His stepmother, Addiego, instigated divorce proceedings 25 years ago in Italy against his father. She failed to get the final papers, a little over eight which the plaintiff declared he had discovered only recently. When the second marriage took place he was 19 and she 25. Addiego complained to Judge Timothy Fitzpatrick that he was scolded, disciplined, brow-beaten, maltreated.

Eastland Wins From Brownwood By 20 to 0 Score

The Eastland Mavericks tamed the Brownwood Lions on the local field Saturday afternoon and made a weak "peep" out of their roar, winning the game by a score of 20 to 0. Rex Clark, galloping ball carrier of the Eastland squad, made gains almost at will and Allen, Jones and Reason made good gains at different times during the game. The first touchdown came in the first quarter when Clark carried the ball 25 yards on the first play Eastland made and was carried over by Allen after Clark had picked up a couple of more yards around the end. The trial for goal failed. Early in the second quarter Eastland made her second touchdown when Clark punted to the 12 yard line where Brownwood fumbled and Eastland recovered. On a short lateral pass Clark carried the ball 12 yards for a touchdown on the first play. The pass for goal failed. The third touchdown was made by Clark on the same kind of play as his first when he carried the ball 20 yards and crossed the goal line. Foster kicked the goal. Eastland made two other plays that looked like touchdowns when Clark raced 75 yards to the goal line, but the ball was called back and when a pass across the goal line looked good the referee ruled that it was incomplete. The Mavericks easily outplayed the lowly Lions, who were able to gain but little yardage throughout the game. Harrison, fleet half back of the visiting team was the outstanding player on the offense, making most of the Brownwood gains and passing and kicking with accuracy. His passes were seldom completed, however, because the receivers were guarded too closely. After making their first touchdown the Mavericks were pepped up until they played almost unbeatable football and had the breaks not worked against them at the wrong time they would have run up a much larger score. The Lions showed lack of training and fumbled a number of times during the game for long losses. In the last quarter they were determined air attack but were unable to complete their passes in spite of the accurate throwing of Harrison. Several passes looked as though they were going to click but the ball would slip through the hands of the receiver. A small crowd witnessed the game.

Senators Interested In Rumored Wet Tendency In Wickersham Commission

By NATHAN ROBERTSON, United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—Senators passing through the capital are displaying interest in a strong undercurrent of expectation which has been stirred by varied reports that the Wickersham law enforcement commission is preparing to recommend modification of the Volstead act. None of these reports bears any official stamp yet discussion concerning them is increasing. Two dry southern senators have just brought reports here purporting to see some change of sentiment in the South. There also was interest today in the charges of Henry H. Curran, president of the association against the prohibition amendment, that the senate campaign expenditures committee had investigated his organization without going into activities of the anti-saloon leagues and other prohibition groups. "I wonder if anybody knows," he said, "that the Nye committee has just put us through such an exhaustive that it felt more like a curcomb than a conversation, and yet they have not lifted a finger to find out about the national expenditures of the anti-saloon league and the Methodist board of prohibition and morals, and who pays the Rev. Sunday for the stump speeches he is now making in Ohio. One of the southern senators, long a leader of the dry movement said he was convinced that "practical" modification of the prohibition law would be in the interests of temperance. Not all southern senators have noted a change in the sentiments of their constituents, however. Senator Morris Sheppard, Dem., Texas, for instance, contended on a recent visit to Washington that his state is drier than ever. Those who said they saw a change declared the dissatisfaction was with the way in which prohibition enforcement as worked, rather than toward its objective of abolishing liquor. One of them said that although his state is still pro-dry, he believed if the law enforcement commission should recommend moderate liberalization, the south would "go along with it."

The negroes, Emmett Galley and Ewell Richardson, both of Windsor, after hours of questioning admitted the murder, which they said occurred after they had robbed the woman of $35.82. Their arrest was brought about by information received from a negro boy, who said he accompanied them to the woman's farm home the day of the murder and they returned to him after half an hour in the house and give him $10, which they said, was "dead money."

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 25—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin and the brother-in-law whom police said she implicated in the slaying of 10-year-old Leona O'Loughlin, her stepdaughter, both planned to enter "not guilty" pleas when arraigned today on charges of murder. Charges against the brother-in-law, Frank O'Loughlin, were made at the request of Mrs. O'Loughlin's husband, Leo O'Loughlin, a city detective, who said that the "surest and quickest" way of clearing his brother of the insinuations. The detective, who became violently ill after eating some of the same food which made Leona ill before she was struck on the head and her body thrown into Berkeley lake, has contended his brother is innocent and has said repeatedly he will "stick by" despite his wife's claims. Contending she had been "forced" into giving police an oral confession that she had participated in the slaying, attorneys for Mrs. O'Loughlin asked a petition to prevent the officers from "molesting" her further, but the petition was denied by Judge Henry C. Calvert and detectives, including O'Loughlin, planned to grill her again in the hope of getting a signed statement. Officers claimed that Mrs. O'Loughlin served food containing ground glass to her husband and stepdaughter, not allowing her own 8-year old son by a former marriage to eat any of it, that she then struck Leona on the head with a fire iron and took her body in the family automobile to the lake. The body was found three days later.

SCHOOL MEN ORGANIZE.

School men of the oil belt have organized themselves into a professional association which has for its object the advancement of standards of educational procedure in the oil belt through cooperative dealing with problems of mutual concern.

The keen interest of the school men was revealed in the fact that practically every class A and class B school in the district from Sweetwater and Mineral Wells and Breckenridge to Brownwood was represented, as well as most of the rural schools of this immediate area.

The schools of the oil belt have been increasingly charged with emphasizing athletics above the scholastic phases. But from what was said and done at the session Tuesday night this over-emphasis may be charged not to the school men but to the public enthusiasm.

There is no need to say that the oil belt association, if it is properly conducted, has an important part to play in the school life of the oil belt. This section has problems that are peculiarly its own.

The standard of public school education in the oil belt will be raised in the ratio that the school men of the district enter seriously into the conduct of their newly formed association.

DABNEY WHITE ON DROUTH RELIEF.

Dabney White, a native Texan, is an outstanding citizen of Tyler. He completed his trek covering the drouth affected parts of Texas, hammered the facts into copy for a newspaper in order to show "public officials particularly, the necessity for extending financial relief to the many thousands who have lost millions of dollars as the result of the recent lack of rain in Texas."

Proceeding along the same line of information White says, "in addition to these instances hundreds of communities will be called upon for urban relief for their idle people made so by their crop failures. A Red Cross agency at Spur is providing a local fund of $500 a month for their local charities. This is the conclusion of the former ranger, widely known in business and newspaper circles of the southwest, "Texas government can and must help its helpless creators as much as Texans are now asking the national government to contribute in credit facilities. Heretofore Texas has never permitted her people to suffer from lack of food or raiment."

Why should Texas permit "her people" to suffer from lack of food or raiment? Those who are without collateral or credit should be enabled to borrow money from government credit banks or any other banks. These unfortunates and their dependent ones must be carried through the winter by Red Cross agencies and the more fortunate of their fellow citizens in all sections of Texas, rural as well as urban circles.

President Hoover has appointed a general committee to work with the governors of states and local committees. Winter is almost here. Local aid for local victims of the drouth must be cared for by local agencies. Talk is cheap but it takes hard cash to buy provisions and to provide shelter for the shelterless ones. Texas is one of the richest of American commonwealths. It is a matter of record that 68 per cent of its farm population are tenants. They were born in poverty. They are in debt more or less from the cradle to the grave. They are the principal sufferers in the drouth sections of Texas and all other agricultural commonwealths of the South and the southwest.

Senator Walsh Is Opposed For Senate Re-Election

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Senator Thomas Walsh, one of the most important figures in the United States, who has won fame as an investigator of Teapot Dome and other scandals, is engaged in perhaps the hardest fight of his political career to retain his place at Washington.

The Republican party in Montana, which usually carries the state for its presidential candidate but seems unable to elect senators, has placed against him Judge Albert J. Galen, associate justice of the state supreme court, one of the strongest Republicans in the state, a man of colorful personality.

In his campaign Galen has come out for "reform" prohibition laws favoring return to state control of the liquor traffic and federal cooperation with state authorities in states which choose to prohibit liquor entirely.

Walsh is a dry and the resulting alignment on the prohibition question has complicated Walsh's campaign to a serious extent. Western Montana is strongly democratic and it is almost equally wet.

Republicans have concentrated their campaign in that district, emphasizing their candidate's position on prohibition and threaten to make heavy inroads upon Walsh's strength there. Galen in his speeches, has emphasized the prohibition question. Walsh, in his speeches, has attacked the tariff and the administration's policy on farm relief, the activities of the farm board, and the alleged failure of Mr. Hoover and the republican leaders to keep pledges to relieve unemployment and bring about prosperity.

Talliech, attorney for the Texas and New Orleans, on the evidence in support of various short lines endeavoring to be taken into the Southern Pacific system. Markets

Final Stocks NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—A sharp break in J. I. Case and declines of wide proportions in other harvesters shares and mail order houses stocks brought the stock market below the previous close today after a substantial run-up in early trading.

Montgomery Ward met renewed pressure. Many holders, disappointed over the actions of directors in eliminating the dividend, sold their holdings and the stock made a new low for the year.

Sears Roebuck went down in sympathy with Montgomery Ward. These companies, whose business depends on prosperity in the agricultural regions, are feeling the effects of low commodity prices. The same condition holds for the harvester shares. It was this that caused the fall in Case and International Harvester. Case made a new low at 115 1/4, off 12 1/2 from the previous close.

During the early trading U. S. Steel rose to a new high on the movement at 152 1/2, up 1/4 from the previous close. This stock drifted lower before the close. It was helped in early dealings by a statement by Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the steel corporation, saying the industry could not long continue at 50 per cent of capacity. Taylor predicted an upturn in the near future.

Railroad shares held fairly well. Erie touched 35 in early trading where it was up 1 1/2 from the previous close. However, when the September report was issued showing a falling off of 50 per cent in earnings as compared with September, 1929, the stock sold off 3 points from the high. Van Swearingen issues were steady to firm.

The first 22 railroads to report September earnings had met operating income of $30,674,000, against $36,265,000 in September, 1929, a decrease of 15.4 per cent. The September figure, however, was 8.1 per cent over August.

Leading industrial issues were higher in the early trading with U. S. Steel gains ranged to more than 2 points. Toward the close profit taking followed the break in harvester and mail order shares, the early gains were turned to net losses ranging to 3 points.

Utilities went down with the other issues. Amusements followed as did motors and special stocks. In the latter group Gillette lost nearly 3 points.

First Showing Lightner Film

For the fourth time this month the Columbia Theatre in Ranger, announces the states first showing of a motion picture. The one having it's Texas Premier in the Ranger theatre today is a new vehicle starring Winnie Lightner, commencing her career on the stage in "The Goldiggers of Broadway" which was one of the big hits of last year. The picture will play at the Ranger Columbia Theatre through Tuesday.

Winnie Lightner, who in real life as well as on the screen is a tomboy, got a lot of fun out of her role in "The Life of the Party," the latest Warner Brothers and Vitaphone comedy in natural color which comes to the Columbia theatre in Ranger today. In real life Winnie can always top the other person with a smart-crack. She likes to play the most strenuous type of games, and when everyone else is tired out she still has enough pep to pluck a song. As Flo in "The Life of the Party," Miss Lightner is given a chance to actually cut loose and do her stuff. Besides enacting the role of a New York song plugger who turns professional gold digger, in which characterization the tomboy of the talkies literally rovels, she is given a chance to ride in a horse race. She gets a rough ride and is thrown head-first in the mud. Onlookers enjoyed the picture making more than Winnie did herself.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Adventure enters the life of Celia, 17, when she learns that her father has supposed dead and wealthy. She leaves her unpretentious home in Baltimore to live in New York with her father, John Mitchell, and her aristocratic grandmother, Margaret Rogers. Celia's mother is now a widow, having divorced Mitchell and remarried Barney Shields, young newspaper photographer, in love with her and before leaving Baltimore Celia promised to be loyal to love.

Mitchell asks Evelyn Parsons, a beautiful widow, to introduce the girl to young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia a girl who is jealous and at once scheming to get rid of the girl. She introduces Celia to Tod Jordan, fascinating but of dubious character, and does all she can to encourage this match.

Lisi Duncan, Celia's prominent friend, learns Jordan is paying his lighter attentions and forbids her to see him. Celia offends her grandmother and the elderly Mrs. Shields feigns illness and departs for a rest. The girl goes to Mrs. Parsons' Long Island home for a party visit. Jordan calls there frequently.

Mrs. Parsons lunches with Mitchell and he tells her he has investigated Jordan's past and that the girl is a gambler. She does not pass this news on to Celia, but Celia, Lisi and Jordan attend the races and Celia's eye is attracted by a familiar figure.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

The young man's back was certainly familiar. It was the way he carried his broad shoulders which had caught Celia's attention. Her feet seemed to stop beating. She turned forward, craning her neck to see more clearly.

He did not turn around. There were some things about that gray head back that brought a quick flash of memories. If only he would turn his head! But no—of course, he must be mistaken. It was just a stranger who held his shoulders in the same alert way as Barney Shields.

Look, Celia, look—there's that jockey! The one in red. See that!

Lisi Duncan had grabbed Celia's arm and was pointing out a boyish with in scarlet satin, boots and head-crossing cap who, with other boys, was crossing in front of the stands.

"Isn't he adorable?" Lisi chirped. "Why, Celia, you weren't looking at all!"

"Yes, I was, Lisi. I saw him."

It would be several minutes before she could be another race. The crowd all about them had begun moving. Tod Jordan, handsome in white linen suit and orange tie which set off his dark good looks, turned toward the track.

"Want to take a look at the horse?" he said. "I think I'll go down to the paddock and see if I can pick up a tip."

"I don't want tips," said Lisi. "I've already picked my horse. It's the one that cute jockey rode. He's going to ride. See, here's Barney. Celia's heart was pounding. There's a hunch for you, that horse ought to win me money!"

Celia shook her head.

"You go on, Tod," she said. "We'll wait for you."

"See you later!"

Jordan disappeared in the milling crowd. Lisi was turning and twisting, trying to take in everything around her.

"If there isn't Jimmie Webster over there—see? And, my Lord, Kate with him! Well, of all things!"

Celia followed Lisi's excited gesturing to the seats a few rows above where Webster and Kate Duncan were sitting. Lisi whirled about quickly.

"Don't look!" she insisted. "Don't even let them know we saw them. Kate'll be sure to tattle."

The young man in gray down front had turned. Celia caught a quick glimpse of sunburned cheek, eyes squinting against the sunning, and a doubt Barney Shields!

"Listen, Celia, let's move over to the other side where Kate can't see us." Lisi had taken the other girl's arm.

"Oh, but we can't now. How'd we find Tod?" She had to make a dash quickly, keeping one eye on Barney. Celia's heart was pounding. Suppose Barney should leave before she could get to him. Lisi was silent for a few moments. Then she said:

"I'll tell you. You stay and wait for Tod and I'll go across and find some seats for all of us. When he comes back you two come over. Even if Kate does see you it's all right. Oh, boy—I'd like to put something over on that old girl. The way she treated me last night!"

Celia agreed. She was only too eager to be home. When Lisi was out of sight she rose and walked down the aisle of steps. Barney had turned again and was facing the track.

She was just behind him now. Celia tried to appear casual, but her cheeks were hot. She felt as though the eyes of everyone in the large gathering were turned upon her.

Rhily she touched his arm.

"Hello, Barney," the girl said.

"Why—hello! Say, this is a surprise—Barney Shields, who'd whipped off his straw hat. His face was so ruddy, delighted grin. He grabbed her hand, crushed it in his own.

"Is it really you, Celia? I can hardly believe it!"

"It's me, all right," she told him, smiling. "I saw you from where I was sitting. At first I wasn't sure, but then you turned around. Barney, I'm awfully glad to see you."

"Never so glad to see anybody in my life!" the young man said emphatically. He was still holding her hand.

"But how did you happen to be here?" she began.

"Oh, it's a long story! I'll tell you all about it, kid. Right now all I can do is think how sweet you're looking! Say, you look like a million dollars, Celia!"

Blushes deepened her color. The girl did look attractive. Her thin green frock had flattering white frills about the throat and brief sleeves. She wore white slippers and a broad white straw with drooping brim. Flattery, that most artful of cosmetics, had done its work. Celia's eyes were shining.

"Do you really think so?" she asked softly.

"I'll say I do!"

"But you didn't answer my letter."

"Letters? I only got one. Did you send any more? That's part of all I've got to tell you. Just wait until you hear! I've had some good luck, Celia!"

"You look as though you had. Still, I don't see why you couldn't write to me. You said you would, Barney!"

"Yes, I know. But you won't care about that after you hear what's happened."

Men and women around them had begun returning to their seats. It was nearly time for the next race. Celia noticed that Barney had a camera at his side.

"Oh—are you making pictures?" she asked.

"Yes, worse luck! I'll have to be moving in a minute. Listen, when am I going to have a chance to talk to you? I've got a lot of things I want to tell you, Celia. What are you doing tonight?"

"I couldn't see you tonight," she said. "Oh, dear, let's see—"

"Can I call you at your father's house?"

The girl shook her head.

"I'm not staying there any more," she said. "I'm living out on Long Island with a friend of father's. Mrs. Parsons her name is. You'd better let me telephone you. Where can I reach you?"

"Apex Picture Service." He gave her the exchange number.

"Barney! You mean you're working there! In New York?"

"Sure!" she said exultantly.

"That's part of what I've got to tell you."

"Lisi stood in the aisle, half turned. She glanced up and saw Tod Jordan moving toward the place where she and Lisi had been sitting. A wave of apprehension passed over the girl. Barney must not see Tod. She had been so excited at finding him here she had forgotten about Jordan."

"Say," the young man beside her drawled, "you're not alone here, are you?"

"No, I guess I'd better be getting back to my friends. You have to go anyhow, now don't you? What's the best time to call, Barney?"

"About the same, I guess. All times equally bad. But they're careful about taking messages in the office. If I'm not there, leave word. I'll get it in the morning. Oh, I'm so glad to have seen you."

"Believe me, I am, too. Well, so long!"

Celia gave him a quick smile and then mounted the steps. Her heart was singing. All the bitter thoughts that had come when Barney failed to write were banished. There must be an explanation. Anyhow, he certainly had seemed glad to see her. Sight of Shields had resurrected memories of home.

"Oh, there you are! Wondered what had become of you. Where's Lisi?" Jordan greeted her.

"She's over on the other side. Saw her sister up above and didn't want to be seen. Lisi's saving seats for us. Shall we go?"

"It's more comfortable here than it will be over there."

"But she's waiting for us, Tod."

"Oh, all right."

It was a struggle making their way through the crowded aisles. Celia caught sight of Lisi's blue handkerchief waving at them. Manifestly she was guarding a seat on either side of her. At last Celia and Jordan reached her.

"I'm playing 'Family Row' straight," Lisi told them gaily. "Did you get any tips, Tod?"

"Yes, a couple. Highest odds in the race over your horse. Did you notice that?"

"I don't care. After seeing Kate here I know 'Family Row's' going to win!"

Jordan laughed. Invariably he found Lisi Duncan amusing. Of course she wasn't the sort of girl he personally admired, but he liked to hear her talk.

The horses were appearing on the track. A few minutes more and everything was forgotten except the race. Celia with the others was on her feet, waving and cheering frantically as the flying line shot around the last curve. Nearer and nearer! Through clouds of dust one straining animal passed another. Deafening roars filled the air. Nearest and nearest! Suddenly pandemonium broke loose. The black horse had deflected the favorite.

Lisi was jumping up and down, squealing happily.

"But it wasn't the horse you bet on," Lisi reminded her.

"No, but what a race! My dear, I haven't been so thrilled for days!"

Jordan was chuckling. "Well, my tip was good!" he declared. "Ought to pay pretty well, too."

Celia had begun to wonder what Barney Shields had to tell her. It was going to be a problem to meet Barney. For some curious reason she did not want to confide in Mrs. Parsons. It was probably because Evelyn had so frequently praised Tod Jordan. Celia had not yet thought through the complications that were to arise with Barney's arrival.

They stayed for two more races, but neither proved as exciting as the last. Jordan was in excellent spirits when he came away from cashing his winnings.

Lisi opened her purse and held up a single dollar bill.

"They all got wings!" she murmured mournfully.

On the drive back to Larchwood Celia was quiet. The other girl's chatter kept this from being noticed. When they arrived Lisi changed into her own clothes and departed. Jordan remained to dine with Evelyn and Celia.

They spent the evening on the veranda just as they had often before. Celia was aware of a feeling of restraint when she was alone with Jordan, but she let him kiss her good night.

"I think I'll go to bed at once," she told Evelyn after he had gone. "Feeling sleepy."

"Then you'd better go along. Good night."

Celia went to her room. She undressed, turned out the light and got into bed, but she could not sleep. An hour later Celia had reached a decision.

Pilots Have Carried Many Kinds Of Loads

DALLAS, Tex.—More than 63,000 flying hours have been credited to the 22 pilots who fly the trimotored Fokker planes of Southern Air Express over the Southern trans-continental air mail and passenger route between Atlanta and Los Angeles.

Of this group, several are credited with more than 5000 hours. Joe Glass, veteran pilot who has seen service in two countries, tops the list with more than 7000. Homer Rider follows with 6000. As does Ray Fortner, former pilot on Universal Air Lines, flying between Chicago and Cleveland. Charles Pedley is credited with 5800, while the remainder average around 4000 hours or better.

Checking through the applications of the pilots, it is learned that they are fitted for practically any undertaking where flying is concerned from carrying nitroglycerine and love letters to ferrying Uncle Sam's air mail, not to mention the performing of hair-raising stunts which only a veteran would attempt.

One looking for color, he need search no further than Joe Glass. Although only 31 years old, Glass is an old man in flying circles. Born in Granite, Okla., he received his schooling there and entered the army in 1918, learning to fly 11 months later.

Upon his discharge in 1921, Glass drifted down into Mexico and flew for the La Huerta rebel forces during the current revolution. His job for the most part consisted of carrying ammunition and news dispatches.

At the conclusion of one such trip, he counted 11 bullet holes in the fabric of his plane. On another occasion, while flying for a Mexican mining company, he carried 1000 quarts of nitroglycerine in 13 trips on 13 successive days.

Charles Pedley, who at one time was recognized as the "barnstorming fool that ever flew a ship," won his spurs in the northern states. For nearly three years Pedley traveled with an aerial circus. One of his stunts was to dive his plane about 2500 feet to swoop through an arch built up from the ground.

H. J. Kelsey, who comes to Western Air Express, has the distinction of having flown the first passenger plane out of El Paso for Los Angeles when Standard Air Lines began that service. So it was only right that he was named to pilot the plane bearing homes. Archery and darts have sprung into favor.

Death was peaceful. The artist had been in a coma for 12 hours.

Boyd And Connor Given Airplane

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The monoplane Columbia, veteran of two trans-Atlantic flights, has been given to Capt. J. Errol Boyd and Lieut. Harry Connor, who flew the plane from Newfoundland to the Scilly Islands on Oct. 9-10.

Boyd and Connor plan to tour Europe in the Columbia. They announced the abandonment yesterday of their plan to attempt a flight from Ireland to Canada in the machine.

Denver Ends Charity Balls

DENVER, Colo.—Members of the fabulously wealthy social set of Denver, persons whose fortunes have mushroomed from the oil and gold in these hills, are having a hard time amusing themselves this fall.

The social season failed to get started at all in Denver this year, due to cancellation of the famous, glamorous Charity Ball.

For 49 years it had been an occasion of much magnificence and grandeur, grace and charm. It not only was the outstanding event of the season, but it was the season's start. No hostess even dreamed of announcing a function until after this formal inaugural of the season.

This year the ball was cancelled at the last moment. It had begun to lose prestige, it was explained. Society was forced to embrace other diversions.

A ping pong table has been installed at the great Polo Club. Jig saw puzzles have stayed in the cabinets in exclusive circles. Jackstraws have been added to the pleasure rooms of many fine

School And Social Activities At Warner Memorial University

Faculty Recital

Miss Grace Bailey, director of the School of Music and Mrs. H. T. Reynolds, professor of Voice, both of Warner Memorial University, are working on a concert which is to be given Friday evening, November 7th.

This concert will be given in the auditorium of the First Methodist church on South Mulberry and a splendid program is promised. The public is invited to attend and a good attendance is hoped for.

W.M.U. To Present Play

The play "An Old Fashioned Mother" is to be given by the students and faculty members of W. M. U. on the evening before the dedication of the new auditorium. This dedicatory service will probably be held on December 31st. The cast met Thursday for the first practice. Miss Thelma Riddle, professor of Public Speaking is the director.

DR. J. T. WILSON SPEAKS AT SAN ANTONIO

Sunday morning, October 19th, 1930, at 11 o'clock, Dr. J. T. Wilson, president of Warner Memorial University, delivered the dedicatory address for the new Church of God chapel at San Antonio, Texas. He was accompanied on the San Antonio trip by the University mixed quartet composed of Mrs. F. O. Bailey, Miss Mildred McDowell, Professor H. H. Ward and Kenneth Parker. Also by Miss Grace Bailey, Dean Bailey, Lester Crose and Mrs. Louise McDowell. The quartet sang two inspiring songs in the morning service and one at the evening service. The congregation showed its appreciation by taking up a collection to pay the expense of the trip. On the way back the delegates stopped at Stacy, Texas, to see Miss Ruby Ferguson, one of last year's students and also Mrs. Morgan, mother of Lela Morgan, a W. M. U. student.

Chemistry Laboratory Ready

The Chemistry laboratory, at W. M. U., was completed last week after much delay. The students of Chemistry are having to double up on the work in the laboratory and by reporting two periods a week instead of one period, they will be able to make up for the lost time. The laboratory does not have any tire equipment yet but it is being replenished every few days and it will not be long until it will be completely equipped and furnished with working material.

Grading System Changed

The grading system of W. M. U. has been changed. Following is the new grading system with the interpretation of the letters:

- A signifies superior work (94 to 100).
- B signifies work about ordinary (87 to 93).
- C signifies ordinary work (80 to 86).
- D signifies work below ordinary (73 to 79).
- E signifies condition (66 to 72).
- F signifies failure (below 66).

Six Weeks Exams

The first six weeks rolled around to the University before professor or student realized it. The second year of Warner Memorial's existence is now well on its way. Of course every new student was more or less afraid. What kind of exams do these teachers give? Will they be terribly hard? I wish to say in behalf of the entire student body, that the teachers not only proved themselves excellent teachers in their method of giving exams but also true sportsmen and sportswomen. We discovered they were human also. So with this considerate start, each pupil is ready to begin his work with confidence of a "square deal."

After considering several suggestions for a team name the Athletic boys decided to submit the name "Stags" to the school for consideration. At the next chap-

Chapel Notes

Friday, Oct. 17. Judge R. L. Rust spoke to the Warner Memorial University student body Friday morning, October 17th in chapel. His talk consisted of wholesome advice for the students. We are indebted to Mrs. Lenora Reynolds for having secured this speaker. Judge Clyde Garrett accompanied Judge Rust to the chapel exercises.

Monday, Oct. 20. Chapel exercises were conducted by Mr. Noble on Monday morning. The Rev. E. W. Barnett was to have conducted the chapel exercises but owing to having been called down town on business he could not be present. The school is fortunate to have such students as Mr. Noble and others who are willing to do their part in times of emergency.

Wednesday, Oct. 22nd. The students met in two sections for chapel Wednesday. Miss Thelma Riddle, Dean of Women, spoke to the girls and Professor H. H. Ward, Professor of Social Sciences, spoke to the boys.

Grading System Changed

The grading system of W. M. U. has been changed. Following is the new grading system with the interpretation of the letters:

- A signifies superior work (94 to 100).
- B signifies work about ordinary (87 to 93).
- C signifies ordinary work (80 to 86).
- D signifies work below ordinary (73 to 79).
- E signifies condition (66 to 72).
- F signifies failure (below 66).

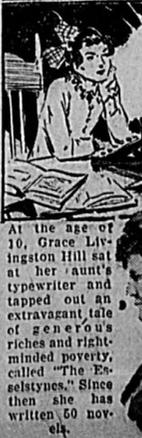

Six Weeks Exams

The first six weeks rolled around to the University before professor or student realized it. The second year of Warner Memorial's existence is now well on its way. Of course every new student was more or less afraid. What kind of exams do these teachers give? Will they be terribly hard? I wish to say in behalf of the entire student body, that the teachers not only proved themselves excellent teachers in their method of giving exams but also true sportsmen and sportswomen. We discovered they were human also. So with this considerate start, each pupil is ready to begin his work with confidence of a "square deal."

Sports

After considering several suggestions for a team name the Athletic boys decided to submit the name "Stags" to the school for consideration. At the next chapel meeting "Stags" was unanimously chosen by the entire faculty and student body. The name represents alertness, speed, strength, and endurance.

A Captain Elected

Travis Morton was elected captain of the W. M. U. basketball team for this year. Although there were several other nominations he received a majority on the first ballot.

Basket Ball Practice

Warner Memorial University and Academy of Eastland have as yet to prove their ability in sports. The call has been issued for basketball practice and fifteen boys have already turned out. At present it looks as if the lack of experienced men is going to disable the team considerably but the coach says that before the season is over he expects to have a smooth working team. The first game was scheduled to be played on Thursday afternoon October 23rd, with Flatwood High School but the rain made the field unfit for playing and the game had to be postponed.

Belle Lettres Club

The Belle Lettres Club met Saturday night and a very interesting program was given. It consisted of the following numbers:

- An accordion solo by Bill Mouro.
- A piano duet of a very unusual nature given by Aubrey Forrest and Sherman Simpson.
- Some of the faculty members were called upon to give some extemporaneous speeches on very amusing subjects.
- J. W. Greathouse gave a reading "My Old Ford" and dedicated it to Chester Gerig's funny little car.
- Miss Luella Warren gave the history of a song which she later played in a very charming manner.
- A one act play was presented by Aubrey Forrest, Bill Mouro, and J. W. Greathouse.
- A "Mock Faculty" program was enjoyed by everyone. This gave the teachers a chance to see themselves as others see them.
- A criticism of the business meeting and the program was given by the club critic, Miss Ward. The new members accepted were: J. W. Greathouse, Henry White and Travis Morton.

Have Breakfast

At 4:30 Saturday morning some sleeping Sophomores were aroused from their peaceful slumber by the clanging of the alarm clock. What was the big idea? Why the Sophomores were going to have a Sunrise Breakfast! (Some cause for alarm!)

By 7:00 a. m. all the Sophomores were wide awake and ready to start. After hiking about forty-five minutes they arrived at a very desirable place.

A fire was made and soon the odor of bacon and eggs called the hungry classmates to breakfast. Those who enjoyed this early morning affair were Floy Coffey, Wyomea Hallenbeck, Aubrey Forrest, Henry White, Venice Bell, "Moon" Mullins, Miss Beatrice Spitz, class sponsor and two visitors, Miss Thelma Riddle and Frances June Seth.

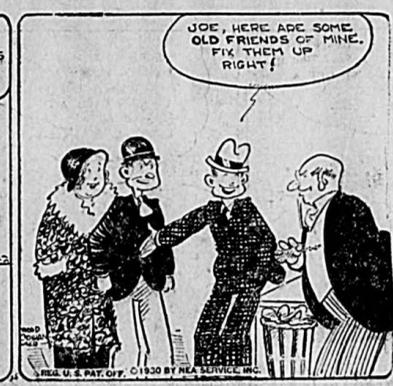

The remains of the Sophomores breakfast were presented to the Freshman Class.

A certain chemistry student, when asked what sodium chloride gave off said "a sad odor."

Miss Edna Day visited W. M. U. Wednesday, Oct. 22nd. The students had a social hour in the library reading room Saturday evening after Belle Lettres Club.

It is still a mystery to some what happened on the Freshman picnic, but to those whom it may concern, there was plenty of fun. Miss Frances Ward spent last week-end with her sister-in-law, Mrs. H. H. Ward.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Reynolds, Friday evening, were Mr. Aubrey Forrest, Miss Venice Bell, and Mr. Kenneth Parker.

It seems the literary club has quite a hilarious time. From all reports, every meeting is a success.

Edwin Gibson was absent from school Friday and Saturday, on account of illness.

Miss Venice Bell spent several evenings last week with her sister, Mrs. Burkhart.

Mrs. Dora Bendorf and her two small sons, Junior and Joe, spent Thursday with Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Wilson.

Royal Families

Are United By Big Wedding

By THOMAS B. MORGAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
ASSISI, Italy, Oct. 25.—The royal families of Italy and Bulgaria, were united today when Princess Giovanna of Savoy became the bride of King Boris III, of the house of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha.

The wedding ceremony occurred before the main altar of the upper Basilica of St. Francis. The service was performed by Father Antonio Rissi, in the presence of members of both royal families.

Franciscan simplicity was observed within the church as the wish of the princess, a devoted disciple of St. Francis of Assisi, but a display of regal grandeur was witnessed in the town when the royal wedding party traversed a two mile route from the railway station to the church, guarded by troops and preceded by communal valets in ancient costume.

The ceremony began at 11 a. m. It was the first of two which are necessitated by the differing religious faiths of Boris and Giovanna. Besides the Roman Catholic service, another will be performed by the Metropolitan Stephen, head of the Bulgarian Orthodox church, at the "Great Alexander Nevsky cathedral in Sofia.

A heavy thunderstorm broke just after the members of the two royal families entered the Basilica. A heavy rain was accompanied by hail.

The royal party arrived here by train and travelled to the church in 100 automobiles. The procession formed at the station and followed a route of two miles to the Basilica, flanked by a guard of 4,000 troops.

In informal comment on the current credit situation, a prominent board official said he could see little need for any such action by the reserve system. He also held that other recent schemes suggested by private business men had little merit.

"If we knew of any panacea for depression or of any means to aid business recovery in addition to what we are already doing toward easy money we would not waste a day in adopting it," this official said.

Purchase of $500,000,000 in government bonds was urged by T. E. MacCandley, New York insurance executive, who said this would place much additional money in circulation for business purposes. The same suggestion has come from other sources.

Rejects Bond Buying Plan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Federal reserve board officials rejected today proposals that they authorize purchase of half a billion dollars in government bonds to aid business recovery.

Sued For Saving Hat
Albany, N. Y.—Burton Albright faces a $10,000 damage suit, because he attempted to save a hat from under the wheels of his automobile. In swerving to avoid running over the hat, Albright allegedly caused two other machines to collide. Mrs. Ida M. Garrison, an occupant of one, is the complainant.

Nation's Yearly Food Bill Is 23 Millions

Twenty-three billion dollars a year! That's a lot of money. And yet we women spend about that much every year for food alone! It's no wonder to me that storekeepers and manufacturers alike try to win our good will. And most of them try very sincerely, too. I think it is really wonderful the great improvements that have been made in selling food products during the last twenty-five years.

Clean, sanitary packages have replaced many bulk methods. New and attractive foods have been brought to us at very reasonable prices.

Every day, through advertising we are told of the merits and prices of good things to eat—and wise things to buy.

I have talked with hundreds of women about their menus, and, frankly, I've been astonished to learn that, nearly all housewives today know many, many times as much about wise eating as their mothers.

You know, it's supposed to be fine to talk about the "good things" mother used to make. Why, I honestly believe that the average woman sets a far better table—and, I know, a more healthful one—than was ever done a generation or two ago.

Most manufacturers and retailers have helped us do this by advertising. And by giving us advanced products that we know are good.

But, of course, there are always a few less conscientious manufacturers—firms who want a part of the $23,000,000,000 we spend—but don't want to do much to get it. These, of course, are the folks who make unbranded, unadvertised merchandise and offer it as "just as good as the advertised product."

Usually, it isn't "just as good as" at all. Frequently, it is simply an inferior imitation of some popular brand on which the manufacturer hopes to make a big profit.

Thank goodness, very little of our food bill goes for such things. The women of this country have proved, beyond all question, that advertised products give them the best values—and they buy such products by the thousands compared to any others.

Jury Dismissed On Case Against Ex-Representative

AMARILLO, Oct. 25.—Federal Judge James C. Wilson dismissed late Friday the jury hearing the trial of John Herron White, former state legislator of Borger, charged with forging the name of Mrs. Mary Hughes on a government compensation check for four dollars. The jury foreman announced that his colleagues were unable to reach a decision after 22 hours deliberation.

White will be held under bond until the next term of court. The defendant claimed Mrs. Hughes authorized endorsement of the check as part payment for a legal fee he claims she owed him.

CRACKS IN THE DOME

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 25.—Members of the Eastland drought relief committee apologized to Gov. Dan Moody for the small size of the group. Several members were rained out, and others delayed by muddy roads, they explained.

Rep. A. H. King, Throckmorton, had to travel 100 miles out of the way because rains in the drought section had made roads impassable.

The $10,800,000 federal aid just allotted and nearly all made available, "can easily become an impediment to the well-balanced building of Texas highways, according to Highway Commr. Cone Johnson of Tyler.

Commr. Johnson in verbal comments, indicated Texas will have about $2,000,000 per month for November and December construction; but that only a part of it can be applied to projects on which federal aid can be had. The state already has let contracts for over $125,000 in which the counties advanced their share of the money for future payment.

"It is very easy," Commr. Johnson said, "for the commission to let the entire amount of state money in projects on which the federal government will match dollars.

"Then that leaves us with no money to take care of the highways which are not federal-aid projects.

"If we are going to put all our money on the federal projects," Commr. Johnson commented, "then we just become a bureau down here to do as the federal government says, in routing of highways, in type of construction, and in deciding what construction shall be done.

Mr. Johnson said that the $10,000,000 announced to be immediately available from federal funds, and the allotment for 1937 which is sought to be made quickly available when congress meets, "cannot be touched" until the last of the old allotment is worked off. This can't be completed until the state can find money to match it; so that the grant will not do much to speed up construction in what is until after the first of next year, when state road funds are abundant again.

There is an odd story of diplomacy being told about S. M. N. Marrs, superintendent of education. When the nine-member board of education was being created, no one knew who would make up the board. His friends quietly went around and killed the provision that the board should appoint Marrs, superintendent. Now, he knows who the board are, and found it an able board of conscientious workers for the good of the schools. Now Mr. Marrs is recommending that the board shall be empowered to appoint the superintendent.

Telephone Service To Australia Is To Start Monday

Regular commercial telephone service between North America and Australia will be opened Monday, according to word received today by P. Pettit of Cisco, District Manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

The circuit to be employed in this service is by far the longest ever established for regular commercial telephony, the radio and wire lines involved being more than 14,000 miles long.

Service will be available to all points in the United States and Cuba and to the principal cities of Mexico. In Australia, it will cover the states of Queensland, New South Wales, and Victoria and the City of Adelaide. This territory has nearly half a million telephones serving a population of some 1,500,000 persons.

The Australian service has been arranged by the A. T. & T. Company in cooperation with the British and Australian post offices and the Amalgamated Wireless Co. of Australia. The cost of a call between Eastland and any Australian points will be $4 for the first three minutes, and $18 for each additional minute.
