FIGHTING THE EMPIRE'S FIGHT.

It is not pleasant to read that three more marines have been slain in Nicaragua—killed when a marine patrol was ambushed by a group of bandits in the jungle fastness.

The marines are a corps with a tradition. It is their boast that whenever Uncle Sam has a bit of trouble anywhere that needs settling, he sends the marines and then considers the job as good as done.

But it isn't all a gay adventure. To us stay-at-homes, no doubt, it looks very thrilling and picturesque, this business of roving the world to look out for the nation's interest.

The United States is at peace. Our army and navy are engaged in the hum-drum business of drill and maneuver that fill the fighting man's time when there are no wars going on.

Every great empire has had its armed men who had to die obscurely, in distant corners of the earth, in order to advance the empire to world leadership.

Today there are more than 300 employees on the farm, 450 work mules and 100 brood mares.

MASON MINIMIZES TALK NAVAL RIVALRY IN U. S. AND BRITISH BUILDING PROGRAM

By J. W. T. MASON... Discussions of so-called "naval rivalry" between the United States and Great Britain are being followed with the keenest interest by every other world power.

It was while working at his chosen profession in Chertoff 22 years ago that he stumbled upon the art of "hair-portraiture." His initial attempts to perfect the art failed, however, and it was not until he found himself supplied with a never-abundance of leisure in 1915 when he was a prisoner of war in an Austrian camp.

greatest naval strategist the United States has produced, was the first to point out that all great wars, whether fought mainly on land or sea, have been eventually determined by sea power.

The British fleet, therefore, is not primarily aimed against any other navy. It is a potential weapon for use in the event of another European war.

The United States is not intimately concerned with military rivalry on the continent of Europe. America's navy is primarily for other uses. But, it is different with Great Britain. The British must always be on instant guard against hostile developments among their neighbors from which potential danger America is spared.

TELLS JUDGE'S FORTUNE

By United Press. SAN FRANCISCO.—Policeman Charles Hennessey listened politely to a fortune teller dole out information about the blonds and brunettes that were going to enter his life.

Taken to court, the woman offered to read Judge Sylvain Lazarus' palm. He consented and she told him: "You are a worse enemy to yourself than to others."

The judge dismissed the case—whether he believed his "fortune" or not.

Young Lady is Owner of Big Baseball Team

Twenty-Four Year Old Daughter Takes Over American Association Team, Owned by the Late Henry Killilea.

By United Press.
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 2 — Twenty-four year old Florence Killilea today assumed control of the Milwaukee American association baseball team, and, in so doing, became baseball's only woman owner.

Daughter of Henry Killilea, one of the game's best known figures, Miss Killilea obtained control of the local club through the will of her father, Killilea died last week.

The 24-year old girl, former student at the University of Wisconsin, is the second woman owner of the Milwaukee team. A few years ago, the team was owned by Mrs. George Havenor, who assumed control after the death of her husband.

Whether the present owner will elect to take active charge of the business affairs of the club or will select someone else has not been announced.

However, Miss Killilea for the past several years has shown an active interest in her father's affairs and is looked upon as capable to take over the work.

A brunette, who tends slightly to the boyish in dress, Miss Killilea's business ability long had been the talk of her father. She knows baseball and would be a success as a club owner, her friends believe.

and will have another opportunity to make good in the big show.

Starred at Salt Lake
Sheely entered professional baseball in 1912 and was successful from the start. The broken leg which came shortly after his debut, however, retarded him for some time and he was not heard from again until 1916 when he appeared in the Salt Lake lineup.

For three years Sheely hit the ball at the .300 clip only to have the major league scouts pass him up because of his leg. In 1919, however, he crashed out a .371 batting average and the White Sox decided to take a chance on him. He made good from the start and proved invaluable, especially as a fielder. His weak leg was apparent only on the base paths.

At the bat Sheely won recognition through his ability to hit the ball when hits were needed. He always was considered a dangerous man with the stick and had been able to run the bases he would have been one of the leading hitters of the American League.

Billy Evans, one of the greatest of umpires and shrewd judge of baseball players once said of Sheely:

"Over 22 years I have been watching closely the star first sacker of the majors. I have seen some wonders in Hal Chase, George Sisler, Stuffy McInnis, Frank Chance and others of that class, yet in one respect Sheely was without an equal.

"During all the time I never saw a first baseman who could compare with Sheely in making in Packard and Chrysler. General Motors held steady. Radio lost more than seven points.

Sports Matter

By WILLIAM J. DUNN
United Press-Staff Correspondent
Earl Sheely returns to the major leagues this year as a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates in an effort to regain the prestige that was his while he was a member of the Chicago White Sox.

Injured early in his career, Sheely never fully recovered and the doctor who bungled a job of setting the leg he broke while a member of the Vancouver team, probably kept him from becoming one of the outstanding stars of the national pastime.

Sheely is a first baseman and, despite his bad leg, he has always been outstanding at that position. He joined the White Sox in 1919 after a big year with Salt Lake in the Pacific coast league and held down the first base position for nearly a decade. A youngster by the name of Bud Clancy ran him out of a job in 1927 and Comiskey shipped him to Sacramento.

Back on the coast again, Sheely departed for Chicago where he picked up the ship and extend an invitation to "Big Bill" Thompson, Mayor of Chicago, to be present at the airport opening.

German Fighter Wins over Risko

By United Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 2 — Jack Dempsey's double has proved his right to ring recognition.

Before a crowd of 20,000 persons in Madison Square Garden last night, Max Schmeling, "The German Jack Dempsey," knocked out Johnny Risko, veteran Cleveland heavyweight, in the ninth round of a scheduled 10 round bout.

Referee Arthur Donovan stopped the fight after one minute and five seconds had elapsed in the ninth round and Risko was on the verge of collapse before the hard-hitting German.

It was the second knockout in Risko's long career, during which he has fought practically all the outstanding heavyweights of the past five years with the exception of Jack Dempsey. Chuck Wiggins scored a technical knockout over Risko in the fifth round of a bout in 1925, but no one has ever given the Cleveland baker boy the beating he absorbed from Schmeling's vicious punches.

OPPOSES COCKTAILS

CAMBRIDGE, England.—Cocktail-drinking is a pernicious habit, especially for young people of either sex, according to Prof. W. E. Dixon, of the University here.

"Young people drink cocktails partly to lose their shyness and partly in a spirit of bravado," declares Dixon.

"The action of the cocktail, unlike that of other alcoholic drinks, is immediate, but its duration is transient, being limited at the most to 20 minutes," the professor asserts.
