WILL FRITTS GETS DEATH IN HIS MURDER TRIAL

99 YEAR TERM IN EASTLAND

Jury Brings In Death Verdict After Receiving the Case Late Yesterday.

CLAIREMONT, Tex., Oct. 30.—Will Fritts was assessed the death penalty by a jury in district court here today for the slaying of D. W. Hamilton, once his neighbor.

The case went to trial on May 22 and the taking of testimony and arguments lasted for four days.

Approximately 150 witnesses were called to testify in the case and an insanity plea was used by the defense.

A sensation was caused in the courtroom when Fritts cursed one of the witnesses and called him a liar.

The case went to the jury at 4:30 o'clock on the night of May 26 and after 43 hours deliberation they brought in a verdict of guilty and assessed his punishment at 99 years imprisonment.

Day Robbery Nets Bandits A Big Haul

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 30.—Between $1,000 and $1,500 was obtained in a daylight robbery of the Southern Domino hall at 9th and Main streets shortly after 10 a. m. this morning.

Two men went into the hall and held up a dozen players and searched them getting the money, according to reports to police.

Cullen Southern manager said he lost about $250. He immediately offered a $200 reward for their arrest and conviction.

"Job Director" at White House

NEA Washington Bureau

"It's going to be a war on human misery," said Col. Arthur M. Woods, left, to eager Washington reporters who met him at the door of the White House following his conference with President Hoover on their campaign for the relief of unemployment.

Fritts was tried on a charge of killing Earle Hamilton and received a death penalty, which was reversed by the Court of Criminal Appeals. The case was transferred to Eastland county and was tried here in May of this year.

The case went to trial on May 22 and the taking of testimony and arguments lasted for four days.

Approximately 150 witnesses were called to testify in the case and an insanity plea was used by the defense.

Oil Promoters Use Telephone To Call 'Suckers'

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 30.—Uncle Sam has made it so hard on oil promoters who insisted that they are now using the long distance telephone, it has been revealed.

A check here shows that one promoter, who had been denied the use of the mails, used more than $450 in telephone calls on his "sucker list" in less than 24 hours.

Postal officials have warned against the sending of money to oil promoters who use either phone or telegraph, without first having investigated fully the merits of the promoter.

THREE MORE ARE SOUGHT BY OFFICERS

Farmer Says He Was Offered $100 A Day To Keep Yocum on His Farm.

KEWANEE, Ill., Oct. 30.—Vernie Algren, alleged to have conducted negotiations for the kidnapers of Earl L. Yocum, Galva, Ill., banker, was captured today in a farmhouse by members of the posse seeking the extortionists.

The farmhouse is on the West-rand farm on the Lone Tree road, five miles from the cornfield where three men believed to have been the kidnapers wrecked their automobile and escaped early today.

Algren was busy with needle and thread, repairing a rent in his trousers, when the officers walked into the farmhouse. He had removed the trousers and had no opportunity to make a move before ordered to surrender.

The arrest of Algren came while other members of the posse were being aided by two airplanes as they roamed over the surrounding farms in the search for Yocum's abductors.

Algren was named earlier today by Ed McKee 60, a farmer living not far away, as the man who approached him last week with an offer of $100 a day for the use of his farm as a hideout in which Yocum could be kept while his kidnapers demanded ransom.

McKee named three other men, one of whom, Orville Whiskers, is under arrest at Cambridge, Ill. Still another suspect, Edward Murphy, a Galva restaurant owner, was being questioned in Chicago.

W. A. Shafer Murder Trial Goes To Jury

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 30.—Arguments in the trial of W. A. Shafer on a charge of murder in the fatal shooting of Mrs. Dorothy Jones last April were completed here this morning, and the case given to the jury about noon.

The testimony was closed Wednesday without Shafer being allowed to take the stand to give his version of the shooting which the defense maintains was accidental.

A clean-up report on the recent county fair was made, which disclosed a deficiency in the treasury of approximately $200.

THREE CREAMERIES TO BE CENTRALIZED IN EASTLAND

State Litigation In Oil Lands To Be Reviewed

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 30.—The state supreme court in granting a writ of error has agreed to review the litigation between the state and C. L. Bradford and several hundred other defendants involving the validity of the "Small land bill."

The state sued Bradford and the others for title to oil lands in Gray and Wheeler counties claiming they were parts of navigable stream beds. They belonged to the state, it was claimed, because a statute made a stream which had thirty feet between its banks a navigable stream, regardless of actual navigability.

West Texas land owners aroused by the suit protested. Senator Small prepared and had passed a bill validating titles of the occupants. Governor Dan Moody vetoed the bill as unconstitutional. It was repassed over his veto.

A writ of error was refused in another of the state's suits over land titles. The court declined to interfere with the court of appeals ruling against the state in its suit against R. L. Blaffer and numerous other occupants of the Harris county oil field. The state had won judgment in district court for title to approximately 600 acres and for the value of oil taken from it.

This verdict was reversed in the appellate court whose decision now becomes final.

MEMPHIS, Tex., Oct. 29.—Origin of the fire which destroyed the Potts gin at Lakeview yesterday was unknown. The loss which will approximate $30,000 was partly covered by insurance.

Corpus Christi Man Killed In Accident

CORPUS CHRISTI, Oct. 30.—Charlie Smith, 70, was dead today from injuries received when a car struck him. He succumbed at a local hospital.

Dope Peddlers Are Jailed At Dallas

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 30.—This city's war on dope traffic had sent two alleged dope peddlers to jail today, after they failed to make the required bond. Jesse P. Gooch faces charges of possession and sale of nine grains of morphine. Charges of selling a smaller amount of dope were lodged against Hal L. Hancock.

COOLIDGE PRAISES LARGE FAMILY

TRENTON, Neb., Oct. 30.—The raising of a large family was praised by Calvin Coolidge, former president of the United States, now an executive in an insurance company, in a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Brown, parents of 14 children.

Thirteen of the 14 children have been insured by their parents in the company of which Coolidge is an official. When his attention was called to the fact, Coolidge wrote a letter to the Browns in which he said: "I congratulate you on the fine family which you have founded. The mother who has brought into the world such a remarkable group of promising Americans deserves special honor."

The Brown family lives on a farm near here. The Coolidge letter has been framed.

Telegram Will Get Score Of Abilene Game

Arrangements have been made by the Eastland Telegram to have the score of the Maverick-Eagle game at Abilene telegraphed to the office here after each quarter in order that those who will be unable to attend the game may keep track of how the local team is doing.

A representative of the Telegram is to send the messages as soon as the quarter is over and they should be received here within a few minutes after the message is filed in Abilene.

Those who wish to learn the score as the game progresses may do so by calling 600 and inquiring about the score of the game. This information will be given out just as soon as the telegrams are received.

Wilson Speaks

The issues involved in the state campaign were discussed from the Republican viewpoint by E. P. Wilson of Dallas in a speech delivered before an audience of Eastland county voters Wednesday night in the county commissioners' court room.

LACK OF JOB WAS BLAMED FOR KILLING

Houston, Tex., Oct. 30.—E. A. Hart, a former lieutenant of infantry, worried and depressed because he had no regular job, wiped out his family and himself here today. He shot his wife, Helen, 25 as she slept, fatally wounded his daughter, Vivian, 13, and then turned his gun on himself.

A .44 caliber revolver was found two feet from the man's head as he lay on the floor beside his child's bed. It had been fired three times.

Justice Campbell Overstreet returned a verdict of murders of the wife and child and suicide of the man.

The bodies were found by Mrs. W. M. Rosenthal, who lives above the Hart apartment.

Mrs. Hart was a trained nurse and she received her calls over the Rosenthal phone. At 6:30 a. m. a call came from a hospital and she was awakened by Mrs. Hart.

She got no response to her knocks and looked through a window.

She saw Hart's body lying on the floor and called her husband. He called police.

Hart was the son of E. Orrie Hart, 28 South Dearborn street, Chicago, former president of the national association of real estate boards, and author of the realtors code of ethics.

Two-Cent Fare Goes Into Effect Here Friday

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 30.—A two-cent fare on Texas & Pacific railway between Fort Worth and Big Spring will be in effect tomorrow. T. & P. officials have announced. The rate will be in effect for a three month trial period, after which the road may ask for permission to establish similar rates over all its lines.

Grand Jury Urges Stock Law Enforcement

Call Upon Citizens of County To Cooperate With Officers In Matter

A more active effort on the part of the proper officials and more co-operation by the citizenship of the county with the officers in an effort to more effectively enforce the law prohibiting livestock from running at large in the county, is urged by the 88th district court grand jury in its report made late Wednesday to Judge Elzo Been.

The grand jury's report also made special mention of the number of liquor law violations in the county.

Following is the Grand Jury's report: To the Honorable Elzo Been, Judge of the 88th District Court: We, the Grand Jury, desire to make this our final report. We have been in session nine days, and have examined 219 witnesses. We have found and returned into Court 87 indictments, 87 of which were felonies.

We wish to acknowledge the excellent cooperation of the county attorney's department and the sheriff's department in connection with the work of the Grand Jury.

We have had a good many complaints made in regard to live stock running at large. We believe that the proper officials should take a more active interest in the enforcement of the live stock law of our county. It is also necessary that the citizenship of the county lend their hearty co-operation to the proper authorities to the extent

PICK AND SHOVEL AGE FOR THE UNEMPLOYED

Minneapolis city officials have assembled a list of a million dollars worth of needed public improvements and will rotate jobs among the unemployed, giving part time work to an estimated 10,000 or 15,000 men. Picks and shovels instead of machinery will be used. There are no bread lines or soup kitchens in Detroit, an automobile center, yet there are 83,500 persons who have registered with municipal agencies as being idle.

Records show the great majority have so far been able to support themselves and family without appealing to charity. Regardless of all this Mayor Murphy of Detroit says out of this army of unemployed humanity the recognized relief agencies now are supporting 15,000 families and 1,000 single persons. He reminded a reporter that "Detroit workmen have learned to expect adverse conditions and most of them deposit in savings banks to build a reserve to tide them over." A wage earner who fails to provide a reserve is a wage earner who is pinched when a slump comes and this applies to workers in country as well as in city.

THE METHODIST CONFERENCE

Eastland is to entertain the annual Central Texas Methodist Conference during the week of November 17 and we should begin now making preparations for it. There will be a large number of delegates to the conference as well as many visitors throughout the week. These will have to be entertained, some of them in private homes since there will be too many for the hotels, and plans for this should be made in advance.

Dr. Geo. W. Shearer, at our request, invited the conference to meet in Eastland. His invitation was accepted; now it is for us as citizens of Eastland to do a good job of entertaining. The Telegram has no doubt that Eastland will do this, but it is just as well that we begin thinking of it. The time is drawing near.

DOES THE SCHOOL CAFETERIA PAY?

That the cafeteria in the local schools is being operated at a loss, is the complaint coming to the Telegram. With the complaint has come the suggestion that it could be leased to individuals, who could run it at a profit for themselves and at a saving to the school board, and at the same time give the pupils just as good food and as efficient service as they are now getting.

The Telegram is frank to say that it has no information as to the cost of operating the cafeteria, nor what kind of service and food is being supplied. It does seem to us, however, that it would be a very simple matter for the school board to determine whether or not money is being lost by the cafeteria and how much is being lost.

Also if any considerable amount is being lost it should be remedied as, at this time, taxpayers are in no position to support a losing proposition.

EASTLAND LIONS INVITE

The Eastland Lions Club has extended an invitation to every business man in the city to hear an address on "Economy" to be delivered by E. L. Stone of Lions International headquarters, before the club next Tuesday at noon.

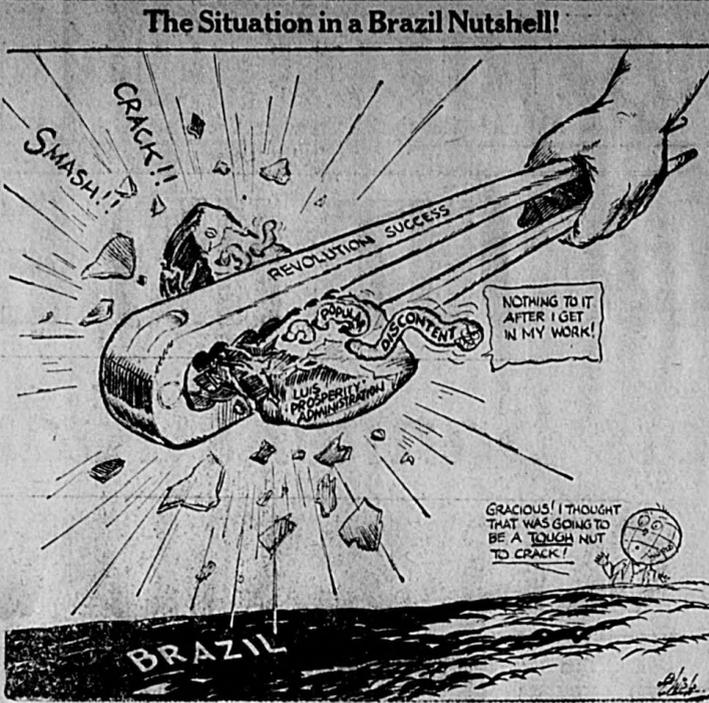

The Lions also extended an invitation to the Oilbelt Teachers' association, which is composed of county school superintendents and school superintendents and principals in the counties from Gordon on the east to Big Spring on the west and Breckenridge on the north and Brownwood on the south, to hold its next meeting in Eastland.

EASTLAND COUNTY PECANS

Eastland county is especially adapted, both in soil and climate, for the production of pecans and as a matter of fact has many splendid groves that are paying the owners handsome profits most every year.

County Agent Patterson, for a number of years, has been urging farmers of the county to take care of their native pecan trees, plant the improved varieties where there is suitable soil, and by the budding and grafting process convert the native orchards into orchards of the higher class varieties.

As a result of these efforts interest in pecans is growing rapidly throughout the county. A number of local growers, among whom were A. H. Johnson of Eastland, J. R. Harper of Carbon, J. J. Crenshaw of Gorman, and R. A. Bowden of Rising Star, were winners of premiums on pecans they exhibited at the recent pecan show at Stephenville.

C. of C. Directors—

Bankhead highway in Mitchell county. The completion of paving in that county, it is stated, finishes the paving on the road from Texarkana to Peocos.

The matter of the chamber of commerce's annual banquet was discussed. President Mouser appointed Judge Milburn McCarty as general chairman for the banquet and stated that other members of a committee to be headed by McCarty would be named later. It was decided that the banquet would be held some time in early December.

The Des Moines baseball club of the Western League, in a letter to the chamber of commerce, had signified its willingness to come to Eastland for its spring practice games. This letter and the requirements of the club, were read to the board of directors. Due to the fact that Eastland is not, at this time, in position to meeting the requirements of the club in the matter of an enclosed ball park, etc., the matter was dropped.

The board of directors approved of a booklet which Secretary Tanner is getting up, sponsoring sweet potato growing in Eastland county. The chambers of commerce at Ranger and Cisco, Dr. Tanner stated, are co-operating with the Eastland chamber of commerce in getting up the booklet, which is to contain information on how to grow and market sweet potatoes.

George Harper, H. L. Vann and H. C. Davis were named by President Mouser as a committee to clean-up the finances for the County Fair.

The Texas citizens of German descent have a respect for law and order that commends itself to others. A most brutal and revolting crime took place at New Braunfels, little city made up largely of people of German ancestry. A man confessed there to the crime; yet the officers proceeded in perfect confidence that none of the volatile, irresponsible mob spirit would develop; and they were right. "We know our people," Chief Deputy Sheriff August Knecht commented. "The mob spirit is not in them."

Supreme Court Disposes Of 290 Cases In Day

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 30.—At least all of today will be required for the clerical force of the state supreme court to list the work of the court in a sitting late yesterday which broke all records by action in 290 cases. The court granted 94 applications for writs of error, thus taking those cases for review of the rulings in the lower courts. Action of subordinate courts was allowed to stand in 196 cases in 108 of which the supreme court held itself without jurisdiction.

Effect of these numerous orders on the proposed constitutional amendment to be voted upon on Nov. 4 is problematical. The work disposed of indicates that though the court may have been in vacation the judges were not.

DO-X Waiting On Weather For American Hop

BY UNITED PRESS

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 30.—Favorable weather was awaited today for the start of one of the greatest experiments in aviation—the trans-Atlantic flight of the giant flying boat, DO-X, first heavier-than-air machine believed able to maintain a schedule, carrying a profitable load, and fly with certainty between Europe and North America.

Maurice Dornier, a director of the company which built the DO-X said that it was hoped to start the flight at Lisbon Friday or Saturday. The flying boat will be shown to other European nations en route to Portugal, for it will fly north to Amsterdam, and then turn south to visit England and France before landing in Lisbon harbor.

Lisbon will be left behind as the great ship starts west toward the Azores, thence over the long ocean hop to Bermuda, and on to New York. Confidence was satisfied today that the DO-X is in perfect condition to attempt the long and dangerous flight.

Tentative plans were that the flying boat would be piloted by a former United States naval ace, Lieut. C. H. (Dutch) Schildhauer, whose titles are navigation officer and pilot. Schildhauer will be guiding a virtual liner of the air. Its comforts are said to exceed those of the Graf Zeppelin, and the giant British dirigible, for a smoking room and a bar will be provided for the 100 or more passengers which the DO-X is able to accommodate.

Schildhauer arranger for the installation of several American Christians, will be in command of the DO-X. Long experience in navigating ships through the sea and the sky qualify him for the position.

The DO-X has carried 150 passengers, without the baggage necessary for a long journey, on a single flight. The immense proportions of the craft its 12 motors built on top of its gigantic wing, the mechanical equipment on board to make repairs during flight, provisions for the comfort of passengers and the fact that it is intended to prepare the way for profitable and regular air service between the old and new worlds, have aroused international interest in the project.

Bandits Dine And Then Rob Cafe

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 30.—After ordering food and partaking of their repast with Spartan impetuosity, two unidentified men held up a night operator of a southeast Dallas cafe early Thursday morning and escaped with $14.25.

One of the pair drew a gun and held the waiter at bay while the other rifled the cash register.

Three Killed In Passenger Plane Crash In France

BOULOGNE France, Oct. 30.—An Imperial Airways passenger plane, flying in fog from Le Bourget to Crotoy, was forced down and wrecked today in a field near Neuchateau.

Three of the six occupants, one of whom was an American, were killed, an official investigating the crash, told the United Press by telephone. There were four passengers, a pilot and observer on the plane.

BY GAD

Eastland citizens have the ability, the knowledge and the money necessary to put Eastland over the top as the leading town in Central West Texas. They only need a little more enthusiasm.

Well, we go to Abilene Friday.

We have noticed that there are a lot of fellows at work at the job of "town boosting" in Eastland who never before did a thing in that respect.

Some people act as though they are ashamed of the town in which they live.

Earthquake Is Felt In Italy

ANACONA, Italy, Oct. 30.—An earthquake of considerable intensity occurred along the Northern Adriatic coast today damaging numerous buildings and causing panic among the population.

Four persons were known dead here, and 50 were taken to hospitals.

Two persons were reported gravely injured, and seven slightly hurt, in Pesaro, where two violent quakes were felt at 8:15 a. m. Singalinga was believed worst stricken by the quake. Twenty persons were reported killed, and several others injured.

Markets

Final Stocks

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Prices declined most of the day on the stock market today with a few feeble rallies which failed to hold. Special pressure was exerted against beverage issues with Coca Cola the target. It lost 10 points and weakness developed in Canada Dry and White Rock.

Late in the day selling was severe in American Telephone and the issues broke to 194.4, off 5 points. General Motors also met considerable selling and Eastman Kodak made another low for the year.

Selling in these stocks together with pressure against U. S. Steel that brought it below 146 at one time kept the whole list in an unsettled condition.

Oil shares were steadier when it was learned officially that standard of New York earnings and sales for the first nine months set a new record. That particular stock was down fractionally but other oil shares were about steady.

By the Political Analyst
No choice mailing lists will be made up from the rosters of American Legion local post officials in Texas. This is a ruling of the organization's state department headquarters. It is so rigidly enforced that even a legislative committee couldn't get the names of post commanders, on an informal request. But the committee got cooperation of the body in the non-political matter affected.

School people who do not think the law valid that would assess independent school districts for part of the cost of running the rest of the school system, are ready to make the test in supreme court of this law. An organization to fight it out was formed in Waco.

But nobody opposes the beneficial law that requires the state to pay high school tuition of pupils on transfer from rural districts. . . . When the permanent accomplishments of Gov. Dan Moody's administration are ranked in importance, this one law will stand near the top.

The constitution now fails to delegate power to boards and commissions to legislate. These agencies continually are bumping their heads up against this limitation. The federal agencies legislate ad lib, in such matters as changing and fixing open seasons on game, all the way up to the tariff. . . . Secy. Will Ticker of the Texas game commission has found it would be advantageous to let the game commission fix and change the regulations at will. But the policy involved is so approaching that the welfare of the ducks, turkeys and deer may be held subordinate to the legislative safeguards involved.

As it nears the climax of election day, the prospects are comparatively clear. . . . Republican victory of two years ago will be overwhelmingly wiped out. Democrats are making an unusually vigorous fight to beat the only republican congressman, H. M. Wertzbaach of San Antonio, Ben U. S. Sen. Tom Connally and Sen. Morris Sheppard have aided in the fight of Henry Dielmann, democratic opponent of Wertzbaach.

In one state senate race the republican nominee, Reno Eickenroth, threatens the success of W. K. Hopkins, democratic nominee; but Eickenroth's friends now say his election is improbable.

The net result seems that the republican foray of 1928 will help make Texas more democratic than usual in 1930.

The Texas citizens of German descent have a respect for law and order that commends itself to others. . . . A most brutal and revolting crime took place at New Braunfels, little city made up largely of people of German ancestry. A man confessed there to the crime; yet the officers proceeded in perfect confidence that none of the volatile, irresponsible mob spirit would develop; and they were right. "We know our people," Chief Deputy Sheriff August Knecht commented. "The mob spirit is not in them."

Texas Vegetable Shipments Grow

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 29.—Carload shipments of fruits and vegetables in Texas over the Southern Pacific lines during the first eight months of 1930 exceeded by 3,574 cars the shipments for the corresponding period in 1929, according to a report of the transportation company.

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 30.—Texas fire loss runs approximately $1,600,000 a month, a report issued by state fire insurance commissioner J. W. Dewesse indicates. For the first nine months of this year the loss has been $9,247,463.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Celia Mitchell, 17, leaves Baltimore where she has lived with her mother, Margaret Rogers, to join her wealthy father, John Mitchell, in New York. The parents are divorced and Mrs. Rogers is a widow following a second marriage.

Barney Shields, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl. Mitchell asks Evelyn Parsons, beautiful widow, to introduce his daughter to other young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections. She soon becomes jealous of the girl and schemes to get rid of her by encouraging a romance between Celia and Ted Jordan, fascinating but of dubious character.

Although Mitchell forbids Celia to see Jordan she goes about with the young man frequently. Lisi Duncan, who meets Shields, comes her loyal friend. Shields comes to New York to work for a photographic service and meets Celia. She tells him she has lost her heart to Jordan. Celia is a guest at Mrs. Parsons' uptown apartment. She meets Shields on the street one afternoon and is with him when Jordan appears. They enter a shop, thus avoiding an encounter.

Lisi, Celia and Mrs. Parsons are together that evening when they hear a radio report of a disastrous fire in a building where Shields is working.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXI

Lisi Duncan grasped the other girl's arm. "Where are you going?" she cried.

Celia had caught up a sport coat, the first wrap in sight. She threw it around her.

"Don't stop me!" she pleaded, half sobbing. "It's Barney! Don't you hear? He's there—in the building that's on fire. I've got to get there. Let me go!"

Freeing herself, she rushed from the apartment. Lisi turned, bewildered, toward Mrs. Parsons. "Go after her!" the woman said, rising. "See if you can stop her!"

Without a coat Lisi darted into the corridor. She caught up with Celia as the girl was ringing for the elevator.

"Don't cry, honey!" she begged. "Maybe it isn't so bad. Please don't cry!"

A door slammed and Evelyn Parsons came bustling down the hall to join them. She reached the girl just as they were stepping into the descending car. At once Evelyn took charge.

"Celia," she said, "you must tell me where you're going!"

"What's the matter with this?" Lisi was the one who answered.

"We're going to the fire!" she exclaimed. "Celia knows someone who's there. Isn't it exciting?"

"But this is impossible!" Evelyn protested. It was in vain. They had reached the ground floor and the two girls hurried toward the entrance. Mrs. Parsons hesitated, pulled her cloak more closely about her and, with a dismayed gaze upward, followed.

"My car's at the right," Lisi pointed. In another minute all three were squeezed into the close quarters of the coupe and the motor was throbbing.

Lisi swerved the car into the stream of traffic.

"This is madness," Evelyn Parsons stormed. "You can't mean you're really going to this fire!"

If Celia heard her she gave no sign of it. Her face was white and drawn. She pressed her hands together.

"Hurry, Lisi," she begged. "Oh, I was afraid something would happen. If Barney's hurt I'll never forgive myself! Can't we go faster?"

"Barney?" Evelyn caught the word and eyed Celia shrewdly. "Do you mean—is it the young man you knew in Baltimore?"

The girl nodded mechanically. "He isn't in Baltimore any more," she said. "He's here. I saw him this afternoon and he said he was going to this meeting to make pictures. Somehow I felt that it would be dangerous, but he laughed at me."

Lisi asked about the address. She was driving with her customary abandon, darting between other vehicles with a recklessness only matched by certain taxi drivers. When she was forced to stop for traffic lights she jammed on the brakes abruptly.

Mrs. Parsons was white-faced, too, now. Each time the coupe veered precariously she looked in deadly terror. Each time it jolted to a stop she held her breath. She had never driven with Lisi before.

"Do be careful!" Evelyn Parsons implored. "Look—you barely missed that roadster!"

The girl at the wheel murmured something inaudible. Her lips were set and she did not relax the motor's speed.

Traffic became more dense. The coupe was forced to go slower. Then suddenly the green lights flashed and the car shot forward.

"We're nearly there," Lisi said, keeping her eyes straight ahead.

Celia uttered a low cry. "Smoke! see it—over there?"

"Lisi, you'll never be able to get to this place," Mrs. Parsons declared. "Let's go back!"

"We're going to make it!" Lisi answered determinedly. "Smoke—I should think there was! Can't you smell it?"

They were hemmed in now by motor cars, trucks and other vehicles. Horns were honking and drivers complaining loudly. The coupe could barely move.

Lisi ducked her head forward. "Look at it!" she cried. "Did you ever see anything like it?"

They were still some distance from the burning building. High overhead the thick black smoke curled upward. Now and then it colored with a dingy ruddiness, brightened and then grew dark. The air was heavy with the odor of smoke.

On the sidewalks men and women were running. The din was terrific.

Celia had begun to weep hysterically.

"Let's get out and walk," she begged. "We'll never get there any other way. Oh, Barney, how will I ever find him? How am I to know if he's safe?"

Lisi tried to move the car forward. The effort was useless. "Fire's still burning," she said. "You can tell from the sky. Lord, what a blaze that must have been!"

Mrs. Parsons interrupted shrilly: "This is dangerous! We've got to get away. Lisi, I tell you we've got! I won't stay!"

The girl looked at her and shrugged one shoulder. "How're you going to leave?" she asked. "Look behind you!"

Evelyn turned. As far as she could see the street was filled with other vehicles. Motor cars of all kinds and sizes. Messenger boys on bicycles. Delivery trucks. She gasped and sank back against the seat.

Celia had begun to fumble with the fastener on the door. "What are you doing?" Lisi demanded.

"I'm going to get out," Celia said. "I can't stand it. I've got to know if Barney's safe."

There was a brief argument. It ended with Celia and Lisi climbing out of the car and leaving Mrs. Parsons at the wheel. They made their way to the sidewalk. They were a strange sight, with heads bare and wearing frocks. Men, women and children were crowding, pushing, trying to get nearer to the burning building.

It was difficult to breathe the smoky air. Lisi had caught hold of Celia's arm so they would not become separated. They pushed and shoved with the others.

At last they edged through the crowd and came up against a rope. "Can't go farther!" a policeman shouted. "Here—get back there!"

Across the street, nearly at the end of the block, they could see the building from which the murky clouds were rolling. A shrill siren whistle rent the air and two scarlet ambulances came in view. Celia, understanding their significance, gave a low scream.

"Ask the cop to help you," prompted Lisi. "Maybe he'll let us through the rope."

The officer's answer was a harsh negative. "Oh, but please," Celia begged. "I've got to know if he's safe! Don't you understand? I've got to know!"

"Sorry, lady. I can't do anything word you."

"See here!" Lisi cut in sharply, "have they gotten everyone out of the building?"

"I'm not here to answer questions. I'm here to see nobody gets past this line." The policeman was Just for a lark, and for a visit to his native land, a college professor, his wife and their 7-year-old daughter crossed the Atlantic alone in a tiny schooner and here are shown being welcomed on their safe arrival at Barcelona, Spain. becoming annoyed. Celia could not keep the tears back. The officer took note of this.

"They've taken the injured over to General Hospital," he said more kindly. "Why don't you go over there?"

Lisi asked how to reach the hospital and the policeman told her. After his sudden change of heart he became quite affable. As the girls turned to go he waved toward the crowd and shouted:

"Let the ladies through there!" The human wall parted almost magically and Celia and Lisi hurried back the way they had come. They heard another shrieking siren after they had gone a little distance. Celia turned terror-stricken eyes to Lisi.

"But—if they've taken the people to the hospital, what's that for?"

Lisi knew and went a little pale at the thought. "I guess maybe they hadn't all gone," she said. Working their way back through the crowd of inquisitive humans was as difficult as pressing forward had been. Neither of the girls noticed how their frocks had been twisted and torn. When at last they reached the place where walking was comparatively easy, they were breathless. Instead of resting, Celia broke into a run.

"Where's the car?" she cried. "We've got to find Evelyn."

"We can't," Lisi complained. "I'm sure she's gone. Oh, look!" She had spied the coupe.

"Yoo hoo!" Lisi shrieked like an urchin, and dashed ahead. Mrs. Parsons greeted them, horrified.

"What sights!" she wailed. "Never in my life have I seen such a looking pair. Lisi Duncan, if I live through this night I'll be surprised!"

If Lisi had been in a normal mood she would have laughed. Instead she said soberly: "Celia, I've been thinking. Wouldn't it be better to go to the office where your friend works and try to find out about him there? I know a bout hospitals, and they keep you waiting hours. Don't you think it would be quicker?"

Evelyn burst in angrily: "You're going no place but to take me home!"

"You're wrong," Lisi answered, meeting her gaze evenly. "Can't you see how Celia's suffering? We started out to find this Barney person, and we're going to find him."

There was no disputing Lisi Duncan when she spoke in that tone. When was delay in locating the address of the Apex Picture Service, but eventually they reached there. Lisi burst into that office, starting a group of men gathered about a desk.

"Have you heard from Barney Shields?" Celia cried.

BANQUET IS NOTEWORTHY OCCASION

RANGER, Texas, Oct. 31.—Attendance at the annual banquet of the First Methodist church was even greater than anticipations, and the occasion was a highly enjoyable one last evening. One hundred and twenty-five attended. Walter Harwell was toastmaster as Judge L. H. Flewellen was unable to return from Dallas in time. Impromptu talks were made by the pastor, the Rev. J. W. Mayne, and by members of the church, who were called upon. Among those who spoke were Carl Boucher, A. N. Larson, A. H. Seely, R. R. Stafford, Dr. P. M. Kuykendall and Mrs. M. H. Hagaman.

The musical program was presented by J. M. Edwards and consisted of two numbers by the

SPECIAL TRAIN PLANNED FOR MAVERICK GAME FRIDAY

Will Require 200 To Make Trip Possible

Plans are being made to have a special train accompany the Mavericks to Abilene next Friday to take the Eastland fans who want to see the game. Negotiations have already been made and it was found that it would take from 200 to 250 to make up a special to visit the "Capital of West Texas" when the Mavericks and Eagles clash.

It was announced today that about 100 had been signed up at the high school and that a number of fans in the city were expected to make arrangements to go along to lend encouragement to the local team when they invade the Eagle stronghold.

The special, if enough make the trip to assure it, will leave Eastland about 11:30 in the morning, arriving in Abilene in time for the game. This will allow those who so wish to have lunch at home before boarding the train, thereby saving money on the trip. After the game the train will leave for Eastland, getting here early in the evening.

The price of the tickets will be $1.15 for the round trip, making the entire cost of the transportation and the admission to the game but $2.15. Many are expected to sign up for the excursion to Abilene and those who can go should communicate with the Eastland High School as soon as possible so that those in charge of arrangements may know as early as possible whether it will be possible to engage a special train and in order that they may know how much equipment will be needed to accommodate the crowd.

Definite announcement of whether the train can be secured, and if it can it a sufficient number make the trip, will be made at the year, and a combination virtually as strong as that which played through the season of 1927 without a defeat.

The Aggies, doped as underdogs in the contest, will depend largely on a new backfield combination to carry them into the win column of the season's percentage tables for the first time in four games.

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 30.—Mustang plays were presented to the varsity griders at Memorial Stadium here Wednesday by Fresh crews, as the Longhorns continued the serious business of whipping into shape to give the aces of S. M. U. one of the strongest battles of the current season. Head Coach Clyde Littlefield has indicated that if his charges keep their fighting spirit and remain level headed during sixty minutes of the battle, they have an even chance to subdue the Ponies.

With a relatively inexperienced but powerful team, Coach Littlefield's biggest task is to train his men to play evenly and smoothly as a battle-pitch.

Bon-fires dotted the campus last night as Texas yells echoed across the campus. It was evident that the "twelfth man" spirit will not be lacking at Memorial Stadium Saturday.

TWO BULLDOGS TO BE OUT DUE TO INJURIES

Mineral Wells Has Been Looking Forward All the Year To Game Here.

RANGER, Texas, Oct. 31.—The lineup against Mineral Wells here Friday will probably be somewhat different from the lineup in most of the games this season. Injuries make shifts necessary. "Squint" Williams will play guard. Aishman has had a bad leg for the past 10 days or so but played more than half of the game against Abilene. Williams alternated with him in that game.

Don Flahie will again handle the right halfback position. Bob King has not recovered from illness. Flahie played the entire game against the Eagles and did good work.

This leaves Coaches Curtis and Ward short on reserve material for the fullback assignment. It is likely that a lineman will be worked out this week as an understudy to Chuck Bird. Mineral Wells will bring an eleven in good condition. Several players were out when Sweetwater was met last week and to this fact is ascribed the close call the Mountaineers had. But they will be in there against Ranger and will be playing tip-top football.

In bygone years Weatherford was Mineral Wells' traditional rival. But the Resort City has been in Class A for two years while the Watermelon-metropolis is still in Class B so Ranger has been given the honor of being classed as Mineral Wells' traditional "foe" as a study of the games between the schools will show. Therefore the Mountaineers have been talking about and planning for and looking forward to the meeting with Ranger all season. If however doesn't take the game as seriously as the Mountaineers do, well, it may prove to be very serious, that's all.

With the exception of the changes indicated above, the usual Bulldogs lineup will take the field in all probability—Anderson and Stevens at ends; Love and Murray at tackle; Moser at guard; Reese at center; Bird, Weaver and McCarty in the backfield, with Flahie and Williams in the backfield and the line, respectively.

Jinks Follows Football Star Over 2 Seasons

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

United Press Staff Correspondent CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—The varsity football career of Henry (Hank) Bruder, Northwestern captain and backfield ace, is almost without parallel on the gridiron.

Hard luck picked Bruder for her own day he donned a varsity uniform in 1928, and for 21 seasons it has been one misfortune after another for the blonde haired Pekin, Ill., boy.

Bruder's first injury came three days before the opening game of the 1928 season. He was carrying the ball in scrimmage when he was tackled and thrown against a slab of concrete left on the field by workmen who had been installing a drainage system. He received a bruised and battered hip which did not heal during the season. Yet he was able to play stellar roles in three games near the end of the year, particularly in the 10-9 defeat of Minnesota and the 27-4 triumph over Dartmouth.

He began the 1929 season in tip-top form, making two touchdowns in the opening game against Butler, but in the next game against Wisconsin he was carried off the field with a broken leg, and was out the rest of the year.

An intercepted pass and a 54-yard run for a touchdown marked Bruder's 1930 debut in Northwestern's opening game against Tulane. The jinx caught up with Bruder on the next day and he

Baseball Chatters

NOTICED the other day that Judge Landis went to bat with a post-season decision on fanned-out players and it looked like a home run to me. It happened like this:

In the eye of the world series the Brooklyn team also drafted Jimmy Pattison, former Brooklyn high school pitcher, from the Macon, Ga., club. Brooklyn owns the Macon club, and seemed to have a perfect right to draft the young southpaw if it pleased.

But here's the point: several other big league teams, among them the Giants, were after Pattison, who was sniped to draft. The Robins did not need Pattison for 1931, but did not want to see another club grab him. He might turn out to be a star, you know, and that wouldn't be so good.

Just a Gesture SHORTLY after the draft meeting, the Robins announced that they had withdrawn their claim to Pattison and returned him to Macon. With the chance to draft the young man passed, the other big league clubs who would have liked to draft Pattison, had to see him go back to the Brooklyn farm.

The judge, however, came to bat just as soon as he heard of Brooklyn's action and ruled that hereafter no major league club may draft a player from its own farm.

Where the Rub Comes SUPPOSE the giants, or the Pirates who also were after Pattison, had drafted him, and he turned out to be a sensation in 1931. The young man's fame and fortune would be made. As it is, he has been robbed of a chance to show the big leagues what he has, or at least his chance has been deferred another year. This has happened to promising players time and again.

The judge is to be congratulated on the position he took.

Yankee Property

DETROIT decided it would not need Pitcher Sam Gibson of Toronto in 1931. The Yankees stepped in and purchased the young man in September. The boys were puzzled for a while that the Yanks should take on a pitcher that the Tigers had turned down.

The other day it was cleared up. The Yanks sent Sam Gibson and Bill Henderson to San Francisco as part payment for Frankie Crosetti, who is to join the Yankees in 1932. Henderson was the player sent to Jersey City by the Yankees last spring, and then brought back so that Lou McEvoy could be sent to California in July. About the time McEvoy arrived on the coast, he was recalled and Henderson sent instead.

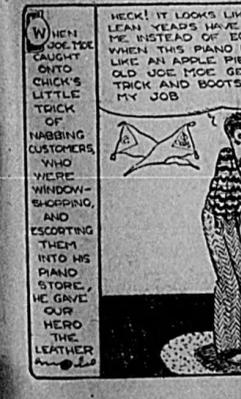

You may get from this what chattle minor league ball players are. And how their chances to show their ability in the big leagues often are curtailed for the sake of a trade.

Is it any wonder that after ball players establish their rights to stay in big league company that they hold out for more money? And can you blame them?

Haskell Midgets Again Are Undefeated

In going over the undefeated eleven this season, don't overlook those junior All-Americans, the Haskell Indian Midgets. The little redskins, having their own schedule, coach, scholastic rules and training requirements, are going about this football business just like any university team. Instead of using their real Indian names, the youngsters have made it easier for the sports writers by taking American names, something some of our major universities might well copy. Members of the team above are: front row, left to right—Robert King, Pat Hunter, Melvin Allen, Robert Walton, John Nevitt, Francis Williams and Jack Williams; back row, left to right—Irving Wislaska, Whipple Kutch, Jimmy Pappan and John Yeager.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The acceptance of light wools in formal afternoon fashions this fall has whetted the woolen appetite. Worsteds now have a grand desire to go to luncheon, and to tea. Especially do they want to attend more dressy resort daytime functions. And realizing their limitations in this direction, they set out to correct them.

In consequence, range after range of luxury worsteds are developed in the sheers of grounds in nets, in leno laces. Delicate tints too, add to the summery formality of these textures, a pale pasted blue being given a place of

PREFERENCE

Wool laces, even the finest of them as presented for this season seem thick and heavy compared with these cobwebby, sheer crepes and nets. The nets, when loomed of extremely fine crated threads, present the newest aspect, for until this season the rule has been a net weave in medium-sized or wool yarns on the order of the original Kashtulla of several years ago.

It is very new, then, to find such versions as wool marquisette and wool gauze in such fine texture that one almost doubts their worsted origin. And as for the sheer crepe, one French maker boasts that his three-ounce worsted sheers may be drawn through a ring.

Pastels are essential in the development of these delicate ranges, none of them being shown in dark shades. White, of course, is available, but it is in the pale blue, pink, eggshell and water green values that their formal character is most pronounced and according to reports it is the blues which lead. When these same weaves are developed in slightly heavier yarns, with a more wooly feeling, the darker and brighter shades are accented, principally black, navy blue bright blue and flame red.

The woolen daytime picture hats, in the past, not been complete, for it neglected the afternoon function. With fashion's new insistence on dressing to the occasion, it has been necessary to change during the day as well as for evening. So now, when women are finding wool frocks so very smart, they may yet change for afternoon, but change into another wool.

Established Manufacturers Jealously Guard Quality

Food Products With a Reputation Kept to High Standards

To many women trade marks and copyrights are a puzzle. They can't understand why a business concern will spend so much money to protect them for their products. They are amazed to learn that a large company will sometimes evaluate its "good will" at actually more, in dollars and cents than its physical properties. To such a company its trade marks and copyrights, insuring the identity of its products, are the tangible evidences of the public's good will.

One company, let us say, has been manufacturing breakfast foods for twenty years. When a housewife buys a package of this company's product she knows it will be precisely as good as the last package she bought. If it isn't she can get her money back without question from any reputable merchant in the land.

Suppose this company puts a new kind of breakfast food on the market and, in its advertisements, tells the housewife that it contains certain ingredients, that it is made a certain way, that it has certain nutritive properties. The housewife knows that manufacturer is honest and that his other products are good. So she tries the new breakfast food and, if her family likes it, she continues to buy it. The manufacturer has her good will. If he once loses it all the advertisements ever written will not get it back.

Sometimes there are not-so-scrupulous manufacturers who want to get part of this business. They do not develop a good product, and then advertise it in competition. They make an inferior product and then try to sell it as "just as good as the advertised brand" at a few cents less to the buyer, but at a big profit to themselves. They want to make money without spending it, and in periods of slackened business they are most active.

But the wise housewife buys for value, not for price, and the less money she has to spend for food the more insistent she is that she get good value. She knows that she can rely on advertised standard products because their manufacturers must hold her good will.

CONDITIONS HERE ARE BETTER THAN MID-WEST

RANGER, Texas, Oct. 31.—O. D. Dillingham of Abilene, formerly of Ranger, was a speaker at the Rotary club meet here today. He has just returned from an automobile trip to Cleveland, O., where he attended the National Dairy show. He discussed conditions as he observed them in the cities and towns through which he passed. Many people were working on half time so as to provide jobs for more workers. Conditions in this section are much better than he found on his trip. He said that conditions were improving in the territory he visited, however.

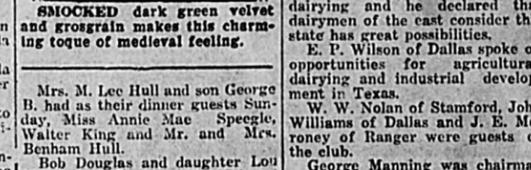

The dairy show was bigger than ever. Seventy-nine carloads of machinery were exhibited. There was a caravan of seven cars, containing 26 people, from Texas to the dairy show. The speaker discussed the future of Texas for dairying and he declared that dairymen of the east consider this state has great possibilities.

E. P. Wilson of Dallas spoke on opportunities for agricultural, dairying and industrial development in Texas.

W. W. Nolan of Stamford, John Williams of Dallas and J. E. Meroney of Ranger were guests of the club.

George Manning was chairman of the program committee. M. R. Newham and C. B. Pruet were on the committee.

"Hello. Is this the Main Street Grocery? Please send my order up C. O. D. The items come within a dollar—just let the boy collect." This may sound unbelievable if Mrs. Jones should add that the dinner she is ordering is to serve four persons beautifully. But it does. Add the figures and see for yourself. And this, by the way, is the way Mrs. Jones is going to prepare:

Dinner Hash With Baked Eggs: Sauté one tablespoon of minced onion in one tablespoon of drippings for three minutes. Add one-half of a 2-ounce can of corned beef, one 6-ounce can of carrots, one cup of chopped boiled potato and season to taste with salt and pepper. Moisten with

FAMILY MENU

BY SISTER MARY, NEA Service Writer

THIS is the time of year when daughters are justly popular. The temperature of the fat is of utmost importance, since this solves the fat-soaking problem and determines the digestibility of the doughnut. When a thermometer is used it should register 370 degrees when the dough is dropped in and should be kept at 350 degrees during frying. For the bread test, an inch cube of bread from the soft part of the loaf should brown in 60 seconds when dropped into the hot fat.

Following is a recipe for old-fashioned yeast doughnuts.

Old-Fashioned Doughnuts
Two cakes compressed yeast, 1 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg, 2 eggs, 3-cup granulated sugar, 5 tablespoons melted butter, 4 cups flour.

Scaud milk and cool to lukewarm temperature. Add crumbled yeast cakes and stir until dissolved. Add 1-1-4 cups sifted flour and beat mixture until smooth. Cover and place in a warm place until puffed up and bubbly.

It will take about an hour for the sponge to rise. Mix and sift two cups of flour with sugar, salt and nutmeg. Add eggs well beaten to sponge and then stir in dry ingredients and melted butter. Knead dough until smooth and elastic. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk. This will take not more than three hours.

Turn the dough onto a floured board and pat the dough into a sheet about 3-4 inch thick. Cut with a small round biscuit cutter. Let stand on board, covered with a clean tea towel until double in bulk. Drop into deep hot fat and fry until delicately brown. Drain from fat, dredge with sugar and cool before storing.

Potato fried cakes are very easy to make and sure to be good. The rule follows by request.

Potato Fried Cakes
One cup mashed potatoes, 3 eggs, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-1-4 cups sugar, 5 cups flour, 6 tablespoons baking powder, 1 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon grated nutmeg.

Add butter and sugar to warm mashed potatoes. Mix and sift flour, sugar, salt, baking powder and nutmeg. Add alternately with milk to potato mixture. Add eggs well beaten and mix until smooth. Turn out onto floured cutter and fry in deep hot fat. Drain on heavy brown paper. Do not pile one above the other until cool. Rings and twists should fry in three to four minutes.

Tomatoes Are Juicy

Do you prefer your tomatoes whole, lusciously tender and intact—or in a tall glass of sparkling, invigorating juice?

Now you eat this appetizing health fruit is merely a matter of preference, because the one way is just as thrifty as the other.

Why? Because tomatoes are made up mostly of juice. Take a fresh tomato and squeeze it thoroughly. There is very little left after the red juices have been drained, but even that very little bit, of course, should be saved, for it has a variety of tempting uses.

Now take a can of tomatoes and press the contents through a sieve. You will be surprised to find what an abundance of juice you have and how little of the pulp is left! Put the pulp in a covered jar and keep it to use in delicious meat sauces, chutneys, or in making Italian spaghetti sauce.

A New Cocktail

Tomato juice is also packed in cans, ready for use at a moment's notice. There are endless new recipes for refreshing tomato drinks being evolved every day, since people have found out how good they taste. Here is an excellent one:

Love Apple Cocktail: Pour one and one-half cups of chilled tomato juice into one-half cup of chilled evaporated milk, stirring vigorously. Add one-half cup of chopped ice, one-fourth teaspoon of celery salt, one-half teaspoon of salt and a dash of black pepper. Garnish with finely chopped parsley. Serve immediately in chilled glasses. This yields four servings.

Way to Get At a Cold Is Through the Nose

As soon as you catch a cold, pores close; perspiration is checked. Gases and waste can't get through the skin. That's why a doctor's first advice in case of a cold is a mild laxative like Cascara. Medical authorities agree actually strengthen bowel movements. You get cascara in its most pleasant form in candy Cascara. Remember this when you catch a cold; whenever breath is in tongue coated; or you're headachy, bilious, constipated.

Why resort to harsher than Cascara? Because Cascara acts so quickly, so harmlessly, so pleasantly—and cost only a dime.
