M. A. Koonsman Hurt In Crash

Martin A. Koonsman, lieutenant of the state highway patrol stationed in Abilene, received a broken leg and minor bruises late yesterday when his motorcycle and a car driven by O. N. Ingle collided on Amber avenue between Walnut and Pine streets at Abilene. Ingle was unhurt. Koonsman was reported resting well in the West Texas Baptist sanitarium last night, and attending physicians said his condition was not serious. The left leg was broken at the knee. Koonsman, riding into Abilene from highway 1-A, piloted his machine from the rear to the left of Ingle's car, which had just turned onto Amber from Walnut. Ingle, glancing backward over his right shoulder, did not see Koonsman, and his car struck the motorcycle as Ingle turned left to enter the driveway at his residence. The vehicles were traveling between ten and 15 miles per hour. Koonsman was pinned under his motorcycle, his left leg crushed between the handlebar and the gasoline tank.

Mavericks Play Strawn Here Next Friday

The Eastland High School Mavericks will play their second game of the season next Friday when they meet the team from Strawn High School on the local gridiron. The Mavericks have been showing steady improvement since their first pre-season encounter with the Cross Plains team and look much more formidable than they did before their first game. The backfield has been improving rapidly and the interference that has been improved shows up much better in scrimmage than it did a week ago. Strawn has usually had a strong team and though no information has been received in Eastland as to the prospects this year, each Gibbon is looking forward to a rather stiff opposition. He has been drilling his men daily and the second game of the season should see the men in much better condition and doing better teamwork than they have shown so far. He has been having scrimmage regularly and the Strawn game is expected to be as good, if not better, than many of the conference games that will be played during the season. An admission of 25c and 50c will be charged for the game and a large crowd is expected to turn out to see the Mavericks in action before they enter the conference schedule.

Fox Found By Side Of Road Is Tamed By Kind Treatment

Even dumb animals appreciate kind treatment. A young Texas gray fox picked up almost dead on the highway between Strawn and Mineral Wells last Friday, is recovering from its injuries and already is a great pet. A. E. Herring, 720 West Commerce street, found the fox lying on the edge of the pavement on the Bankhead highway. Although he expected it to die any minute, he brought it home. It was too weak to drink or eat so Mr. Herring forced water and food down its throat. Soon it began to show signs of improvement and today was able to walk about the county courthouse lobby and show its appreciation for the kind treatment it is receiving by licking the hand of its benefactor. It shows no desire to leave and when it walks away a few feet, readily returns when Mr. Herring calls it.

Exhibits At The Scranton Fair Are Exceptional

A full program was presented at the Scranton Community fair Tuesday. The show was held at the school building, a modern brick structure. W. B. Starr, was general chairman of the fair. An agricultural exhibit that far exceeded any of those yet seen at the community fairs this fall, was seen at Scranton. Exhibits of women's work, fruit, vegetables, canned goods and poultry were on display. A children's clinic, presided over by a trained nurse sent out by the state, was also conducted. The public school also had a splendid exhibit. C. Metz Heard, county agent of Taylor county, judged the agricultural and poultry exhibits, while Miss Caroline Chambers, Taylor county home demonstration agent, judged the women's work. As a part of the other community fairs held this fall in the county, there were a number of old relics on display that attracted much attention. Among these was an old silver tea pot that was manufactured 150 years ago. Dinner, served army style, was announced by B. B. Brummett and there was plenty of the very best of food for the large crowd. The dinner was prepared by the women of the Scranton community and served free. Cold drinks were to be had on the grounds. J. Andrews, superintendent of the Scranton school, stated that 200 pupils are expected to register at Scranton for school this year. He stated they would have an eight months school. Room has been arranged in an existing frame building out of the school ground, for an additional teacher, whose services were made necessary because of the unusual large number of pupils enrolled. Dr. H. B. Tanner, secretary of the Eastland chapter of commerce, Mr. Martin of the Connellee hotel, and F. A. Jones of the Eastland Telegram attended the fair in the interest of the Eastland County Fair to be held here on Sept. 24, 25, 26 and 27.

Prohibition Called A Failure By U. S. Attorney

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—United States attorney Charles H. Tuttle, who has prosecuted thousands of liquor cases in the last three years, is convinced that national prohibition is a failure and has submitted his resignation. The 18th amendment and state option would do more to bring about "real temperance" than the present system, Tuttle said in a statement issued late yesterday at the time the resignation was dispatched to President Hoover. The federal prosecutor, one of the most vigorous New York has had in recent years, thus becomes the third high public official in this state to advocate repeal of the last few months. Prohibition administrator Maurice Campbell stepped out of office, charging Washington enforcement officials with "insincerity." Just a few days ago Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, formerly an ardent dry, said he had reached the conclusion the 18th amendment had failed and like the others, suggested local option as a substitute.

How Gandhi's Men Dare Death

If the oxen move ahead with their cartload of British-made goods, there will be just one more martyr to Mahatma Gandhi's program of passive resistance to English rule. For the man shown prone upon the street in this unusual picture is one of the volunteers in Bombay, India, who have pledged themselves either to halt the transportation of boycotted foreign merchandise or to die without resistance. Partly as a result, foreign trade in Bombay declined $8,000,000 in a single month as compared with the same period last year.

Chicago Starts War On Crime Against Capone

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—The "great drive" of Chicago's army for prevention of crime was in progress today and the forces of Scarface Al Capone were in retreat. Capone and 25 other underworld leaders were sought by 6,000 policemen armed with the new weapon which Judge John H. Lyle introduced into this modern war between a city government and the "super-government" built up by gangster violence. Warrants for arrest of the 26 men listed by the Chicago crime commission as "public enemies" were issued late yesterday by Judge Lyle, who ordered the men brought before him to face prosecution under the old vagrancy law of 1874. At 8 p. m. last night the orders went out by radio, telephone and teletype to every policeman in the city. "Find them! Bring them in!" were the simple instructions sent to the officers, and the great drive was on, Chicago. It is not expected, Judge Lyle explained in issuing the warrants that all of the men named will be convicted of being vagrants, even under the ancient law, which makes any man a vagrant who can not prove that he is making an honest and lawful living. Lyle believes, that by bringing the old law into use, gangster leaders can be "kept on the run" so much of the time "they will not have much time left for crime." The judge said that he would fix the bonds of each "public enemy" brought before him as $10,000. Capone Heads List Others are Tony Volpe, Frank Rio, James Belcastro, "Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, "Dago" Lawrence Magano, Jack Guzik, Frank Diamond, Joseph Aello, Edward "Red" O'Donnell, Joe "Salis, Frank Moelane, Vincent McElaine, William "Klondike" O'Donnell, Myles O'Donnell, Frankie Lake and his notorious pal, "The Terrible" Terrance Druggan, James "Fur" Sammons, George "Red" Barker, William "Three Fingers" Jack White, Joseph "Peppy" Genero, Leo Mongoven, and Rocco Fannelli.

Loot Estimated At $50,000 By The Bank Officials

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 17.—Six bandits, armed with two machine guns and revolvers, robbed the Lincoln National Bank today and escaped with from $40,000 to $50,000 in cash, bonds and securities. Twenty patrons and employees of the bank were forced to lay down on the floor as the bandits went through the cages. While four men went into the bank, two remained in an automobile outside ready to drive them away. The automobile carried an Iowa license plate, 97-13557. It was a Buick automobile. Phil Hall, vice-president of the bank, was struck on the head by a bandit and W. E. Barkley, president, was struck twice. Hall was not badly hurt, but Barkley was taken to a physician for care. The robbers drove to the south in their automobile. The license number of the automobile indicated it might have come from Woodbury county, Iowa, in which is located Sioux City. Half a dozen automobile gave chase. Bank officials estimated the robbers obtained about $20,000 in cash, while the remainder of the loot was in bonds and securities.

County Fair To Use Lot For A Temporary Stage

Use of the half block of ground behind the Texas State Bank at the corner of East Commerce and Rosswood streets has been secured by the Eastland county fair committee and will be provided with a stage, seats, etc., for the presentation of the program for the county fair on Sept. 24, 25, 26, 27th. Milton Lawrence, general chairman of the fair, announces. Workmen have cleared the ground and it is now in splendid condition. It is stated that plans are being made for a number of boxing bouts to be staged during the fair. About a dozen likely boxers, including some with much experience in semi-professional boxing, are working out at the High School Gym each night in preparation for the fights. Chairman Lawrence is also planning to have loudspeakers arranged on the grounds in order that each and everyone, whether they are close to the speakers stand or not, may be able to hear the program. The series of community fairs over the county will about all be over this week and the exhibits for the County fair will soon be assembled and their preparation for showing here begun.

NEGROES AND RENTS.

The problem of the negro in the northern city is always difficult. Used to the warm climate where clothing and fuel are of slight import, the colored brethren are apt to think of money only in terms of food and a little amusement.

As long as times are good, these people take care of themselves somehow; but in a year like this, the suffering is very great. Evictions are the common thing rather than the exception.

Only too often one woman in a group of six to ten adults and several children will have a housework job on which she can depend. She feeds them all somehow.

The very worst element in the situation is the rent exploitation. From $12 a month for one room with no conveniences, to $50 and up for anything worth living in, the tale runs.

Why live in that part of town? Because it is the only part where they can. White folks can move into cheaper suburbs, black folks are stuck where they are.

In a good many cities there are going to be serious troubles and epidemics this winter if the public authorities do not look into the matter before it is too late.

A CALM SPOT.

With half a dozen Latin-American countries enjoying governmental changes effected violently, and others weltering in political discontent, we turn to Europe and observe political forays in Poland, with demonstrations, raids and arrests.

There is political ferment in several other European countries, and some governmental overturns are imminent. Asia, as everyone knows, is in turmoil, especially the two most populous countries on earth, India and China.

Everywhere the natural forces of discontent are augmented by hard times. Idle and hungry people want the government to do something about it, and have leisure as well as incentive to throw monkey wrenches.

All in all, the world is probably due for a troublous winter. Thank Heaven for one large and reasonably calm area—the United States. We have troubles here, but less than other lands, and we content ourselves with verbal protests and ballots.

NOT SO BOOKISH.

All the talk about book clubs and the evident increase in the number of leading libraries might lead one to think that the United States was a nation of great book readers.

Statistics show that we consume two-books per capita a year and could read seven if we took advantage of all our opportunities. Since some individuals really read many books, it appears obvious that many persons read no books.

There is one redeeming feature in this sad arraignment of American literary interests. We are open-minded on the subject and willing to read if the books are properly presented to us.

Let us go on reading books that interest us, but let's not be snobbish about our national bookishness. We haven't any.

EXCITING EVENINGS.

"What would you suggest," write Merle and Belle, "for two young modern girls to do when fun seems lacking? What can we do to amuse ourselves when not dated up for an evening?"

And what do you suppose the old-fogey adviser recommends in her column on the women's page? A little animated gossip about the boys? Or calling up a couple of them and inviting them over? Nothing of the kind. She says:

"Why not try reading? You have no idea what fascinating and exciting company a good book can be."

Still, it might not be so bad for a change. Reading is an adventure that many young people nowadays know surprisingly little about. Maybe they ought to be initiated. And even if they're not really entertained by such an old-fashioned game, they might find something new to talk about.

Help a little. Give the girls a book. Even if they already have a book.

LOCAL OPTION.

Among attacks on the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act which accompany the fall campaign, the declaration of Governor Roosevelt of New York is unusually interesting. He does not content himself with demanding that the control of traffic in intoxicants be restored to the states.

Is it possible that we are in for a movement back to the "local option" of pre-Volstead days, when local jurisdiction over the liquor traffic was so complete that dry units ranged in size all the way from entire states down to city wards and precincts?

There is said to be a good market for the very high-priced cars and the very low-priced cars, from which we conclude that the very rich and the very poor still have plenty of spending power.

BEGI NHERE TODAY
Celia Rogers, lacking one month of 18 and hot out of high school, is looking for a job. Her mother, Margaret Rogers, is a seamstress and employed as a seamstress in a dress shop. They live in Baltimore and the mother's wages are their only income. Celia is unsuccessful in her search for work. Mrs. Rogers writes a letter to the girl. The letter, from John Mitchell, is an offer to provide Celia with every advantage of education, travel and position if the mother will allow her to go. Margaret declares she will go with Celia.

GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER IV
"What happened?" Oh, nothing happened? Celia decided, her voice rising hysterically. The doctor held up a warning sign. "I'll be all right, Celia. Of course! And I'll write you a letter every week."

"I'll be all right, Celia. Of course! And I'll write you a letter every week."

and her face was pale as she lay on the low cot. An icicle covered Margaret Rogers' forehead. Her clothing had become loosened. The breeze from an electric fan swept the room.

Celia crept silently to the only chair and sat down. Her eyes were misted with tears. It was all she could do to keep from kneeling beside the cot and slipping an arm about her mother, begging to be reassured that everything was all right.

It seemed incredible. Celia could not remember when her mother had ever been ill before.

Once Margaret Rogers moved restlessly. Her lips twitched but she did not open her eyes. The slow rise and fall of her chest continued regularly.

The dress shop closed at five o'clock but Mrs. Foster and one of the other women stayed after that. Presently they told Celia that a cab was waiting at the door. They helped her rouse Mrs. Rogers, helped the woman to rise and get ready to go home.

"Celia," Mrs. Rogers whispered softly. That was all she said until after they got into the cab and Celia had given the driver the address. Then the mother leaned back against her daughter's arm and gave a long sigh.

"So tired," she murmured. "Glad you're here, darling."

The driver of the taxicab helped Celia take her mother up the two flights of stairs leading to the flat. He volunteered and the girl could scarcely have managed alone. The driver was a thick set, red-faced man who by no chance would ever have been taken for a good Samaritan, but he tipped his hat, nimbled something and hurried off down the stairs as soon as he had received his fare.

Lying on the bed before the open window Margaret Rogers looked up into her daughter's face and smiled.

"I'm—all right now—dear. See about your dinner—I'm all right."

She refused to be waited upon. Celia pushed the windows as high

Celia, remembering, brushed a hand across her misty lashes and smiled back at him.

"That's the girl!" said Barney. "Well, I suppose you don't want me around here any longer!"

She would like to have him stay, Celia admitted, but it probably was best for him to go.

For a moment Barney Shields held her close, touching her lips with a quick kiss. Then he let her go.

"Night, dear," he said, and disappeared down the steps.

Celia Rogers had gone into Margaret's dress shop that eventful day with exciting news. It was afternoon of the following day before she confided this news to her mother.

True to Barney's prediction, Mrs. Rogers awoke the next morning to pronounce herself rested and entirely recovered from the collapse. A pale face belied these words and Celia insisted on keeping her mother in bed, bringing her food that was tempting and nourishing and generally indulging her.

"But how," Margaret Rogers asked shortly after lunch, "did you happen to drop in at the shop yesterday?"

Celia remembered the doctor said there should be no shocks and no excitement. She was cautious.

"Well, I wanted to see you."

"Wanted to see me about what?"

"I wanted to tell you something. It was—well, I know where I can get a job."

"Celia! What kind of a job? Why didn't you tell me?"

It had really been the most marvelous luck. Celia's eyes grew wide as she talked. It had all happened so suddenly. She had been on her way to see a prospective THIRRE is no mystic incantation to pronounce over meringue making. The result may be ethereal, but the procedure is of the earth earthy—by main force and elbow grease.

This stiffly beaten white of egg is a delightful example of "physical change" without "chemical change." Chemical change of course takes place as soon as sugar is added, but the action of air on the albumen of the egg causes no chemical change. All cookery deals with these "changes" in an interesting fashion.

In order that the action of air may be complete, the egg whites must be beaten with a whisk. A Dover beater or a churn beater cannot whip the amount of air in them necessary to make a perfect meringue.

Eggs from three to five days old are most satisfactory. They increase in volume more at this stage of freshness than at any other time. Well chilled whites will become stiffer than those the same temperature as the room.

Great care must be used in separating the white from the yolk. Even a tiny bit of the yolk prevents the white from beating well. If much of the yolk is broken through the white the egg can be used for some other baking, but not for a meringue. A small amount of yolk can be removed by dampening a soft clean cloth and dipping it into the streak of yolk. Continue to do this until every trace of yolk is removed.

A simple meringue is used for pie and pudding frostings. The recipe follows.

Simple Meringue
White one egg, 1 teaspoon cold water, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon flavoring, few grains salt.

Put chilled egg white on a chilled platter. Add water and salt and beat until stiff and dry. Beat in sugar and flavoring and spread on pie or pudding. It can, of course, be piped with a pastry tube. Bake eight to twelve minutes in a slow oven.

A special meringue is made with the whites of two eggs and one-half cup powdered sugar. One tablespoon lemon juice is added for flavoring. The lemon juice also helps to harden the albumen and makes a firm, thick meringue.

Kisses which are another form of meringue are used for desserts. They may be used alone or the soft inside can be scooped out, leaving a tender shell for fruit or ice cream.

Kisses
One-half cup egg whites, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 cup fine granulated sugar, 2-3 teaspoon vanilla.

Beat whites on a large platter until stiff. Beat in two tablespoons sugar. Add sugar, gradually beating constantly until mixture will keep its shape. Cover a damp board with heavy foolscap paper. Drop mixture from spoon onto paper. Bake 50 minutes in a slow oven. The meringues should be slightly colored when done and firm to the touch. Remove from paper and scoop out soft inside portion. Return shells to oven to dry out.

Elections Held In Three States

Both seek the republican senatorial nomination.

In New York, five of nine republican state contests presented a clash on the prohibition question. Of most importance in these was the upstate candidacies of two outstanding New York congressmen, both drays, opposed by wet candidates. The incumbents were S. Wallace Dempsey, 40th district, and James S. Parker, 29th district. They were opposed by Walter G. Andrews and Theodore Knapp, young attorney, respectively.

Wisconsin was the battleground of a stirring gubernatorial contest in which Phillip F. LaFollette, younger son of the late "Fighting Bob," opposed Gov. Walter J. Kohler, capitalist, for the republican nomination. The prohibition question was also given prominence in the Utah republican state convention which was on record today as opposed to modification of the 18th amendment.

Construction On The Boulder Dam Is Started Today

BY UNITED PRESS
LAS VEGAS, Nev., Sept. 16.—Secretary of the interior Ray Lyman Wilbur will officially begin construction on Boulder Dam, the greatest engineering project of modern times, at a celebration here tomorrow afternoon.

Before secretary Wilbur drives a silver spike into the first tie of the branch line railway to the dam he will deliver an address in which he is expected to set forth any doubt as to the building of the project.

On the authority of Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, the cabinet official will state that work will be continued without a break through the 8 year building program until the $165,000,000 water and power project is completed.

Last Obstruction To Power Dam Is Now Removed

BY UNITED PRESS
BAGNELL, Mo., Sept. 16.—Virtually the last obstruction in the path of the $32,000,000 Bagnell hydroelectric dam and power project here was removed today by a federal court decision.

Judge Albert L. Reeves issued an order condemning streets, sewers and sidewalks in Linn creek, the little town which will be inundated completely by the waters impounded by the dam. The decision was another victory for the Union Electric Light & Power company in its fight to buy or condemn the land necessary for the huge project.

Approximately 1,800 owners of town and farm lots will be forced to vacate when the 2,500-foot dam is closed across the Osage river.

Oney has now $12,000 American La France fire truck.

Mrs. Brown, Executive

MRS. BROWN, housekeeper of scarcely more than a generation ago, was a skilled laborer. The Mrs. Brown of today is an executive.

She has turned over much of her work to mechanical appliances. Much of her cooking has been placed in the hands of manufacturers of foods. Most of her sewing is done for her by the makers of clothing and household goods. Freed from drudgery by modern inventions, she has become a manager.

The advertisements in her daily newspaper have enabled her to be a better director of the affairs of her home than any woman of any past generation. She is primarily an intelligent buyer. She spends 85% of the family income. The care with which she reads the advertisements and the wisdom with which she acts on them determine the health, happiness and prosperity of her household.

She studies every new and every accepted product that might benefit her in her business of home management. She compares values. She is an expert in getting one hundred cents' worth of comfort, protection and satisfaction for every dollar she spends. She reads the advertisements every day. On them Mrs. Brown's efficiency depends.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 16.—A thorough going survey of the entire Mississippi river, with its multitudinous problems of navigation and flood control, was completed today by the three men in whose hands its development largely rests. Ashburn of the Inland Waterways Corporation, during their journey from St. Paul to New Orleans, was being collated today as they prepared to return to Washington.

French Have Only 884 Unemployed

PARIS, Sept. 16.—There were 884 jobless in the whole of France on August 16, according to statistics published in the "Journal Officiel" by the Minister of Labor. Of this number 671 were men and 213 women.

The week previously the number was 863, and for some weeks past it has not varied more than 20 above or below the rather fixed average of 875. It is notable that these figures include only those registered as seeking employment or receiving aid from the government, which means that many hundreds of drifters and idlers are not counted, the majority of this latter group being foreigners.

INTERSCHOLASTIC LEAGUE INCREASES IN ITS 19 YEARS

AUSTIN.—Organized in December, 1910, the University of Texas interscholastic league has grown until it now is the most highly organized and has the largest membership of any similar organization in the United States. It is declared in the circular of information about the league now being distributed for use in forming county league organizations. "For the first year, the league's activities were confined to debates among the high schools affiliated with the University," it is stated in the circular. "The following year, contests in declamation were added and membership in the league was thrown open to all the schools of the state below college rank. Subsequently there were also added contests in spelling, essay writing, athletics, music memory, etc., until the present schedule of events was made up. In 1911, a total of 28 schools joined the league; in 1930, 5,727.

"The league is an organization of Texas public schools, fostered by the University Extension division, which provides a plan for increasing their information, accustoms them to self-control in trying circumstances, develops their loyalty to school, state and country. The league's program helps the school develop sound minds in strong bodies. It enables the school to make a larger contribution to good citizenship than would be possible without some extra-curricular agency.

"The mainpring of the league's success lies in the use of the competitive motive properly controlled. This is no new thing in education. As far back as we have any recorded history of education, educators have in one way or another stimulated rivalry among their pupils. The desire to excel one's fellows in any given feat or task may be said to be inborn, and as long as the effort which this desire excites is subordinated to the higher aspiration to win fairly and according to the prescribed 'rules of the game,' educators are practically agreed that the training is wholesome.

"Preparation for some of the contests requires merely the amassing of information on the part of the contestant; preparation for others, the acquisition of a valuable skill; others, composure in public appearances; still others, the development of an appreciation of art and music; all of them, the development of sportsmanlike conduct under all conditions and circumstances, the will to win, and the ability to dis-

Psychologist Employs Weird Instruments To Test Reactions of "Human Guinea Pigs"

Research Shows Beneficial Effects Of Sugar, Quick Energy Food, On Fatigue

A STRANGE looking collection of laboratory instruments, very nearly as appalling to the active imagination as those devised by the Spanish Inquisition, are used by the modern psychologist in determining the ways and wherefores of human actions and behavior, and the effects upon them of various outside stimuli. At Hamilton, New York, Dr. Donald A. Laird, Director of the Psychological Laboratories of Colgate University, has been conducting a series of experiments to determine to what extent concentrated energy foods can contribute toward offsetting fatigue and its accompanying slowing-down of mental and physical reactions. Squads of students, serving as voluntary human guinea pigs, were served drinks sweetened with ordinary cane sugar and then put through the tests. Their records were compared with those of another group which went through

"Sugar, one of the most highly concentrated of the energy foods, was used," Dr. Laird says, "because, eyes closed and arms extended, over a period of six years in experimenting with foods, we have found that it is rapidly assimilated, and is almost immediately transformed into body fuel." An apparatus known as a sound case was used to measure a blind-folded subject's accuracy in localizing the direction of sounds. An ataxiograph measured the general coordination of nerves and muscles.

The subject, equipped with a helmet holding in place an automatic pencil extending in an upright position above his head, stood with eyes closed and arms extended, beneath a chart just reached by the pencil. Marks made by the pencil on the chart showed the involuntary body sway. Alertness of attention was determined by means of a Marietta complication clock, a clock with a single hand revolving once a second. A tiny electric bulb attached to the dial was flashed at inter-

Texas Has Won Eight Of Ten Dixie Series

Texas League champions have won eight of ten post-season contests in the Southland's baseball classic—the Dixie Series—and dropped two to winners in the Southern Association.

The defeats were sustained by Dallas at the hands of Birmingham last year, and by Fort Worth from Mobile in 1922.

The Fort Worth Panthers, who face the Memphis Chicks in the first game of the 1930 series today, return after a four-year absence from the classic. The year of 1925 was the last of a six-year reign by the Texas Leaguers, in which Little Rock, Memphis and New Orleans, and Atlanta led the Dixie pennant to them. Twice the Chicks were victims of the Cats.

In the past 10 years the Texas League has won 36 games and lost 24, tying 4, in the play-off. In the 64 games the Texas loop has out-hit the Southern by 30 points and outfielded it by the margin of one point.

Fort Worth played in 41 of the games, and has to its credit 22 victories, 16 defeats and three ties. Memphis played in 14 games of which won five, lost eight and tied one.

Cats and Chicks Play Today

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 17—The Memphis Chickasaws and the Fort Worth Panthers, winners in the Southern and Texas Leagues respectively, met here today in the first game of the annual Dixie series to determine the baseball supremacy of the south.

Thompson "Doc" Prothro, veteran manager of the Chicks, selected Harry Kelly, a righthander, as his starting pitcher, while Frank Snyder, Fort Worth pilot, will depend on the hurling of Dick Whitworth.

Ideal weather prevailed for the opening game of the series that is scheduled to go seven games or until one team wins four games. Betting was at even money for the series and at 11 to 10 odds that Memphis will take the first game.

This is the third time the two teams have met in the annual post-season classic. Fort Worth won in 1921 and again in 1924. The clubs will play here again tomorrow and then move to Fort Worth for the next three games.

Easy to look at

THERE'S a harmony between the natural loveliness of this modern age and the natural, mild goodness of Camels. And if you find them keeping company, don't be surprised.

Camel has given the world the luxury of a naturally mild cigarette—a cigarette that preserves all the refreshing fragrance of the choice, mild tobacco from which it is made—a cigarette that is delightfully smooth, but never flat, never parched, never tasteless.

Modern smokers are awake to the fact that mere flatness doesn't mean mildness. That's one reason there's such a swing to Camels. Watch it right in your own crowd. Join them in Camels—a smoke that's enjoyable all the way—all the time.
