METHODISTS TO RAISE A FUND FOR McMURRY

ABILENE—On July 9, the 61,000 Methodists in the Northwest Texas conference will be given an opportunity to subscribe to the $500,000 endowment fund being raised for McMurry College of this city.

Every pulpit of the Methodist denomination in each of the eight districts in the northwest Texas area, will on that day, W. J. Fulwiler, chairman of the McMurry board of trustees and general director of the endowment drive, be given over to a public presentation of the campaign.

McMurry, the only Methodist educational institution on the northwest Texas conference was established six years ago, largely as a result of the efforts of Dr. J. W. Hunt, president of the school since its beginning.

The institution is rated as an A-grade co-educational senior college and is one of the four schools in Texas, owned by the Methodist Church, which have been designated by the commission of education of that church for continued maintenance.

At present the college has physical property valued at approximately $200,000, 70 per cent of which has been provided by Abilene people. The endowment fund now totals $300,000. The object of the present campaign to be climaxed by the conference-wide presentation on June 9, is to increase the endowment to a figure that will give the institution enough income to eliminate operating deficits.

Subscribers to the sustaining fund will be asked for 20 per cent of their pledges on Nov. 1, 1929, and a like amount each six months until the total has been paid, Mr. Fulwiler says.

In addition to the $500,000 endowment, the college supporter are hoping to secure an additional $250,000 during the campaign which will be used to enlarge one of the dormitories on the college campus.

The campaign is being conducted by a committee composed by R. L. Murray, Lubbock; J. Ross Bell, Paducah; J. R. Poir, Clearwater; R. B. Bryant, Stamford; C. DeWafford, Plainview and W. J. Fulwiler, H. O. Wooten, Dr. J. W. Hunt, Henry James, J. W. Coull, S. M. Jay and Dr. J. Rickard, Abilene.

John P. Schumann, editor of the Orlando (Fla.) Reporter-Star, says:

The advertising is simply an orderly and dignified method of bringing buyer and seller together. Many ingenious plans have been conceived for increasing sales, but no substitute for legitimate newspaper and magazine advertising has ever been found. The world over the bulk of sales made, no matter what the commodity, is the result of advertising.

The governments of the world, and none more so than ours, have recognized newspapers and magazines as the proper channels of publicity. All public lands have, since the beginning of this government, been advertised before selling. Private lands sold on court order are required to be advertised for a definite term. Advertising is made legal notice to all parties concerned.

Newspapers and magazines are regarded as the best media of advertising because they come closest to the people; they go into the homes, the shops, offices and business houses. Like the family meal they contain something that will please every member of the family. They get a more general reading than any other form of the printed word.

Good reading not only stimulates buying, but it leads to intelligent buying. The best buyers are those who study advertisements. Advertising saves the buy-

Mammoth Celebration Planned for First Week in July.

(Ciseco Daily News) "The Indian Trail" was adopted as the name of the Waco-Ciseco highway Tuesday, when delegations from eight towns met at Meridian, formed "The Indian Trail association," and planned a mammoth celebration for the first week of July. The object of the celebration will be to advertise that the Indian Trail is not only the shortest line from South Texas to West Texas, but is also one of the state's most beautiful routes, and passes through a country richer than any other in the legend of pioneer days.

carried along the "trail" as captives of a party of raiding "Huacos," the raiders to be represented by a Waco caravan which will stop in each town. Emil Robin, of Paris, France, and San Diego, California, who supervised the San Antonio battle of flowers and the Cotton Palace coronation for several years, has been engaged by the Indian Trail association to assist each town in planning its part of the pageant.

The Story of a Rug..

A man who lives not far from Eastland was approached the other day by a stranger. The stranger had a number of rugs for sale.

They were orientals, he said. Through some mysterious method which he hinted about but didn't explain, he was able to get these rugs into the United States duty free. Hence, the phenomenally low prices.

It sounded "good". The rugs were attractive. The gentleman who lives not far from here was persuaded. He bought one of the rugs.

Until a few days ago he was happy in his purchase. Then he learned from a friend who knew very ordinary rug that would retail usually at from ten to twenty dollars less than he paid for it.

The moral is obvious... Buy your rugs through your Eastland merchants... If the rug you want is not carried in stock, any local dealer can get it for you or put you in touch with reliable houses who can be depended upon. Transient rug salesmen may be all right—but we don't know.

nicipal authorities and local business groups, who are already planning receptions to the visitors. Representative business men and bankers will meet the crew at these receptions during which they will be shown a talking film depicting industries of the United States.

To adapt the talking apparatus to the various languages needed a special concession has been granted allowing the flight to use a new invention making possible a synchronized story of the picture to be printed on a roll timed with the action on the screen.

On completion of the South American tour, which is expected to take approximately five months, a similar tour of the principal American cities will be made. The published trade statistics compiled by Pascoe will be distributed on this flight and information concerning industrial conditions will be given by the lecturer accompanying the second trip.

It is expected that not more than two months will elapse between completion of the first tour and the start of the second, so that all material shown and distributed during the American tour will be less than six months old.

Lieut. Donald C. Beatty of the 106th aero squadron, will act as flight commander and pilot with a crew of notable fliers. Leslie A. Walker, navigator and co-pilot, was a war-time instructor to fliers at Pensacola and later organized at Culver Military academy the first academic school of aeronautics in America, where he remained for six years.

The amphibian will be equipped with every possible safety device and no single hop will be more than 400 miles. Both personnel and equipment will be insured.

Sponsored by the American Manufacturers Export association, the tour will be made in a plane carrying a crew of six and will cover a distance of 27,000 miles, visiting 34 trade centers in 22 Central and South American countries.

The flight will be backed by upwards of 40 American municipalities and civic and industrial organizations. Its sponsors feel that not only will it prove the value of maintaining and strengthening trade but also will demonstrate the practicability of an extensive air service for passengers and freight between this country and Latin America.

Preceding the arrival of the plane in cities to be visited, Harry W. Pascoe, trade expert and authority on Latin American trade, who is acting as liaison officer for the flight, will co-operate with mu-

CHAPTER XX
 The maid, opened the door. Nan could reply to the embarrassing question. The maid, who observed Nan's intrusion, silently, after a curt nod, opened the door to the broad staircase to the floor, but the child's chatter more than made conversational short-calls's part.

"That means," she reflected, "that he can't bear to sleep in the room that is haunted by Iris."

That is absolutely all that you know. Is that clear, Estelle?"

"Yes, Miss Carroll," the maid answered in a low voice. "And please, I'd like to stay. I didn't say anything to anybody but Maude, and I didn't say I knew anything for sure—I was just guessing," she floundered.

"That's all now, Estelle," Nan dismissed her briskly. "And please don't discuss anything I have said with Maude. I want to talk with her myself after dinner."

As soon as Estelle was gone, Nan stripped off the clothes she had worn to the office and having wrapped her small body in a dark blue silk kimono, stepped into the connecting bathroom. She caught her breath with pleasure. The plaster walls above the tiles were tinted the same delicate apple-green as was used in the bedroom; the tiles themselves were a rich, deep yellow; the floor a mosaic of green and yellow.

It was a smaller room than the one which had been assigned to her and for a moment she was puzzled as to why she had been given a room with twin beds when this other guest chamber was obviously intended for single visitors. Her second and more comprehensive glance told her, however, that this room had been designed for male guests, a concession on Iris' part to the fact that her husband's fame and power in the state and even in Washington attracted to his home many an important personage. The room was lously mature and calculating. "I expect it's that dress. Ladies look awful different in different kinds of clothes. Dinner's ready. Do I have to wash my hands? . . . We-ell . . ."

It was John Curtis Morgan's temporary housekeeper, rather than his guest, who critically observed each dish that was set before her that night. A thick purée of green peas, roast beef, baked potatoes, lima beans, small, flaky hot biscuits, and chocolate pie heaped high with meringue. Each dish was almost superlatively good, for Maude could undoubtedly cook, but the total caloric value of the meal appalled Nan. It was with positive pain that she watched Curtis devour six of the hot biscuits, burdened with butter, then dig ecstatically into his enormous wedge of pie.

"To think my head is crammed with knowledge of balanced rations, vitamins and calories, and I've got to stand by and let this child ruin his stomach—to say nothing John Curtis Morgan," she mourned. "Where in the world will I find a housekeeper for these two blessed men-children of mine that will have more sense about planning a meal than that Maude out in the kitchen?"

"Damn convention anyhow! They need me, and yet the whole town would simply collapse with horror if I did my plain duty and stuck right here to take care of them."

Aloud she said to Estelle, who was bringing in the coffee: "Tell Maude I'm coming out to the kitchen to talk with her when I've finished my coffee. And Estelle, I'll take Curtis up to bed myself. Eight's his bedtime, isn't it? Will you see that his night things are in my room?"

"Yes, Miss Carroll, but I'm afraid he'll disturb you—you not being used to a child," Estelle deprecated. "He's an awful restless sleeper."

Nan did not tell the maid that she expected to be far more disturbed by the ghost of a woman with red-gold hair and utterly unfair beauty—the ghost of a woman who was not dead, but who haunted every inch of the house she had deserted.

Telegraph Machine In C. and S. Offices

The Western Union Telegraph company has just installed simplex printing telegraph service in the offices of Chestnut & Smith corporation.

Thus the simplex system operates in handling perhaps more than 70 per cent of Western Union messages, according to W. A. Seale, local Western Union manager.

In operation, a message is typed out on the simplex machine which is similar to a typewriter and can be operated by a stenographer. Letter by letter the electric impulses of the message slip out over the wire to a distant city—and between offices in the same city, as between the Chestnut & Smith corporation and the Western Union here—setting up impulses in another Simplex machine at that end in such a manner that the corresponding type bars are pulled down and the message is typewritten on the dry side of the gummed paper tape used in telegraph messages.

The Simplex machine was installed in the Chestnut & Smith offices by Mr. Smith, V. H. Carter and H. H. Pumphrey, the latter two of the Western Union equipment department of Dallas.

Race Drivers To Get Purse

ABIENE—Winners in the annual Independence Day automobile races to be staged in this city, July 4, on the West Texas Fair speedway, under sanction of the contest board of the American Automobile Association, will divide a guarantee purse of $2,500 and in addition will get a share of the gate receipts of the program.

D. H. Jefferies, official A. A. representative and starter, of this city, is working out the details of the program and will announce the complete list of events for speed classic in a few days. Officials of the West Texas Fair Association, sponsors of the race meet, are planning to offer the best possible program to the thousands of racing fans of Texas on the holiday card. Starter Jefferies is personally acquainted with a majority of the leading race drivers in the United States and he says that it is his intention to bring several of the best known speed demons in the country here for the affair.

The tract here, said to be one of the best in the southwest, has been given considerable attention in recent weeks and a crew of men will be put on the oval shortly to work out all imperfections. A carload of chemical mixture to make the race course dustless will be applied and all details of the arrangements for the race will be worked out under direction of T. C. Campbell, president of the fair association.

TOUCHES IN THE YARDS AND HOMES

Workmen have been busy the past week putting in a nice concrete driveway between the homes of Jap Little and Mr. Vickers and doing some other work about the premises. The Little house has been painted a warm sun tan that blends with the brown wood and facings and forms a pretty picture beneath the big old drooping mesquite trees.

Everything will soon be in readiness for the coming of Mrs. Clyde Ecker of Portland, Ore., who arrives tomorrow to spend the summer in Eastland with her father, and her sister, Mrs. Little. Mrs. Ecker will keep house for her father, Mr. Neal, at his little home for the summer months.

Have you seen the lovely lawn at the back of the Fage home? One can't refer to it as the "back yard" because it really resembles a little park in its dress of red benches, rockers, a bird bath on a tall standard that carries a vase for flowers at the top, a rounding bed of bright blossoms in the corner of the luxuriant hedge and an arch wide and tall and massed with green vines that span the gate and thought would do her any good, but she just seemed to keep going down hill in spite of it all. Finally I began to read the statements that were being made by different people, who had been greatly benefited by taking Orgatone, and thought it might help her, so I bought a bottle of it and she commenced taking it. She didn't notice any improvement in the first few doses, but before she had taken it three weeks she commenced to pick up like everything, and, sir, from that time on I never saw anybody improve like she did. Her appetite came back and what she eats agrees with her perfectly, and she is never bothered with nervousness or that achy feeling any more. Her general health is better than it has been in many years, and I feel so grateful for what Orgatone has done for her that I never lose an opportunity to say a good word for it.

Risked Own Life to Rescue Cat

NEA New Orleans Bureau

"We couldn't let the poor devil die, could we?" retorted George Charbonnet, above, when he was praised for risking his life to save a cat that had been trapped under New Orleans docks for a month. The feline, a steamer pet, fell in the water and took refuge on a narrow cement ledge in a manner that defied rescue until Charbonnet and Paul Silva, dock board patrolman, slipped through a man-hole and swam 200 yards in darkness to perform their heroic act. The cat had been fed daily through a hole in the dock.

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific preparation, and is sold in Eastland exclusively by the Toombs & Richardson Drug Store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative.

Rutledge, Detroit police commissioner.

Carbohydrate Food Value Is Discussed

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—The timely and adequate consumption of carbohydrate foods appears to have a marked influence in minimizing the effect of prolonged physical effort, according to Dr. Burgess Gordong of staff of the Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia, who last night read before the Philadelphia College of Physicians a paper covering studies of groups of long distance runners. In the course of his address, Dr. Gordong referred to a study of a number of marathon runners made by him and his colleagues in Boston under the auspices of the Peter Bent Brigham hospital. During the training period, a group of the contestants were fed upon a diet moderately high in carbohydrates—sugars and starches. In
