HARMONY PREVAILS AT DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Love Causes The Only Disturbance In Late Session

One Of His Planks Rejected And One Admitted at Meeting.

BY UNITED PRESS
GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 10.—Texas Democrats who ended their late convention here about midnight, would have lived up to their same song of "harmony among us boys" if it had not been for two late planks sponsored by Senator Thomas B. Love. The Dallas farm and liquor anti-prohibition plank and the platform resolution on the repeal of state-aided valorem taxation and for a iron-bound prohibition attitude. The convention barked its shins on both planks. A last minute fight—developed on sudden impulse after the resolution had been reported favorable by the committee on platform and resolutions—defeated Love's tax-ation plank, but he succeeded in getting the platform plank on liquor anti-liquor plank in the late session. He battled for the latter resolution as the mouthpiece of the W. T. U. in the committee meeting. In his suggested platform Ross Terling had covered the liquor plank by saying that the party stands for impartial and strict enforcement, that it is unalterably against repeal of the eighteenth amendment and that public officers should realize that they can not compromise their position by violating the liquor law. Then Love came along with an addition which contained this paragraph: "The constitution of Texas provides that the governor shall cause laws to be faithfully executed; and we urge that the legislature enact the following laws: (Continued on Page 2)

Victim Of Forced Ride Is Safe At Home In Houston

Woman's Companion Is Shot By Negro Who Took Her On Ride.

BY UNITED PRESS
HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 10.—A 44 year old widow, mother of several grown children, was safe at her home today, after a forced night ride with a masked negro who had shot and beaten her man companion into insensibility. The man, Frank B. Horton, was recovering at his home from a pistol wound in the right leg and gashes on the head. Officers were searching for the negro, a light colored man of about 25. It was thought by some that he might be a convict who escaped from the State prison farm at Sugarland earlier in the day, but police lieutenant Peyton did not think so. He said the negro answered the description of a man who has held up a motorist and drove down a turn around, the widow said. "As we started to turn a negro jumped on the running board. Mr. Horton wrestled with him and the negro hit him on the head with his pistol. They fell from the car and the negro lay in the ditch. I was still in the car and the negro jumped in and started driving out Westheimer road." Horton lay unconscious for more than an hour before he recovered sufficient to get up and walk. He had no serious wounds. He was clad in underclothing. His suit in which were his watch and a small sum of money were in the auto. A passing motorist took Horton home and his wounds were not considered serious. Meantime the woman was continuing her forced ride with the negro. "We rode six or eight miles," she said. "The negro tried to avoid talking. I asked some questions. 'Where are you going?' I asked. 'I am headed to catch a freight train,' he told me. 'I asked him to take me back to town and he said he would let me have the car, but he didn't. He told me all he wanted was money and he took about $1.50 from me. He didn't attack me.'

OUR RULERS.

Former Ambassador Gerard started something with his list of the five dozen leaders who "rule America." Everybody is now free to make a different list if he doesn't like Mr. Gerard's. Almost everyone has his own ideas about the matter.

Many such lists are already in print. Reading them, one is reminded of what Kipling wrote about arbitrary judgment on poetry—

"There are four-and-twenty ways of composing tribal lays, And every single one of them is right."

Only, in this case, every single one of the lists is wrong. No two persons will agree, except possibly on a few such names of Rockefeller, Morgan and Ford.

Mr. Gerard doubtless over-emphasizes bankers and industrialists and under-emphasizes public men. The president—any president—has more power by far than any private citizen can exercise.

"How slight, of all that human hearts endure, The ills that kings or laws can make or cure."

Our real rulers, in really important matters, are ourselves. We do it badly, perhaps, but we do it. "He that ruleth his own heart is greater than he that taketh a city."

REAL ESTATE.

Over-allotting is one of the causes of the real estate depression, say the realtors nowadays. An effort is going to be made all over the country to keep subdividing "somewhere in line with probable ability of the population to absorb and improve the property."

When any great improvement is proposed, such as a bridge or pavement opening up hitherto inaccessible property, people are apt to rush in and buy land thinking they will get there before the boom which is sure to come, making a lot of money through their foresight.

A boom of that kind never comes as soon as the optimists think it will. There's a little flurry at the beginning, and then the land settles down to a long wait.

There are, of course, occasional miracles, or apparent miracles, in real estate as in inventions. But for the most part, real estate fortunes are made by slow stages and careful thought and much study of properties everywhere in their relation to other factors of community growth.

Love Causes The—

(Continued from page 1) such provision as will enable the governor to use the power of the Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston objected that the enactment of the suggested provision by the legislature would take away the bill of rights by providing that the governor could send his own men into a county to enforce the prohibition law if he thought local officers were not doing a good enough job of it.

The first remark against the suggested addition was the signal for Love to hop to his feet and shout: "I'm tired of official gambling, of the nomination of citizens by bootleggers."

Mr. Strong backed him up with: "The Democratic party has reached the point where it can't fool around any longer with the prohibition question. We can trust the governor to use properly the power given him."

It has occurred to me that a concerted action on the part of those who may be financially able to render financial support is highly desirable. If responsible parties can be induced to fence sheep and goat proof, even a small tract of land, and stock the same with a few sheep and goats, the outlay of money would not necessarily be large.

"Be explicit, please," Holbrook retorted. "The governor close a public gambling place here just recently?" Love asked.

"He's been doing that everywhere—in Houston, Dallas and all over," Holbrook replied.

A motion to table the Love addition lost and it was included in the platform. Later, when the committee through chairman W. P. Hobby reported the platform to the Love also was the target of the attack on the resolution for repeal of ad valorem taxation. This fight cropped up all of a sudden when Hobby was getting ready to report on the platform.

(Continued from page 1) be stamped out now and forever." The judge's challenge was delivered to the September grand jury with orders the body must open a "relentless warfare against those who seek to erect a super-government in the metropolitan area of Chicago."

Chicago, through you, take the leadership among the great cities of the United States, in fearlessly, and unceasingly fighting these racketeers so long as the rights of labor and industry are threatened," he declared.

The order and its immediate results followed closely reports Capone was organizing all the city's gangsters and racketeers under his banner of "Al for all and all for Al."

Capone, according to these reports, is attempting to build a "super-government" within the city, with himself as head of a directing "cabinet" composed of a secretary of war, secretary of beer, secretary of vice, secretary of gambling, etc.

Recognizing the dangers of the game eliminating themselves by warring on each other, the enemies of Capone were said to be joining his forces, with leaders of rival and less powerful groups accepting the secretaryships in the super-game.

The opposing armies were forming rapidly. State Attorney John A. Swanson was to go before the grand jury today, offering the services of operative movement.

The support of organized business department in the new "game" which it is estimated, has netted $15,000,000 yearly to racketeers, was pledged by Col. Robert L. Randolph, president of the Association of Commerce, and Gordon L. Mottister, executive secretary of the Employers' Association.

As the opposing armies were assembled, the racketeers fired the opening shot, a black powder bomb which exploded late last night in the doorway of the Maison Lorraine, a beauty parlor.

UNITE THE TWO

Major League

It was east against west again today as the four contenders in the National League began the second act in their make-or-break drama. The faltering Cubs renewed their series with the Robins and the Cardinals battled the Giants.

Victories for the Robins and Giants in the opening games Tuesday lightened the race all down the line. The standing, games behind and games left to play follows:

	W	L	GB	TP
Chicago	80	57	17
St. Louis	77	59	2 1/2	18
Brooklyn	72	60	2 1/2	16
New York	77	60	3	17

Ray Phelps, strapping Brooklyn rookie, completely tamed the Cubs as his team defeated the leaders 3 to 0. Phelps allowed but five hits. Leading 1-0, the Robins clinched the game in the eighth when, with one man on, Babe Herman hit his 31st homer of the season.

Clarence Mitchell, veteran spit ball pitcher, yielded but seven hits and allowed but two men to reach second base as the Giants trimmed the Cards, 2 to 1. The Giants got their two runs in the seventh on a single, a double and two infield outs.

In the only other National game the Phillies defeated the Cincinnati Reds 8 to 6.

In Cleveland the Yankees caught some of the excitement of an enthusiastic crowd of rooters, played good ball and won their game against the Indians, 8 to 6.

The Washington Senators broke down a stubborn twelve inning tie in St. Louis with the Browns, scoring five runs and making the final score 8 to 4 in their favor.

In Chicago Pat Caraway's five hit pitching and massed attack of nineteen hits gave the White Sox a 10 to 1 victory over Boston.

The Athletics defeated Detroit 3 to 1. Jim Moore, rookie outfielder, late of Dallas, Texas, batted a home run in the fifth, scoring Bing Miller ahead of him to provide the margin which won the game.

Spudders And Cats To Play This Afternoon

WICHITA FALLS, Sept. 10—Eyes of Texas League baseball fans were centered on Spudder park today as the hour neared when the series shall start to determine the pennant winner of the Texas circuit.

Early today managers of both clubs indicated their probable choices to do pitching mound duty this afternoon. Li Stoner and Dick McCabe of Fort Worth were favored by Manager Snyder, while either Harold Wiltse or Milton Stegmaier will lead the Spudder attack.

Spudder partisans were elated today over the news that Wiltse is ready for the fray. Their hopes were sunken last Friday when an ankle injury made the future uncertain.

Although it is recognized that the series does not depend upon the first game, every effort is being made by both clubs to get an early start, and the battle will start at red heat with the first pitched ball today.

The second session of hostilities will occur on Spudder diamond Thursday afternoon. After a day of rest, the battle scene will shift to the Panther park in Fort Worth for the final decision.

What betting odds existed this morning gave a slight edge to the Cats. Spudder hopes are bolstered, however, by the Texas League tradition that the winner of the first half cops the series.

J. L. Matlock of Wink, formerly of Ranger where he was employed by Chestnut & Smith at plant No. 103, died Monday morning at a hospital in Wink after undergoing an operation.

Legge Believes "A Lot of Rubes" Cause Unrest

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Chairman Alexander Legge of the federal farm board believes "a lot of rubes" are aggravating the farm problem by blind adherence to old-fashioned methods.

consumption basis in grain if stock feeders would use wheat," Legge said.

"Dairy and poultry men are taking kindly to substituting wheat and small grains for corn, but the stockmen are not. There isn't a bushel of grain too much in this country now and the wise feeder is buying up grain for winter feed."

"But a lot of barn rubes are doing what their grandfathers did, selling wheat at 70 cents a bushel and buying corn at $1 for feed."

Legge's reference to a domestic basis of grain consumption refers to the wheat surplus. Last week secretary of agriculture Hyde expressed the opinion that drought damage to corn had reduced the supply that the surplus wheat could be consumed on the farm.

The farm board chairman supports this theory. If the domestic consumption basis were realized Legge temporarily would have achieved his goal for the American wheat farmer—which is to take him out of the export business.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., Sept. 9.—William G. McAdoo, wartime secretary of the treasury, today denied rumors he was considering becoming a candidate for governor of California. He said he has left politics for good and was satisfied to practice law.
