Anger Man Is Killed In Accident

STAR PLANT IS THE SCENE

Gordon Damaged Recently, Being Conditioned When Occurs — Man Killed By Widow and

A. Crabb, about 40 years old, was almost killed about 9 o'clock this morning in an accident at the Lone Star plant at Eastland. He was taken to the hospital at Strawn but died there.

With a crew of men, the plant was re-conditioned after being damaged by fire several weeks ago. They were working on testing a 12-inch pipe with water which when a gate blew off, crashed between a concrete gate and a steel gate. The skull was fractured and he received numerous injuries about the head.

He resided at Ranger and his body was taken to Strawn for burial. He is survived by his widow and one child.

May Produce Future Tires

Twenty-three plants, each a potential source of commercial rubber, have been brought back to this country from the Island of Madagascar by Dr. C. F. Swingle of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The plants are now growing in a quarantine greenhouse in Washington. Dr. Swingle is shown here watching the growth of some of them.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN IS DEAD AT 94

Capt. O'Rear, Desdemona Postmaster During Oil Boom, Is Buried Today—Lived For 40 Years In This County.

Funeral services for Capt. O'Rear, 94, Eastland county pioneer who died Tuesday night at his home in Desdemona, were conducted this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Methodist church in Desdemona. Interment was in the Desdemona cemetery.

Capt. O'Rear, a veteran of the Civil war in which he rendered service to the South, had lived in Desdemona for more than 40 years. At various times he was engaged in the mercantile business and served for years as postmaster at Desdemona.

When the oil boom struck this section of the country ten years ago, Capt. O'Rear was postmaster at Desdemona, a village of only 200 or 300 people. With the coming of the boom, the population of Desdemona rapidly grew to 10,000 or 15,000 and Capt. O'Rear was confronted with the problem of serving this great number of patrons with the limited help and facilities of the small Desdemona office. He was compelled for some time to hire help with his own funds in order to take care of the mail. He sent in his resignation, but was unable, for some months, to get relieved.

While serving in the Civil war, Capt. O'Rear was captured and held a prisoner on a small island in the Ohio river. He gave interesting accounts of the hardships endured by himself and fellow prisoners on this island. Much of the food they had was obtained with funds from the sale of various souvenirs made by the prisoners and sold to visitors.

Capt. O'Rear was a fine man and a good citizen. He was a good example for any young man to follow," said Jim Steele, justice of the peace of Eastland, who had known Capt. O'Rear for more than 40 years.

County Judge Clyde L. Garrett, E. E. Wood and other Eastland citizens who had known Capt. O'Rear for many years, attended the funeral.

Police Claim Man Identified In Slaughter

Former Bodyguard of "Scarface Al" Is Questioned—Killing In Miami May Have Echo In New York.

CHICAGO, March 7.—Arrayed in a $125 overcoat and a $100 suit, John Scalsi, known as a "Scarface Al" Capone, faced inquisitors today, accused as one of the gangsters who moved down seven Moran hoodlums with machine guns in a North Side garage just three weeks ago.

Scalsi was run down by detectives yesterday as he and Joseph Giunta, who said he was a furniture dealer, rode in a taxi cab on the northwest side.

Police officials said Scalsi was identified as one of the mass murderers but the State's attorney's office would neither deny nor confirm the statement.

Special Session Congress, April 15

WASHINGTON, March 7.—President Hoover formally summoned Congress into extra session today, fixing the date for convening at April 15.

The president, in his proclamation, the first he has issued, made the call for the session to consider further agricultural relief and legislation for limited changes in the tariff.

Oil Control Battle Ends At Whiting

Young Rockefeller Wins Fight to Oust Col. Stewart As Head of Billion Dollar Standard Oil Corporation of Indiana.

WHITING, Indiana, March 7.—Rockefeller wins, Stewart out.

WHITING, Ind., March 7.—John D. Rockefeller Jr., won the biggest fight of his business career today when he succeeded in ousting Colonel Robert W. Stewart, from the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

In a meeting recharged with personal animosities born of months of fighting between two oil giants, the shareholders voted to throw Stewart out and elected in his place Dr. William Meriam Burton, former president of the company and inventor of the patented process for "cracking" crude oil.

Thus the issue of "more fitness" which John D. Jr. waves against the head of the Indiana concern because of his connection with the so-called Continental Trading Company scandal was approved by the company investors and Rockefeller again demonstrated his powers as the real American "oil king."

The announcement of the defeat of Stewart came in the form of a statement from Col. Stewart in which he thanks the "31,337 stockholders of the company who executed proxies on my behalf, or voted personally for me, as against the 15,204 who gave their proxies to my opponent."

Rockefeller slated polled 8,465,278; Stewart slated polled 2,954,963.

"NEW CO-ED" SCHOOL PLAY

Reserved seats for "The New Co-Ed", which is being presented by the Junior Class of Eastland High school, may now be obtained at the Corner Drug Store. The ticket sale by members of the class is progressing nicely, and it is suggested that seat reservations be made early if choice of seats is desired.

The play is to be given in the High school auditorium, on Friday evening, at 8 o'clock. The price of admission is seventy-five cents for reserved seats and 50 cents for general admission. The rows of seats extending back as far as the balcony will be reserved.

The play promises to be a credit to the work of the director, Juan P. Mason of the English faculty. He announces the following cast:

Letty Willis, a new student from a small town, Thelma Reaser.

Madge Stevens, Letty's friend and champion, Dolores Tanner.

Estelle Doolittle, a spoiled beauty, Nell Rosenquest.

Miss Rice, the landlady, Belva Deo Hilmyer.

May, Rosa, Grace, College chums Fay Crossley, Wilda Frost, Martha Frances Thomas.

Dick Bradley, the athletic star of the class, Frank Laurent.

"Punch" Doolittle, the mischievous, work-hating brother of Estelle, Jim Golden.

George Washington Watts, porter at Miss Rice's a gentleman of color and "peace", Weldon Raines.

The scenes of the play are located in a college town. The plot is built around the trials and tribulations of Miss Willis, who comes to college from the country. Of course the athletic hero of the college, Dick Bradley, falls in love with her and sees her through to a winning finish. There are frequent breaks in the dialogue for the introduction of a whirlwind program of musical, comedy, and chorus specialties that promise to add much to the show.

House Takes Up Highway Bond Measure

Debate May Continue Into Saturday — Colquitt Tax Survey Committee Expenditure Is Upheld By the Supreme Court.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 7.—After a long parliamentary struggle, the proposed constitutional amendment to permit issuance of $175,000,000 State road bonds was forced to the floor of the House of Representatives this morning.

The measure already has passed the Senate with 21 votes necessary. It will require 100 votes in the House.

Indications are that debate on the proposed bond issue will last all day. It may extend until Saturday. Its supporters will insist on a vote before Sunday in fear that there will be no quorum next week.

OH, BOY, PAGE ATTICUS WEBB

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Robert P. Lamont, new Secretary of Commerce in the Hoover cabinet, is listed as a director of the Association against the prohibition Amendment in the recent annual report of that organization, it was said at the association's office here today.

Other McCloskey Cases Dismissed

AUSTIN, Tex., March 7.—Remaining charges against Congressman-elect Augustus McCloskey of San Antonio were dismissed here this afternoon by District Judge J. D. Moore.

Judge Moore also entered an order dismissing the companion cases that had been filed against Judge McCloskey's secretary, Chas. Ramirez and against Elmer Wernette.

All the cases charged alteration of returns in the election in Bexar county last November. Judge McCloskey was tried on one of the charges and acquitted.

MURDER OF 2 WOMEN MAY BE SOLVED

Dallas Cornfield Tragedy of Last November Subject of Announcement From Prosecutor — Woman Involved.

DALLAS, Tex., March 7.—The district attorney's office today announced that a woman whose identity is known to authorities took part in the murder of Mrs. Cleo Lietz and Mrs. Bessie Lyth whose bodies were found last November in a cornfield west of Dallas.

Two men were with the woman when the two young women were clubbed to death.

Arrests may be made in connection with the double murder soon, it was said.

Arrange Exhibit At Fat Stock Show

J. C. Patterson county agent, and Wayne C. Hickey, secretary of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, left this morning for Fort Worth where they will have charge of Eastland county's exhibits at the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, which opens in Fort Worth March 9.

Mr. Patterson and Mr. Hickey took a part of the exhibit with them. Other parts of it were shipped Wednesday and some of it had been in Fort Worth for several days.

The exhibit, which is sponsored by the Chambers of Commerce of Eastland, Ranger, Cisco, Rising Star, and Gorman, will be handled largely as the exhibits from the County at the State Fair have been handled.

Judge Davenport's Car Is Recovered

The Buick automobile belonging to Judge Geo. L. Davenport and which was stolen from in front of the West Texas Clinic in Ranger while Judge Davenport was a patient in the institution, has been recovered and returned to Judge Davenport.

The car was found abandoned near Weatherford a few days ago.

BODY FOUND ON BOUNDARY LINE

Juarez Federal Defenders Take Up Positions On Top of Buildings and if Battle Occurs It Seems Certainty El Paso Citizens Will Be In Danger.

NOGALES, Ariz., March 7.—An American tentatively identified as Floyd Thompson, mining engineer, was found dead just on the international border line here this morning.

He had been killed by a bullet which had passed through his temple.

Mexican revolutionary officials insisted that the man must have been murdered on the American side, some distance from the border, then brought to Nogales and thrown from a machine. They pointed out that any shots fired in Nogales, Sonora, would have turned out the some 2,500 troops now stationed there.

FLASHES

DALLAS, Tex., March 7.—An explosion in the Texas Testing Laboratories here last night injured one man and caused property damage of $5,000. The laboratories are located in the heart of the downtown section and the concussion was felt for blocks around. The injured man, P. D. Cretan, 28, employee, was burned on the face and arms.

LISBON, March 7.—Relief parties were rushed today to the town of Sao Vicente, where a landslide in the Grand Ravine crushed a large number of houses and took a death toll estimated at 100 lives, according to advices from the Island of Madeira. Five bodies have been recovered from the debris.

ST. LOUIS, March 7.—A deranged 42-year-old mother shot her two daughters as they slept here today, and then made an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide. Winifred Krage, 17, was killed outright by a bullet in the chest; Bernice, her 15-year-old sister, escaped with a bullet through the arm. Mrs. Lena Hawkins, the mother, was taken to city hospital for observation, becoming the first woman to die empty when she attempted to end her own life.

APLENE, Tex., March 7.—A motor bus belonging to the West Texas Coaches caught fire on the highway five miles from here Wednesday. The bus was completely destroyed. Faulty ignition which fired the carburetor and spread to the gas tanks was blamed for the fire. Passengers got out without difficulty and all baggage was saved.

FORT WORTH, Tex., March 7.—Russell Ball, Houston freshman student at Texas Christian University here, died shortly before 8 a. m. Thursday of a heart attack. He suffered the stroke Wednesday night after taking part in several games and then going to a fire, according to college officials. They said the excitement proved too great for his weak heart.

EL PASO, March 7.—Oh reports that General Marcello Caraveo rebel leader, was hastening northward to attack Juarez major Daniel Calvan, federal commander, early today sent a scouting train south. Cavalry was preceding a train load of rebels, the reports said, and had passed Montezuma, four hours from Juarez.

A nonscript federal "army" of 300 men took up positions on top of tall buildings in Juarez today, prepared to "defend the city to the last man" against an expected attack by rebels.

The buildings were so located that it seemed inevitable that some of the shells fired by rebels in an attempt to dislodge the federal forces would carry over into the thickly populated tenement section of El Paso, ten blocks away.

Three United States intelligence officers are here at the American bridgehead to get data on any possible dangers to residents on the United States side of the river. In the past, such danger has always been answered by American artillery, dislodging rebels or federal forces in Mexico if the shells came over to this side.

The federalists decided they were too few in number to leave Juarez and go out in the open country to attack the incoming rebel train. No shelter for them lay there. Staying in the heart of Juarez, they are protected by buildings.

One detachment went up into the Cupola of the old Juarez mission church, still battle-scarred by the Villa revolutionary fire of years ago. Others went to a bull ring, where bull fights are fought, to top of a saloon building and a tall hotel and into the brick-walled courtyard of the Juarez customs house.

WHERE MUSSOLINI MAY FAIL

It is now seven years since the very Mussolini led his black shirts to Rome and made himself dictator of Italy. Seven years—and he seems more firmly established now than ever.

Beneath the surface, however,
Mussolini is grappling with problems far less easy to solve than the political issues that he tackled so successfully. He is engaged now in a struggle which will prove his ability as a business man and economist; and the result of this struggle may well determine whether he is to remain as Italian dictator or tumble dismally from his lofty perch.

A writer in the current issue of the Magazine of Wall Street sheds an interesting light on this little-understood phase of the Italian situation.

"The success of the state as a self-maintaining and profit-going concern still depends on large factors of finance, industry and international trade which he (Mussolini) cannot expect to control with a decree, an eloquent speech or a word of command," says the writer.

The first economic problem Il Duce took on was the reform of the budget. Italy's income did not meet her expenses. Mussolini, accordingly, set up a program of rigid economy, jacked taxes far above the highest point that a parliamentary government would have dared fix, and achieved his aim.

Next came stabilization of the currency. Here, in the Wall Street observer's opinion, he did not do so well. He stabilized the lira at a point so high that he seriously hampered Italy's foreign trade, increasing imports and decreasing exports. Italy has a rising unfavorable balance of trade that, in the long run, is apt to prove serious.

Now Mussolini must solve that problem, and at the same time build up greater prosperity in Italian business and industrial circles. And Wall Street, if the magazine writer's opinion may be taken as a gauge, is not so optimistic about his ability to do it.

In this stage of the battle, Mussolini obviously moves with less force and precision," says the writer. "He has a firm hold on the faith and imagination of his people, but whether he retains that hold depends now on his ability to give Italy the prosperity which it craves. With the Italians as with other peoples, there comes the point where 'business is business.'"

This is an interesting comment.
We are used to thinking of Mussolini as a political genius. Now we realize that he must be a genius in the field of economics also if his system is to survive.

By EARL J. JOHNSON,
United Press Staff Correspondent
WHITING, Ind., March 7.—
The broad shouldered son of an Iowa blacksmith today challenged the son of the world's richest man for control of the billion-dollar Standard Oil Company of Indiana.
Hours before the combatants entered the arena, odds were running heavily against Col. Robert W. Stewart. It appeared that nothing short of a miracle could save him from expulsion from the company directorate as demanded by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Despite the inequalities of the contest, 2,500 stockholders and a corps of newspapermen, worthy

John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s supporters were first on the scene of the fight to oust Col. Stewart

WHITING, Ind., March 7.—
The Standard Oil Company of Indiana meeting today threw into sharp contrast the characters of the two principals—Col. Robert W. Stewart, the active executive, and John D.
Rockefeller Jr., the relatively inactive capitalist.
It was typical of Rockefeller that he should be in Palestine looking at Biblical landmarks on the day the most spectacular battle of his business career came to a head here. It was equally typical of Stewart that he should attend the meeting in person to witness with his own eyes the coming of whatever may be in store for him.

of a championship prize fight, started early for the scene of battle, the Whiting community memorial which was built by Rockefeller funds.

Six years ago, before there was a Teapot Dome scandal and before Rockefeller raised the issue of "moral fitness" upon which he hopes to have Col. Stewart thrown out of his $125,000 a year job, John D. Jr., gave the oil tank town of Whiting $600,000 with which to build this memorial to the heroes of the World war.
Today the building is the locale of the most spectacular financial battles in history, with the people of Whiting—about 90 per cent of whose breadwinners are Standard Oil employes—turned against Rockefeller.

Long before the noon hour set for the meeting of the company stockholders who are to pass upon Rockefeller's demands, committees appointed by both sides finished checking the proxies in the Standard Oil building in Chicago. It was said to have been determined there in advance of the formal meeting of shareholders that Stewart's fight to retain his high position in the face of Rockefeller opposition has been in vain.

Stewart was reported to be approximately 1,000,000 proxies, or shares of Standard Oil stock, short of the number required to keep his place as chairman of the board of directors.

LONGVIEW, Tex., March 7.—
After deliberating four hours, a jury in district court here found A.
C. Yeager guilty of neglect homicide, and assessed a $100 fine.
Yeager had been charged with the murder of Wesley Harbison, fourteen-year-old Arkansas youth.
Such an ending to the most sen-

Yeager that he shot Harbison ac-in his hand while chasing a numdred witnesses were called, none of which could positively identify Yeager as the man who had shot the youth.

Wintry Canada to Tropical Cuba—in One Hop

Linking Canada and Cuba in a non-stop flight from Windsor, Ontario, George Haldeman, standing third from right, is pictured here immediately after landing at Camp Columbus Airport, near Havana. He covered 1400 miles in less than 13 hours, and landed his Bellanca plane with enough fuel to have carried him 125 miles farther. So quickly was the flight completed that only few newspapermen and Cuban flyers were at the field when he arrived. Haldeman was the pilot for Ruth Elder in her unsuccessful attempt to fly across the Atlantic.

Babe Ruth Guesses How They'll Finish

ST. PETERSBURGH, Fla., March 7.—Babe Ruth predicted today to the United Press that the New York Yankees and Chicago Cubs would win the 1929 major league pennant races. The home run king relegated the St. Louis Cardinals, 1928, National League champions, to fourth place in his pick and also dropped the Philadelphia Athletics, runners-up to the Yankees in the American League race, to fourth place. Ruth's predictions follow: American League National League 1—New York 1—Chicago 2—St. Louis 2—Pittsburgh 3—New York 4—Philadelphia 4—St. Louis 5—Cincinnati 6—Brooklyn 7—Chicago 7—Boston 8—Cleveland 8—Philadelphia 8—Boston.

All Girl Orchestra With "Jazz Pirates"

Traveling in their own $10,000 dollar International deluxe club bus, the famous Jazz Pirate all-girl presentation is headed for this city. This snappy all-girl revue, presenting the latest type of stage entertainment, so popular in all of the larger cities today, comes direct from successful engagements all over the United States. The Jazz Pirates are known as one of the most talented companies on tour today, combining beautiful wardrobe scenery in special effects, with the very best talent obtainable has made the Pirates the popular favorites they are.

Featured with the Jazz Pirates are the sensational dancing artists the Mahaviv sisters. Their diversified novelty dancing, is one of the many hits of the show. "That come" "Tobey Nevius, the master of ceremonies, keeps the act coming along in rapid succession, and his comedy will provide tumults of laughter, while his musical ability is a rare treat. Leo Francis, a "red hot" buck dancer never fails to stop the show. Blossie Rose, the jazz singer, easy to look at, Polly Jessup, who entertains with her xylophone, saxophone and accordion, Ruth Bowden, a drummer and specialty artist, comprise this clever company, along with the eight beautiful girls in the Pirate orchestra. This famous band radiates with rhythm and melody, from the tips of their twinkling toes.

All in all, it looks like the concert theatre has the best act, a reborn of the season booked, and judging from the Jazz Pirates' success in other cities, packed houses will greet them at every performance. They will appear at the Connellee on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of next week.

WANT COMPLETE VITAL RECORDS

AUSTIN, Texas, March 7.—The United States Census and children's Bureau are cooperating with the State Department of Health in a drive to better birth and death registration in Texas. Great strides have been made along this line during the past six months. There has been a large increase in the number of births and deaths registered, but the State is still below the required standard of 90 per cent.

Through the courtesy of S. M. N. Marrs, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, a canvas is being made throughout the State of all children under one year of age in connection with the scholastic census. These will be checked against the birth records for each community, and in that way the unregistered will be located, as well as the names of the doctors and midwives who are not filing their certificates.

It is felt that if the parents realized the importance of a birth certificate for their children, they would insist that the doctor or midwife in attendance promptly file one.

Among the many uses of a birth certificate as a record are: the proof of parentage, age (for school attendance and child labor laws), legal proof for World War Veterans who have claims before the Veteran's Bureau, and proof of citizenship.

A concerted drive is also being made through the retail casket dealers in an effort to build up the death registration to the required standard. Too long Texas has had no reliable health statistics; lack of which has greatly handicapped the health officers of this State, and has caused business men outside of the State to become somewhat reluctant to invest money in a State where the healthfulness is in doubt.

Teach Home Beautification

Home beautification courses, launched in several mid-western states, are changing farm houses and surroundings into "farmsteads." At the University of Iowa, Ames, Iowa, a course in farmstead planning is held for representatives of rural communities. Instruction in home beautification, farm planning and management are given these representatives who, in turn, impart it to residents of their communities. This picture shows the home of D. C. Bice, Dallas county, Iowa, before and after he made improvements.

“By Joe! it's good to smoke Luckies.”

Felix Count Luckner

“Lucky Strikes? By Joe, yes. Let me tell you. I was cruising in my raider in the South Pacific. It had been damp, rainy weather and every bit of tobacco we had on the ship was mouldy and could not be smoked. We began to be desperate. The men were—what you call—grouchy. Along came an American ship. We captured her and after taking the captain, officers and crew aboard my raider and finding comfortable places for them to stay, I and my officers went over to the captured ship to see if there was anything aboard her that we wanted. We searched her. And what do you think? Under the cushions of a seat in the captain's cabin we found 500 packages of Lucky Strikes! I tore off the end of one and lit it and filled my lungs with it, and By Joe, I was a man again. We had enough for all the crew and we were all cheered up and we all became friends once more. By Joe, I was sorry to sink that American ship that had brought us those smokes. Lucky Strikes, they are wonderful, and my Countess, of course, wishes a fashionable, slender figure. She smokes Lucky Strikes when she is offered fattening sweets. And my life has always been an active one and I must be trim and fit. I love to feel what you Americans call 'peppy.' So no sweets for me. Give me a Lucky Strike instead. By Joe, it's good for us to smoke Luckies.”

COUNT FELIX VON LUCKNER

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This confirms in no uncertain terms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

THIS HAS HAPPENED
RUTH LESTER, secretary, finds the body of her employer, "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, Monday morning sprawled beneath the airshaft window of his private office. He was shot some time between one and four Saturday afternoon.

McMANN, detective sergeant, questions the following suspects: Ruth, MRS. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and mother of his two children, who admits calling on him Saturday afternoon; RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, who says she called on Borden Saturday afternoon to get the torn half of a $500 bill he promised her; JACK HAYWARD, Ruth's fiancé, whose office is across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

Hayward says he returned to the seventh floor Saturday afternoon to get his and Ruth's mail. He was asked to get into his desk. McMANN's belief in Jack's guilt is strengthened by the testimony of MICK MORAN and OTTO PELUCER, elevator boys, and of BILL COWAN, Jack's friend, who tells of having heard Jack threaten Borden's life.

A detective is sent for CLEO GILMAN, Borden's discarded mistress. BENNY SMITH, Borden's office boy, says he returned to the office Saturday afternoon to get Ruth's gun for target practice but it was already gone. ASHE, Borden's manservant, tells McMANN of a woman with a beautiful contralto voice of whom Borden lived in fear.

MINNIE CASSIDY, scrubwoman, tells of going to Borden's office at 1:30 Saturday, answering his phone while he was out, and of telling the woman with a "beautiful alto voice" that Borden refused to talk to her then but asked her to call later. Ruth asks Mrs. Borden if her husband knew some woman with a beautiful contralto voice. The widow haughtily evades the question. LETTY MILLER, scrubwoman in Jack's wing of the building, is brought in for questioning.

CHAPTER XXXI
Minnie Cassidy must have found Letty Miller already at work in some of the ways that had closed early for the day. When Jack Hayward's offices appeared within three minutes, she was carrying her broom, floor mop and scrubbing her hair, filled with oily dusting rags. Birdwell, the detective, opened the door for her, and was hailed by his chief, McMANN.

"Any further report from Clay on Cleo Gilman?"

"No, sir."

"See if headquarters has got any line on Jake Bailey, Borden's bodyguard." McMANN directed, then, as Birdwell withdrew, the detective sergeant glanced negligently at Letty Miller. "Come on over here. I won't bite you. . . . Now, take that chair, and don't fidget; I'm not going to keep you long. You'll have plenty of time to do your work. You're Letty Miller, the woman who regularly cleans John C. Hayward's offices?"

Letty's thin, calico-clad body accepted the support of the edge of the chair McMANN indicated. Her face was raised anxiously; faded brown eyes peered at the detective nearsightedly through ugly, steel-rimmed spectacles. Gray-haired, frail, timid—no wonder, Ruth thought, Letty Miller had appealed to Jack's tender heart so that he had tipped her more than he could afford. Was it in her power now to repay him for his kindness? It was hard for Ruth not to take the witness out of the detective sergeant's hands. . . .

"Yes, sir," Letty quavered. "You cleaned Mr. Hayward's offices last Saturday afternoon?"

"Yes, sir."

"At what time, or approximately what time?"

The cleaning woman purred her colorless lips in thought, then answered slowly: "I couldn't say exactly, sir, but it was after half-past two, because I was in another suite at half-past two and happened to look at the clock and remember that I still hadn't cleaned Mr. Hayward's offices, though ordinarily they're among the first I get to."

Ruth did not even raise her head when Letty Miller was dismissed with the usual instructions from McMANN, but she had the impression that Letty's near-sighted, dull-brown eyes peered at her pityingly, asking her to forgive her for not having been able to clinch Jack Hayward's alibi. But she could not look up, and Letty was gone.

"Detective Carlson wants to report, sir," Birdwell announced from the door.

"All right; show him in," McMANN replied curtly. "Hello, Carlson. Any news? You've seen all the stock salesmen that showed up, haven't you?"

"Yes, sir," Carlson answered cheerfully, as he lowered his fat body on the chair vacated by Letty Miller. "Four of 'em blew in, with alibis all neatly wrapped up and ready to deliver. That accounts for all of Borden's boys except Adams, and Grant, one of the salesmen, just received this wire from him. I've checked his alibi with his landlady. He's been renting a room in an apartment of which he gave the address, and I called the woman on the phone. Looks straight, all right. Here's the wire."

Smith and myself," Ruth answered. "Rita Dubois had Mr. Borden's key from Friday until today, but I never knew Mr. Borden to trust anyone else so far."

"Of course Borden would have admitted Adams, unless they had quarreled so violently that Adams had threatened Borden's life," McMANN reflected aloud. "After Adams left—assuming that he has told the truth about Borden's having ordered him to Chicago—he may have decided to make another appeal to the boss, to be allowed to stay here—"

"In that case, he would have ridden up in the elevator," Ruth pointed out drearily. "And Mickey Moran did not bring him up. Mickey knows Adams well. He would not have forgotten if Adams came back with the intention of killing Mr. Borden, with the gun he knew was kept in my desk, he would have walked up but for the quarrel had been so bitter as all that. Mr. Borden would not have admitted him, and Adams had no key."

larity of Jack's and Mr. Borden's telephone numbers. Either Cowan or the operator could have got the wrong number. And though I know you don't believe her, believe instead that she robbed a dead man's body, Rita Dubois has told you that Borden was alive until half-past two—when Jack and I stood in the lobby of the Princess Theater."

"Then you believe that Rita killed Borden?" McMANN asked suddenly.

Ruth struggled with temptation, then raised her head to meet the detective, probing eyes if the detective. "I—don't—know," she answered despairingly. "Then, desperately, her voice like a sob: "No, I don't believe she did. But I know Jack didn't."

"I don't think Rita did it, either," McMANN said quickly, "because of this," and the detective thrust a hand into the pocket of his coat, brought out something which he extended toward Ruth.

"You like Mr. Hayward might well, don't you, Letty? He's been good to you—about tips and so on?" McMANN asked suddenly.

Letty's lined, pale face flushed a dull red. "Of course I like him, sir. He's a good, kind gentleman, and I'm sure—"

"I thought so," McMANN interrupted grimly. "All right, what next? When did Mr. Hayward leave? I suppose you're going to be very helpful and tell exactly when he did leave?"

Both Ruth and the scrubwoman glared at him then, but McMANN did not seem to mind. He did seem a little nonplussed, however, when Letty answered defiantly: "No, sir, I'm not, because I don't know when he did leave! I wasn't in that corridor then. When Mr. Hayward came back I took my mop and broom and went around the corner to an office. I knew what ways closed all day Saturday. And from there I went to the office next to it. I didn't come back to Mr. Hayward's office till after half-past two, like I said, and I didn't see him again."

The hope that had routed Ruth's overpowering fatigue when she had remembered that Letty Miller had seen Jack on his return to his office died a violent death, leaving the girl utterly crushed, and so tired that she felt she could not even lift her eyes again, no matter what happened.

If only Letty had waited, had watched for Jack to leave, had been in his office from two until ten minutes past two, so that she could have refuted Bill Cowan's damning story about the telephone call!

"Well, Miss Lester, what do you think," McMANN asked. "I think he's telling the truth," Ruth answered dully. "It had not occurred to me to suspect Mr. Adams. I had thought it was fine of him to volunteer this information so promptly."

"Or very clever," McMANN said slowly. "Get the name of the girl from that chap Grant, Carlson, and go see this Mrs. London personally. I don't quite like the looks of this. Too pitiful the girl works, too. . . . Did any of the salesmen have keys to this office, Miss Lester?" he added, when Carlson had left.

"No. No one was supposed to have a key but Mr. Borden, Benny McMANN regarded the girl steadily through narrowed eyes, and slowly a smile twitched at his grim mouth. "You're a new experience to me, Ruth Lester! You'd give your life to save Jack Hayward's, if it comes to that, but you won't throw the weight of a word against any other person that you don't believe is guilty."

"I want the truth to save Jack!" Ruth answered quietly. "I know he is innocent, but I can't blame you for suspecting he is guilty—except for one thing. All this long, dreadful day, Mr. McMANN, no matter how much I wanted to help Jack, I have told you the truth, and have suppressed nothing—nothing! And I ask you now not to forget that I have corroborated Jack's alibi—that he rejoined me at the Chester Hotel at 10 minutes after two, and did not leave me again. According to Bill Cowan's story, Borden was alive and talking over the telephone at 10 minutes after two—"

"With Jack Hayward!" McMANN reminded her, with curious gentleness.

"No!" Ruth cried desperately. "Perhaps with someone in Jack Hayward's office, but not with Jack Hayward! I'd stake my life on that. I've pointed out the simi-

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON
Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified crocote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs crocote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to crocote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the crocote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

AUXILIARY OF MEDICAL ASSOCIATION MEETS

Mrs. E. R. Townsend was at home yesterday to the Eastland Medical Auxiliary, entertaining at the new family home which was charmingly adorned with bouquets of violets for the event. One table was prepared for the game of "forty-two" and bridge was the diversion at the second table. Refreshments were served of a delicious salad course at the tea hour, and individual baskets of violets were guest souvenirs.

Present were Mrs. L. C. Brown, Mrs. J. H. Cator, Mrs. H. B. Tanner, Mrs. Roy Townsend, and guests not members, Mrs. Robt. Hunt, Mrs. Taggart and Mrs. Milton Lawrence. The Auxiliary will meet the first Wednesday in April with Mrs. L. C. Brown.

MRS. C. H. STOUT ENTERTAINS TEACHERS OF METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

A teachers meeting of the Junior Class of the Methodist Sunday school was hosted by Mrs. Stout yesterday afternoon at her home attractively decorated with bouquets of fragrant white roses, and a large cluster of these blooms centering the living room table. The session opened with the hymn "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name". The devotional, from Luke, presented the "Resurrection" and closed with prayer and the hymn "Jesus Pays It All". Following the devotional period, Mrs. Ernest Jones presented the minutes, which were approved. The committee of the class has made fifteen visits to the sick and presented flowers to many ill.

Plans for the Easter Egg Hunt, the Annual Junior Department event, were discussed and the date set for Saturday March 23 at 3 p. m. The children will be requested to meet at the church and will then be taken to the City Park in private cars.

A reading by Mrs. Hague was very beautifully given. "The Meaning of Easter". Mrs. Stout served a delicious salad with whipped cream, sandwiches cake, coffee and dainty St. Patrick baskets filled with nuts. The napkins were in white with green bands and a white rose adorned each basket. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Will Keith the first Wednesday in April. At that time the department will take up various projects they are considering employing for assistance in developing more enthusiasm among the Sunday School children. As a first attempt a class Banner was agreed upon. This will be made by Mrs. Ernest Jones. The material will be of handsome white silk and Mrs. Gene Andrews will do the decorating, and painting.

Those present were: Mmes. Fred Davenport, I. J. Killough, W. P. Leslie, Ernest Jones, L. A. Constable, Herman Hague, Will Keith, M. K. Gates, Walter Gray, A. F. Taylor, and hostess, Mrs. Stout who was assisted by co-hostess Mrs. Gates.

EASTLAND GIRLS ON HONOR ROLL:

Geraldine Dabney and Wilma Beard, students in T. C. U., have each made A to 3 studies and are among the few girls whose names are on the honor roll in the college.

Though they study intensely they don't deprive themselves of the musical entertainment that Fort Worth affords. They attended the Grand Opera and heard other music in addition.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT, METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL, WILL BANQUET:

The Senior Department of the Methodist Sunday school reiterates the announcement of the St. Patrick's Day Banquet which will be given March 12, 7 p. m. in the Methodist church, Assembly room. Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins, Superintendent of this department, states that the banquet will be a novel affair with plenty of peppy music and some very entertaining Irish jokes.

APACHE DANCE:

The Elks have announced an Apache Dance for Friday night, March 15. Charlie Gamble will furnish the music with his orchestra and some interesting features will be developed.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS OF AMERICA:

The Golden Rule Camp of the Royal Neighbors of America held a most interesting meeting Tuesday evening. There was an unusually good attendance. Initiation was held for Mrs. Lillie Mae Herrington and Mrs. Lila Box. This brings ten new members into the Camp since the first of the new year. Mrs. T. Henry was present from Ranger and had with her as visitors to the Camp Mrs. Heister Bolin and Mrs. Erwin. The resignation of Mrs. Lillie Watson as vice orator was regretfully accepted. Mrs. Nora Wood was elected to the vice orator chair, Mrs. Ora Mae Jones was appointed "Grace" to fill the vacant chair of Mrs. Wood. Mrs. Addie Simmons was elected orator, central to fill the vacant chair of Mrs. Jones.

Installation for new officers will be held in Modern Woodman Hall next Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock. All officers and members are requested to be present by Orator Gusie Tucker. Preparation for a trip to the States Meeting in Dallas are being discussed.

WEEK OF PRAYER IN BAPTIST CHURCH:

Last evening, marked the fourth service in the week of prayer inaugurated by the Women's Missionary Society of the Baptist church on Monday afternoon with a program presented by the Fidelis Matrons class for whom way was made through courtesy by circle number one. On Tuesday afternoon circle number two conducted a delightful program presided over by Mrs. Elzo Been, circle chairman. The subject general "Foreigners" was opened by the hymn "Come, Thou Almighty King."

An inspirational Bible lesson on the Home Missions in the United States and especially in the South. W. D. Dikan's convincing way.

"Why Foreigners Flock to America", a spirited talk by Mrs. A. M. Hearn preceded the subject "Into Every City and Place" by Mrs. Glen Norton; prayer, Mrs. Clyde Garrett president of the W. M. S. Mrs. T. J. Pitts described the great French Triangle as known in Lou-sented by Burt McGlamery prominent in Americanization and Citizenship State Work and whose subject was "The Duties and Responsibilities of Citizenship."

Mr. McGlamery dwelt on the opinion that living was the greatest of arts in the home. That the first respect for law is taught in the home in the parents' control of the child and the children's obedience; that a greater proportion of homes are now rejecting religious training in the home than has been the case in a decade. That only one home out of every ten, has real religious training given children. The best thing to be found in life lies within oneself. That in later life, there are greater things yet to look forward to, and that the greatest responsibility rests upon the American home.

At close of session, Mrs. Harry Semple and Mrs. Joe Driskell served a dainty tea and wafer plate. Those present were: Mmes. Geo. Glascock, James Horton, Swearingen G. W. Dikan, J. M. Perkins, Oscar Chastain, Burt McGlamery, R. E. Sikes, Harry Semple, Joe Driskell, Sallie Morris and Mrs. Mery.

At the next City meeting on March 20, 1936, will be entertained with club women. The program presented under the direction and will be demonstration program. The program will be presented as this is a National Committee named Mrs. Mery, and Mrs. Mery, and Mrs. Mery.

Daily Modern Store, Moldave's, For Eastland

Men's and Boys' Clothing With Hose and Shoes for Women Also—Store Is In Attractive Building, North Side of Square

Moldave, formerly connected with the Boston Store and, announces the opening of a new store which operated under the name of Moldave's.

The new business will be located on the north side of the square in a building especially built for the store, Mr. Moldave having had it remodeled and a modern front put on. The minute fixtures have been installed.

Moldave will be a man and boys' store with shoes for women.

Mr. Wolf and Henry Ferrell will be connected with the store.

"Smart to Be Thrifty" will be the slogan of the store, which will sell for cash only. Nothing but high grade merchandise will be handled.

Moldave, one of the leading business men of the city, has been in Eastland more than ten years ago and engaged in a real estate business, which has gradually grown into a new enterprise being opened at this time.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The Hon. John Garabaldi Sargent unquestionably has derived a deal of quiet satisfaction over the difficulty Mr. Hoover had in finding the right kind of a man to succeed him as attorney general.

Derned if it didn't put kind of a crimp in those critters that have been allowin' all along that finding a successor would be just about the easiest of all chores and that the old Department of Justice would get along in exactly the same way if he were to have no successor at all.

Yessir, it does kind of give a feller a thrill to resume his position as leading lawyer in Ludlow, Vermont, after seeing the new president having such a heck of a ntie filling his boots!

Sargent will be very happy to get back among his native Green

On Aerial Honeymoon

NEA Washington Bureau Charles S. Mott of Flint, Mich., and his bride, the former Mrs. Dee Frey of Detroit, pictured above, were reported uninjured when Mott's tri-motored plane in which they were starting out on an aerial honeymoon was forced down at Anderson, Ind. Mountains. His yearning for them these last few years has been just as sincere as could be. His announced reaction to his job here is that it was a great experience—kind of broadens a feller—and that he enjoyed it. But he is now assuredly the most content of the retired cabinet members.

In recent times, at least, there has been no other cabinet member just like Sargent. He leaves friends here; not many admirers, it is true, but no enemies.

His main job, in his mind, was to do what his friend Calvin wanted him to do. Inasmuch as Calvin seldom had any instructions, he did very little. He will be remembered here as the cabinet member who never appeared to know what it was all about and who, furthermore, didn't care. In that respect he left the Justice Department the same Sargent, now 68 years old. These Vermonters get set in their ways much younger than that. And it is somewhat to Sargent's credit that he never professed to know what it was all about when he didn't. His official conduct seemed to be keyed along the lines of a public address in which he once said:

"In 150 years we have traveled far, very far; and if it is excusable to make use of the substance of a somewhat slangy phrase, we do not yet know just where we are going. I say we do not know where we are going, and I say it again, because I wish you to take note of the assertion; ask yourselves if you can say to the contrary, and if you feel sure about it each tell yourself the answer."

Few of his speeches were quite good enough to dissolve the suspicion that Sargent had written them himself. He was not averse to speechmaking, but he appeared to have a perfect horror of ever telling newspapermen anything. That was all right with the newspapermen, but the old gentleman also clamped down a mantle of secrecy over his entire department. Often he varied his customary simple answers of "I don't know," and "I can't discuss that," by saying "Col. Donovan has charge of that," but wouldn't let Donovan, who was regarded as the real attorney general, open his mouth. And thus the Justice Department worked in nearly absolute secrecy; it seemed as if Sargent regarded correspondents as more dangerous than the nation's criminals.

It is a rather quaint fact that Sargent apparently never knew much more than he told the press. When a Senate committee asked him about the so-called aluminum trust it appeared that he hadn't even heard of the inquiry until six or eight months after taking office, even though the company had been accused of anti-trust violations by both his predecessor and the Federal Trade Commission. He learned about it first when some newspapermen happened to ask him about it.

Cheaney

CHEANEY, March 6.—Everything is lovely here. The sun is shining and the farmers are busy. The ground is really a little wet to plow, but corn planting time is so near at hand that the farmers are preparing such land as they can for it. The well drilled on the H. D. Browning lease proved to be a dry hole and the casing is being pulled.

A real interesting game of basketball was played here between the Cheaney boys and those outsiders who at one time played basketball. The game resulted in a score of 8 to 14 for the regulars.

The drive being made on the rabbits by Cheaney citizens are doing much good in ridding the community of the pests.

The teachers of the Cheaney school are taking the school census.

E. M. Campbell and family and A. H. Reynolds and family attended singing at Cheaney Sunday. Come again. We are always glad to have you. County Commissioner Gray is doing some good work on the roads in this community that is greatly appreciated.

Roy Hale, who has been ill for some time, has had to return to the hospital for further treatment. James Howard is installing a radio in his home. Brother Fran Skaggs will preach here Saturday night and Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock.

High School Boy Starts A Profitable Herd

NEOSHO, Mo., March 6.—Some school boys just dream dreams, but David Camfield in Neosho, Missouri, believes in making dreams come true. He pictured himself earning money to pay his way through college, then, wide awake and determined, borrowed $150 from a bank and bought a pure-bred Jersey heifer.

Now, less than two years later, when David is sixteen, Joe Duck, vocational agriculture instructor in the Neosho High school, announces that David has made $241.94 net profit from his two-year-old Jersey heifer in just exactly 348 days. Moreover, his instructor believes that David will have no difficulty in building up a high producing herd of Jerseys that will pay college expenses by starting with this heifer as the foundation of the herd.

David's carefully kept records show that with this borrowed capital he purchased the pure-bred Jersey, Pretty Oxford Bertha 701511. Bertha calved February 15, 1928. The young owner cared for Bertha and her calf in accordance with knowledge gained in vocational agriculture classes. During 348 days she produced 398.9 lbs. of butterfat and 7,164 lbs. of milk which David sold to a whole milk plant for $218.80. Bertha's full calf, sold at auction for $145, raised the amount of David's gross profits to $363.80.

During the 348-day period the records show the entire cost of Bertha's feed was $102.86, insurance $10, and interest $9; total expenses $121.86. This left David a net profit of $241.96 made through his own industry in less than a year's time while he attended school. Then as Spain built up her chain of missions near San Antonio, this mission was moved there in 1718. It was located and relocated in and near what is now the largest city in Texas several times. Its permanent location was established in 1744, in the center of the little settlement of San Antonio de Valero (San Antonio).

In order that the inhabitants of the village of winding streets and adobe houses might have protection from warring red men, rock walls were built around the mission and it became a fort as well as a church.

As late as 1783, the Alamo carried the name of the settlement. But to distinguish between the two and also honor the memory of the soldiers who protected the sacred building from Indian attacks, it was referred to as the Alamo. These defenders belonged to the famous Compania Valiente Del Alamo de Parras, Coahuila, for many years the special guard of the mission. Every year San Antonio and Texas pay homage to the Alamo. The week containing the date of April 21 is known as the Fiesta de San Jacinto in celebration of the victory of the battle of San Jacinto. These seven days are gala days. Carnival shows line the plazas. Each day has its several parades. American and Mexicans alike play awhile.

MOTHER IS FREED

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 6.—A young mother who gave her two daughters poison and then swallowed some of it herself in a double murder and suicide plan was free today to mourn the death of one of the little girls and to nurse the other back to health. The Pulaski county grand jury dismissed the charge of first degree murder against Mrs. A. C. Calhoun, 27, for poisoning Pauline Eugenia, 7, and Betty, 5. Pauline succumbed to the poison.

A SUGGESTED REMEDY FOR CONDITION ON FARM

(By QUINCY A. MAINE.)

A friend of mine had a dream the other night that a great automobile plant had changed their method of work. Instead of paying the men wages they placed all the parts that went into that machine in boxes along the walls and every man went to the box and bought the parts he needed to make his car. Then when he had finished he had to sell it himself to get his wages. As soon as it was finished he ran it outside the factory and tried to sell it to anybody that was there or he got in and drove it to the next town. Of course everybody that wanted a car of that kind living nearby started buying them and taking them some place else to sell. Some men just waited at the factory door and bought all they could. Naturally some of the men were in a hurry to get back to work or they wanted the money to pay the grocery bill and they started selling cheaper than the regular factory price. That made it harder for the other fellow to sell his car and eventually he had to sell for less money too. Some of the men saw how things were going and quit and went over to another factory. Some hadn't figured up what the car cost them and they kept on making cars and selling for less and less until hardly anybody had money enough left to buy the parts to make a car any more and the factory had to start in the old way again.

That's the way we farmers have been doing for a long time and we know just how it works out. We can sell our stuff all right but we have been taking less than the factory list price. The parts have been in the box all right and we took them and built our products but what a mess we made when we went to sell it.

Now we are running a manufacturing plant so why not use manufacturing methods? In fact lots of us know that we must adopt these methods if we expect to stay in business much less make a profit.

Now if we want to adopt big business methods we first have to know what they are. Broadly speaking a big manufacturing plant is divided into four general divisions, administration, production, selling and purchasing. Now that looks as if it might fit farming conditions pretty well. We have to do all four of these things on our farm. That would be big methods on a small scale, so let's take in a lot of farms and make a big business out of it, then we can see if it will work or not. Let's see how each division works, what it does, then we can take it or leave it.

The administration is the organization behind the whole factory or series of factories. It had to direct the direction of activities, decide what to do, how to do it and when to do it. It must also train its subordinates, and look after the interests of its customers and give them whatever training or education is necessary. It doesn't make anything or sell anything but it does hold everything together. The other departments wouldn't amount to much without it. It will take a pretty big administrative organization for agriculture but we can do it.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Baptism and the Lord's Supper
Matt. 28:19-20; 1 Cor. 11:23-29
GOLDEN TEXT — "This do in remembrance of me". (1 Cor. 11:24)

Introduction
In every age of the world God has taught man great truths by object lessons. Noah's Ark and the Deluge, are illustrative of the church of Christ and the destruction of the world Pharaoh's oppression of the Jews in Egypt pictures the kingdom of sin and the Devil's abuse of mankind. The paschal lamb in the Jewish Passover, prefigures the Lamb of God that was slain on the cross 1500 years later. Israel crossing the Red Sea is a picture of Christian Baptism. Observance of the passover ever after crossing the Red sea, reminded the Jews of their deliverance from Egyptian bondage. They remembered the death angel that swept over Egypt, and the unparalleled deliverance wrought by his presence. That event typified the great salvation from sin. "In Baptism we see a picture of the burial and resurrection of Christ. In the Lord's Supper we see a picture of his bodily body that was nailed to the cross, and in the fruit of the vine we see a picture of His blood shed for the remission of sins."

Baptism and the Lord's Supper are the two ordinances of the Church specifically commanded of Christ. They mark the beginning and closing of our Lord's active ministry and are designed for the observance of believers.

World Wide Commission

God's profound interest in him; if believed to the extent of forsaking like service of Satan, baptism is required of him, and disciples of Christ are required to administer it. It is quite clear that those to be baptized must first be taught. (Matt. 28:19) they must understand the Scripture system of salvation. (Acts 8:30-39) they go to the water, (Mark 1:9-10) and are baptized with their Lord "by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father." (Rom. 6:4) Apostolic teaching does not stop there. "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you." The record shows that baptized believers "continued steadfastly in the apostles doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayer." (Acts 2:42) Hence the second thought in this lesson, viz:

The Lord's Supper

1 Cor. 11:23-29

"For I have received of the Lord that which I also delivered unto you, That the Lord Jesus the same night in which he was betrayed took bread; and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take eat: this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me. After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come. Wherefore whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord, unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of the bread, and drink of the cup. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body." In addition to what Matthew, Mark and Luke record relative to the above, the Lord made known to him directly the history of this institution. The Jews had observed the Passover nearly 1500 years. In celebrating this feast, they remembered with reverence the power and love of God which delivered them from the bondage of Pharaoh, and made them a free people. At the time Paul refers to, Jesus being a Jew had observed with the others this Passover institution. At the conclusion of which our Lord established the Christian's passover saying, "This do in remembrance of me." This do in remembrance of me, the weight of the sacrifice wrought in delivering them from human bondage, now; they were required to remember with sacred devotion the stupendous sacrifice made in order to deliver them from spiritual bondage.

"This do," and not that, is the great thought Jesus stepped first, which was emblematic of the cup of intense suffering He would undergo for the salvation of fallen humanity. "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come." The Jews observed the Passover on the 14th day of the first month of the Jewish year. That was a definite time set apart by the Lord. The Christian's Passover we note in Acts 20:7, was observed on the first day of the week. Since the apostles were required to teach the disciples to "observe all things whatsoever I have commanded," it is certain the church at Troas was commanded to observe this ordinance on the first day of the week, because Paul was there and preached for the congregation that day. The question arises, which one of the first days, or how often? That is easily settled by consulting the same Acts 20:7. It says "upon the first day." The little word "the" in the sentence should be sufficient. The same little "the" is found in the 4th commandment. Remember "the" Sabbath day." How often did the Jews remember the Sabbath? They dared not break one. The word "the" is definite, and in this verse it signifies a definite time, to observe a definite thing, by a definite people, viz; the disciples of Christ. Had this verse said upon "a" first day of the week, the disciples would be at liberty as many times as they felt like it in a life time, "eat . . . and drink . . . unworthily." To observe the Lord's supper lightly, or carelessly, or without prayerful meditation on the significance of it would bring damnation instead of blessings.
