

RICH GIRL POOR GIRL

Daughter of 'Gibson Girl' to Wed

The daughter of the original "Gibson girl" whom Charles Dana Gibson's brush made famous 20 years ago is to wed. Miss Joyce Phipps, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Phipps and niece of Lady Astor, has announced her engagement to Reginald P. Grenfell, elder son of Colonel Arthur and Lady Victoria Grenfell of London. Miss Phipps' mother was one of the beautiful Langhorne sisters of Virginia, who was Charles Dana Gibson's model for his black and white drawings. Photo shows Miss Phipps and Mr. Grenfell, while the inset is that of the "Gibson girl" of yesteryear.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
MILDRED LAWRENCE falls in love with STEPHEN ARMITAGE who is lured away by PAMELA JUDSON when she tells him Mildred is trying to marry her brother, HAROLD, for money. Harold fears HUCK CONNOR, who is blackmailing him over a forged check. Huck is infatuated with Pamela, and when she announces her engagement to Stephen, frames him for the theft of an auto and causes his arrest. Pamela drops Stephen, but Mildred tries to get him out of jail.
Harold had once told her he feared Huck, who had threatened to get rid of Stephen to keep him from marrying Pamela. Mildred determines to force Harold to help her, and is shocked to hear of his death—apparently accidental. She tells Stephen her suspicions, but they have no proof to offer.
Finally she goes to MR. JUDSON, who takes her to headquarters to tell her story. Judson bails Stephen out and Pamela begs forgiveness. On the way from the jail to the hotel, he narrowly escapes being shot by a thug in a passing taxi. He reports to Mr. Judson and is horrified to learn that Mildred has been slightly wounded by a gangster shot. His concern over her causes Judson to doubt his love for Pamela and he forbids his daughter to "buy her man" with money. She reminds him that she has bought her two penniless step-mothers. Convinced that she loves Stephen, the father gives in to her pleading.
Next day Pamela takes Stephen to a "drive" and surprises him by going to Mildred's home in protest but she insists on his staying with her.

OW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLIV
Connie flushed angrily at Pamela's request, couched as a command.
"Mildred isn't receiving company," she said shortly, but Pamela had moved on until she stood before the door to the living room. Here she saw the injured girl, propped up with pillows in the big chair. She ignored Connie's words completely and walked on to the room.
"Oh, like to roll you round the neck," Connie thought resentfully, she closed the door behind Pamela and let him follow Pamela nuzzled, while she hurried to her mother to tell her Pamela was there with Stephen.
Lawrence glanced at her dress. "You go back and stay until I change," she said tersely.
"I WOULD come at this time," Connie remarked.
"Oh, really, poor child," Mrs. Lawrence said to herself as she hurried out into the hall and down the stairs.
A few minutes she came to the room, looking very neat in her printed silk dress that had been given her by Christ-

Lawrence looked at Stephen where he stood awkwardly by his hat in his hands.
"Won't you all sit down?" she said, timidly, trying to do as she thought Mildred would like her to in those circumstances.
"We haven't but a moment to say," Mrs. Lawrence, Pamela said. "Just wanted to make sure that Mildred is recovering from her wound. Wasn't it dreadful to be shot?"
Pamela, perhaps Miss Lawrence doesn't care to have anyone mention the ACCIDENT," Stephen said in hurriedly. He was calling himself a fancy lot of names willing to warn Pamela that she was keeping the truth regarding the attack made upon her from her family.
Pamela stuttered, then finished bravely: "... shoved down the stairs." She had understood Stephen's stress on the word "accident" and she had seen the look of that swept over Mildred when she spoke of her wound as really nothing at all. Mildred quickly. Then she lifted her mother.
Judson came into tell us her wedding," she added the pain that she strove to keep out of her voice went to her mother's heart.
Connie said with expression, "they're going to Africa, and go to Africa and live in a whole new hotel."
She smiled at her. "Oh, no," she said as sweet as honey. "I'm going to get on my cunning little type-learn to type Stephen's letters for him. Perhaps he'll teach me, Mildred," she said to the girl whose name she had just learned.
"Connie ejaculated," Connie ejaculated, "of her mother."
"Why laughed and murmured does such words?" Mrs. Lawrence said to complete the business she had intended Pamela.
"I've eyes entreated her," Pamela said.
"Let you some leithon-looked huskily and made enough through the dining-room where she sat. It was all mother could hear, she thought—seeing her child's heart break before the happiness of a girl who seemed to take all that the world had to offer for granted.

She hoped and prayed that Stephen wouldn't divine what anguish his visit and Pamela's was giving Mildred. She knew her daughter's pride, and the thought that she had left her to fight alone to conceal her pain drove her to make the lemonade in haste. She omitted the thin slices of fruit and did not even bother to take out the seeds.
Then, tightening her lips and gathering up the painted tin tray with the everyday glasses, she made her way back to the living-room.
She needn't have troubled to serve the refreshments. With a wave of her hand Pamela declined the lemonade when it was proffered to her. She did not pause in her running comments even to say no, let alone thank you.
The kick she was getting out of telling Mildred her plans for her wedding and her honeymoon—while it wasn't all that she hoped it would be—was better than anything she could get out of a glass of lemonade.
Mildred wasn't reacting the way she had hoped. There wasn't a sign of envy on her face. Suffering, yes, but Pamela couldn't be sure that it was not caused by physical pain and the experience Mildred had been through the day before.
Pamela had hoped to make her wince and writhe. That's what she had come for—to show Mildred that even though Stephen might rush up to see her the very first night he was out of jail it didn't mean a thing.
In fact, she even went so far, with Stephen standing by, to say that she had asked him to make the call.
Stephen considered it just a bit of polite social whitewashing. That it was a knife thrust in Mildred's heart occurred to him no more than it did to question Connie's statement that Mildred had a sweetheart.
She had been very careful on her visits to him in jail to give the occasion no more than a friendly aspect. Stephen considered her a true-blue ally, loyal and wholehearted. It wouldn't have surprised him to learn that many men loved her.
He drank his lemonade thirstily, grateful for its acid coolness on his parched throat.
Why the devil didn't Pam stop her prattling? Couldn't she see that Mildred was tired and her mother looking harassed? And that young Connie stood there scowling at them like a black-browed hater! It made him nervous.

But Pamela didn't allow anyone to tell her when it was time go. Stephen knew by experience. "We owe so much of this to you," Pamela was running on, having seated herself on the edge of a chair she had pulled up close to Mildred's.
"I must send you something from Africa. Perhaps a real leopard skin or a coat, a genuine Somali. You could have it made up plain and wear it with a wide brown leather belt, suede, I think. You'd look awfully smart in it, Mildred. I'm going to ask dad to buy me a chinchilla wrap for my trousseau. There aren't half a dozen in the shops but I won't want it for several months. Dad can send it to Paris. We're going there after we leave Africa and then we're going up to Norway for the ski jumping.

"Oh, you just ought to see Norway in winter, Mildred. I know some English people who have a place on the coast near a little town called Mandel. I was there two years ago. It's the loveliest spot. I can't think of a more idyllic place for a honeymoon. We can walk for miles through the park—all the land between the

DISCUSSES NEW LAWS OF TEXAS

Rotarians Hear Talk on Recently Enacted Statutes.

RANGER, Texas, May 16.—Laws enacted recently by the Texas legislature were reviewed by Judge L. R. Pearson in an interesting address before the Rotary club at the session today.
Most important of the new laws is the marriage statute, the speaker said. Other important laws include the measure giving an independent school district the right to condemn property for building sites and playgrounds and the statute lowering the scholastic age from 7 to 6 years.
M. R. Newnam made a short talk expressing appreciation for the kindness of Rotarians and Rotary Anns during the illness of his son and reported him as much improved.
The program committee was composed of Raymond Teal, chairman; L. R. Pearson and Ray Newnam. The session was unique in that there were no visiting Rotarians and no guests.

OIL TAX TO BE BROUGHT ONCE MORE

Will Be Re-Introduced at Second Special Session.

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, May 15.—Time for reconvening the state legislature which must end its second session of the year by next Tuesday will be left to the wishes of the members.
Gov. Dan Moody is willing to let them decide whether to come back at once or to take a rest between sessions. Members generally seem to want from one to two weeks between sessions to go home and look after private business.
When this session adjourns next week, the legislature will have been in session 90 days this year. The regular session was 60 days. The first special session apparently is going to run the full 30 days, the maximum for a special session.
The second special session may not last so long. There is no minimum time limit. The only provision for special sessions is that they must not last more than 30 days.
If the governor submits only taxation revenue and appropriations, as many members desire, the second special gathering may be short. The finance committee of the senate has appropriation

G. WASHINGTON BALLOON BUILT

ALEXANDRIA, Va.—Members of the American Legion joined with patriotic organizations and lineal descendants of General George Washington in reproducing a balloon which was in exact replica of that which first made ascension in the western hemisphere.
This original balloon ascension led General Washington to express the belief that aerial navigation would in time be of practical use to mankind. Nine hundred yards of special fabric were used in reconstructing the balloon which stood 85 feet high and 28 feet wide.
The first balloon ascended in the presence of General Washington, Jan. 9, 1793. The one which the Legion helped make for demonstration purposes was laid out at the air junction here under direction of a pioneer aeronaut, A. Leo Stevens. The drawings for guidance were supplied by William Lanier Washington, descendant of General Washington's nephew, William Augustine Washington. The affair created much interest among the aviators and public.

Waco found itself in the first place today, the result of its successive victories over Beaumont. Blankenship blanked the batters for seven innings yesterday while his teammates mixed up the bases. The score was 7-

Wichita Falls defeated Waco 8-1, and still further decreased the margin of the league leaders. Ed Hitching by Giff, errorless hitting and Lard hitting gave the Spudders victory.

Houston lost a chance to tie Waco for first place when it let Shreveport win 5 to 2. Cooper, Shreveport, allowed five hits to Wichita's nine. The only error of the game, one committed by Decker, Shreveport shortstop, was responsible for one of Houston's two runs.

Ft. Worth won a lucky victory over San Antonio, 3 to 1. The Cubs outhit the Cats 7 to 4 and committed only one error to the Cats' advantage. Hobbs, San Antonio, faced Jimmie Walkup, Ft. Worth, on the mound.

MAJOR LEAGUES: Yesterday's hero—Harry Heilmann, Detroit outfielder, who came from first base on Alex. Young's double in the ninth with two out, which enabled the Tigers to win the Philadelphia Athletics 5 to 3. Heilmann was knocked out of the game when Gordon Cochran, Athletics' catcher, tagged him on the head, but the latter caught the ball.

Two sensational catches by Earl Brown featured Cleveland's 7 to 5 victory over the New York Yankees. Lou Gehrig's eighth home run of the season was the only one off Joe Shaute. It was Shaute's fourth straight loss.

Three runs and driving in more, Willie Kamm starred in Chicago's White Sox 8 to 4 victory over the Boston Red Sox. The Sox won on doubles and a single.

Senators double, Schulte's triple, and single drove in the eighth inning and the Senators beat the Browns 5 to 3.

Senators stopped the Browns from scoring in the fourth inning when they had batted Guy Lingo in the fourth inning. Chicago Cubs beat the

When $50,000 Preakness Purse Was Won

Boston 7 to 4. Riki Cuyler returned to the Cubs' lineup and hit a homer with a man on base.

Rallying in the late innings the St. Louis Cardinals continued their neck and neck race with the Cubs for first place in the National League by winning from the Philadelphia 4 to 1.

Two rookies—Doc Stripp and Evar Swanson—played hero roles as Cincinnati swept the series with the New York Giants, 12 to 3. Stripp hit two homers and drove in four runs. Swanson hit a homer and made a clean steal of third, running his stolen bases for the season to eight.

Babe Herman hit one of the longest home runs ever made inside Elberts field but Brooklyn dropped its eighth straight game to Pittsburgh, 9 to 4.

'BAD BOY ROOKIE' HITS MANAGER

CHICAGO, May 16 — Charles Arthur Shires, "Bad Boy Rookie" of the Chicago White Sox was reported today on route to his home at Italy, Tex., while his erstwhile manager, Lena Blackburne nursed a badly blackened eye and lacerated right ear.

Incensed at an indefinite suspension and $100 fine placed on him earlier in the day, the rookie attacked Blackburne in the Sox clubhouse after yesterday's game. Swinging rights and left viciously, Shires knocked Blackburne to the floor, when the fight was stopped by other players and the youngsters escorted from the park by a policeman. The fight was culmination of a series of incidents in which the battling Texas has figured since he won and lost the team captaincy during spring training as well as the regular first baseman's job.

Charles Arthur appeared for batting practice with a brilliant and fast and Blackburne told him brusquely to "stop the fool-queuing."

Heated words were exchanged and Shires drew the fine and suspension. He watched the game from a box seat, and then made his way to the clubhouse, shouting as he entered.

"You've driven me from baseball, damn you. Take that!" Shires was purchased from Waco, Tex., last summer and made a fine showing last year. He was given the regular first baseman's job and the team captaincy until suspended for breaking training rules this spring.

He said he "guessed he was going home to Italy" after the fight. None of the club officials would comment.

Worth, officials here said today. More than 600 oil scouts of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas, and New Mexico are expected at the convention.

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex., May 16 — A new gas pool has been uncovered in Stephens county, nine miles east of Caddo, oil men reported here. According to reports the gasser struck pay at 3,941 feet and was making more than 10,000,000 feet of gas with a spray of oil.

couldn't be much worse. The rule is very plain on this breach and the penalty is loss of the hole in match play. Here's the rule: "When a ball lies in or touches a hazard, nothing shall be done which can in any way improve its lie; the club shall not touch the ground, nor shall anything be touched or moved before the player strikes at the ball."

The golfer who improves his lie in the trap usually alibis himself by insisting that he should not be penalized because some dub left a heel print in the trap. Remember one shouldn't be in the traps. They are put there to penalize bad shots. Don't beat the game by improving your lie in the hazards. When you leave the trap, smooth your own heel marks out evenly. Don't ground your club in the traps!
