MOTORMAN RUNS CAR OVER HIS WIFE, KILLS HER Bank Messenger Is Shot and Killed By Bandits

Woman Hurlled In Front of Car By Passing Auto

Motorman, Recognizing Her As His Wife, Applies Brakes, But to No Avail.

ELKHART, Ind., Aug. 3.—As Robert Dollar, motorman, piloted his street car past his home on next to the final trip last night he heard the shrieks of an automobile's brakes. Peering through the rainy window before him he saw the body of a woman hurled from a fender of the machine to the car tracks.

Dollar applied brakes with full force but the wet rails gave poor traction. Then the lights fell on the form and Dollar recognized his wife, Nana G., 23. She was following her usual custom of leaving their two children, six and two years old, at home with a brother, to ride the last trip with her husband.

Wheels of the street car whirled helplessly in reverse and the crawling carried the form 50 feet.

Dollar leaped from the car, made beneath the running gear and dragged the mangled form out just before she died.

Robert De Freese, 20, Elkhart, was driver of the automobile which struck Mrs. Dollar.

The body was to be sent to Humboldt, Tenn., early today for burial.

WILL AGAIN SELECT JURY FROM WHEEL

Method Abandoned in County Sometime Ago, Restored by Recent Law—Wheel Filled This Week.

The jury wheel method of selecting jurors, abandoned some years ago in Eastland county when lawyers picked a flaw in the law then governing its use, is again in effect under a new law passed by the recent legislature.

The present law requires that between August 1 and 15 of each year, the county clerk, district clerk, tax collector, tax assessor and sheriff, or a duly qualified deputy of each shall place the name of each resident taxpayer of the county excepting women, and without attention to color, in the jury wheel and that jurors to be summoned for service in the various courts of the county during the year, be drawn from the contents of the wheel.

The wheel was being filled Friday and Saturday. Assistant county clerk, Walter Gray, estimated that at least 8,000 names would be placed in the wheel and that 6,000 of these are qualified jurors.

Hunt Treasure Believed Hidden By Harry Leahy
MRS. RAMSEY SAID SHE WAS TRYING TO GET IN TOUCH WITH RANGER CAPT. FRANK HAMER, WHO SHE INFORMED, WAS TOLD BY LEAHY ON THE NIGHT OF THE EXECUTION OF THE LOCATION OF PAPERS AND JEWELRY BELONGING TO DR. RAMSEY.

The papers and jewelry, along with money belonging to Leahy, are supposed to be buried in pickle jars, Mrs. Ramsey said.

Mrs. Ramsey pointed out that Leahy went to Laredo a short time after the murder to get a ticket for his auto which a Mexican had parked in a San Antonio garage. It was on this trip to Laredo that Leahy buried the papers which he is supposed to have forced Dr. Ramsey to sign and the jewelry taken from his body, the widow believes. The search is planned both in Mexico and in Texas, she said.

Mrs. Ramsey hopes to accompany Capt. Hamer, if he will permit it, and when he makes a search for the "pickle jars."

Mrs. Ramsey said the entire countryside in the vicinity of the crime has been dug up in search for the missing papers and jewelry.

If Hamer does not conduct a search, one will be made by Sheriff Frank Hunt of San Patricio county, the widow said.

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 3.—"I hope he finds it," was Ranger Capt. Frank Hamer's only comment when shown a dispatch from Corpus Christi telling of a hunt for possessions supposed to have been buried by Harry J. Leahy. Hamer persists in his silence regarding what Leahy told him shortly before going to the electric chair. It was confidential, Hamer insists.

Mrs. J. A. Ramsey, widow of the man Leahy was convicted of slaying, had not communicated with Hamer today.

ATTACK ON WIFE LANDS MAN IN JAIL

Charge of Aggravated Assault Filed by 14 Year Old Girl to Protect Her Mother.

Slipping away from home at 1 o'clock in the morning and walking alone several miles through the country, 14-year old Bernice Edmondson brought word to the officers at Eastland that her father, G. B. Edmondson, was beating her mother with a six-shooter and threatening to kill her.

As a result of the child's efforts to protect her mother Edmondson is facing a charge of aggravated assault, filed in Justice of the Peace Jim Steele's court and Saturday morning was being held in the Eastland county jail, not having given bond. The charge was filed by Bernice.

The Edmondsons reside on what is known as the Iron Watson farm, near Fir, in the southeastern portion of the county. Besides Bernice there are six other children, two of them married and living away from home.

According to the story told Justice of the Peace Jim Steele, by Bernice, who with her married sister, Mrs. William Reid, came to Steele's home in Eastland at 1:30 o'clock Friday morning, she awoke in the night to find her father beating and abusing her mother and threatening to kill her in an adjoining room. Becoming fearful for her mother's life, she slipped away and walked two or three miles across the country to Mrs. Reid's home and informed her of what was happening. The two women then got in the Reid car and drove to Eastland. Officers went to the Edmondson home and arrested Edmondson.

Since Edmondson's arrest his wife, Mrs. Ernie Edmondson, has filed suit in the 88th district court at Eastland for divorce, charging cruel treatment. She also asks for a division of the community property, which her petition alleges consists of some livestock, farming implements, household goods, etc., and for custody of the children. Edmondson is said to have waived service in the suit against him.

Incidentally it is one of the best in this country and is capable of making ascensions of 400 to 500 feet without a motor. ## Telegram Carrier Boys Engage In Travel Contest

Five newspapers of the Oil Belt are sending a group of boys to the Carlsbad Cavern, August 31. Each paper will be represented by one carrier boy from its regular carrier staff.

The journey will be made by auto and will be attended by a newspaper man. The return trip will probably take the boys through El Paso and Juarez to attend the celebration in the latter city on Labor Day. It will give the lads a chance to study deeper into the modern art of bull fighting—which is a popular feature on all holidays in this foreign city.

Each paper is conducting its contest independently. Only on the trip will the boys join together in making the trip.

The contest as conducted by the Eastland Telegram will cover a period of four weeks during which the time eight carriers of the Telegram will vie for first honors soliciting new subscriptions.

Due to the fact that all expenses are being paid by the Telegram, which is naturally the most interesting detail of the offer as far as the boys are concerned, a hard race is expected among them to determine who will make this sight-seeing tour to the eighth wonder of the world and the sights of a foreign land, something too many of us can't brag about having seen.

The contest opens in earnest tomorrow morning at 8 a. m. and closes Friday evening at 6 p. m. August 30.

Free Trip to Carlsbad Cavern and Old Mexico, Is Prize for the Winner.

The Graf Zeppelin, her average speed since she left Friedrichshafen, Germany, for Lakehurst, N. J., cut down to less than 50 miles an hour by head winds, was making steady but slow progress toward the coast of the United States late Saturday.

The position of the Graf Zeppelin at 4 a. m. EST, was placed definitely by advices relayed from the dirigible via the S. S. Scythia. The Graf Zeppelin at that hour was in latitude 35.20 north, longitude 37.20 west, a position 500 statute miles southwest of Fayal, Azores, and 2,015 southeast in a direct line from Lakehurst.

Position reports from the dirigible were meager, as radio communication was spasmodic, but the Zeppelin was expected to be in constant touch as she neared the American coast.

At the time of the Scythia's report the Graf Zeppelin had traveled approximately 2,700 miles from Friedrichshafen, in 54 1/2 hours, or an average speed of little better than 49 miles an hour.

It is probable that the Zeppelin will take the route via Bermuda to Lakehurst, which would make the traveling distance from her 4 a. m. position nearly 3,000 miles. Unless her speed increases, it would take 60 hours to get to Lakehurst, making the time of her arrival about 4 p. m. Monday.

If the Zeppelin strikes north of Bermuda, however, the mileage will be cut down considerably and her arrival consequently earlier, possible Monday morning or Sunday night.

On her trip in October, 1928, when storms forced her out of her course, the Zeppelin traversed approximately 4,300 miles and took 111 hours 38 minutes for the trip.

Pair Seen To Fire On Man, Snatch Payroll

Factory Payroll of More Than $7,000 Taken by Robbers.

BRADLEY BEACH, N. J., Aug. 3.—Bandits today shot and killed George Danielson, 65-year old bank messenger, escaped with a $7,100 payroll and left their crime for "Philo Vance" himself to solve.

Willard Huntington Wright is police commissioner here. He also writes detective stories under the name of S. S. Van Dine with Vance as his principal character and super-leuth.

Here are the facts of the holdup and killing as Wright found them.

Danielson, employed by the First National bank, was shot down by two men who had been following him, as he was about to enter the factory of Steiner and Sons with the payroll.

The robbers escaped, presumably with a confederate or two, in a sedan later found abandoned. A panama hat was discovered in the car, as were two Pennsylvania license plates.

Two young women, Pauline Miholec and Eleanor Lanning, looked out of a Steiner factory window and saw the two well dressed men, one with a small mustache, fire at the messenger. He dropped and as he did so the men snatched up the payroll in a canvas sack and ran to the car.

George B. Bennett, passerby, ran to Danielson, who gasped "they got me and the payroll both. Get them." The messenger died soon afterward.

Eleven Year Old Boy Charged With Murder.
OLEUN, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Eleven-year old Arthur Gerkin of Rochester may face trial for the murder of Henry Kling, 13, whom he fatally wounded last week in an attempt to frighten him from the farm where Arthur was visiting.

Adjudged a normal bright boy by Dr. Clara Harrison after a psychological test, it was expected Arthur would be submitted to the course of the law. Today he spent most of his time in the salvation army headquarters, his present prison, sobbing over his deed and fearing with childish horror a vision of execution.

On to Mexico
"On to Mexico" was the slogan before Texas became a sovereign state of the union. The sword bladed the way. Now "On to Mexico" is the slogan of the American of today. The motor car not only points the way but carries the passengers.

It is said American automobile tourists will be able to drive from El Paso through one of the richest agricultural and mining sections of Mexico if plans under consideration in Mexico City for construction of roads in the states of Durango, Nuevo Leon, Tamaulipas and Chihuahua are carried out.

Government aid has been promised and the governors of the interested states will meet at Toronto to arrange for early beginning of work.

Breckenridge Woman Now Gives Out Facts

Mrs. L. C. Chauncey Says Her Son Is Not Like Different Man Since Taking Orgatone

Among the many well-known Breckenridge people who have given their endorsement to Orgatone is Mrs. J. C. Chauncey, mother of J. M. Chauncey truck driver for the Magnolia Oil Co., and residing at the corner of Seventh and Park Avenue, Breckenridge, Texas. My son has only been taking Orgatone a few weeks, but I can see a big change in him in every way and several of his friends have told him he looks better than he has in months. He had been in a general run-down condition, weak and nervous for two years or more and was gradually getting worse all the time. He suffered from stomach trouble and indigestion and had fear of pain around his heart at times, caused by the cause on his stomach. He was so nervous and restless he could hardly sleep at all. He had intense pains in the pit of his stomach and was losing weight and strength right along. He would get up in the morning all tired out and could not get through with his work without stopping to rest. His cheeks were getting hollow and I could see he was losing ground all the time. I had become uneasy and would do for my son. Well, I am glad to be able to say he already looks like a new man and seems better in every way than he has since his troubles began. He has no more trouble after eating Orgatone and the pains are rapidly disappearing from his stomach. His nervousness about gone, he sleeps well at night and don't complain of feeling tired and worn out like he did. Orgatone seems to be exactly what he needed and is giving him back his health and strength as fast as we could expect. I am glad to recommend Orgatone, for it is the only medicine that has ever done my son any real good and I can't say too much for it. Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs manufactured by one of the greatest laboratories and sold exclusively by Tombs and Richardson Drug Co.

Editor Gene Howe, as 'Old Talk,' Has Reached the Entire World

BY GILBERT SWAN NEA Service Writer AMARILLO. — The unpretentious office of "Kernel E. Erasmus Tack" is more accustomed to the presence of suspenders than of silk hats. And by reaching the man who comes driving into town in his gulluses, Gene Howe, otherwise "Old Tack," editor of the Amarillo Globe-News, has succeeded in reaching the world. He has dressed his words and ideas in the homespun of the people and thus, here in an embryonic metropolis of the prairie, has made himself an outstanding and picturesque figure in American journalism. His procedure is a combination of Abe Lincoln, Will Rogers, comic strip and human interest. His growth as a sort of plains idol is based on a shrewd knowledge of the individual and his reactions. He has made himself the sympathetic aide in any situation "where a feller needs a friend." He Likes to Help Perhaps even a shorter cut to an explanation of the national position he has achieved in this remote spot can be found in his own definition of a "perfect day." "Not long ago, on a certain Thursday, I had a perfect day," he announced. "On that day I helped find six lost dogs, participated in the repair of four or five broken dolls, found a couple of fellows a job and patched up a couple of broken hearts so that all concerned left the office in charge of a minister." "Which may help to explain why, just a few months ago, a delegation of 100 school children was taken on a pilgrimage to his editorial shrine—after a journey of many miles from the hinterlands. It may also help to explain why, upon the approach of a birthday, when he published in his daily column an item mentioning his fondness for chocolate cake, some 60 cakes came walking into his office fresh from the oven. A Statue of Ben Turpin And when you learn that he then took the cakes to an orphanage he is particularly interested in, you will understand still better. This newspaper shrine, by the way, is the usual fragile 10 by 12 coop on the outskirts of an editorial room. On his desk is a particularly cross-eyed statuette of Ben Turpin. A darling of this comic also heads his column. On a more personal desk is a framed copy of "The Cowboy's Prayer." One wall is covered with paintings of a duck country which, to all appearances, must be a "happy hunting ground," since birds are thicker than the famous plague of locusts. If you don't believe the painting, he'll take you out a photo album showing camera shots of a duck country where ducks look like mosquitoes in a Jersey swamp. On an opposite wall are a few cartoons and, over his chair, a photo of his father, Ed Howe, the famous Kansas editor, who has said that "Old Tack," "You're a better man than I am." "Old Tack," by the way, grew out of an original signature which announced him as "the tactless Texan." His column had a habit of talking out of turn. It was humorously, but avidly, against him. He was well aware that close to the individual man—his economic soundness and the individual man wants a job things he and his family love. He loves his children and his pets—his dogs and cats and birds. So do his children. A lost child is a city-wide tragedy, anywhere on this map. A lost dog is a family tragedy in any home. And so the whole countryside reports its lost dogs and children—and has come to report its lost loves and lost jobs. I am told that the column has cost up to $12,000 a year—helping men get jobs, helping take care of orphaned children, helping the poor and helping on one thing or another. Whenever a dog is lost Tack stands willing to add $2 to any reward that may be put up. Whenever a man loses his job, Tack helps him get another. His office is a floating stream of men in overalls and women in gingham aprons. Defended Scolding Child Not so long ago a school took a class of its pupils to visit him—for he is visited by thousands of adoring followers. The story goes

Haugland-Crichton Crash

This picture shows the tragic ending of the refueling endurance flight undertaken by Captain P. L. Crichton and Owen Haugland at Minneapolis, Minn., which resulted in death for both flyers when their plane crashed after being in the air 154 hours. Captain Crichton, piloting the ship at the time, was killed instantly and Haugland died a few hours later.

that "Old Tack" happened to be sitting with his feet on the desk. Some urchin began to chuckle and to comment on his "big feet." The teacher reprimanded the child and suspended him from school for a few days. When "Old Tack" heard about this, he took the side of the child and not the teacher. He came out flatly on the program that there's too much bunk in this country, that the child was right—he did have big feet. His argument with Mary Garden became nationally famous. So did his commentaries that Lindbergh had "the swelled head." So did his satiric "Boob Oil Company." The latter made its appearance when boobs the country over were tossing their money into speculative oil operations at a time when the Bib Boom hit this section. Tack had intended to make these in-secure ventures humorous. Announcing his own "boob" company, he stipulated that every investor would become a vice president. The stock was actually sold over night. A bit of oil land was purchased and worked. It began coming in. There was some dispute over the boundary lines—but, anyhow, the oil had run out. Admits His Defects His humorous attacks on individuals and civic movements have often threatened animosities. But whatever the reply, he has faithfully printed it—adding that whatever comments may have been made about him they were probably right. He had admitted variously being "all wet" and a "sap" and a great many other things he doubtless isn't. He has kidded himself in the same column that he has poked fun at others and thus has softened the blow. He refers to his wife as "O. W." (old woman) and his child as "lollapalooza"—to say nothing of his mother-in-law. His theory is that most readers pick up newspaper columns to be entertained and that fun is all too rare in this realm. That—and the appeal to the individual with a problem on his mind! In addition to his Amarillo papers, he publishes The Globe, his father's former newspaper, in Atchison, Kas., The Falls City (Neb.) Journal on which his father once worked as a printer and is interested in other Texas papers.

time but every indication points to absolute success in at least a 90 per cent control. Results at this time justify the recommendation that every acre possible be dusted immediately following a seven day interval until three dustings have been given, regardless of moisture conditions. Six to eight pounds arsenic are to be applied each time. The total cost for poison should be around $150 per acre for three treatments. The period of dry hot weather just experienced indicates that contrary to the customary belief these conditions do not check weevil infestation. To Dr. S. P. Rumph, president of the Carbon State Bank is largely due the credit for the success of this demonstration. He has been with the duster every time it has entered a new field he it day or night.

Our Methods of Education All 'Bad' Says Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Modern methods of education are all wrong, according to Alonzo B. See, elevator manufacturer, noted for a rugged individuality in views on the rising generation, schools and women. See not only attacks the entire educational system in his new book "School," but offers the ideal school which he names "Grace-land." A nation must be saved, See declares in his foreword, and to accomplish this "The children must be saved from their mothers and from pedagogues, the women must be reduced from themselves and the men must rule their homes again." "It is hard to conceive how the schools could be worse than they are—worse for the children, worse for the parents, worse for the taxpayers, worse for the country," the elevator maker writes. "The public schools are directed entirely by the state superintendent of schools. The main reason why the public schools have deteriorated so greatly is that these men are of a low order of intelligence. There are 600,000 scholars. The harm the state superintendents of schools do these children is to rob them of their native mental alertness, their keenness of perception, their mental flexibility, to lessen their mental capacity for all the years to come, to sadden their lives, injure permanently their eyes, their nerves, their hearts and their whole physical systems, to cause some to have nervous prostration, some to go insane, some to commit suicide and with it to deprive the children of a real education to which they are justly entitled." "School histories should be written by the best writers for the newspapers and magazines, written in their attractive style which awakens interest and leads on with unflagging interest to the conclusion of the pleasure of reading." There would be only a few teachers in Grace-land the ideal school. WILSONA, Mich., Aug. 3.—Possibility that Frank Leonard, 60-year old recluse and religious fanatic may have committed suicide by gouging out his own eyes, was seen here today in the report of state criminal apprehension agents to Winona county authorities. The coroner's report of Leonard's death said that he met death from the shock of losing his eyes, which apparently "had been popped out as with a dull instrument such as the fingers."

Fighting Boll Weevils With Deadly Poisons

Dusting With Calcium Arsenate Believed to Be Successful Against Cotton Pests. Effective control of boll weevil by dusting with calcium arsenate is being demonstrated in the Carbon section this season. Fully 90 per cent of forms in dusted cotton are free of weevil damage whereas in adjoining undusted fields less than 10 per cent is undamaged according to J. C. Patterson, county agent. Only this year has the Texas Experiment Station given any encouragement to the use of weevil poisoning when there was not dew on the cotton regularly. In an experiment conducted at McHenry last year the unpoisoned check plot gave an acre yield of 135 pounds of seed cotton, while that dusted only when it was dry made an increase of over 600 pounds and that dusted when there was dew made an increase of about 700 per acre. Indicating that dry dusting is profitable. Last year at Carbon E. R. Trimble picked a 500 pound bale from one acre which was fertilized and dusted, convincing those interested that dry dusting would doubtless pay here. These results led the First State Bank of Carbon to purchase a five row duster which has been in use day and night for three weeks. This has given the third dusting at seven day intervals to over 500 acres of cotton. It is now believed that three dustings are sufficient. Final results that will determine the degree of success will be shown at the scale at picking that Molly was looking straight at Jack. Only Red Flynn knew. And Mr. Durbin, perhaps.

"This is Mr. George Flynn," she told them, "only everybody calls him Red. He wrote half the play, but he's very modest."

But Jack, with his heart in his mouth, was only thinking of how beautiful she looked. How like a princess out of a fairy tale, with her green dress and her green eyes, and her red, red hair.
He saw her little sparkling shoes, where they peeped from the hem of her skirt, and her train, like a cloud of a seaweed. And he thought she was like a sea nymph, dressed up for a ball. But he never guessed that she was talking straight to him.
Then Francesca Glasgow, who played Delphine Darrows, came on in her satin wedding gown, like a bride from the grave. And all the other characters, one by one. Even to the judge, in his black robes, and the court officers in their brass buttons. And the reporters, who had sat about the long table in the courtroom scene. Until the whole cast was assembled before the purple velvet curtains, holding hands like children in a row.
Then the audience called for Molly again. And now she dragged Red on with her. And she made another little speech.
"This is Mr. George Flynn," she told them, "only everybody calls him Red. He wrote half the play, but he's very modest."
"Speech! Speech!" yelled the audience. "Speech, Red! Speech!"
But Red shook his head, and looked unutterably uncomfortable. And when Molly dropped his hand, he ran off like a small boy. But the audience liked that, and called for him again and again.
Then Francesca Glasgow, with her arms full of white orchids, made a studied speech. Miss Glasgow had had curtain calls before, and so she did it very well indeed. When she was through, they called for the producer.

All in all it was a very large evening. There is not apt to be another like it in Broadway annals for a long, long time.
After the performance Mr. Durbin was giving a supper party for Molly. He had invited her parents, and included Jack, at her suggestion. Red Flynn was to be there, and the stars of the play. There were also to be a few newspaper people, and some more friends of Mr. Durbin's.
Molly had asked Jack to bring her father and mother back after the play. Now she waited for them eagerly.
She wished her father had worn evening clothes, and that her mother had at least bought a new wrap. She wondered if Jack could have been ashamed of them. But no—she knew better than that. Besides, nobody could ever be ashamed of her father—not if he wore overalls. His speech was colloquial, and he looked exactly like what he was. A bit untutored perhaps, and unpolished. He even made grammatical mistakes, though he really knew better. Quite the sort of man smart novelists poke fun at. But Molly loved him with all her heart.
Molly's mother was better educated than her father. She had been to normal school, and studied elocution and piano.
That was why it annoyed Molly to have her wear little white net gimpes under her dresses. And an iron gray switch twisted into an unsightly pig. Mrs. Burnham wore her skirts at decorous ankle-length. And she wore high, button shoes.
"It isn't as if she couldn't afford better," raged Molly. "It's just plain contrariness, that's what it is. It wouldn't hurt her a bit to have had a new dress for tonight, and to have coaxed Dad into evening clothes. He'd have worn them, too, if she'd asked him. And he'd have been tickled him. And he'd have bought a whole new outfit. He'd love to have her dress up. I know he would!"
Molly had appraised her parents body applauded? They wouldn't have done that, if it was what mother says...

"Oh, yes they would!" insisted Mrs. Burnham. "I guess I know these New Yorkers."

"Molly dear, it's a sure-fire success," declared Jack gently. "There's no doubt about it. You're all made, little Molly. I wish you could have heard what people had to say in the lobby. The morning papers will be out pretty soon. You'll see, dear. You've written the outstanding success of the season."
"I bet you have!" announced her father staunchly. "Now don't you mind mother, Molly."
"It's all about bad women," lamented Mrs. Burnham, "and murder, and drugs and drink."
"But, Mother, of course it is. It's a crime play."
"I don't see why you couldn't have written about something decent. Land alive, I'll be ashamed to hold up my head for the rest of my days."
"Ashamed to hold your head up!" ejaculated Mr. Burnham. "With a daughter famous like Molly?"
"That's what I said," repeated Mrs. Burnham. "Ashamed to hold up my head. And you would be, too, William, if you had any decent pride in you."
"Pride, Mother! Why, I got so much prouder with it right now." Gratefully Molly kissed her father.
"Thank you, Dad."
"Oh, your father don't like it any better than I do," cut in her mother savagely. "He's just an old softy, that's all. He thinks it's just as bad as I do. I thought your father was going to have apoplexy, that's what I thought. And if I'd died of shame right where I sat, it would have been your fault, my fine young lady!"
"Tell me the truth, Dad," Molly put her hands on her father's shoulders. "Are you proud of your Molly-O, or ashamed of her?"
"Proud," he declared firmly. "You're an awful smart girl, Molly."

They had left the theater by the regular exit, to enter again by the stage door. Molly suspected that her father was anxious to hear what people were saying in the lobby. She was waiting for them now in the alley that led around from Broadway. She had slipped out quietly, to have a moment alone with them, before she must present her new friends.
They were coming now. They weren't talking at all. Her mother was in the middle, and Jack was holding one arm, and her father was holding the other. Molly noticed that she was carrying a large umbrella with a great curved handle. The night was soft and clear, and full of stars.
"That's just like her," she reflected impatiently, "and I'll bet dad's best suit smells of moth balls."
Then, in a moment, she was in his arms.
"Daddy! Daddy—dear! And Mother! And Jack! All my dearests!"
She kissed them impartially, clinging to her father. And he patted her with his big clumsy hands, and talked to her as he had when she was a little girl.
"Well, Molly-O. Little Molly-O." "Wasn't it wonderful, Dad? Aren't you proud of your little old Molly-O? Wasn't it heavenly? Mother? Jack? Aren't you all proud of your Molly?"
She flung herself on Jack.
"Those were your roses I carried, Jack. They were perfectly lovely. I know I spilled them. But somebody picked them up, and I have them, every one."
"I'm glad if you liked them," he said. "Gee, Molly, you can buy orchids now, just like dandelions, if you want. You're all set, honey-girl."
"What did I tell you?" she crowed. "Isn't it gorgeous?"
"Molly," broke in her mother reprovingly, "your father and I are absolutely disgusted."
"Now, Mother," Mr. Burnham put his hand on her shoulder. "You just speak for yourself, Mother."
"What do you mean?" she asked dully. "Disgusted? I don't understand, Mother."
"Oh, you understand, young lady," interposed her sterner parent frigidly. "The way your poor father and I brought you up! Decent, God-fearing folks... Molly, I don't know what's come over you."
"Now Mother," repeated Mr. Burnham, "that's no way to talk to Molly!"
He put his arms around his daughter, and held her tightly.
"Your mother's a little mite upset, Molly-O," he said. "We're old-fashioned, you know—me and your mother. And your mother's not so young as she used to be."
"Young!" cried Mrs. Burnham. "I'd like to know what 'young' has to do with it. Young or old, it's a dirty play, and not fit for decent people—let alone your own father and mother."
"Jack!"
Molly turned toward him appealingly.
"Why are they talking to me like that, Jack? You liked it, didn't you, Jack? You tell them, dear. Tell them there wasn't anything wrong. Why—the way everybody clapped and clapped! The audience like it, Mother. Don't you know, Dad, the way every-

"May God never strike you dead for telling lies!" enjoined Mrs. Burnham piously.
Molly had grown very pale, but nobody could know that, in the dark little alley.
"I'm awfully sorry," she said. "I wanted you all to be proud of me."
"Now, Molly," objected her mother, "you know that it isn't the truth. What you want is a career, and you don't care what happens to any of us, so long as you get what you're after. Not me, nor your father, nor Mr. Wells here. You've as much as broken your engagement already. And goodness knows you've broken all our hearts."
"Please, Mother!" besought Molly. "Perhaps I'm as selfish as you say. But let's not talk about it any more now. Mr. Durbin has invited you all to a little supper party. But I guess you don't want to go."
"Some high-falutin' affair, I suppose?" surmised her mother. "I'm afraid you'd think so," agreed Molly wearily. "Why don't you take mother back to the hotel, Dad? Perhaps you'd come a little later with Jack?"

Promotion End Of Dairying Over Says Speaker

COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 9.—Declaring that the promotion end of the dairy business is over in the South and that the job in hand is "to learn to produce dairy products economically," H. McClain, United States Bureau of Dairy Industry pointed out at the general session at the farmers short course here that volume of production should be the guiding principle in dairying as well as banking or merchandising.

Studies made in Tennessee show that cows producing 2000 pounds of milk yearly did so at a feed cost of 35 cents a pound butterfat, whereas butterfat cost only 21 cents a pound for feed with cows producing 8000 pounds of milk yearly. That is what is meant by volume of production in the dairy business.
 "The markets for dairy products which are applicable to the rank and file of farmers," Mr. McClain said, "are fixed by the law of supply and demand. The hope of profit for farmers who patronize most dairy markets is that they produce milk for about 18 or 20 cents a gallon and still make a profit. To do this a man can't quit farming and go into the dairy business, but he must farm for his cows. That means raising enough feed and pasture to furnish the bulk of the feed required."
 "Success at handling cows in Texas must rest on the production of an adequate supply of hay and pastures, and on materially increasing the production of the average Texas cow."

But Few Motorists Know Lubrication

"Few motorists understand what goes on in an automobile engine when driven at speeds of 35 miles an hour and higher," in the opinion of Fred J. Bedford, manager of the lubricating department of the Magnolia Petroleum Company. "At high speeds, the automobile engine is subjected to terrific strain and fierce heat. Even at lower speeds in hot weather, over long distances, it generates an intense degree of heat.
 "Every moving part of the motor must get the right amount of lubrication and get it at the right time if it is to have complete protection against heat and friction," Mr. Bedford explained.
 "Proper distribution of the crankcase oil and its ability to stand up under terrific heat and at high speeds are two factors that largely determine the length of life of a motor and the sort of service it gives its owner. When either one of those qualities are lacking a damaged motor is sure to result."
 "Hundreds of tests have shown that motor oils with a paraffin base retain their lubricating value longer under intense heat and at high speeds than asphalt base oils. That is because paraffin base crudes are given a heat-resisting quality by nature that she has not given asphalt crudes.
 "It is one of nature's secret ways of working wonders, just as she gives great blue to a diamond and little value to a single lump of coal.
 "The oil in the crankcase may be an excellent paraffin base oil, yet fail to do an adequate job of lubrication. It may be the wrong consistency. For example, an oil that is too heavy will not distribute properly because it is too slow or sluggish for that type of motor and oil pump. The result is that many places in the motor do not get sufficient lubrication.
 "A motor operated under those conditions is soon damaged. For the deadliest enemy of the automobile—friction—is at work."
 Mr. Bedford said that it had been his experience, as well as that of others interested in correct and adequate lubrication, that a paraffin base oil of the correct viscosity will add thousands of miles of economical motoring to any automobile engine.
 "Magnolia oils," he added, "are refined from selected Mid-Continent paraffin base crudes for motoring conditions in the Southwest as they are known by our research department."

HELPING TO BUILD TEXAS

Texas promises again to lead the United States in new railroad construction in 1934 as in 1928. The Denver, Frisco, Rock Island, Texas & Pacific and Santa Fe are planning extensions or seeking permits for new construction. The Santa Fe has let contracts for a 6-mile extension from San Angelo to Sonoma. The Fort Worth & Denver Northern has applied for permit to build 110 miles from Childress to Pampa. The Texas & Pacific is seeking permit to extend the Abilene & Southern to San Antonio.

The first days' operation of the Bowdoin canning plant at Comanche saw 4,188 pounds of berries received from producers at prices that were satisfactory.

For years Grand Saline has been a center of salt operations in Texas, the saline solution being drawn up from deep wells and the salt secured by evaporation. Now the Morton company has found south of the town what its engineers say is the thickest structure of rock salt ever discovered, and the mine they are now sinking will be one of the great salt mines of the world. Borings indicated a solid salt structure 1,000 feet in thickness at a depth of about 200 feet from the surface of the ground. A shaft will be sunk to the salt stratum and by the time the mine is in full operation about 600 workers will be employed.

Persian dates may be added to the other commercial products of the Rio Grande valley. Nearly 1,000 shoots of the Mesopotamian date palm have been planted under supervision of Texas A. & M. college and the United States department of agriculture. The palms are of a "rain-resistant" type coming from Mesopotamia where the rain and climatic conditions approximately parallel those in the Valley.
 Central Texas Refining company has just opened a $150,000 refinery at Luling with a daily capacity of 2,000 barrels.

The phenomenal growth of Lubbock is indicated by the fact that from 670 telephone connections in 1920, in 1928 it had 3,043.
 The West Texas Utilities company is building 31 miles of 66KV lines from Cross Plains through Burkett to Santa Anna to provide two-way service to Cross Plains, Burkett, Rising Star, Pioner and the adjacent oil fields.
 The new high line of the Panhandle Power & Light company has been completed from Stinnett to Gruver, the new agricultural town in Hansford county, a distance of 33 miles.
 Eighty-five thousand acres of ranch land near Turkey have been cut into farms preparatory to placing them on the market. The impetus to growth in that section has been accentuated by the new railroad construction, opening up large areas theretofore distant from railroad connections.
 A. B. Harmonson, Denton county turkey raiser, has sold his turkey eggs this year at from $25 to $50 a dozen, has hatched and sold 140,000 baby chicks and expects to hatch and sell 35,000 more. "Next year I intend doubling my present capacity for raising for turkeys and chickens," he said to a newspaper man.

CARBON BLACK PRODUCTION

Several new carbon black plants are being constructed now in Texas, and Texas producers believe that the State will soon take away from Louisiana the lead it has held in carbon black production. The industry continued to set new records in 1928, what with the discovery that the product was adapted to many more uses than it had been put to, and the increase in 1928 over 1927 was 25 per cent. In 1928 Louisiana ranked first with production of 136,320,000 pounds, an increase of 10 per cent over the preceding year while Texas production climbed 79 per cent—from 56,396,000 to 100,828,000 pounds.

St. Clair Beitzel Dies On Gallows

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Aug. 2.—Russell St. Clair Beitzel, a young civil engineer, was hanged here today for the murder of Miss Barbara Manger, his waitress par amour.

Beitzel died with a light hearted jest on his lips.

"I want two practice swings before I drop," he told Warden James B. Holohan as the black execution hood was being fitted over his face.

The trap was sprung at 10:04 a. m. Pacific coast time.

In keeping with the declaration made yesterday that "I don't want any ministers around," Beitzel refused offers of spiritual advisers to accompany him from the death chair to the gallows.

He walked up the stairs unassisted and was calm and composed, a straight line forming his mouth and a deathly pallor being the only indication of nervousness or fear.

The remark concerning the "practice swings" was made while preparations were being made for the actual hanging.

In the opinion of Ed King, Los Angeles district attorney's investigator, Beitzel was on the verge of a confession just before he died.

King said Beitzel turned to him just before the trap was sprung and said:

"I want to say something to you, King. I want— and the hood fell, the rope was arranged and the trap was sprung."

Beyond a doubt Beitzel was going to break his long silence and confess, King told the United Press correspondent.

Thirty-five eye-witnesses were assembled in front of the gallows.

In the brief space of time required for the arrangements, Beitzel gazed intently at the group but made no comment concerning them.

His remark regarding practice swings was made with a broad smile but King said he was deathly serious when he told him that he had something to say.

SAN QUENTIN STATE PRISON, Cal., Aug. 2.—On the top floor of an old brick building here Russell St. Clair Beitzel of Philadelphia hid his emotions by solitude as the hour of his execution for the slaying of his paramour, Barbara Manger, drew near today.

The man who ended a clandestine romance with a bullet was to go to the gallows at 10 a. m.

Beitzel was pronounced dead at 10:18 a. m., just 14 minutes after the trap was sprung.

The body was turned over to the United States veterans' bureau.

It will be cremated and shipped to Beitzel's mother in York, Pa.

Three letters were written this morning by the condemned man. Two were to his son and were not made public. The third was to a fellow convict in death row whose name was not disclosed.

"Love and kisses of the next world," the letter said.

"It won't be long now."

"Had a telegram from Polly yesterday. The smile is still with me and it can't be wiped off."

"My best wishes for your success. Good bye, old pal."

(Signed) "Russell St. Clair Beitzel."

There were three postscripts on the letter. One asked that the boys in death row be given his regards. The other asked if "Northcott has been moved again yet," and the third was comment on the smallness of the death cage. "Plenty big enough," he wrote, "for hand stands, waltzing or spinning the plate."

14 Textile Strikers to Be Tried for Murder

One of the most bitterly contested cases in North Carolina's legal history will come up for settlement shortly when 14 textile strikers are put on trial at Gastonia for the murder of Police Chief O. F. Alderholt, killed June 7 in a riot between police and Communist strikers. Photo No. 1 shows the strikers' headquarters, guarded by armed strikers, where the riot took place. No. 2 is one of the defendants, Lewis McLaughlin. No. 3 is the slain police chief, Alderholt. No. 4 is a national guard machine gun detachment, on duty at Gastonia to prevent further trouble. No. 5 is former Congressman Clyde R. Hoey, who will assist the prosecution and No. 6 is Attorney Tom Jamison, former preacher, one of the defense lawyers.

Launch Move Against Capital Punishment

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 2.—A concerted movement to abolish the capital punishment law during the next legislative session appeared likely today after six members of the newly organized prison centralization commission witnessed the execution of Harry J. Leahy last night at Huntsville.

Rep. R. Emmett Morse of Houston sponsored the trip, which was arranged, he said, to give the members some idea of how the state exacts the supreme penalty. Besides Mr. Morse, the following commission members saw the execution: Lee Simmons of the old prison board; Sen. W. A. Williamson of San Antonio; Bob Barker, Senate secretary; Rep. Coke Stevenson of Junction, and Fred Horton, Greenville, also a member of the old prison board.

"Of course it is impossible to state our particular reactions at the present," Morse said immediately after the execution. He said that it was the general opinion of the members that the capital punishment law should be abolished. Although he did not wish to take the responsibility of stating that the six members would definitely back such a program.

"In an instance of this sort it depends solely upon the individual as to what action is taken in the legislature. Separate bills may be introduced, or a collective view on the question may be presented to the centralization committee in the form of a report suggesting changes," he said.

Appointment of a Woman to Higher Court Not Likely

AUSTIN, Aug. 2.—"Married women's rights" was given recognition when its author, Judge Cole Speer, was appointed to the supreme court commission of appeals; but married women's rights at present are not expected to have the further distinction of winning a seat in the court commission for any of the numerous feminine lawyers of the state.

The term of Judge Speer, whose book on "The Law of Married Women's Rights" is authority in its special field, expires this summer.

Judge Luther Rickels of the commission, whose term was to expire has resigned.

In the conceded defeat of the proposed nine-member court comstitutional amendment, Governor Moody will be called upon to appoint two members of the commission of appeals, supreme court adjutant body.

Governor Moody already has appointed two, Judge Richard Critz and Judge C. A. Leddy, both of whom would have been made supreme court members had the amendment carried, according to belief here.

Judges H. B. Short and J. D. Harvey, chairman of the two sections of the court, hold over for two years longer. They were appointed by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

Oil Production New High Record

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—A new high record for all time per day production of crude petroleum was set during the month of June, it was announced at the commerce department bank.

An average of 2,780,000 barrels per day was drawn from all wells during that month. The total production for June was 83,403,000 barrels, as compared with 72,526,000 barrels for the same month last year.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 2.—Alma Semple McPherson put over a fast one on the devil last night.

During the course of an evangelistic meeting at the municipal auditorium Mrs. McPherson asked those in her large audience who would contribute $1 to her campaign against the minions of Satan to stand up.

A few people in widely scattered sections arose.

Mrs. McPherson's hand then struck up "The Star Spangled Banner."

The audience arose, en masse.

Better See Your Local Lumberman First

The other day we listened to the story of a man in another community who purchased a "ready cut" house.

The material came cut to length and ready to nail together.

Before the building was completed, however, the purchaser was ready to concede that there are many flaws in the "ready cut" system. Carpenters on the job were on the verge of hysteria before the work was finished.

All of which illustrates that the promise of great savings in building materials from such houses are not always to be relied upon.

Our lumbermen in Eastland are doing their utmost to give service. They furnish reliable building information as well as building materials. They merit your patronage.

Youth Granted New Trial
HOUSTON, Aug. 3.—Judge Whit Boyd yesterday over-ruled a supplementary motion for a new trial for Emmett George, 17 year old Atlanta youth, sentenced to 50 years for two holdups of a shoe store here. The motion presented by George's counsel was based on claims by the youth's parents that he was suffering from effects of a blow on the head received in an Atlanta prize fight several weeks before the holdups.

Houston alienists testified the boy was suffering from a "maniac depressive" which would result in him losing his mind if confined in prison.

Tommy Pickens Will Be Coach
Thompson Pickens, former star athlete of Eastland High and Simmons university, has been chosen as coach and principal of the Rising Star High school, friends here have learned.

"Tommie" was as versatile an athlete as ever wore the Red and Black of Eastland High. He was a letter man in football, baseball and basket ball, and was captain of the track team. Fans recall that, the year Abilene won its first State football championship, the basket ball teams of Eastland and Abilene met on the Eagles' court and Tommie made more points than the entire Abilene team. That was the season that E. H. S. had its greatest "five"—Pickens at center, Staller and Downtain at forwards, Cox and Conner at guards.

Even in his high school days, Pickens was good enough to play baseball on the fast Magnolia team at Olden.

As an athlete at Simmons, Tommie distinguished himself in football, basket ball and baseball.

Buying operations picked up momentum as the session wore on and bears were driven to cover in one of the most boyant Saturday markets in many weeks. Several sensational gains were scored by the highest grade issues on the board.

Westinghouse Electric continued to lead, rising to a record high at 231. It closed at 229 1/4, up 14 1/4 points. Consolidated Gas featured the utilities, making a record high for the present shares and closing at 102 1-8, up 5 3-8.

American Telephone & Telegraph met some profit-taking and closed with a loss of 1 1-8 points at 289 5-8. Radio corporation lost nearly 2 points to close at 86 5-8, while International Telephone & Telegraph rose sharply and retained 2 5-8 of its gain to close at 118.

When the Gulf company inaugurated the free distribution of Texas road maps, seven years ago, the number of motor tourists was comparatively small. During the past few years, however, highways in Texas have been greatly improved and hundreds of thousands of motorists travel over them annually.

In addition to the large number of commercial travelers, a vast number of motorists spend their vacation in their automobiles, enjoying the great variety of scenery afforded by the big state.

Texas has much to offer tourists and Mr. Carlisle states that the Gulf company is sparing no expense in its effort to furnish road maps that are complete, accurate, convenient and of real service to motorists.

All state, interstate and lateral highways are printed on the Gulf maps in colors indicating the character of roads to be encountered along the different routes.

Most of the towns situated on highways are listed and the distance between towns on state and interstate highways are given. Individual city maps, showing the most prominent streets and routes into and out of Dallas, Ft. Worth, Houston and San Antonio are printed on the back of the maps.

Texas road maps may be obtained, free of charge, from any Gulf service station or dealer, and motorists planning trips to the east may secure from Gulf service stations road maps of any of the 28 states in which the Gulf company operates.

A BEAUTIFUL LUNCHEON AN GRACIOUS HOSTESS

Mrs. Allen D. Dabney was at home to a number of out-of-town friends Thursday noon at her handsome residence on South Sea man, entertaining a little group of congenial women in honor of Mrs. Beldridge and Mrs. Watson of Thurber, Mrs. Carl Herrington and Mrs. L. Woods of Gorman; Mrs. J. B. Leonard, Mrs. W. S. Poe, Mrs. C. H. Carter, Mrs. H. W. Fehl, Mrs. Joe H. Jones and Mrs. B. M. Collic.

The lovely table was centered with a gracious silver and crystal vase filled with marigolds and ferns and the lace laid length bore trays of silver holding stuffed olives, pickled beets. The menu, served in three courses of melon cocktail, set in crystal ice cups; cucumber salad with pineapple; fried chicken luncheon plate, with creamed carrots, peas in potato rings, iced tomatoes, hot buttered rolls and celery stuffed with cheese and nuts, had the last course of orange sherbet and delicious cake, most attractive in the crystal setting of amber and cream tints.

The big living room had hand some bouquets of roses and zinnias. A murmured undertone of music from the radio stimulated the pleasant conversation. Several games were enjoyed and the favor for the best contest a crystal comport, was awarded Mrs. Fehl.

INTERESTING DEMONSTRATION CHURCH OF CHRIST

Under the pleasing results of the series of demonstrations of dramatic biblical episodes and his tory is the deep impression these visualized lectures have made upon the youthful minds, memories that time will never erase.

In the back yard of the home of Mrs. Harry Woods there is a sand pile for the use of her two little girls and with this material small Nelda Woods has been entertaining the children of the neighborhood with demonstrations of her own, assembling, and with her own presentation of the stories, the child has heard at the church. The colored sands, the bright costumes, twigs of trees for forests, hard made little houses, tents, and ambitious mountains, all have been modeled by the child's clever fingers. It is said, that the children are so eager to attend these demonstrations that they can hardly wait for the appointed time.

When Rainbow Division Parade for Hoover

monstration table depicting the Land of Ur, the Euphrates Valley and the Home of Job. His immense land holdings were mapped, his fields of grain and wheat, his cattle, shown, his camels; and the background of mountains with the inland lakes and rivers winding through the plains. The story of Job's sufferings was told; how his cattle was stolen, camels killed, his attendants made way with, his sheep destroyed, not only one spared. Ten of his closest supporters feasting at the home of his eldest son were killed by the destruction of the house through a storm and all his children killed in one day. We how know what it means when one says "as many troubles as Job's."

The devil was trying to get Job to curse God; Job was in misery of body and covered with boils. "Curse God and die," enticed the devil but Job remained loyal to his faith. Prosperity finally returned, the wind came up and blew the fire away and the rest of Job's history was told in graphic sentences. Mrs. Harrell was assisted by Howell Bogges, who was the unseen force that arranged the water, that blew the fire that destroyed, the wind that sighed and whistled and the sound of the forest flame.

The demonstration opened with song service lead by Mrs. E. D. Hurdley and prayer by Mrs. Lillian of Ranger. Memory work was recited in classes by Mrs. Harry Wood, Mrs. McLendon and Mrs. Tom Harrell.

Chemists Tell Of Drugs Found In Girl's Stomach

Rooming House Keeper Knew Miss Hix as Mrs. Snook.

BY UNITED PRESS
COURT ROOM, COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 3.—A quantity of two types of supposedly powerful stimulant drugs were found in the stomach of Theora Hix, C. S. Long, chemist, testified today in the trial of Dr. James Howard Snook, accused of the murder of the girl.

"I found the stomach to contain a quantity of food which included beef, strawberry seed and a small bit of paper," he said.

"The beef had been there not to exceed an hour.

"Some of the beef was colored green. I found there to be two substances."

The substances proved on analysis, he said to be two allegedly powerful excitant drugs. Dr. Snook is alleged to have administered to Miss Hix.

Holes in her silk combination garment, girdle and dress, "proved under examination to have been made by a knife or sharp instrument," he said.

Stains on the upholstery of the doctor's car, he said, proved to be blood.

Mrs. Margaret Smalley, at whose rooming house Snook maintained a $4 a week room for his alleged clandestine romancing with Miss Hix, next was called.

She said she only saw the girl she knew as Mrs. Snook, once. It was on a Saturday morning, she said.

She recognized Snook's picture in the papers, she said, and told the police that "Dr. Snook was such a nice man."

Dr. O. B. Brunley, professor of veterinary surgery and acting dean of the veterinary department at Ohio State University, where Dr. Snook was a professor, testified he had known Snook for about 23 years.

He said he met Theora Hix in 1926 when she took employment in the offices of the veterinary department.

He identified a bottle of a dried green substance as a supposedly powerful stimulant drug and an-

Takes Picture Of Milk Thief

Photographer Goes Inventive As Bottles Disappear.

BY UNITED PRESS
LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 3.—The end of the milk thief has probably arrived, if the invention of E. J. Dole, Lincoln photographer, becomes in general use.

Dole has invented a lurid trap that makes the thief take his own picture when taking a bottle of milk from the door step.

A small camera, two sticks of kindling wood, a flatiron, 20 feet of rubber tubing, and a photographer's flash gun constitutes the layout. So simple and effective is the arrangement that a Lincoln dairy concern has arranged with Dole for the use of the invention in apprehension of milk thieves here.

The kindling wood is hinged together to make a hair-trigger. When the milk bottle is moved a flatiron falls on the bulb connected with the flash gun and the camera by the rubber tubing.

"Necessity was the mother of the invention," Dole said. Recently 31 milk, ice books and other supplies were pilfered from his apartment. The thief reached through the service closet and helped himself.

Dole perfected his invention. He left the apartment. He returned several hours later. The trap had been sprung. The picture was developed, showing the thief with the bottle of milk in his hand.

Charges were filed against the milk thief with the picture as evidence.

other drug of similar character. Both bottles, he said, came from the drug room at the veterinary clinic.

The drug room, he said, was kept locked, but Dr. Snook had a key to it, he said.

The drugs, he said on cross-examination, were samples and might have been fifteen years old. He was not sure whether they had lost their potency.

Dr. Snook, he said, taught the course in which the sample drugs were used, merely for exhibition purposes.

He said one of the drugs figuring in the case was listed as a sex-stimulant, "but I don't know for what it was used for that."

The other, he said, on administration, first exhilarated, and then induced sleep.

When pressed to be specific regarding the age of the drug samples which are in evidence he said he believed they were 12 years old.

C. S. Long, for 20 years an analytical chemist, the next witness, qualified as an expert.

He identified Dr. Snook's trousers and pointed out four old stains on them. He had not been able to determine, he said, whether the blood was human blood.

Dr. Snook, is deeply pained by the attitude prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., has taken in the presentation of the case against him.

"I am surprised that Chester should stand there and tell lies to the jury," Dr. Snook told the United Press.

He discussed his case with an analytical detachment which one might expect in the class room at the University but hardly in keeping with the extreme importance of this case to Dr. Snook himself.

He evinced no great interest in the deeply technical discussion of anatomy in which his attorneys and Coroner Murphy indulged for two hours yesterday.

The arrest of Snook found him possessed of the same calm he now shows in the court room, Larry Van Shaik, detective who arrested him, revealed today.

Van Shaik was the first witness at today's session of the Snook trial.

"I went to Dr. Snook's home to arrest him," said Van Shaik. "I knocked on the door and the dependant answered. I said, 'Are you Dr. Snook?' He said he was. I asked him if he knew Miss Hix. He said he did. I told him it would be necessary for him to come to police headquarters for investigation. He said, 'Is it necessary?' and I said it was.

"He asked to drive his own car and we both got into it and drove to a restaurant for lunch. Then to police headquarters. Van Shaik then identified the scene of the crime and a bunch of keys which were Miss Hix' body."
