale, which started slowly was booming today. Only some ten or twelve thousand pasteboards remained unsold and they were going fast. If they are sold, the game will be watched by a crowd of 80,000.

Navy, 60 strong including coaches, trainers, officers and Bill the goat, arrived yesterday. Army also broke camp yesterday but came no closer to New York than Briarcliff Lodge in Westchester. The cadets, familiar with the stadium, will not come to town until just before game time.

Amarillo And Corsicana Are Ready For Game

BY UNITED PRESS. FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 12.—A Golden Samaritan from the Panhandle Plains, which two months ago was but a dot on the high school football horizon, was gathering force here today to break its full fury Saturday afternoon on the versatile football team of Corsicana.

Coach Blair Cherry and a squad of 24 players arrived here this morning from Amarillo. They tapped off their training for the gridiron duel with a light workout today in T. C. U.'s new gym here.

The workout will be something akin to home-coming for Muz Fowler whose left-handed punting and passing are two good reasons for Amarillo's optimism. Fowler played brilliantly for North Side High School here in 1928 and 1929.

On their home field, the Corsicana Tigers were making similar last minute preparations for the semi-final fray. Their chances to last until the final round of the fight brightened today with the announcement that Carter Speed, regular tackle who has missed the last two jousts, is back in the lineup.

With Hornbeak ready for the contest with only a bruised knee, coach Johnny Pierce has full tiger strength to throw into the gale from Amarillo. Both teams are making their first bid for the state crown.

About 8,000 fans are expected to witness the game in Corsicana Saturday, which is called for 2:30 p. m.

Frankston Bank Bandits Seem To Have Escaped

ATHENS, Tex., Dec. 11.—The four bandits who robbed the First State Bank of Frankston had apparently made good their escape today.

They abandoned the truck here which they commandeered after their car bogged in the mud. That being remote roads, the quartet came here, used the wooded section of Fair Park as their rendezvous and slipped away from officers.

The truck was so muddy it was impossible to tell if the blood smeared about the body was that of the bandits, or of squirrels found in it.

Searching the park, officers found an acetylene torch presumably buried by the bandits. They believe this is the same men, who recently robbed the Large bank in this county, when a torch was used to burn away the safe door.

District attorney Ben Greenwood arrived here today with a

St. Francis Xavier Church

December 14, 1936, Mass at 8 a. m. This is the Third Sunday of Advent and the Gospel is from St. John I. 19-28. In your prayer-books you find an epistle or lesson and also a gospel for every Sunday and Holiday of the Ecclesiastical (church) Year. The epistles or lessons, as well as the gospels, are selections from the Holy Scriptures. The former are generally taken from the Epistles of the Apostles, and are therefore called epistles or letters. They are also called lessons or "readings" because they were read during the divine offices, a custom which is observed to this day. The gospels are selections from one of the four Gospels written by the Evangelists, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. The epistles contain the word of God as well as the gospels, because like them they are portions of the Sacred Scripture. Both gospels and epistles were selected because of their appropriateness to the holy season or feast of the Ecclesiastical Year which is being celebrated. They throw light thereon and serve to awaken in us holy thoughts corresponding to the occasion. Hence we should have in your prayer-books the gospels and epistles for Sundays and Holydays even though the priest may read

FAMILY MENU

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

WHEN a stew is carefully and properly made it is one of the most satisfying and nourishing foods that can be served to a hungry family. Cheap cuts of meat can be used to great advantage and the finished dish is both economical and appetizing.

The success of a stew depends on the careful seasoning and cooking of the meat and vegetables. Greater skill and cleverness are required to prepare a delicious stew than to broil an expensive steak. The steak might be dubbed "fool-proof," for only the most villainous cooking could ruin it, while stewing meat must be treated with discrimination to make it popular.

Nowadays all sorts of meats are used for stews. Beef, veal, lamb, mutton, pork, ham, fresh and salted fish bring infinite variety to the one-time plebeian stew. Unusual flavoring and seasoning, colorful garnishing and inviting serving will make any stew attractive enough to please the most fastidious taste.

A Feast From Plain Fare
Dumplings add interest to all stews, but especially to veal. Lamb stew gains much from canned peas. A stew made from remnants of cold roasts is made savory by a combination of onions, canned tomatoes and macaroni. Carrots provide color when other means of garnishing are not at hand. A few mushrooms give the final touch to any stew that makes a real feast out of plain fare.

The rule for vegetable cookery holds good in stews. Do not overcook the vegetables. Add them just long enough before serving to allow them to cook tender. Since the vegetables are cooked with the meat there is no waste of valuable mineral salts. The liquid in which both the meat and vegetables are cooked is served with the stew.

Beef, veal or lamb make delicious stews suitable for all members of a family. The liquid with sifted vegetables can be given to even the youngest person at the table.

Daily Menu

BREAKFAST—Halves of grape fruit, cereal, cream, scrambled eggs, crisp bacon, graham and raisin muffins, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Cream of tomato soup, croquettes, sweet potato salad, whole wheat bread and butter sandwiches, lemon pudding, milk, tea.
DINNER—Veal stew with dumplings, baked squash, apple and celery salad, butter-scotch pie, milk, coffee.

The stew proper, in all its glory of meat and vegetables, will satisfy the hungry hunter or football player.

A brown stew is assured if the meat is cut in cubes, rolled in flour and quickly browned in melted fat before simmering. Gentle simmering for two hours or longer insures perfect tenderness in the meat. Careful trimming of excess fat and gristle is essential. If bone is included in the cut it should be removed before serving.

The liquid can be thickened or not as preferred. If thickened, or baking instead of using a fresh yeast cake. They are even better after the first day as the "seed" seems to ripen and produce a better cake.

should be quite thin and runny. Buckwheat cakes require a hotter griddle than corn meal or wheat cakes.

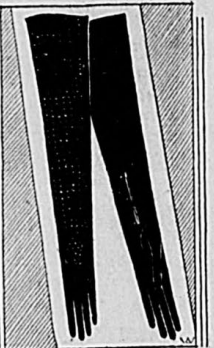

Some of the batter can be saved and used as a "starter" for another batch instead of using a fresh yeast cake. They are even better after the first day as the "seed" seems to ripen and produce a better cake.

Yeast Buckwheat Cakes
One-half cup yeast cake, 1-2 cup lukewarm water, 3 more cups warm water, 3 cups buckwheat, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1-2 teaspoon soda.
Soften yeast cake in 1-2 cup lukewarm water. When thoroughly dissolved add salt, sugar and 1-2 cups warm water. Add buckwheat flour and mix until perfectly smooth. Cover and let stand in a warm place over night.

Gloves More Acceptable Than Ever As Gifts Because Of Style Interest

By FRANCES PAGET

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Indicating that the fitted glove, requiring the thinnest suede and kids, is no longer favored for daytime wear in Paris, is the report that smart women are wearing gloves size too large for them, preferring a bulky sports effect to a tight fitting glove.

Chamois in white or yellow comes to the fore in the form of a beret, scarf and glove ensemble in this leather. Another leather item found in new wear departments is white suede vests.

Pastel suede and alligator grain in white, yellow and red are the foremost leathers in handbags shown for Southern resort wear.

Suede buttonnieres with centers made of golf tees are shown as zolf jacket trimming by an English firm. Ensembles, comprising beret scarfs and gloves of suede complement suede jackets in this collection.

Piaskin has achieved a stronger style significance in gloves for spring and is being trimmed in brown capeskin to be worn with resort sports costumes this winter. A 5th street shop speaks of white or natural piaskin as the "smartest informal winter glove."
An importer features a gray-beige, almost a putty, which he considers more strictly neutral than eggshell, and another importer is confident that two shades of pure gray will be considered "high style" in spring gloves.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Long skirts, and full ones beside entail obligations. They are responsible for the petticoats' return. For one thing a year or two ago, the girl who wore a petticoat or slip beneath a fall dress, was called old-fashioned, and smart young things descended to wear them only under sheer summer garments.
Today the slip and petticoat are reported the two liveliest items in the underwear department. Women are truly going in for all the frills and turquoises of the nineties and from present indications the taffeta petticoat bids fair to rival the popularity it enjoyed in the "good old days."

This movement is of course in accord with others—the demure Empress Eugenie neckline is indicative of the mode if not the mood of today. There are ruffled skirt sashes, ringlets even and a score of other "pretties" of a generation given to sentimentality expresses in fashions now dubbed "romantic." Into such a group strolls the new petticoat, made in the same type droolithy bridging the little matter of a century for it seems to be with the 1850 period that fashion is most concerned.

OIL NEWS

By UNITED PRESS
SAN ANGELO, Tex., Dec. 12.—Eight wells completed last week in the Permian Basin of West Texas registered an initial daily production of 3,180 according to a survey released today.
Seven tests in six counties were abandoned dry.

DENISON, Tex., Dec. 12.—Sherman Oil & Gas Company's test on the Utiger farm six miles north-west of Denison, came in a gasselate. Thursday evening, the drill bit entered the sand only a few feet according to crew members, but the well made 4,000,000 cubic feet on gauge.

The gate valve was closed this morning and the crew were preparing to send the bit deeper.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 12.—Based on oil and gas showings in the Evans & Gant No. 1 Jeff Love well, southwestern Kerr county, three other tests within a radius of three to five miles have been contracted, it is reported here.

HENDERSON, Tex., Dec. 12.—Crews were expected to drill the plug today on the Foster Deep Rock No. 1 Ashy, it was learned here. The Foster test is southwest of the C. M. Joiner No. 3.
Reports from the Rosenfield test south of the discovery hole, said the bit was drilling in chalk at 2,580 feet. Re-drilling a new derrick over the Stroube & Stroube well, shut down after a blaze which destroyed the tower and did minor damage to machinery, will be completed this week.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 10.—Two new producers have been added to Refugio field by Moody Seagraves Producing company. Its No. 1 Linney on the east side of the townsite is making 250 barrels of gasoline or high gravity clear oil from a depth of 6,458 feet.
The company's No. 1-A St. John is flowing through tubing and making about 250 barrels per day with little pressure. This well was drilled below 6,000 feet, then plugged back and given a small sho tof nitro.

McALLEN, Tex., Dec. 10.—Oil activity in the lower Rio Grande Valley, lagging for six months, revived a new impetus today with the announcement that three new locations have been made, another due this month, and two wells are drilling with good prospects.

THIS KNITTED tam of black and white wool is a typical type worn at football games. It was worn with a black wool costume accented with a white scarf.

C. I. McCurry, president of the Los Olmos Oil Gas company of McAllen and Harlingen, said today his firm had made new locations in the Rio Grande city field about 45 miles west of here in Starr county. Los Olmos No. 2 was spudded in a few hundred feet west of the discovery well, which blew in several weeks ago making an estimated 20,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

In the old jurisdiction of Mississippi interests is down 70 feet. A third location is that by Mrs. A. M. K. Bass, of Rio Grande city, about one-half a mile south of the Los Olmos discovery well. Mrs. Bass first had the hole sunk for water, but turned it into an oil test at an early depth. She is employing both day and night crews.

Mrs. Doyle L. Smith of the Deane Oil company of McAllen, dean of valley drillers by reason of unsuccessful attempts to bring in a producer in an area 150 square miles 23 miles west of here, is continuing to run an oil well on the Daskan No. 8 while her Daskan No. 8 is being drilled deeper. The Daskan No. 8 is the thirteenth hole located along what is known as the "great fault" in the west portion of the county.

Once Friends Gave Him Up, Now They Marvel at His Health

After having been down with muscular rheumatism for some weeks, I was taken to Mineral Wells in an S. B. Neer & Co. ambulance of this city on August 1st, 1927. I did not have physical strength to participate in or benefit from the bathing facilities at that time, although I left off practically all medicines, none of which seemed to benefit me and drank Crazy Water regularly and systematically for some six weeks, came back home relieved almost entirely of my suffering and returned there later to take advantage of the baths. My life is a pleasure to me now. My friends are yet congratulating me on my health appearance and frequently mention the fact that they never expected to see me out and going as I am again.
