Ragged, Hungry, Textile Workers Denied Hearing

High Points of Moody's Speech

Delegates to the third annual East Texas Chamber of Commerce convention endorsed Gov. Moody's plea for a self-supporting highway system. Gov. Moody had addressed the delegates to the convention. He had declared the prison system does more to produce criminals than to reform them and he had urged that a thoroughly modern system be built to serve Texas for the years to come.

On the highway question he was equally emphatic. He advocated a state-wide system of highways in which "the traffic bore the total expense." He declared it was the only solution of the highway problem. Another resolution adopted by the East Texas called for a bond issue of not more than $200,000,000, in order to avoid oppressive registration fees or an exorbitant gasoline tax.

Last we forget the prison system of today is costing the taxpayer $880,000 annually. Are the taxpayers interested? If they are they should speak out.

Manfield of Texas

Rep. J. J. Manfield of Texas "hoped" that the makers of the new tariff bill would raise the tariff. Fig growing is an important industry in certain sections of Texas. Well, the makers of the bill didn't hike the tariff, but they did let it be a big aid to Texas rice. The tariff farmers have no reason to complain. Tariff rates on these commodities were hiked and Texas is getting to be a big producer of water and cheese. Small favors thankfully received.

Speaking of Franchises

A non-exclusive franchise granted the Texas Power & Light Co. and the Texas Electric Service Co. cannot be used as a basis for creating a monopoly favoring those companies, an opinion filed in the Fifth United States circuit court of appeals in New Orleans declared. In reversing the judgments and remanding the cases to Texas state courts, the federal court of appeals held that the franchise granted the companies could be cancelled on a 30-day notice, "and no way granted them monopoly in the respective fields." Litigation is the order of the day and corporation lawyers never desert the firing line. Business is business.

GROUP PUT OUT OF HALL FOR A DANCE

Upon Their Arrival in Washington the Strikers Found Senate Manufactures Committee Adjourned and No One to Hear Them.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The little group of Gastonia, N. C., textile strikers who came here to plead for a Congressional investigation of southern labor conditions were refused a hearing today before the convention of the National Women's Trade Union League.

The strikers belong to the National Textile Workers Union which is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The women's organization is a part of the federation.

Delegates to the convention rose and applauded as the ragged band of strikers filed in carrying a sign saying, "Gastonia Textile Strikers' Delegation to Washington."

Women hurried to get chairs for the tired looking members of the strikers delegation, but Miss Rose Schneiderman, president, called the meeting to order and proceeded with the business of resolutions.

MOTHER'S TEACHINGS INSPIRE GREAT AMERICANS

Huldah Randall Hoover and Herbert Hoover. Elizabeth Davison Rockefeller and John D. Rockefeller. Mary Litogot Ford and Henry Ford. Victoria Moor Coolidge and Calvin Coolidge.

Traits that have brought success to Herbert Hoover are heritages of his mother. When Herbert was six his father died. Then his mother—Huldah Randall Hoover—a gray-haired leader in the Quaker church, sewed and worked to provide food and clothing for Herbert and the other two Hoover children. For three years she taught her children the lessons that formed the foundation of their lives. Then she died, a prayer on her lips that her family would be cared for. And the lesson she taught Herbert Hoover helped lift him from an orphan boy in the village of West Branch, Ia., to humanity's international diplomat and president of his country.

Senior - Junior Banquet Was A Pleasant Affair

A gay carnival motif featured the Junior-Senior banquet Saturday night held on the roof garden of the Gannett hotel. In the colorful decorations of red candles spacing the tables set in their hollow square form, the flowers added at various intervals and over all a gay, shifting scene of floating balloons, of cupids and monkeys and balloons suspended from the framework over the banquet table. A Jippy Jim balled at each plate vied with the place cards of animal crackers with red cloth blankets that napped on their score cards based down the table's length. The banded dancers entered to the strains of the grand march played by Miss Donoho whose clarion notes drawn from her saxophone had a distinctly marching time air. The menu books provided for each cover were in varying colors tied with ribbon and with outer leaf embellished in hand decorations of applied gay balloon with hanging strings.

Farmers' Day of Prayer They are going to pray for the farmers. Dr. Charles L. White, president of the National Home Missions Council, made public a letter from Pres. Hoover endorsing an annual day of prayer for the farmer and his work.

There Is Money in the Banks There are 7557 national banks functioning. Resources of all these banks in the United States, Alaska and Hawaii aggregated $29,219,122 at the close of business March 27. There are three billionaires in America—John D. Rockefeller, Henry Ford and Andrew W. Mellon. There is a small army of near-billionaires, millionaires and near-millionaires. Yes; money makes the world go round.

Texas Not in the Big Picture President Hoover declined to name a Texan a member of the shipping board. Calvin Coolidge declined to name a Texan as a member of the interstate commerce commission. Warren G. Harding declined to name a Texan as a member of the federal reserve board. Woodrow Wilson failed to recognize Texas when he made his appointments to these all-important federal boards or commissions.

Texas is the banner oil shipping state. Texas is the banner livestock shipping state. Texas is the banner cotton shipping state.

Texas ranks next to New York in its volume of exports. Texas has vast financial interests and yet all the Texans—regardless of party and Hoover Democrats, Creager Republicans and Wurzbach Republicans—do not appear to be able to exert sufficient influence to win a place for a Texan on the interstate commerce commission, the American shipping board or the federal reserve board.

Texas voters gave Hoover and Curtis the electoral vote of the commonwealth. All the ripe oranges will go elsewhere; some few of the peanuts will come to Texas.

SCHOOL BOARD ELECTS TEACHERS FOR COMING YEAR (Continued from page 1) superintendent to the respective places, which they are to fill.

The teachers of the present faculties of the two ward schools thus re-elected, are as follows: Miss Lois Nelson, Mill Alfrey, Miss Kellum, Mrs. Hampton, Miss Nerman, Mrs. Van Geem, Miss Blankenship, Mrs. Herring, and Mrs. Dwyer of the West Ward, and Mrs. Speer, Miss Mitchell, Mr. Wilmeth, Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. Boles, Miss Seaberry, Miss Summers, Miss Green, Mrs. Amis, and Miss Elna of South Ward. The two janitors of the two ward schools were likewise re-elected. Of the grade teachers who were not re-elected, Miss Coles of South Ward was the board understood, is retiring from the profession.

Under the present plans of the board and superintendent, there will not likely be a principal of either ward school next year, but will be more directly under the supervision of the superintendent and immediately in charge of a head teacher of each school. By virtue of this contemplated change the place now occupied by Mr. Boles, principal of West Ward, will have been discontinued and, thus, the board was deprived of the pleasure of re-electing him to his present position. The board would like very much to be able to retain him in the faculty if things could be worked out to where some suitable place might be offered him. Likewise, by virtue of the changes in the school system, it appears that the board has not anything in the way of a suitable place to offer Mr. Smith, assistant principal of the West Ward. In that connection, it might be stated that there will be no departmental work in the ward schools next year, but it will all be straight grade work. Mr. Smith does not care to accept such work.

For the benefit of those who feel an interest in our colored school, it might be stated that it will again be looked after by Frank Evans.

My Mother's Hands Such beautiful, beautiful hands! They're neither white nor small; And you, I know, would scarcely think That they are fair at all. I've looked on hands whose form and hue A sculptor's dream might be; Yet are these aged, wrinkled hands More beautiful to me.

Such beautiful, beautiful hands! Though heart were weary and sad, These patient hands kept toiling on, That the children might be glad. I always weep, as, looking back To childhood's distant day, I think how those hands rested not When mine were at their play.

Such beautiful, beautiful hands! They're growing feeble now, For time and pain have left their mark On hands and heart and brow. Alas! alas! the nearing time, And the sad, sad day to me, When 'neath the daisies, out of sight, These hands will folded be.

But oh! beyond this shadow land, Where all is bright and fair, I know full well these dear old hands Will palms of victory bear; Where crystal streams through endless years Flow over golden sands, And where the old grew young again, I'll clasp my mother's hands. (From McGuffey's Fifth Reader.)

Fight Follows Late Committee Meet In Austin

By United Press.
AUSTIN, Tex., May 11.—C. D. Dallas was struck repeatedly by D. J. Pickel, former county judge of Travis county and member of the Attorney General's department at the adjournment of a hearing held last night in the House of Representatives chamber at which Neff had made charges against members of the department.

Neff had testified that while issuance of a blue sky permit and a state charter for a corporation he represented was under consideration one member of the department offered to sell him oil paintings at $700 and $800 and that another had said he had oil leases to sell.

When the latter charge was made, Pickel rose.

"I just want to interrupt to say he is a damn liar," Pickel said.

Neff recently sent a letter to some members of the Legislature and a circular which Rep. George Purl put before the House together with a resolution calling on Neff to substantiate charges made.

The resolution was referred to a committee which heard Neff last night.

Neither Neff nor Henry L. Ford of Amarillo who were here last night as witnesses for the hearing appeared this morning.

T. Miller of Dallas, attorney for Neff said that Ford had asked him to inform the committee that he would no longer appear unless subpoenaed by the committee. He said Ford had made a statement to the committee, member of the House of Representatives, and that the statement could be submitted if the committee desired.

Pickel disclaimed any disrespect of the committee.

"I have made it a rule of my life," he said, "when any man impugns my motives and swears falsely against me that he must account to me personally. I was not acting as an official but as an individual."

The hearing proceeded with First Assistant Attorney General J. Calhoun questioning Attorney Miller.

Miller testified that he was not when some pictures were at the house of an employee of the Attorney General's office that nothing improper took place.

Specific denial of the charges of the hearing this morning was made by R. V. Nichols, chief of the general office.

Nichols testified that Neff had some paintings by his artist on a visit to his home and that he never saw any of them.

Neff said he had made one picture and had thrown him out of his home.

Nichols said his only conversation with Neff about leases he was telling about dry holes in some.

The committee recessed until 8 o'clock.

Chicago Gangster Has Elaborate Burial

By United Press.
CHICAGO, May 11.—Dressed in evening clothes, diamond studs gleaming in the shirt front and rings glistening from rings, the body of Joseph Giunta will be buried today in a bronze, glass-topped casket reported to have cost $10,000.

In keeping with his rank, head of the Sicilians, Giunta will be given one of the most elaborate funerals ever accorded a Chicago gangster. It probably will not be until that of the gang leaders, but it will be lavish to a degree. Giunta left $250,000 in a safe deposit box.

The bodies of Albert Anselmi and John Scalisi, who were Giunta's companions in death, will remain in morgues for the time being.

Anselmi, Scalisi and Giunta witnessed the latest episode in the drama of gang warfare here.

By United Press.
AUSTIN, Tex., May 11.—A quarantine against Florida citrus fruit is to be declared today, State Agricultural Commissioner George B. Terrell announced.

Preparation of the quarantine order is underway.

The order does not apply to Mediterranean fruit fly against which the federal government has assumed control.

This quarantine was recommended by a committee of Texas citrus growers who met here yesterday. They also recommended a $25,000 appropriation for inspection and control of citrus pests.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
MILDRED LAWRENCE falls in love with STEPHEN ARMITAGE, who is lured away from her by PAMELA JUDDSON when she tells him that Mildred is trying to marry her brother, HAROLD, for his money. Harold fears HUCK NOR because he holds a check which he forged. Huck is infatuated with Pamela, who plays him to make Stephen jealous. When Pamela maneuvers Stephen into an engagement, Huck frames him for the theft of an auto and causes his arrest. Pamela drops him, but Mildred goes to see him in jail and promises help.

Harold had once told her he feared Huck and that he had threatened to get rid of Stephen to keep him from marrying Pamela. Mildred determines to force Harold to help her and is shocked to hear of his death—apparently accidental. She tells Stephen her suspicions, but they have no proof and it seems hopeless.

In desperation, Mildred goes to MR. JUDDSON, who takes her to headquarters to tell her story. Juddson puts up bail for Stephen's release and Pamela begs his forgiveness. Stephen away from the jail and they soon realize their taxi is being followed. At a congested corner the detective is shot at as the cars pass. He escapes with a scratch as his answering shot had penetrated the thug's wrist and caused him to drop his gun—leaving the bullet meant for Stephen. The thug makes a getaway and they learn he was driving a stolen car.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XI
"It's a common trick," Frea explained. "The owner allows his car to be stolen; then it's abandoned and he gets it back with no responsibility for anything that happens after he reports that it's out of his possession. But of course he delays making the report until the car has served its purpose."

"And the police have too little time to find it, I see," Oerndorf remarked.

"Well, have the owner brought in," Frea said and turned to Stephen. "Better come along to headquarters and have a talk," he added quietly.

Stephen shook his head. "Not until I've seen Mr. Juddson," he replied.

"All right, buddy, but you know this 'stolen' car business means there's an organization after you," Stephen showed a quickened interest.

"If the owner of that taxi really is in on this thing then hold him," he exclaimed earnestly.

"What for?" Frea asked.

"I'll tell you after I've seen Mr. Juddson," Stephen promised.

"If you see him," Frea returned. "Don't be a fool, young man. Somebody's out to get you good and plenty."

Stephen's lips set in a stubborn line. "I'll have to take time to cook up something new," he said, convinced that he was safe for the time being. "You get that taxi owner and maybe you'll have someone who can tell you where Huck Connor is."

"This Connor..." Oerndorf began.

"He's the man Mr. Juddson will give his right arm to find after you've told him what I know," Stephen declared. "Come on, let's go."

Oerndorf gave the driver orders to proceed to the hotel. "Go after your man," Stephen said to Frea.

Abilene R.R. Man Feels Fine Every Morning Now

Wallace Says He is Full of New Life and Energy Since Taking Orgatone.

W. E. Wallace, well known employee in the freight department Texas & Pacific railroad, is still another citizen of high standing who comes forward with his unqualified endorsement of Orgatone. While in Harvey Hays Drug Store, Abilene, Texas, a few days ago Mr. Wallace said:

"My improvement in every way has been more than satisfactory and I don't hesitate to endorse such a fine medicine as I have found Orgatone to be. I hadn't been feeling at all well for the past year. I suffered from stomach trouble and indigestion. I couldn't sleep soundly, felt lazy, tired and drowsy. My work required me to stay in all day and I had become so run-down that I was easily tired out and I didn't feel much like work. I can't describe just how I felt, but I knew I needed something to relieve my stomach and that tired, drowsy feeling and build up my strength and energy."

"Orgatone just hit the spot exactly and I now feel like a different man. Why, before I took it I had no appetite, but I am hungry all the time now and can eat anything without the slightest bad feeling afterward. I sleep fine, get up in the morning feeling fine and my daily task is much easier. My indigestion is gone, my tired worn out feelings have left me and I simply feel altogether different."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Eastland exclusively by Toombs & Richardson, phone No. 263, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Out-of-town customers are being supplied promptly by mail upon receipt of price one bottle $1.25 or six bottles $6.25. (Adv.)

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

and the latter stepped off the running board of the car where he had stood talking through the window.

On the way to the Juddson Hotel Oerndorf tried to question Stephen until Stephen told him firmly that he had nothing more to say until he had seen Mr. Juddson.

At the hotel Stephen was asked to go at once to the owner's office. He opened the door and strode in briskly, his mind filled with what he was going to say about his theory that Huck Connor had murdered Juddson's son.

Oerndorf followed less precipitately, but it was he who first saw that Mr. Juddson was not alone to receive them.

Stephen was totally unprepared for the rush with which Pamela came to throw herself into his arms and "welcome" him back.

She had completely slipped his mind since he'd left the jail.

He saw the young man hesitate as though confused, saw his arms remain at his side while Pamela pulled his head down and kissed him over and over again upon his lips.

Finally Stephen put one arm around her in an uncertain way that revealed more to Mr. Juddson than Stephen himself was aware of.

Until that moment Pamela's father had not permitted himself to form an opinion of this young man his daughter was to marry. To him Stephen was the innocent victim of a man who had plotted his own son's ruin.

So, thoroughly did he believe Mildred's story of Huck's intention to marry Pamela that he did not doubt Stephen had been purposely put in a position that would dispose of him as a rival to Huck.

Mr. Juddson thought of Mildred now and a determined expression settled upon his face.

It had been easy to guess her secret. She loved this young beggar. Her last word, when he'd left at the hospital a short while ago, was a plea to warn Stephen of the danger she believed he was in.

"You must meet dad," Pamela cried, suddenly drawing away from Stephen and turning toward her father. She saw, and misunderstood, her father's forbidding frown.

Quickly, she ran to him and put an arm on his shoulders.

"Stephen will be a new son to you, daddy," she whispered.

Mr. Juddson looked up at her unsmilingly, and then turned his glance upon Stephen. There was no friendliness, no warmth in it and Stephen knew it.

But he had no time to concern himself with Mr. Juddson's personal thoughts of him.

He stepped forward and held out his hand as the older man rose to meet him.

"You're a bit later than we expected you to be," Mr. Juddson said after the introduction. "No trouble, I hope."

Stephen glanced at Pamela.

"I'd like to talk to your father alone, Pamela," he said.

She went at once into an appealing pout.

"Please go, Pam dear," her father requested.

Pamela came up to Stephen again and put her hands on his arms.

"You won't be a minute longer than necessary?" she begged.

"I've so many things to talk to you about, Stephen darling. Things you never dreamed of."

"I'll be brief," Stephen promised.

Pamela nodded to Mr. Oerndorf and left them.

"Sit down," Mr. Juddson invited and reseated himself at his desk.

"You do not object," Stephen said, "to having your lawyer hear anything I may have to say?"

Family Menu

BY SISTER MARY

If you are spending sleepless nights this spring, try the simple and homely remedy of eating onions.

Make an onion sandwich to eat just before going to bed. Onions are said to be an excellent natural tonic most effective for calming tired nerves and inducing sleep.

While many persons find raw onions difficult to digest, their iron content is much higher before cooking than after. If they are cooked, they should be served in a sauce made with the water in which they were cooked or they should be cooked in as little water as possible and that water absorbed by the vegetable.

The green tops of spring onions are an excellent source of vitamin A and if they are used, wash and crisp carefully and serve shredded with shredded leaf lettuce as a salad.

"Do you know anything more about my son... his death... than Miss Lawrence knows?" he asked.

"It was now Stephen's turn to be surprised. "Miss Lawrence?" he repeated dumbly.

"She came to me this morning with information that I hope will lead to the arrest and conviction of the man who murdered Harold."

Oerndorf sat forward on the edge of his chair. Mr. Juddson caught his exclamation of surprise.

"I hadn't time to tell you all this when I asked you to bring Mr. Armitage here," he said to his lawyer. "Before that the police had asked me to say nothing to any about their belief that my son had been murdered."

"Mildred," Stephen mumbled. It seemed unbelievable to him now that he hadn't seen her hand in this.

Mr. Juddson turned to him sharply. "I must confess I thought she had heard in some manner of the reward I intended offering as soon as that public," he said and watched Stephen closely.

That young man evinced an instant indignation. "I suppose you still believe that she deserved to be fired," he said scornfully.

Mr. Juddson shook his head. "No," he said; "I know I was misled in forming about her interest in Harold."

Stephen leaned forward. "If there's any doubt left in your mind I can tell you that she was only trying to help him out of some hole that he'd got himself into," he declared stoutly.

"I know, I know. There is no occasion for you to defend her."

Mr. Juddson retorted, and Stephen was brought to a sudden realization that he himself had once entertained doubts of Mildred's interest in her as regarded Harold Juddson.

"But you owe her undying gratitude for getting you out of jail," Mr. Juddson went on, his voice tinged with contempt.

He was certain now that Stephen was not in love with his daughter. He might, or might not, be in love with Mildred Lawrence. At least he was ready to defend her at a moment's notice.

Stephen nodded. "I never even guessed she'd been to see you," he said. "I thought..." Here he stopped. He couldn't tell Pamela's father that she had led him to believe it was her love and belief in him that had brought about his release.

"Perhaps you'd better go over the facts as you know them," Mr. Juddson suggested to him. "Miss Lawrence may inadvertently have omitted something of importance."

"There's nothing I can add, I'm afraid," Stephen replied. "I only know what Miss Lawrence told me about this man Connor and his son."

Harold told her, that Connor was blackmailing him. We don't know anything about Connor beyond the fact that I suspect he was mixed up with a gang of automobile thieves who operated for a while in Indiana."

"Then Pamela hasn't told you that we have a very definite clue to the murderer?" Mr. Juddson asked.

Stephen shook his head. "She stayed with me only a few minutes," he explained. "We talked about... our future."

"Hm," Mr. Juddson compressed his lips. "Well, it will interest you to know that we have the thumbprint of the man we believe killed my son."

"Good!" Stephen exclaimed. "Now we've something to go on!"

"Mr. Armitage," it was Oerndorf speaking. "Why didn't you tell what you know about Connor and Mr. Juddson's son without waiting until you were released from jail?"

Stephen answered him promptly. "Because we, Miss Lawrence and I, had no proof to back up our suspicions. We thought everyone else believed it a case of accident or suicide."

"Do you consider that a sufficient reason for your silence?"

"There's another and a better one," Stephen replied. "I was safe enough in jail but Miss Lawrence was threatened some time ago merely for trying to make Harold confide in her. Had she gone to the police with her story her life would have been in danger."

Mr. Juddson glared at him. "It is your opinion," he said, "that fear of such danger would prevent Miss Lawrence from doing her duty?"

Lawrence from doing her duty?

Stephen glared back at him. "Certainly not," he answered readily. "I induced her not to go to the police; told her they couldn't act on her unsupported word."

Mr. Juddson subsided. "She came to me," he said more quietly. "We went at once to Inspector Markeson. We must have been shadowed, for later, on her way back to work, Miss Lawrence was shot."

SHRINE

God, let me not be selfish and forget
Those other mothers, as I think of mine—
So many have been patient, good and wise,
That universal motherhood is fine.

I know my mother would not care to be
Enshrined upon a high and lonely throne;
She'd rather that I put her tenderly
With women who, like her, have borne—and known

The common tie that makes of mother-hearts
An amulet to charm away our fears—
It is so strangely fashioned, in its length,
Of laughter, prayers, and sometimes blinding tears.

So I shall place her with the eager throng
Of sympathetic, brave, unselfish souls
Who move along the winding path of Life,
With shining faces set toward glorious goals.

AT a record low price for so large and so beautiful a Knight-engined car the new style Willys-Knight "70-B" is bringing the superiorities of the patented double sleeve-valve motor to thousands of added owners.

In each cylinder of this simplest and most efficient of power plants, two metal sleeves combine with the dome-shaped cylinder head to form a perfectly sealed combustion chamber. The full force of the explosion is directed straight downward against the piston, making the most efficient use of the highly compressed gas.

In the Willys-Knight "70-B" a rugged seven-bearing crankshaft reduces vibration to a minimum, while the car's improved frame construction gives extra strength and rigidity.

The Knight engine gives high uniform compression at all times, at all speeds, and with any gas—and it is the only type of engine that keeps growing smoother and quieter with use.

Eastland, Texas.
May 12, 1929.

My Dear Madam:

I take this opportunity to tell you about my new and modern beauty shop and about the work I, and my operators, are doing for the ladies of Eastland.

Just a little over a week ago we moved into our new shop at 105 East Main Street. The building had to be entirely renovated to accommodate the equipment and make it a place you will enjoy visiting. The litter is gone, we are settled and proud of its beauty and comforts—you too, will like it.

A word now about the work a Marinello graduate knows so well: hair cuts, marcel, permanents, realistic crouquignole waves, Maurin Rodson and Marinello facials—everything. Expect you a cordial welcome and invitation, I am,

Your very truly,

Demands Increase For Frigidaires

Although operating at 20 per cent above maximum rated capacity, plants of Frigidaire corporation at Dayton, O., are running behind orders, and sales for the year to date have exceeded by far all previous records, according to information received by Texas Electric company, local representative.

April shipments of finished products totaled 1,501 carloads, he said. Compared with the same month last year, these shipments showed an increase of 129 per cent in household electric refrigerators, 35 per cent in compressors, and 38 per cent in cooling coils. Present indications are that May will be another peak month in the company's history.

So great has been the factory's effort to meet this unprecedented increase in business that a Frigidaire compressor is finished and ready for shipment every 12 seconds of the working day. The present plants, comprising 53 acres of floor space, which were placed into operation in 1927, were considered at that time adequate for the requirements of the business for a long time. Already, it is said, the absolute limit of production with present factory facilities has been reached.

New products of this company have contributed largely to the phenomenal increase in business, the local representative said. "The Frigidaire coil control has been a primary factor in this popularity," he declared. "In one week more than 100,000 people visited dealers' showrooms to learn about it. An edition of 500,000 recipe books, showing how this device is used in freezing desserts, never before possible to make in the home, has been exhausted and a second edition of 250,000 is being issued. This improvement has been responsible for many direct sales.

"Another contributing factor has been the new four cubic foot model, selling at the lowest price in the history of the company. It has brought the advantages of electrical refrigeration within the reach of hundreds of thousands of families who never expected to own a Frigidaire."

Near East Fund Is Nearing Goal

The Texas state committee for Near East Relief, like similar committees in other states, has been requested to retain its identity and lend its active cooperation for the next two years, in order to conserve the assets of money and goodwill of the Near East Relief. The appeal comes from Dr. James L. Barton, national chairman of the welfare organization, who gives out figures regarding the Texas quota in its final campaign for Near East Relief. Members of the Texas committee include Gov. Dan Moody, honorary chairman, Dr. Charles C. Selemman, chairman, W. O. Connor, treasurer, and Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker.

"The Texas quota of the final $5,000,000 budget for Near East relief is set at $46,000," Dr. Barton says. "Of this amount, your state has raised $18,602.19, leaving $27,397.81 to be secured between now and June 30, 1929 when all campaigning will cease but it will take about two years to finish collecting pledges and wind up the work overseas, and

Oil Industry Aids Motorists in War On High Gas Taxes

NEW YORK.—"The American motorist is becoming aroused over the tendency to increase state gasoline taxes beyond all reason," says E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum Institute. "The petroleum industry believes that in many cases the present tax is unfair to the users of gasoline and harmful to the petroleum industry.

"A study shows that state legislatures are constantly increasing the amount per gallon of the tax. The use in some states of part of the tax revenue for other than road purposes and the tendency in other states to do likewise is alarming. "Because the tax is easily collected and instantly available is no excuse for class legislation and discrimination against the motorist. We believe that a gasoline tax becomes unsound and vicious when and where any of the funds are diverted and used for purposes other than road construction and maintenance.

"We favor the levying of a gasoline tax where all the revenue derived therefrom is used solely for highway construction and maintenance purposes, but we oppose the fixing of a rate per gallon tax beyond reasonable bounds."

that is why the committee is asked to continue as an organization at this time. Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois and noted farm leader, who is state chairman of Near East relief in his home state, has just returned from three months spent in Greece, Italy and other Mediterranean countries. While there he inspected the work being carried on by Near East relief and cabled to Chicago, saying:

"I am greatly impressed with the altogether worth while character of the work and also with the largeness of results in proportion to the expense involved. The most satisfactory thing about it all is that considerably over 90 per cent of those whom the Near East relief has been looking after

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — Congressman Louis Ludlow of Indiana, who spent many years in the press gallery watching congressmen and writing about them for their constituents now has a better opinion both of the congressmen and the people who elect them.

Everyone gets a little cynical about both Congress and constituents after being around Washington awhile, but Ludlow reports that his opinion of both is somewhat higher now that he has been mixing around with one group and hearing from the other.

How Ludlow jumped from the press gallery down onto the floor of the house is an interesting yarn.

Began With a Speech

He made an inauguration speech after being elected vice president of the National Press Club. Somebody put it in the Congressional Record and B. M. Ralston, a prominent Democrat and realtor of Ludlow's home town of Indianapolis, saw it. He wrote: "Glad to know you're a congressman by proxy. Come on out here and we'll make you one in fact."

So Ludlow began to get sentimental about the possibility of serving this district to which he had come as a farmer boy many years back and soon he was writing letters to a dozen Democratic leaders of Indiana asking what they thought about it. The late Tom Taggart, National Committeeman Charles M. Greathouse, State Chairman Earl Peters, Evans Woolen, Meredith Nicholson and the others all came back promptly with loud cheers.

Ludlow expected nomination without opposition, but two rivals sprung up at the last moment and his vote doubled their combined total. The district was normally Republican by 25,000, but all Indiana newspapers supported Ludlow, and although Hoover carried the district by 36,000.

Apparently there must be some satisfaction in being a congressman, because Ludlow is very thankful to the voters and very anxious to do a good job. He has sent 10,000 letters back into his district, signing every one of them and advising the folks that he wanted suggestions about any way he could help anyone and would like to be considered "your personal representative in Washington." This was something unheard of. Constituents call on their congressmen for every conceivable type of service without being asked. And Ludlow has been swamped. He appears to be a glutton for punishment, however, and is putting in long hours with astonishing zeal. He has two secretaries in his office, both busy, instead of the customary one.

Day after day he has been running around to the various government departments, establishing new contacts through which he can work to help everyone who asks for something.

"I used to have one boss," he says, "but now I have a half a million." Which, coming from Ludlow, is no hunk. He feels that way about it and is positively inspired by his opportunity for service.

"I've been here 28 years," he says. "I used to think a congressman never got any thanks for what he did for his constituents. But the way constituents show their appreciation has begun to surprise me.

"There's altogether too much public cynicism about Congress. Most of those that know try to do what's right and now that I'm closer to them I'm developing more of a liking for them. Congress strikes a good average. There's very little real goodness or venality here."
