LAMESA, Tex., Aug. 22.—A catfish with legs was being exhibited here this week by D. W. Shipley, owner of a local musical store. Its gills were protruding from the side of its head and its tail fin was unusually long. It was gifted with four legs, each with four toes.

Candidates Make Final Appeals

SAN MARCOS, Tex., Aug. 22.—Warnings against eleventh hour stories sounded from Sterling camps last night and today as political headquarters guiding the race of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson for governor were reported.

Answering another charge, Sterling said: "I have been charging that I said $1.50 per day was enough for labor to receive. I own a railroad. Every December I had an extra check sent every employe from vice-president to section hands; in other words, they were given thirteen months' pay for twelve months' work."

Campaign Closes Tonight After Long Hot Fight

Vote Predicted by Texas Election Bureau Would Be Greatest Ever Cast in the State.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 22.—Texas voters had only a few hours today in which to make up their minds on the future of "Fergusonism" in the Lone Star State.

The candidates and their satellites took the stump today in a final appeal to the electorate. Final speakers of the first-water year have pleaded the causes of their favorites over a strenuous political month.

Mrs. Ferguson has been largely represented by her husband, James Ferguson, whose sobriquet of "Farmer Jim" was derived from his 16-year appeal to the "boys from the forks of the creek."

Dust of two decades' accumulation has been brushed from the records of "Ma" and "Pa" Ferguson. The Sterling faction has persistently ferreted out unsavory details of that record and devoted a major portion of the campaign to discussion of alleged irregularities in the handling of the governor's office by "Farmer Jim" during his term of office.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—The "Alfred E. Smith" telegram which predicted the Democratic party would be in control of the national government has turned out to be a hoax—the second perpetrated against him within a year.

County Runoff Races Closing

The heated campaign for governor, has, to a great extent, overshadowed the runoff campaign for county officials in Eastland county. The candidates, however, have been rather active, speaking at numerous places in the county and have been given attentive hearings.

Not Guilty, Says Negro, As Life Is Burned Out

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Aug. 22.—"I know and God knows I ain't guilty." With these last words Lee Davis, 26 year old negro, met death in the electric chair at the penitentiary here just after midnight for the killing of Sidney Symms, prison convict, escaped from the reformatory farm in September 1928, and in a scuffle with Symms, who was guarding them, Symms was wounded fatally with his own gun.

Will Davis still is awaiting trial in Brazoria county.

Prosperity Move Bearing Fruit

The prosperity campaign being sponsored in Eastland by the local Board of City Development is bearing fruit. One man this morning reported that he secured in less than an hour's time pledges from individuals that they would spend $950 during the campaign.

It is suggested that committees from the various civic and commercial organizations, service clubs, etc. could easily secure many times this amount in pledges within an equally short time if they made an effort.

"There Is Nothing Wrong With The Water"—Tatum

The peculiar taste in the city water yesterday and today is not because of any impurities in it and will doubtless disappear by Saturday noon, City Manager Tatum said this morning.

The report was current about town this morning that the city had changed from Lake Eastland and were taking water from Ringling Lake which was responsible for the peculiar taste about which some people have registered slight complaints. This is not true, Tatum said, adding that water was still being used out of Lake Eastland.

Famous Woman River Pilot Lives Quietly In New Orleans

By JANE HUNTER HOLLOWAY United Press Correspondent NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 22.—Living the quiet, well-ordered life of the average American house-keeper, content in her comfortable Tont Street home in New Orleans is Mrs. Blanche Douglas Leathers...

Not because her husband was Captain Boland Leathers, nor because her father-in-law was Commodore T. P. Leathers, who built and raced the first Natchez, in a record-breaking trip to St. Louis, against the Robert E. Lee, is Mrs. Leathers famous...

For many years, "Captain Blanche" piloted her craft, the Natchez, through the tricky channels of the great waterway. Guiding it carefully through the snag-infested waters, avoiding sand bars which held up similar craft, she played a big part in the distribution of cargo and passengers to the river towns.

Fifty-one years ago, while on a trip to see the Mardi Gras festivities, Blanche Douglas met the man she was to marry, Captain Leathers, the gallant son of a man widely known in the annals of river history, was piloting the Natchez, his own steamer. After a romantic courtship on her decks, he claimed this shy daughter of wealthy cotton planter as his wife.

It was a gala day when she received her pilot's license and headed her boat up the river on her first trip as captain. Ten tugs accompanied her out into the harbor and the river rang with salutes from all vessels in port.

"The license under which she served for 20 years hangs on the wall of her living room. She has gathered around her the things which bring pleasant memories of the days when she carried important people up and down the river.

There are pictures of old river boats on her walls. The massive furniture in her bedroom was for many years in her quarters on the Natchez.

A cherished possession is a bottle of Madeira wine given her by Jefferson Davis. It bears this inscription: "Briarfield—Miss Blanche I brought this to you. Don't open it until your first boy comes. The son never came to Blanche Leathers and the bottle remains intact.

Far different from the raw-boned, swash-buckling woman one expects to see, Mrs. Leathers sits quietly rocking, telling of the glamorous days along the river. Her soft voice tells many amusing incidents of the past, when piloting a river steamer was a man's size job. She remembers well the important people who shipped with her.

"They were great boats," she says, "You know the Leathers family built and piloted seven vessels and all of them were named 'The Natchez.' The first one was the most famous but the others all were strong hardy craft."

As a quick smile comes and goes and a twinkle brightens her eyes, there is a slight tightening of the lips, not hard but determined, which shows the spirit is still there which demanded results from drunken mates and negro deck-hand in the old days.

Governor's Home Not Pretentious

By United Press AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 22.—There is no danger of Texas' government finding the "executive mansion" too pretentious, as "Alfalfa Bill" Murray complains of Oklahoma's.

Each of the three candidates for governor of Texas lives in a finer house than the state will provide for its next governor.

R. S. Sterling, Houston millionaire, has a palatial home, even though it is admitted the campaign description of its "twenty bathrooms" is overdrawn. Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, if she returns to the "mansion," will move from a beautiful modern $40,000 home to Austin. Its site was donated by political admirers at the end of her former term as governor.

Should the Republicans win, Dr. George Butte, their nominee, will move from a Washington residence to the "mansion." His Austin home, in the university district, is much better than the state provides for the governors. It is occupied, during the absence of Dr. Butte's family, by Attorney General R. L. Bobbitt.

The "mansion" is a rambling old home with a certain beauty, but few conveniences judged by modern standards. Its cracks make a big coal bill necessary. A circular stair in the main hall is its chief charm, architecturally—but not by a governor's it's just so many steps to be taken many times a day.

PRAGUE, Aug. 22.—Nine passengers and a pilot were killed and two passengers seriously injured when an airplane crashed and burned near Friedrichstadt, Czechoslovakia today.

The twelfth passenger in the plane escaped with slight injuries. The machine was en route from Prague to Pressburg, via Brno. All the victims were Austrians or Czechs. The accident occurred when the pilot sought to make an emergency landing in a fog.

NANKING, China, Aug. 22.—A plot to dynamite the National government offices was disclosed by police today after a raid on the homes of radical political leaders.

INDIA IS DYNAMIC FORCE BEHIND INDIA'S CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE FIGHT

Associated Hindu Leader Inspires Followers to Withstand Beatings

Most completely bald and wears horn rimmed glasses. His clothing is a coarse undyed homespun loincloth which leaves the upper part of his body naked. He is usually barefoot.

He is Mahatma (Great Soul) Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi. This is the man who is opposing the strength and majesty of a powerful empire and who set in motion one of the greatest political movements in the world's history—the Indian Nationalist movement—which is a veritable revolution without arms.

Indefinite Sentence

He is imprisoned by the government which he is opposing. He was arrested under an old law which permitted his arrest without charge or sentence, and permits him to be held in prison indefinitely.

Although the leader is behind the walls of Yeravada Goal the movement he initiated is marching on and creating for the British government the most critical situation in India since the Great Mutiny of 1857.

The personality of Gandhi is perhaps the most interesting of the great leaders of men in history. In his creed and influence upon human destinies he has been compared with Christ with Lenin and St. Francis of Assisi. By millions in India he is revered as a saint. His words are obeyed as law by hundreds of thousands.

Extraordinary Influence

At the Dharasana salt raid in which 320 of Gandhi's men were beaten and injured by native police, I had visual evidence of Gandhi's extraordinary influence. When the waiting crowds of volunteers became inflamed from time to time by the spectacle of police beating over the heads, kicking in the abdomen and dragging unarmed, unresisting volunteers, and seemed on the verge of attacking the Congress leaders with outstretched arms I implored the crowds to remember Gandhi's creed of non-violence.

"Gandhi's body is in prison but his soul is with us," they said.

In every instance the infuriated volunteers calmed immediately, although their comrades sitting on the ground before the stockade were being beaten unconscious under their eyes and the impact of smashing "lathi" blows made them wince and suck their breath between their teeth. Yet when their turn came these volunteers marched forward, took the places of their wounded comrades and submitted to the inevitable beating with Gandhi's name on their lips. In conformity with Gandhi's creed of non-violence they did not raise an arm to fend off the blows from the stout iron-shod bamboo "lathis" of the police.

The Creed of Gandhi

Gandhi's creed is a curious mixture of religion, aceticism, philosophy and politics. One of the fundamentals of his creed is a great fight against Western civilization which he believes is not suitable for India. Another is opposition to taking human or animal life or use of violence. He is opposed to modern machinery and favors a "Back to Nature" movement. His campaign for home-spun cloth and the revival of home spinning is a part of this movement. It is also political because it strikes at British trade.

Gandhi believes no person should possess more property than is necessary for his simplest needs. Although originally fairly wealthy—by Indian standards, Gandhi and his wife have given away their property and own nothing except their clothing, some books and a few necessities.

Upon his disciples Gandhi imposes the simplest food and drink. Just enough to maintain health. Frequently Gandhi has fasted for weeks as self-discipline or to shame an opponent. He believes control of the senses is one of the important rules of life. Celibacy is enjoined upon all his followers. "Ashram" or the school at Ahmedabad. Married couples have to cease marital relations. Gandhi's ideal is that Indians should grow their food and make their clothes and other necessities with their own hands.

Inventor of "Satyagraha"

He is the inventor of the curious but effective political weapon called "satyagraha" or non-violent non-cooperation and civil disobedience, which with the boycott of British goods, are the principal forces being utilized in the Nationalist fight for freedom.

He first utilized "satyagraha" in South Africa in 1893 in his fight against color and economic discrimination against his countrymen in South Africa. Although he was frequently imprisoned and once nearly beaten to death, he finally won the battle after years of effort. Despite his opposition to the government he organized an Indian ambulance corps at the outbreak of the Anglo-Boer war which served with distinction. He did the same during the native rebellion in Natal in 1906, and was thanked by the government but this did not prevent his being thrown into prison later in Johannesburg.

With intervals his efforts to ameliorate the lot of Indians in South Africa continued until 1913. Throughout he used the methods now familiar in the Indian Nationalist rebellion.

Decorated by Britain

At the outbreak of the Great War Gandhi was in London. He immediately began organizing an Indian Volunteer Corps to aid England and returned to India to use his influence to aid in recruiting for England. During this epoch he was still a loyal supporter of the British government. For his war activities Gandhi was awarded the prized Kaiser-i-Hind medal.

When he started the struggle with the British government in 1920 he returned the medal. In February, 1919, as a result of passage by the government of the repressive Rowlett Laws in the face of widespread Indian protests, Gandhi began the first phase of the great movement which culminated in the present virtual revolution. He inaugurated a "satyagraha" campaign against the government, participated in the Khilafat agitations supporting the Mohammedans in their opposition to dismemberment of Turkey by the Allies and led the boycott of the Prince of Wales visit to India in 1921. Gradually his loyalty to the British government altered. His activities finally resulted in his arrest and sentence to six years imprisonment in 1922. After two years he was released and resumed editorship of his magazine "Young India" and his work for freedom of India.

The movement advanced rapidly and in 1928 the Madras National Congress declared independence as the goal of India. The Labor Congress in 1929 confirmed it and authorized the beginning of civil disobedience whenever the Working Committee saw fit.

Famous March to Sea

In February, 1930 after the breakdown of the conference of Indian leaders with the Viceroy, Gandhi was appointed supreme leader and submitted his famous 11 demands of the great leaders of mankind and prohibition, reduction of taxation, reduction by one-half of land taxation, abolition of salt tax, reduction of military expenditure by 50 per cent and other demands. In mid-February the Working Committee ordered commencement of civil disobedience.

At daybreak on March 4th Gandhi with 79 volunteers started the famous march to the sea to break the salt laws. This was the commencement of the campaign which resulted in his arrest late in April. The movement spread like a prairie fire. To fight it the government instituted extraordinary repressive laws and ordinances. Thus far many thousands have been arrested, hundreds killed and thousands injured in riots resulting from the movement and police attacks upon demonstrators and picketers.

In India today it is generally admitted that Gandhi inaugurated a movement which will bulk large in the destinies of India. Both in India and abroad it is recognized that Gandhi will rank in history as one of the Viceroy which included total the first to lead a revolution without arms based on non-violence. (The third article will appear tomorrow).

Major League

The New York Giants were but two games out of first place in the National League today when they resumed their series with the leading Chicago Cubs. The New Yorkers moved up a notch yesterday when they trimmed the Cubs in the first of the four-game series, 13 to 6.

In the only other National League game the St. Louis Cards ran Herserk to smother the Phillies 16 to 6. The Cards, led by Hatley and Bottomley, got 19 hits.

Philadelphia Athletics, American League leaders, gained an 8 to 7 win over the Detroit Tigers.

The Cleveland Indians nosed out the New York Yankees 6 to 5 when Dick Porter's home run put an end to things in the twelfth inning.

Horace Lisenbee, despite wretched fielding support, managed to hurl the Boston Red Sox to a 4 to 2 win over the Chicago White Sox. Lisenbee allowed but four hits but his infield committed five errors.

Following statistics compiled by the United Press include games played August 21st.

Home Runs:

- Ruth, Yankees, 44.
- Wilson, Cubs, 45.
- Gehrig, Yankees, 35.
- Fox, Athletics, 32.
- Klein, Phillies, 30.
- Goslin, Browns, 30.

'Flapper' Bobs Hair At 103

LUND, Sweden, Aug. 22.—A hundred and three year old flapper with bobbed hair is "Mother" Karna Alm, the widow of a Swedish soldier, who is enjoying her life fully at the Verberod home for aged, near Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's ancestral home.

In spite of her years she keeps abreast with the styles of the times and recently had her silvery tresses shorn and smartly bobbed. She can read without glasses, her hearing is unimpaired and she enjoys her daily walk.

Her memory also serves her well and she likes to sing the old love songs of the days when her late husband courted her.

"Mother" Karna refuses to consider 103 as an advanced age and expects to live for many more years.

Dan Rorimer, temperamental young man of Hollywood, can't get along with a studio executive at Continental Pictures and tears up his contract as scenario writer and asks to be fired. But he isn't. Dan is interested in Anne Winter, a girl from Tulsa, Okla., who has shown enough ability to warrant a screen test and a decent part in a picture.

Dan lives with Paul Collier, who writes a daily movie column for a string of newspapers. Anne lives with two extra girls, Eva Harley and Mona Morrison.

A famous director named Garry Sloan has shown some interest in Anne, hardly enough, however, to warrant any high hopes. Dan does not like Sloan; he is, however, an admirer of Martin Collins, formerly of Continental, now of Amalgamated.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

The Friend Who Does Not Fail

Text: 1 Sam. 18:1-4; 20:14-17; 32-34, 41, 42.

And it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking unto Saul, that the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul.

And Saul took him that day, and would let him go no more home to his father's house.

Then Jonathan and David made a covenant, because he loved him as his own soul.

And Jonathan stripped himself of the robe that was upon him, and gave it to David, and his garments, even to his sword, and to his bow, and to his girdle.

And thou shalt not only while yet I live shew me the kindness of the Lord, but I die not.

But also thou shalt not thy kindness from any house for ever; not when the Lord hath cut off the enemies of David every one from the earth.

So Jonathan made a covenant with the house of David, saying, Let the Lord even require it at the hand of David's enemies.

And Jonathan caused David to swear again, because he loved him; for he loved him as he loved his own soul.

And Jonathan answered Saul his father, and said unto him, Wherefore shall he be slain? What hath he done?

And Saul cast a javelin at him friendship was indicated when he said to his disciples, "I have not called you servants, but I have called you friends." It was this relationship of friendship that bound the disciples to their Master—a relationship in which they shared his counsels and his confidence. To achieve such friendship is the supreme end and purpose in life and at the same time to attain to life's highest happiness. There is no treasure comparable to the treasure of friendship. There is no asset in a man's life that can so sustain and help him as the asset of a good friend.

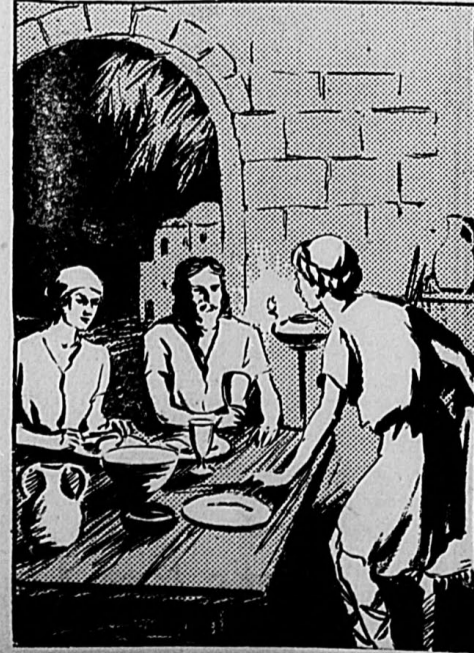

Such friendships rare

Possibly stories such as that of Damon and Pythias, and this of David and Jonathan, stand out so boldly in the records of literature because such friendships are rare. But why should they be rare? Human nature is endowed with the capacity for friendship. Why should we not rise above the ordinary relationships of life and find the joy and beauty of the relationships that the soul achieves for itself?

Possibly a great deal that we call friendship is not in the last analysis real friendship at all. Acquaintance is not friendship, nor is even companionship, though that comes nearer to the reality. "Comrade" is a good word that is more closely related to friendship, but, like the use of "brother" between members of certain Christian groups, the use of the word

What advantage either of these two young men could have had from their compact of friendship other than the beauty of the friendship itself, it is not easy to see. The relationship between them seems to have been one of disinterested appreciation and of brotherly love and confidence. There was in it no element of selfishness. The lesson seems to suggest that strong as are the ties of kinship and nature, the ties of spiritual relationship are even stronger.

Two great friendships stand out from the ancient world that have become a model for mutual devotion in the ties of brotherhood. One, the story of Damon and Pythias, comes to us from the Greek world, and the relationship has been immortalized in a fraternal order widely organized here in America. The other comes to us from the Biblical record in this story of David and Jonathan. It was a friendship that triumphed over hindrances and severe tests. One cannot read of study such a lesson without contemplating it in the light of the teaching of Jesus concerning friendship. The supreme place that Jesus gave to

Cleveland Men Sail To Build Soviet Factory

BY UNITED PRESS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 22.—Ten Cleveland engineers and contractors have sailed for Magnitostroy, Russia, where they will assist in supervising building of a $200,000,000 steel works and mine development for the Soviet government in the Ural mountain district.

The American party is made up of men connected with Arthur G. McKee and Company. It is the second party to visit the Russian town, the first having left three months ago. Before the project is completed, 80 engineers will be sent to Russia, it was said.

The new Soviet steel plant is expected to be one of the largest in the world, when completed. According to figures furnished by engineers, it will have an annual output of 2,500,000 tons of finished steel. Plans include construction of eight blast furnaces of 1000-ton daily capacity, 360 coke ovens, 14 open hearth furnaces and other producing equipment.

Officials of the McKee company have pointed out that Russia's "five year plan" of industrial expansion is not designed to flood the world markets with cheap products, but primarily to supply the needs of the Russian people.

Magnitostroy is a town that has grown immensely in a few months. It now has a population of 30,000 and is said to be increasing at the rate of 5,000 a month. It is in the center of the Ural mountain region, near vast resources of iron and limestone.

Rough Tender Of Birds Dies

BY UNITED PRESS

PENRHUISEIBER, Wales, Aug. 24.—There hadn't been much beauty in the life of Thomas O'Reilly, just ended.

Every morning he awoke early, donned rough, worn clothing and plodded to work at the coal mines. At night he returned home, his shoulders a bit more bent; his step a bit slower.

If he was "hard-boiled" at times his friends suspected it was merely an attempt to hide a sympathetic weakness.

The years rolled on and took their toll of the rough, kindly miner. Recently one of his fellow workers found him carrying food to a nest built on the snatches of a raveling rafter in the mine's engine house.

They observed too O'Reilly watched the nest carefully and kept the parents and tender fledglings from being disturbed.

A few days ago, five young thrushes flew joyously from the

Replies To Circular

TO THE VOTERS OF PRECINCT NO. 1:

It is with deep regret that I am again compelled to answer some charges made by my opponent, Mr. Bassett, in a circular just off the press which has not yet been circulated but now in the hands of his friends for distribution the last hours of the campaign. Mr. Bassett has been telling since the first primary that he would have out a circular the very last hour. Everything charged in Mr. Bassett's last circular, with possibly one or two exceptions, was fully answered and explained in my circular of July 22, 1930, therefore, I refuse to bore the voters with another circular.

Mr. Bassett says under No. 2, in his last circular of "a few of the things he stands for" that the commissioners' have already paid 'for this year' $7978.50 for the services of tax experts to aid the Court in arriving at the value of oil properties, public utilities, etc., which is untrue as will be fully shown by reading the orders of the court which he refers to and as was admitted by Mr. Bassett in his first circular wherein he stated it was only $4000.00.

Under No. 5 of "a few of the things he stands for," Mr. Bassett states that he is convinced that I have been in office long enough. It is my firm belief that the main things which the tax-payers are interested in are honest and efficient men in office. Mr. Bassett insinuates that men employed by me are working for me in this campaign at the expense of the County. This charge is absolutely untrue and you will not believe it. I challenge Mr. Bassett to prove the truthfulness of the charge.

I heartily agree with my opponent where-in he says that he believes in the lowest tax rate and lowest valuations consistent with meeting County obligations and I have at all times stood for these things during my tenure of office. These are matters which should at all times have the serious consideration of the commissioners' court, but, frankly, I believe Mr. Bassett has been and is now unduly alarmed over Eastland County's tax rate and expenditures, especially in view of the fact that he now has on file in Tom Green county his application for a job.

Again thanking you for the splendid vote you gave me in the first primary and if you see fit to return me to office on August 23rd, you can be assured of the honest and efficient service which you have received from me in the past.

Yours very truly,
V. V. Cooper.

gress she was making. And she was progressing. The picture was in production now. After endless days and days of monotonous drill the dances were ready; Anne had tapped and kicked and tapped through difficult routines until she prayed for rest, had stopped at the sudden rasped command of the dance director; and then over and over again, hour after hour of it. And Hurley had given her the song he had promised her. He was not sorry, he said, hearing her rehearse it; it was Anne Winter's song.

Anne danced as she sang it, danced with her hands on her hips and with her arms flinging wide in abandon, with a chorus behind her, following. She smiled as she sang, smiled with flashing teeth and curving lips and vivid, sparkling eyes, and she sang in a low, smooth, mellow-sounding voice, with a microphone following her about overhead.

She went through it many times before Hurley was satisfied; there were difficulties with the chorus; an extra "mike" was needed; placed low to catch the rhythmic tapping of dancing feet; the sound chief had a new suggestion that Hurley thought would help. And once, after going through the number, Anne swung away from the stage and found Garry Sloan watching her.

He was leaning against a step-ladder, one foot on the lower step, an arm resting on an upper one. He looked bigger and browner than ever with his white shirt open at the throat and the sleeves rolled up to catch the rhythmic powerful forearms. He wore white flannel trousers, somewhat soiled, and his hair was a bushy tawny mop.

As Anne passed near him he put out his hand and she stopped. She had seen a whole stage cease activity at a gesture from Sloan, and utter silence reign where, an instant before, there had been excitement. When Garry Sloan held up a hand people stopped.

"Miss Winter," he said with a smile, and he straightened up from his lounging stance, spread his feet, thrust his hands in his pockets. "How are you?" he asked.

Anne smiled, too. "Very well, thanks, Mr. Sloan."

Sloan jerked his yellow head toward the set she had just quitted. "I've been watching you," he said, and paused, and Anne waited for him to speak again.

"Very nice," he said.

"You mean—"

"I mean you." Sloan's smile broadened at Anne's momentary bewilderment. "I mean your voice is very nice. I like it. I've been listening to you sing."

A smile came from Garry Sloan! Anne Winter's hands closed and unclasped nervously. "Oh, do you really mean it! Thank you," Sloan said, "I was just thinking. You were an extra girl the last time I talked with you, weren't you?"

Anne nodded. "That was in 'Married in May.' And you gave me a bit, didn't you remember? Oh, if you only knew what a thrill I got out of that!"

Sloan laughed easily. "I knew right away you weren't meant for extra jobs. Wasn't I right?"

Anne gave a little uncertain laugh. "Well—" she began, and stopped, and Sloan gestured toward the set again as if that held the answer.

He asked her: "Have you studded your voice? ... I don't think so," he ventured, and Anne confirmed this. And he said, "I'm not so sure that you ought to; there's something about it just the way it is."

Three-in-One Dance

What to do with your girl friend's girl friend at a dance? That's a problem that has balked the best masculine minds. Now it has been solved. For two girls can be danced with as easily as one in the new dance called the Trio, shown above. wonders in about a dozen lessons—if you can afford him.

"I hope I can," said Anne, and Sloan promised to give her the man's name and address. "He's given pretty good voices to some of the people around here who never suspected they could sing a note."

His eyes inspected her critically in her scanty costume, and Anne stood, one hand on her hip, waiting for him to speak again, uncertain whether to go or to wait for his dismissal.

"Are you under contract now?" he asked presently, and Anne said, "Why, no; I'm just engaged for this picture."

"Well, something ought to be done about that," said Sloan.

again have been raided.

An era of strict enforcement is expected to ensue under the new regime. Because the Northwest has been considered a model territory, policies of the administration are expected to be tried out here first.

Officials here state that, barring two western districts, the degree of cooperation given by local peace officers is greater than anywhere else in the nation.

In Minnesota it is estimated that 65 per cent of the sheriff's and county attorneys will give their cooperation in enforcement. In South Dakota the percentage rises to 90 per cent, but in North Dakota the figure is somewhat lower.

With the exception of counties in Iowa and Nebraska in which there are large cities, the degree of cooperation is above average, officials said.

St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church
August 24th, 1936. Mass at 8:30 a. m. This is the Eleventh Sunday after Pentecost. The gospel is from St. Mark VII 31-37. Jesus heals a man that was deaf and dumb. That the devil can injure men, and even take possession of them, the possessed prove, of whom Sacred Scripture frequently speaks. The St. Mark VI-13, speaks of a man who came out of the tombs with an unclean spirit, who had his dwelling in the tombs, and no man could bind him, not even with chains. For having often been bound with fetters and chains, he had burst the chains and broken the fetters in pieces, and no man would tame him. In like manner the Evangelists Matthew XII and Luke IX, speak of possessed persons, whom the devil had made deaf and dumb. The Fathers of the church unanimously teach that to expel devils, the power of the body of a man, and they went to prove the divinity of the Christian religion, as contrasted with the worthlessness of Paganism, from the fact that the Christians, not the Gentiles, have power to expel devils. They are very few possessed by the devil among Christians, for in the Sacrament of Baptism they are withdrawn from his power, and they do not fall back into it again in such a manner that he can take personal possession of the body of a man for special reasons permits it. Christ gave this power to his Church to expel devils. He gave them power to heal sicknesses and to cast out devils. Mark III. 15. Let us keep our souls and bodies pure so that the devil cannot enter. (Rev.) M. Collins.

1960 Skyscraper!

NEA New York Bureau
Skyscrapers like this—a half mile high, housing more than 20,000 workers and containing garage space, a civic center, offices and apartments—will be in style about 1960, in the opinion of Francis Keally, New York architect, who drew this plan. The building will be 20 degrees cooler at the top than on the first floor. Office employees will be able to rest and spend the noon hour in the civic center on the second level, while the first level will be used for parking autos.

Two Prominent Chinese Jailed As Assassins

PEIPING, Aug. 22—Two prominent Chinese have been arrested by Peiping police charged with being the leaders of an "assassination corps" which has already killed a number of leaders of the Left Wing of the Kuomintang, and according to the police had planned to murder many more.

The police allege that Huang Poyao, one of the new now in jail here, is employed directly by General Chang Kai-shek, chief of the government at Nanking, and leader of the moderate wing of the Kuomintang. They declare they have evidence that Huang engineered assassinations in Shanghai and Canton.

Huang came to North China last May, the police charge, in order to arrange the assassination of Wang Ching-wei, leader of the Left Wing who was expected to come to North China at that time. Wang Ching-wei, however, remained in Hongkong, waiting for Right and Left Wing leaders to settle their disputes and agree upon the principles of a new northern government.

Wang Ching-wei, who has consistently been General Chiang Kai-shek's principal opponent inside the Kuomintang, has been fearing assassination for years. When he came to Shanghai in 1927, he surrounded his house with four sets of guards, and did not venture into Chinese territory.

The Chinese press here declares that Chiang Kai-shek has gotten rid of dozens of his opponents by assassination, employing gunmen from Shanghai and Canton. This, of course, is the statement of newspapers operated by General Chiang's political opponents, and there is no independent evidence to substantiate these claims.

Volsteadland Is Test Ground Of Dry Forces

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 22—Volsteadland has become the proving grounds for the nation's greatest social experiment.

The Northwest which for the purpose of prohibition enforcement comprises Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska will be made the model dry enforcement district of the country.

M. L. Harney, director said on his return from a conference with Attorney General W. D. Mitchell and Amos W. W. Woodcock, new national dry chief.

Minnesota—home of Andrew J. Volstead, father of the act which bears his name—long has been a testing point for the prohibition forces. It was in the Twin Cities that the first raids against malt stores were made two years ago. The raids were made on the advice of Volstead, now legal advisor to the Northwest prohibition department. Prosecution was dropped later, but recently malt stores

"IRON POT" IS EGYPT RELIC

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 22—W. H. Long scrubbed viciously at a blackened vessel which he believed to be an iron pot, probably used by early American pioneers. He had purchased it in an obscure junk shop here.

The black coating proved to be of asphalt. As it fell away strange designs were revealed. The vessel was of copper and was covered with symbols. Long took it to Edward Butts, curator of the museum at the public library.

Butts was amazed. He traced out a design of the sphinx with a tail, historical symbols and a Hebrew inscription translated as the dying words of Jacob to his son.

"It is a rare thing," Butts said. "It undoubtedly was made in Egypt during the time of the Pharaohs, long before the Christian era."

The pot, which by some unexplained distribution had found its way through the years, was sent to eastern museum curators for closer classification.

In spite of the turmoil in China, the office punter points out, they still manage to keep coolies days.

ter," the report said. "Extreme temperatures of 106 to 110 degrees in parts of the state caused further shedding of squares and small bolls and premature opening."

"Effect of a general rain is a subject for dispute. It would damage grades in south Texas where bolls are practically all open, but would benefit the cotton in the north and central portions."

Picking got underway in the central sections this week, and is 75 per cent completed in the south.
