Tree Sitting

SWEETWATER, Tex., July 19.—Buck Sawyer hasn't sold a newspaper for more than 50 hours. He's been busy sitting in a tree. Buck started out in life to be a newsboy. Now he says he will finish up a tree-sitter unless other sitters come down before his hair turns gray and he is forced to leave his tree with whiskers and a cane.

KANSAS CITY, July 19.—Endurance in tree sitting is of two kinds: that of the man and that of the tree. The distinction may mean the abdication of the present king of all the tough benders. Bill Reardon, 16, has manifested his kind of endurance by sitting 214 hours. His mother, however, provider of most of the food, says she will not allow him to sit in a tree unless he descends.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., July 19.—It may be that when the trunk of a tree returns to its work and the limbs of the tree and that of the tree to study, Archie and Bill Thompson, brothers, will shake the sitters from their hair and drop from a tree. "Been up here 140 hours today," the say, "but we have only just started. We'll come down to go to school, but not before."

OKLAHOMA, July 19.—Nick Carter, 31 years old, was in a hospital today with a fractured arm because he "cracked up" on the rigidity of an endurance tree-sitting contest.

OKLAHOMA, July 19.—Only one tree has been the local champion in tree sitting. It crashed from a neighboring dogwood tree today. Sunday his Sunday school class will meet under the tree where "Deacon" is attempting to bring a world tree sitting record to himself and Mangum.

OKLAHOMA, July 19.—"Deacon" Morgan studied his Sunday school lesson in the dogwood tree today. Sunday his Sunday school class will meet under the tree where "Deacon" is attempting to bring a world tree sitting record to himself and Mangum.

NEW ORLEANS, July 19.—Only one tree has been the local champion in tree sitting. It crashed from a neighboring dogwood tree today. Sunday his Sunday school class will meet under the tree where "Deacon" is attempting to bring a world tree sitting record to himself and Mangum.

TUCULALOSA, Fla., July 19.—When his ground crew—a small kitchen staff—blow up a drink of water in a dirty glass, Simond Kennedy was so angered that he dropped from his tree and abandoned all hopes for the endurance sitting title.

DAKOTA, N. Y., July 19.—Young tree-sitters expressed definite scorn today in learning that their more-timorous playmates were trying to attract attention with a contest to see who could hold water in his mouth the longest.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The tree-sitting race furnishes proof of the Darwin theory, an editorial writer here comments. He adds that he is looking forward with eager anticipation to the day when the boys and girls of Dryton, Tenn., take to the boughs.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 19.—Travels has stopped tree sitting in Fort Worth. Oscar Fox, 14, fell from his high perch. City authorities ruled against the practice while Oscar suffered in a hospital where physicians said today he might not survive. A rib was broken and bruised his lungs. Oscar climbed back on a limb despite his suffering. His mother forced him down when it became evident he was in intense pain.

AMHORA, Ill., July 19.—The Aurora city electrical department issued an order against tree sitting within a safe distance of high tension wires. Two boy sitters were reported to have been literally shocked out of their leafy bower when a limb touched a live wire.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, July 19.—Donald Faber, 32 years in the hospital today and the number of Dubuque tough benders decreased sharply as parents heard of his accident. Donald fell out of his tree yesterday and suffered a fractured skull and a broken arm.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 19.—

OUT OUR WAY

"HOME TALENT."

The board of county commissioners was called in special session today to consider means of getting Jimmy Sugonita, 13, down out of the tree in the court house park, where he has roosted for more than 80 hours. The commissioners think the advertising sign for hot dogs and such things which Jimmy's managers hang on the tree disfigure the park.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Curtis Freeland, 12, picked a sour apple tree in which to do his endurance sitting and his managers complained today that they have to keep him supplied with candy and ice cream or he sickens himself on the green fruit. "The trunk of a tree next September may bring me down," Jimmy said today over his breakfast of soda pop and hot dogs.

Two Lamar Bank Bandits Hanged

CANON CITY, Colo., July 19.—George Absher and Howard L. Royston were executed on the gallows at the state penitentiary here last night for their part in the Lamar bank robbery murders.

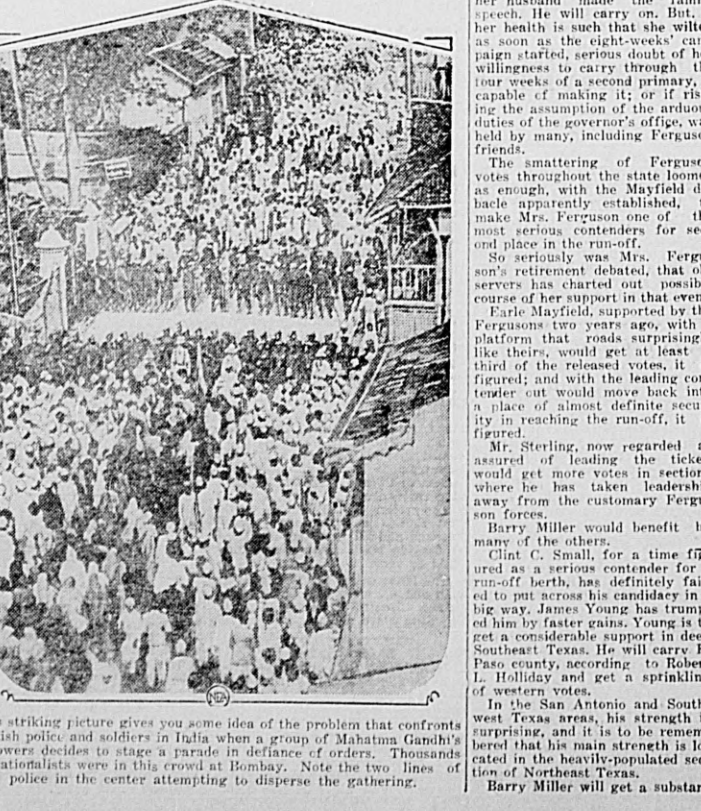

Like their leader, Ralph Fleagle, who was hanged last week, they paid the supreme penalty without a show of emotion.

Both embraced the Catholic faith. They were baptized by Father Regis Barrett, prison chaplain, and received the last sacraments of the church.

Warden Francis E. Crawford asked the pair who wished to walk to the gallows first.

Absher, composed, stepped forward. He was led to the death room. Thirteen minutes later he was pronounced dead by Dr. R. E. Holmes, prison physician.

British Check Natives In India

This striking picture gives you some idea of the problem that confronts British police and soldiers in India when a group of Mahatma Gandhi's followers decides to stage a parade in defiance of orders. Thousands of nationalists were in this crowd at Bombay. Note the two lines of police in the center attempting to disperse the gathering.

Nickel "Head" Quits Posing

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 19.—The "Buffalo Nickel Indian" Robert G. Harper has turned from a career modeling for artists to helping make plastic surgery within the reach of every man.

Harper, former local high school athlete and World War camouflage artist, has left Yale Art School, where he posed for sculpture classes, to become a "Plastic Surgeon's Plastic Expert" in the staff of the New York City Health Department, which hopes to bring such operations within the means of the average man.

Although not an Indian, Harper's appearance fulfills the common impression of an American Indian. In addition to posing for the head of the Indian on the five-cent piece, Harper has posed for many noted statues.

Law Breaks Heart Of Indian Chief

TOOLEE, Utah, July 19.—Dave Eagle, veteran chief of an Indian tribe living in Skull Valley, withstood numerous hardships through life, but continued strong and healthily until he encountered one result of white man's law.

One of his sons eloped with an Indian girl from the Bapah Indian school. Because of her tender age, a pale face court sent the youth to the Utah state penitentiary.

Tribesmen claimed this killed old Dave Eagle. The aged chief, who was born somewhere back in the late thirties, was grief-stricken. He lost interest in life, and spent most of his waking hours weeping. He refused medical aid or other attention, and died.

Dave Eagle was one of the most picturesque and best known characters in this vicinity. He was always a friend of the white man, even in the early days when pioneers struggled across the alkali deserts west of here, when most Indians in the mountain region were fierce and unfriendly to the oncoming white people.

Independence Hall Will Get Overhauling

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—Independence Hall, this city's leading point of interest and the nation's foremost historical shrine, is to get its usual coat of paint a year ahead of time this year as a result of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's visit to its sacred halls a few weeks ago.

This spring has witnessed the greatest influx of visitors experienced in recent years but following Byrd's trip through the building in which the Declaration of Independence was signed the daily crowds of sightseers has increased at least two-fold.

Coincident with this great reawakening of public spirit, there has been a revival of criticism of the condition of the buildings which comprise Independence Square.

People from the far west, the north and south, arriving here after long, weary rides in their automobiles, rather in knots and whisper that the famous belfry from which the message of liberty was tolled is drab and mottled in appearance. They seem shocked to find that the other towers which top the old Supreme Court building and Congress Hall are spotty and weather-beaten. Wandering under the archways connecting the buildings, they find that they too resemble the towers in their smudgy appearance.

Even these whispers and criticisms reached the ear of Charles W. Neeld, chief of the Bureau of City Property and resulted in his taking a tour of inspection through the buildings which annually attract thousands of visitors from all over the country. Following came his announcement that he had ordered the building painted from top to bottom, given any necessary repairs and generally overhauled.

The small army of men needed for the job will start work immediately but will plan their work so that they will in no way interfere with the host of visitors expected during the summer months.

For the most part the interior of the buildings is in good condition and it is expected that no scaffolds will have to be erected there. What scaffolding is necessary to reach the outside of the buildings will not be in the way.

STATE BRIEFS

HOUSTON, Tex., July 19.—Thomas L. Phinegan, 23, was found unconscious in his truck here early this morning with a fractured skull and cuts in the chest and face. It was thought that an automobile had hit the truck from behind, throwing him through the windshield.

WEIMAR, Germany, July 19.—Omar Watzold, manager of the Meuselwitz Foundry, committed suicide today by leaping into a cauldron of molten metal.

SWEETWATER, Tex., July 19.—A baseball team made up of a father and his nine sons will play county games in the near future. Wednesday, W. B. Hattergaves, 52, storekeeper at Maryneal, will captain his squad of batsmen, the youngest of whom is 30, and the youngest seven.

CRACKS IN THE DOME

AUSTIN, July 19.—More confused, rather than clarified, the governor's race is entering its final week, with its results admittedly more uncertain than of any previous campaign, both as to the two victors for place in the second primary, and the ultimate democratic nominee.

The past week has seen enough shifting and readjustment to put the guessing upon this rating:

1. R. S. Sterling.

2. Miriam A. Ferguson—with a gigantic "if" over the final week; James Young or Earle B. Mayfield.

3. Clint C. Small, Barry Miller or Thomas B. Love.

The "if" of the Ferguson race is: If Mrs. Ferguson finishes, she had become unable to appear for her address, and probably out of the personal campaign for the rest of the race. Of course her husband made the family speech. He will carry on, but her health is such that she will soon as the eight-weeks' campaign started, serious doubt of her willingness to carry through, if capable of making it; or if risking the assumption of the arduous duties of the governor's office, was held by many, including Ferguson friends.

The smattering of Ferguson votes throughout the state loomed as enough, with the Mayfield debacle apparently established, to make Mrs. Ferguson one of the most serious contenders for second place in the run-off.

So seriously was Mrs. Ferguson's retirement debated, that observers have charted out a possible course of her support in that event.

Earle Mayfield, supported by the Fergusons two years ago, with a platform that roads surprisingly like theirs, would get at least a third of the released votes, it is figured; and with the leading contender out would move back into a place of almost definite security in reaching the run-off, it is figured.

Mr. Sterling, now regarded as a sure bet of leading the ticket, would get more votes in sections where he has taken leadership away from the customary Ferguson forces.

Barry Miller would benefit by many of the others.

Clint C. Small, for a time figured as a serious contender for a run-off berth, has definitely failed to put across his candidacy in a big way. James Young has trumped him by faster gains. Young is to get a considerable support in deep Southeast Texas. He will carry El Paso county, according to Robert L. Holliday and get a sprinkling of western votes.

In the San Antonio and Southwest Texas areas, his strength is surprising, and it is to be remembered that his main strength is located in the heavily-populated section of Northeast Texas.

Barry Miller will get a substantial

Family Menu

EVERY housekeeper is alert for ways and means to simplify housekeeping and cooking during the summer months. Modern refrigeration makes many short-cuts possible, for foods can be cooked and stored ready to use over a period of several meals.

Meat loaves and "cold cuts" can be prepared to do duty for two or three days. Canned fish and meats are always available and can be used in salads, jellied meat loaves, in souffles or scalloped dishes and sandwiches.

Cold boiled potatoes are a worth while addition to the ice box. Creamed, in a salad, old-fashioned fried, hashed brown, a gratin—these dishes all are prepared with a minimum of effort from cold-boiled potatoes.

Keep Meats Moist

The care of meats after cooking is important if they are to remain attractive to the last morsel. They must be kept very cold in the first place to preserve them. Then they must be kept well covered to prevent drying and loss of flavor. With these two simple precautions, there need be no food spoilage and waste.

Cottage ham, Canadian bacon, corned beef, calves' tongue and small meat loaves are suited to the needs of small families. Large families will make use of large hams and beef tongue. Canadian hams bought in one large piece is delicious baked just as ham is. It should be soaked over night in cold water and baked in a slow oven. There is no waste of bone or fat and it slices easily in neat pieces for serving.

Corned beef can be bought in as many sizes as wanted. It should be freshened for several hours and put on to cook in cold water. Bring slowly to the boiling point and remove scum. Simmer until tender. Cool in the water in which it was cooked. Remove to a large plate or platter, cover with a second plate and weight. Press until cold and firm.

Use Mint With Lamb

Beef and calves' tongue can be bought salted or fresh. The salted or "pickled" tongue is always freshened before boiling. The fresh tongue is covered with boiling water and cooked slowly until tender. Salt is added, 3-4 teaspoon to a pound of meat, after the tongue has cooked about one hour. Remove skin and roots and serve sliced cold.

Veal and lamb make delicious jellied loaves. Mint can be added to a lamb loaf.

Baked loaves are often made of a combination of meats and can be served hot or cold. Veal loaf is delicate made entirely of veal and cracker crumbs. Beef loaf is hearty and satisfying. Ham loaf has the pleasant, smoked tang of ham and is liked when used in combination with a mild meat such as chicken.

A platter of assorted cold meats is most attractive for a Sunday breakfast or a company dinner through the week. When a number of persons must be served, the variety is warranted and is not an extravagance.

WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

MRS. L. STOCKTON

No wonder the record of Konjola the new and different medicine for stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness, fairly overflow with enthusiastic endorsements. For Konjola does make good even in the stubborn cases that have defied all else. Consider, for instance, the happy experience of Mrs. L. Stockton, 2108 North St. Paul St., Dallas, Texas, who says: "Konjola quickly proved to me that it is a fine medicine. I had indigestion and constipation; was generally run down, tired all the time and had no ambition. All that I tried gave only temporary relief. I actually thought there was nothing to help my case. To my astonishment I noted a great improvement after starting on Konjola. Now I eat anything without suffering; Konjola ended constipation and has given me a new lease on life."

Konjola does work quickly, for all of its 32 ingredients work as one. But a full treatment of from six to eight bottles is highly recommended for best results.

Konjola is sold in Eastland, Texas, by Toombs and Richardson Drug Store.

making my announcement for Eastland County Tax Collector, I am offering for an office that would be worth approximately $500,000.00 of the money that is derived from the county and see to it that I also apportion money collected to various such as jury fund, road and fund and courthouse fund.

Is candidate for Tax Collector of Eastland County.

I have qualified myself for this important place by hard work and constant study. After I was a man of 22 years of age, I started in the fourth or fifth grade to secure an education. I attended a boarding school at Scranton, and managed to complete my studies at that school by working as janitor, milking cows, sweeping floors, cooking and washing dishes for my board and tuition. On weeks days that I was not in school I actually grubbed, cut cord wood, and in fact did anything in order to get an education. This I continued until I received my diploma from a Junior College, afterwards teaching school for several years. As a deputy in the office and because I have applied myself and learned this work thoroughly, I am asking to be promoted to the head of this important office.

Will Wood Makes Announcement In Assessors Race

To the Voters of Eastland County: Early in the year I made my announcement through this paper for the office of Tax Assessor of Eastland County, subject to the action of the democratic primary on July 26, and told you then I would make my formal announcement at a later date, which I am now attempting to do.

I am a native of Eastland county, and have resided here all my life which is 37 years. My family consists of wife and two children.

I attended the public schools of Eastland county, where I received a high school education. I have been engaged to a large extent since 1919 in work connected with the leasing of lands for both individuals and oil companies, and other lines of business relating to the lands of Eastland county, and have become familiar with the lands of Eastland county.

This line of work has placed me in close touch with some of the larger tax payers of the county, and has been of great help to me in equipping myself for this character of work.

The duties of Tax Assessor is made clear in the statutes of our State, and I believe should be followed by him in the successful management of his office. I have no other policies or promises to make you other than good, faithful, energetic efforts to do the right thing in all my duties.

I believe a tax payer should be given a square deal, and with this in mind it would be my purpose to see that he gets it. It would be my purpose to represent each tax payer, as much so as the interest of the State and county, and would regard it so in my performance of the duties of the office.

This office, as well as all other public trusts, should be filled with men capable to do the work, and who would do it whole heartedly with fairness to every tax payer.

I regard every tax payer's rendition, when signed and filed with the tax assessor, as a sacred document, realizing that he had made it in good faith, and should his valuations be attempted to be raised, he should have a fair consideration, and his interest should be as much considered as if his title to his home was under investigation.

I believe in clean politics and have tried to conduct my campaign on a high level.

On account of a death in my family, following a long siege of sickness, I have not been able to see every voter, but I trust that this fact will not be held by you as an indication of my like of interest in your vote and influence. In this respect I have done the best I could under the circumstances.

If you see fit to elect me to this important place I feel that you will reflect nothing but good judgment in so doing.

I appreciate the interest you have manifested in me, and earnestly ask that you give me your vote in this election.

Sincerely your friend,
WILL M. WOOD.

Man Who Claims He Is 156 Years Old Visiting U.S.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Zaro Asha rubbed sleep from his aged Turkish eyes this morning and started out to show America how spry one can be at 156 if one really sets out to outdo Methuselah.

Zaro says he is 156 and has a high certificate and a passport to corroborate him. So that unless you are stopping in Billis, Asia Minor, on Feb. 16, 1774 and knew for a fact that the health department did not list his birth that day, you are in no position to dispute his claim.

The world's oldest resident took time off from his job as honorary door keeper at Constantinople's city hall to tour the United States in order to get a new set of false teeth and save up some money for his old age.

Zaro, a model Moslem, never touched a drop of liquor, he admits. His managers, all three of them, declare his tour is going to be dignified. They say they have refused offers from amusement companies and publicity seeking organizations, but will let their proteges appear before medical clinics so that the country's physicians may get first hand information how to live to be 156.

Zaro was brought to this country by Assim Pedvan, importer of Turkish antiquities. He had to leave his wife a mere girl of 69 behind. The present Mrs. Agha is No. 12, the other 11 having died.

In his prime, at 145, Zaro weighed 212 and was 6 feet tall. He has shrunk slightly since then, but seems to be in good condition. The immigration doctor who examined him found a slight hardening of the arteries, the only one of common defects of old age he possessed.

Zaro has never been a believer in the theory about "one crowded hour of glorious life." He has spread his into three centuries and admits to taking part in 14 wars.

During his military days, he says, he fought Napoleon's forces in Syria, and opposed the Greek rebels whose cause was espoused by Lord Byron.

The Southern Cross' Last Flight

Here is probably the last picture you will ever see of Major Charles Kingsford-Smith, famous aviator, with the plane Southern Cross in which he flew around the world. This picture was taken as Kingsford-Smith landed the historic plane at Santa Maria, Calif., and presented it to G. Allan Hancock, wealthy Santa Maria, oil man and sportsman who originally donated it, and who will now place it in a museum. Left to right are Hancock, Radio Operator John Stannage, Navigator J. P. Saul and Kingsford-Smith.

When Bobby Came Home

The picture shows how Atlanta welcomed home Bobby Jones when he returned Monday bringing with him the American Open, the British Open and the British Amateur Golf Championships. Bobby is reviewing the triumphal procession held in his honor. Shown with him are his wife and their two children, Clara Malone Jones and Bobby Jones III.

Judith Grant, artist's model, loves Alan Steyne, painter, who is also loved by Chummy Morley, Judith's best friend. Chummy had loved Steyne years ago, and had lost her memory when he went away; so, though Steyne loves Judith, Judith insists it is his duty to marry Chummy, who regains her memory when she sees him again. Judith studies dancing and makes a sensation in a musical show backed by Richard Wyon, Chummy, on the eve of her marriage, sees Judith in Steyne's arms and breaks the engagement. Steyne begs Judith to marry him but she refuses, telling him he belongs to Chummy. Bastien Dumont, young artist who loves Judith, takes her to an artists' ball. He learns that Wyon is really the agent of Bruce Gideon, rich financier, who has been infatuated with Judith for a long time, and on the afternoon of the ball he sees Judith coming out of Gideon's house. CHAPTER XXXIII

The supper room was long and narrow. Half of it was taken up with tables, covered with red-and-blue-checked tablecloths. At the farther end there was a kind of alcove, with a window looking into a disused timber yard. The window

Does a Low Blow Hurt?

INTERESTING testimony comes from the Rhineland where the French army of occupation has just evacuated and Maxie Schmelting has moved in. Herr Doktor have examined the Hamburg Hammerer and discover he is suffering a varicocele as a result of that low blow of Sharkey's. This comes on the heels of assertions by some of the country's most expert boxing writers to the effect that a low blow does not hurt a man and that he can go on with a bout after a short rest. And it is most interesting in view of the recent decision of the New York Boxing Commission to abolish the foul as a cause for stopping a fight.

It Had to Be Done

I DO not believe the protector has been invented that absolutely protects a fighter from injury by a low blow. It is true, of course, that many boxers claim fouls who are not hurt at all. They leave the ring on their own power a few minutes after they claim foul. It was with the idea of protecting the public against this type of unsatisfactory ending to a bout that the commission legislated so sternly against all fouls. It was a long step but something had to be done.

In this regard I asked Paul Swiderski, the Sad-Eyed Pole of Syracuse, the other day if he had been struck low in many of his fights and how it felt. Paul is a light-heavyweight, but he has been battling heavies for some time and his rousing knock-down-draw-out at Louisville the night before the Kentucky Derby was a spectacle I'll never forget.

Mick Handed Him One

"SURE low blow hurt," said Paul, "and I still carry the effects of one that Mickey Walker handed me in Louisville. The fight, as you remember, was conducted without very many rules to speak of. Once the police were in the ring, once Kearns and Lenny (Harry Lenny, the Pole's manager) started trading socks right in the ring. Each of us bounced off the floor a number of times. I had Walker out on his feet early in the bout, and he was fighting in there by instinct most of the time.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

WHEN Washington held a "Joe Judge" day recently in honor of the veteran's 15 years of service, Uncle Frank Navin of the Tigers and Foxy Clark Griffith of the Senators waived all intake at the gate over 9000 admissions in favor of Joe. The attendance was around 13,600 and Joe got a nice check for $7442.75 which is better than flowers and speeches. Bucky Harris, looking ahead, is giving Jimmy Shovin, first baseman from Holy Cross, a taste of the big league sauce. Gene DeSautels, the new Tiger catcher, also is a Holy Cross boy. Muddy Ruel says the kid will be a great catcher. Roger Bresnahan, coach of the Tigers, has been giving Gene a few tricks he learned when he was catching Matty. Saltee, Margard and a few of the other Giant hurlers. Uncle Frank Navin seems to have the inside track at Holy Cross.

"Well, just as the bell rang ending the third round, Mickey left a wild one go and it took me right in the groin. I went over on my face and felt very sick to my stomach, but they pulled me over to my corner and after they spilled a little water on my head, I felt all right again.

Carries the Mark

"BUT I'm still carrying the mark of that punch, and it was a pretty good sock, too, because Walker can jolt you when he lets one go. My injury and Schmelting's are about alike. But I don't think one low punch will stop a fighter. If he has the right kind of a protector. And the right kind of heart."

I think the Sad-Eyed Pole's last sentence speaks volumes. It was largely because boxers have shown consistently the wrong kind of hearts that the rules against foul blows was enacted. The heart, I think, is even more essential than the protector.

There was a hubbub for a short time, and among the little crowd of friends there was immense surprise. It was so unlike Bastien! He was such a quiet fellow, and they knew that he adored Judy. Many of the other people, however, thought it rather a storm in a teacup. They knew it as a matter of common gossip that Bruce Gideon was "running" the little dancer. Dumont had drunk too much, had got excited, and had made a fool of himself. Well, he would have a head in the morning, and would feel very sorry for himself. Meanwhile, on with the dance!

By Rodney Dutcher

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Major-General Irving E. Booth, who has become assistant chief of staff in the U. S. army without ever graduating from West Point, used to be driving a laundry wagon around the streets of Pueblo, Colo.
He always knew his horses. At the age of 5 he rode horseback from Texas to Kansas with his father, who was in the horse and cattle business and frequently drove herds to Kansas and Missouri.
"Nobody ever walked them," the general recalls. "The cattle never had seen anyone on foot and they'd take after you."
Stopped Playing Polo
Now he umpires most of the army's polo games in Washington. He used to play polo himself, but once he saw an elderly general still trying to play and heard another officer yell: "Get out of the way and let the general hit it!" So Booth quit before his game began to suffer.
He was born in Kansas in 1880 and raised in Kansas and Texas. At about 17 he took a west-bound train and got off at Pueblo for no particular reason. Not knowing anyone and being very nearly broke he was glad to take a job clerking in a shoe store and he kept that for two years. The employment annoyed him, however, and when the foreman of the Pueblo Steam Laundry offered him the driving job he snapped it right up.
Wagon driving was very good pay, the general recalls. He made $20 a week plus certain commissions which tended to keep the horses galloping. Not only was it very fine, outdoor work, but he knew nearly everyone in town who sent their laundry out, including most of the very best people. And it wasn't so long before he had saved enough money to buy an interest another laundry, which he owned and operated for years.

He became a member of the Colorado National Guard and the popular young man who had driven everybody's laundry around town successively a lieutenant and the captain of his company. He served against striking miners at Cripple Creek and Leadville in the middle nineties.
Along came the Spanish War and he went to the Philippines with the 1st Colorado Volunteer Infantry. A Booth today says he owes his elevation to such high rank to "just luck." Other officers attribute it to his capacity for hard, important work of an unspectacular nature. But he has also had considerable initiative and it began to crop out in the Philippines.
In 1899 he was captain of the 36th U. S. Volunteer Infantry and the militiamen were about to be sent home. Booth thought he could create a new regular company out of the militia regiments and he wrote the suggestion to General Otis, commanding the Philippine department. The colonel of his regiment said in effect that Captain Booth was crazy and that everyone wanted to go home, but Booth was authorized to go ahead and organize after Otis had cabled Washington for the permission. Booth astonished everyone; by the time he had finished he had organized three new regiments.
Between June, 1918, and June, 1919, he rose from the captaincy to be a brigadier-general. After serving at Governor's Island and Camp Upton he commanded the Eighth brigade of the Fourth division in such major engagements as St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne offensive. He commanded the right column of the American army which went into Germany. Later he was made chief of the Service of Supply in France and had the large job of getting the A. E. F. out of the country and embarked for home.

FASHIONS

Styles of the Moyennage Play Up to the Delusion of Grandeur

By FRANCES PAGET

Copyright 1930, by Style Sources NEW YORK, July 19.—Since it has become a fad to look backward in a clothes sense, there seems to be no limit to the distance of years or centuries which fashion may annihilate to appropriate any picturesque idea which obsesses her.

It started with a throw-back to the gay nineties and a pulling in of the waist and a letting down of the skirt, but now we are aping the classic themes of ancient Greece, growing Directorial at a moment's notice, and affecting Empire style data the next, so that the present style slogan seems to be "Take your pick of any period."

The newest period influence which has emerged, naturally by way of the Paris medesaison openings seems to suggest a re-creation of some of the delusions of grandeur in the clothes of the Middle Ages.

Delusion or not, we are doing grand lady stuff in our late afternoon clothes. They are becoming so formal that it looks as if women must take themselves very seriously in the daytime as well as the evening.

Unquestionably many women suffer from the delusion that they can be picturesque, and this appetite must be satisfied, for them the Moyennage themes are the newest phase of the picture type. The long flowing skirts spreading to a wide hemline at ground, the much trimmed phases of bodice treatments, the long sleeves, especially when treated with dignified puffs, have character which may be interpreted as giving importance to the personality. Stiff velvets, rich brocades and the hand-loomed fabrics which have come in this season make further reference to this much dressed-up era.

NEW YORK, July 19.—When fashion has reached any extreme, it is only logical to look for the corresponding reaction. So when skirts get short, shorter, shorter, in comes the longer skirt movement—using the same formula, when the décolletage has reached its exaggerations of the last seasons when many of the formal gowns might be considered backless, it is time to expect a return to more demure design. We have been expecting it, and here is Paris with its ingenious suggestions for veiling some of the exposed spaces.

Contouriers had already shown this tendency last season in raising the cut of necklines for daytime, even to binding the throat in some instances and recently Chanel has been partial to the draping crossing the neckline at front and drop-are expressive of the current idea that one's jewels should contrast rather than match one's costume. Necklaces have lengthened almost to the waist. Bracelets remain heavy and usually in cuff like forms, while earrings are longer and not infrequently of the shower variety. One large ring rather than several small ones remains the preference and it is expected that new necklines will bring in a stronger demand for brooches. The clip is still being worn at shoulder or anywhere one feels impelled to place it.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

A WHITE CREPE dress accented by a cluster of drooping black velvet petals at the V neck, an onyx and marcasite clip and black suede belt was noted at the Meadow Club of Southampton.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Who says simple things have gone out of fashion? What is more simple than a sunbonnet and what is more simple than a large Terry cloth towel as a beach throw? One finds them both on fashionable beaches and is inspired to trace them to their source in town with the result that one learns the rest of the world has been or is engaged in the same lively pursuit. These towels are extremely decorative, usually in bold colors stripping a white background, although there are the usual exceptions to this rule. They are fringed at either end with narrow cotton fringe and are being worn in fashion across the back. The customary enormous hat usually is worn.

That pajamas and sunbonnets do not seem to belong together there is no denying, yet they are being worn—also sunbonnets with gay overalls. One's mission this season it to contribute something of a costume party aspect to the beach and anything that is picturesque is admitted to the gay carnival.

While most beaches have "dogs not allowed" signs at their approach there is no ban against the most monstrous rubber animals, and many a rubber sea dog rides the waves as well as the beach. Horses and all manner of animals calculated to rival the inevitable sea serpent scheduled to appear every season off some beach.

Redheaded Pep Makes Musical Romance Smash

"Rarin' to Go!" Clara Bow and a gang of Paramount's most convincing comedians, including Mitzi Green, Skeets Gallagher and Stuart Erwin, the dumb Axel of "Sweetie," are coming to the Lyric theatre starting today for 2 days, in one of the "It" girl's biggest hits, "Love Among the Millionaires."

Full of the real redheaded zipper and throbbing love, "Love Among the Millionaires" is really Clara Bow's first musical romance. Introduced effectively as a screen singer of note in "Paramount on Parade" and then in "True to the Navy," Clara Bow now steps forth as the "New Anna Held," gloriously radiant with a voice that puts a quartette of hot hit ballads over as no other could.

"Rarin' to Go!" is only one of them, but this song, a real jazzy dance number, probably gives the greatest play to the Bow personality. Then "Believe It or Not, I've Found My Man," is a joyous lyric of the scorch type. Clara follows this with a rendition of the radio riot, "That's Worth While Waiting For." The theme song of the picture, "That's Love Among the Millionaires," is her fourth number.

"Love Among the Millionaires" has a true Bow throb story. Clara, unwittingly, falls in love with a brakeman on the railroad, Stanley Smith, who turns out to be the son of the president of the road. Neither Stanley's father nor Clara's approves of the match and a deal of family complication ensues before the matter is finally straightened out to the satisfaction of everyone.

Little Mitzi Green, who won hearts everywhere with her imitation of Charlie Mack of Moran and Mack, of Chevalier and Heien Kane in "Paramount on Parade," mimicks Clara Bow in this picture, and sings a song, "Don't be a Meanie," which rivals Jack Oakie's "Alma Mammy" in "Sweetie." Skeets Gallagher, Oakie's pal in "Fast Company" and "The Lion" has a strong comedy role with Stuart Erwin. Both these young men are candidates for the hand of Clara Bow and their intense rivalry provides a running fire of comedy.

A 75-Pound Bouncing Baby

Cute little rascal, isn't he? Baby Albert, who weighed 75 pounds at birth, is shown here in his first picture with his mother. He's the seventh child born in a dozen years to Venus and Adonis, veteran hippos of the Memphis, Tenn., zoo, and is valued at $3000. Mother and son are doing nicely, thank you.

What! Another Championship?

Mrs. Harrison Issues Formal Announcement

To the Voters of Eastland County: I am a candidate for the office of County Treasurer of Eastland County, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary. I earnestly solicit your vote and influence, feeling that I am entirely capable of performing efficiently all the duties of that office.

I ask your support because I believe that I can give satisfaction, and if I am elected, I will devote a full measure of my time and attention to performing the duties of County Treasurer.

Since I was eight years old I have been a resident of Eastland County, and it was here that I received the education and the experience that fit me to fill the office of County Treasurer. My father, Richard Gray, gave good service for two terms as County Clerk of this county. During one of these terms I assisted my father in his work. I have served as postmaster at Rising Star and at Ranger. I was at one time manager of the Eastland Telephone Exchange. For the past two years I have served as Deputy Clerk of the Court of Civil Appeals at Eastland. I feel that these various types of public service will make me better able to perform the duties of the office which I now seek.

I am a widow, entirely dependent upon my earnings for support. I need this office to complete the payments on my home and on one business building. I own no other property of any kind. No such personal consideration, however, would influence me to seek a position as County Treasurer if I did not feel capable of rendering efficient service in that office. I am genuinely interested in the welfare and progress of our county, and I know that it is worthy of the most honest and loyal public officers. If you see fit to elect me as one of these officers, I will give you my best service at all times. My record is entirely open for your examination. I invite your investigation of the statements
