

WILHELM REGARDS EX-KAISER AS 'GOOD CITIZEN'

Done Lot for Village By
"Here Presence," Says
Burgomaster.

By H. C. BUURMAN
Press Staff Correspondent RN, Holland.—Doorn rethe ex-kaiser as a good citizen.

in a conversation with the press correspondent, Doctor Baron Schimmelpenninck de Oye, Burgomaster said also well-known as president of the Netherlands Olympic committee, said:

"I am glad to see the ex-kaiser as one of the good citizens I can say that he is a very good citizen who has done a lot for our village by his presence. He is always remember the poor and community benefits by the money he pays. Considerable monies have been paid on account of the staff that lives and works in Doorn."

"The grounds are naturally beautiful and the place has been beautified since the ex-kaiser came to live there. Only this year presented the community the new Rosarium, which is a garden for the citizens, as well as for tourists and visitors, and he had the slightest difficulty because Wilhelm is a resident in Holland."

conversations in the Hague with the foreign minister of Holland, assured that there is no difficulty with any foreign government regarding Wilhelm's presence in Holland.

Additional Matter Dropped.

"The true," Jonkheer Beelaerts said that the old demand for expatriation of the ex-kaiser still exists, but after Holland refused to do this with this demand the matter was dropped. As far as we concerned everything is so that usually we forget the ex-kaiser in our country. It is the sign press that reminds us usually that the ex-kaiser is here, but otherwise we really forget the fact."

However, Wilhelm's presence in Holland is primarily a matter concerning the home minister, Doctor J. B. Kan. The home minister cannot be expected to discuss publicly the little difficulties he had from time to time when Wilhelm sent telegrams to Germany concerning the internal affairs of that country as happened a couple of months ago. It is an open secret that the Dutch government at that time reminded Wilhelm of the pledge he had taken to refrain from such actions.

Dr. Kan in refusing to discuss the matter referred to the official statement the Dutch government issued in March, 1920, and indicated that since there have been no alterations in Wilhelm's position. This statement says: "It is necessary to give a more decided character to the policy of the government follows regarding the ex-kaiser's presence in Holland, since the government could not comply with the demand for extradition."

The ex-kaiser has given assurance to the Dutch government that he will refrain from all political action and consequently will not cause Holland political difficulties.
Such is the official position.
And such is the position the ex-kaiser has more and more accepted—especially since three years ago when the German government definitely refused to allow Wilhelm's return to the Fatherland.

Entertains But Little.
The ex-kaiser has hoped and planned and protested and explained, but could not evade Holland's invisible grip which held him tighter year after year. He lives the life of the country squire, has his quiet social circle, receives visits of the Dutch nobility living near him and pays visits to some of them. Once in a while there is a little party, an official dinner, but on less extensive scale and less showy than a few years ago.

Twice a year the Queen Dowager of Holland visits the ex-kaiser and Wilhelm and Hermine go to see the "queen-mother," as she is called, now and again at her Palace at Soestdijk.

There is one thing to be noticed in Wilhelm's social position. His life is becoming more simple year after year and especially during the last three years, since he finally realized that hope to 'escape' from Holland had to be abandoned.

The plans, once prepared to the smallest details, to surprise Germany overnight by an "escape" from Holland in motorcars are nearly forgotten. Wilhelm refuses at the moment, at least, to listen seriously to Hermine's pleadings.
She has given years of her life in vain to work for Wilhelm's return to Germany. This would have meant her own "coming into glory" as wife of the ex-kaiser, not in democratic Holland, but in Germany, worshipped by those who have unshaken faith in the Hohenzollerns. One by one those dreams had to be abandoned and Wilhelm and Hermine live a peaceful life amidst the Dutch nobility on their large beautiful but dull estate.

Former Longhorns Now High School Mentors

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 11.—Each year in the past, several "T" men at the University of Texas have stepped out of the orange and white athletic uniform in a position as coach at some college or high school. There are 22 former Longhorn athletes who are known to be actively engaged in the profession of coaching in Texas schools.

Heading this group of former Texas athletes is Clyde Littlefield football and track coach at the University. Littlefield was enrolled in the University from the fall of 1912 to the spring of 1916, and holds the unique record of earning a letter in football, basketball and track each of the four years he was in college. Littlefield has served as head football coach since the spring of 1927, and this fall brought to the University the first Southwestern Conference championship since 1920.

Other former Texas athletes who are serving on the present Longhorn coaching staff are: C. J.
"Shorty" Alderson, freshman coach, who was enrolled in the University during the year 1912-13, 1915-16, 1920-21 and 1924-25; Glen "Ox" Higgins, 1926 football captain and former basketball player, now assistant freshman coach; and John Estes, 1928 captain of the basketball team and all-conference forward, now freshman basketball coach and boxing instructor.

A number of other Texas athletes are now coaching academy and college teams. Among them are: "Bobby" Cannon, 1926 graduate and former baseball captain now coaching at Peacock Military Academy; Howard "Buffy" Gilstrap, 1924 graduate and three-letter man now head coach at Schreiner Institute at Kerrville; Maurice "Rosy" Stalter, 1927 basketball captain and three-letter man, now assistant coach at Schreiner.

Joe Ward, former three-letter man and 1924 graduate, now coach at Stephen F. Austin College at Sherman; Mack Saxon, 1926 football captain and 1925 all-conference quarterback, now assistant coach at the Texas School of Mines in El Paso; C. B. Smith, 1926 track star, now athletic director in the Houston Junior College.

Former Longhorn stars now coaching in high schools of the State are: Ed Oile, three-letter man from 1924 to 1927, now at El Paso; Tom Dennis, 1921 football captain and three-letter man, now head coach at Port Arthur, assisted by T. "Swampy" Thompson, who lettered in football in 1924 and '25; Albert Leissner, baseball catcher in 1924 and 1925, is in full charge of the Cuero high school athletics.

A. B. Curtis, 1922-24 football and basketball player, now coach at Central High School at Ft. Worth; Ferdinand "Rube" Leissner, 1924 baseball captain and football letter man, who is now coaching in Polytechnic High School in Ft. Worth; Clyde Pratt, 1926 baseball captain, is now coach at Corpus Christi; Jim Reese, holder of the National Intercollegiate record in the mile run and former University track captain, now coaching at Greenville.

Fred Thompson, former football and baseball star, who is now coaching the El Paso High School teams; C. "Blue" Smith, star of the 1924 Texas-Florida game, now coaching the Ball High School athletes in Galveston; and Holly Me-Lemore, former reserve guard on the Longhorn football team, who is now coach in Hillsboro High School.

AN ODD HUSBAND
EVANSVILLE, Ind.—Mrs. Katherine Keturah, well-known in Evansville society, testified in a divorce suit against Charles Wedding that his peculiar ideas about their home life caused them to part. According to the wife, her husband insisted upon doing the housework; would not permit her to walk across the floor except where she could step on rugs; forced her to change shoes when she came into the house and accused her of permitting ice in a refrigerator to melt too quickly.

SAS CITIAN WORKING GIRL' AT AGE OF 107

Mahon Toils Daily as Seamstress—Early Life Dramatic.

SAS CITY, Mo.—A "working" at 107 is the record of Anna McMahan, of Kansas

McMahan goes daily to the mill industries where she toils as seamstress despite her age. And when her work factory is finished for the day she goes to her little cottage where she does all the work of cooking her meals, keeping and making and washing of clothes.

though her long life has been mostly of work, her one still remains—work. Mrs. McMahan has no other hobbies and takes great pride in her work as a seamstress.

1891, Mrs. McMahan has been heard to work to support her family.

In that year, her husband became an invalid, and for years, until Pat McMahan died in 1915, she earned the money for the family. After her husband's death, she continued to work.

McMahan's has been an active one that has known the hardships of the early years who lived in the wilderness of the middle west.

In Liverpool, England, Nov. 25, 1821, Mrs. McMahan was born in this country when she was 107. A year later she was sent to the slaughter of her brother and three cousins who were captured by Sioux Indians in Wisconsin.

child's long flaxen hair, reached to her shoe tops, her salvation, she said. An squaw, who took a liking to her, asked that her life be spared.

Four years later, freedom came to the little girl after the Indians captured a white woman whose hands had loosened with the hawk. The two traveled by day and nights by "ore" re-education.

ough Mrs. McMahan is very old, she rarely goes to church, having a peculiar reason for absence from churches.

live in the old-fashioned style and there isn't much of the modern churches," she said.

McMahan's family is strict, and none of her descendants are feminine. She is the eldest of four sons, the oldest 70 and the youngest 60. Three live in Iowa and one in Arkansas.

Sports Matter

By George Kirksey

United Press Sports Writer

Three of the most startling ring upsets in recent years all took place on the same night recently.

Jimmy McLarrin, who punched his way to fame in the lightweight ranks, was a 5 to 1 favorite over Ray Miller, young Chicago boy, at Detroit.

Tuffy Griffiths, with 57 straight victories to his credit, was a 4 to 1 favorite over James J. Braddock, a young Jersey City light-heavyweight, at Madison Square Garden, New York.

Johnny Risko, Cleveland rubberboy, was a 2 to 1 favorite over Jim Maloney, Boston fat boy, at Boston's new Garden.

McLarrin, Griffiths and Risko were all beaten. The biggest upset was McLarrin's defeat. The referee stopped the bout in the seventh round after the little Baby Faced Irish boy had taken one of the worst beatings any one ever absorbed.

Out of Shape? McLarrin entered the ring weighing 137-2 pounds, and there is more than suspicion that he was out of shape. Around New York where McLarrin has a large following, they can't believe the deadly puncher who stopped Sid Terris and Phil McGraw each in one round was so brutally beaten up by the wild swinging Miller. They want to see for themselves and Miller and McLarrin probably will be re-matched here soon.

Miller, who also stopped Sid Terris in one round, has a deadly left hook. He caught McLarrin under the right eye with one of his wild left swings in the first round and broke a blood vessel. McLarrin never recovered from that punch.

Tuffy Griffiths turned out to be a highly over-rated fighter. Few fighters ever came to New York to receive the ballyhoo Griffiths did and that may have upset him.

Braddock knocked him out in the second round in the ballyhoo for Griffiths, Braddock was entirely overlooked. Shortly before he stopped Griffiths, he broke Pete Latzo's jaw with one punch. In 42 bouts, he has scored 25 knockouts.

To Meet Lonski When Jack Delaney, Jimmy Slattery and other light-heavyweights turned down a match against Griffiths, Braddock readily consented to the chance. Braddock has found difficulty getting matches himself, but his victory over Griffiths puts him in line for a match against Leo Lonski late in December or early in January.

Maloney's comeback has again placed him among the heavyweights contenders. Maloney won a clean cut decision in 10 rounds weakening Risko with body punches Sharkey knocked out Maloney in five rounds in 1927 and George Godfrey and Tom Heeney each finished him in one round. Since that time Maloney has run up a long string of victories around Boston and may be matched to meet Sharkey for the fourth time.

MORROW WOULD RATHER REMAIN AS AMBASSADOR

Belief Expressed in Mexico As Rumors of Cabinet Post Persist.

By GESFORD F. FINE, United Press Staff Correspondent.

MEXICO CITY.—United States Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, it is believed here, would prefer to remain at his post in Mexico rather than become secretary of state in the new Hoover administration.

The mention of Morrow for this cabinet post has been persistent almost since the day of Hoover's election.

No statement for publication on the reports that the secretaryship of state would be offered him have been made yet by Morrow, but it is known that he expects to stay in Mexico. Despite the immense amount of work done by the ambassador during his single year, he regards his task as only begun.

Although the troublesome petroleum question was disposed of, many other problems affecting relations with the United States remain. The questions of a foreign debt settlement and the land as it affects foreign holdings are both on the ambassador's agenda. In the debt matter especially, Morrow both because of his work in Mexico and his past connection with J. P. Morgan's, is considered almost second to none in his understanding of it.

Aside from his interest in the program ahead of him, Morrow for a long time has had what his associates regard as a strong personal affection for Mexico. In return for his frankness with them and his open-handed policy, Mexicans of all classes and politics have been quick to respond in kind to the ambassador. On a recent trip through the southern section of the country, receptions accorded Morrow were the equal of those accorded revolutionary heroes.

Under such conditions and with such a successful beginning, Morrow would be expected to think twice before giving up his present post. It is certain that the combination of scholar-practical man which describes Morrow best has looked far ahead and does not wish to see his work undone by alien hands.

Unless he feels that he can be as successful in a larger field—for instance, in doing what he has done in Mexico throughout Latin America as a whole—there is a little expectation in Mexico City that Morrow will care to move up.

The Superior Whippet is the first car to offer the new "Finger-Tip Control"—a single button conveniently located in the center of the steering wheel, which controls all functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding the horn.

This ingenious device does away with all troublesome foot fumbling for the starting button, usually located in a somewhat inaccessible position, and obviates a change from the comfortable driving position to reach the light switch on the dash.

While everyone will welcome this new feature, it will appeal particularly to women drivers. Its simple operation is clearly explained by the illustrations above.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

THE MYSTERY OF OSCAR'S POST CARD TO FRECKLES BEARING THE POST-MARK OF ARABIA HAS BEEN SOLVED. WATCH THIS PAPER FOR FURTHER DETAILS.

MOM'N POP

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Fate introduces Jerry Ray, a shopgirl, to wealthy Alester Carstairs when he crashes his airplane into the camp she is sharing with her roommate, Myrtle. Her heart responds to his pilot, Dan Harvey, but Alester is struck by her beauty and showers attentions upon her. A letter from her mother revealing poverty and illness strengthens Jerry's determination to try to marry money. Unable to buy a gown for the party Alester has invited her to Jerry yields to the temptation to take one from the store—intending to slip it back next morning. At the party Leontine Lebaudy, who is infatuated with Alester, is responsible for the dress being ruined. She confesses to the manager of another job, and is surprised one evening when Dan calls. He proposes and she tells him love is a delusion and that she intends to marry for money. He leaves after trying to warn her. Alester phones that he has a surprise, and takes her to the deserted summer camp where he has a servant spread a feast. He gives her orchids and a ring—with a proposal which stuns Jerry. She repulses his insult and he seizes her in his arms. She is frightened until she hears Dan's whistle along the beach.

CHAPTER XXII

Why, hello!" The words were spoken in pleasant surprise. Dan Harvey stood on the steps and greeted Alester and Jerry so. But his eyes flickered keenly about the scene before him. Jerry sat quietly on the hammock, seeking enough self control to enable her to speak to him calmly. Alester coughed her silence with a casual: "Oh, hello, Dan. What brings you here?" Dan hesitated a second. Jerry saw his eyes linger on the table—the daylight saving time afforded sufficient light for this inspection though it was much after eight o'clock. "Well," he said, "I happened to hear you tell Marsh to leave these things here. I was out in the caboot, amusing myself around the point, when I thought I saw a light over here—" "Nonsense," Alester broke in rudely, "we haven't had a tramp." Dan went on evenly, taking no notice of the interruption. "Must have been the reflection of the sun on the windows." Alester scowled at him. "We've plenty of watchmen," he said shortly. "If necessary I'll send one over to guard the place." Dan seemed not at all impressed with the curtness of his employer's words. "There was another reason why"

"I'll get a pair and send them to you," Alester laughed. "If you did they'd serve to remind me what a brute you are," she fired at him. Alester's laugh broke off short. "I don't suppose you'll ever forgive me," he said and Jerry was surprised by the unexpected humility in his voice. "You can be sure of that," she replied emphatically. Alester had been driving fast; now he slowed down to 12 miles an hour. "I know all you feel like saying to me," he declared in tones of genuine self-reproach. "Let's consider them said, and I'll admit they're deserved. That leaves my defense; I've got to offer some. Jerry, a mere apology won't win forgiveness, I know." But you've got to remember that I took it for granted that a girl of your class doesn't expect to marry into mine. That's brutally frank, but I can't help it; it's what I've learned from the world.

"Your world, you mean," Jerry corrected acutely. "Yes," Alester admitted; "my world, but that's my excuse—I was trained in a world of people who know that money can buy nearly everything. I made the mistake of thinking it would buy everything. You ought to be able to forgive me, Jerry, because you're so beautiful you would tempt even a man who knew better to lose his head over you."

"You needn't flatter me," Jerry told him coldly. "And I'm not blaming you entirely. I should have known that a—a waster like you would do something like this," she added, groping for a word that came to her finally as she had read. "Don't be an idiot," Alester admonished her sharply. "You were not in any more danger with me than you would be with any other man who loved you as I do."

"As you do," Jerry repeated meaningfully. "That's just it, Alester. You've criticized me for not believing in love; well, I'd rather not believe in it at all than abuse the word as you have done. Anyway, I don't want to talk about it," she continued hurriedly as Alester started to speak. "I've got to think about tomorrow. You've caused me enough trouble already. I lost my job because—" she broke off, sorry she had said so much. "But it was too late. Alester plied her with questions until he had the story of the tunic from her unwilling lips. "You've got to let me do something for you," he exclaimed when she finished. "Do you enjoy making me feel like a cad?" Alester reproached her. "You might ask yourself about that," Jerry retorted. "I can't help it if you feel natural."

"Just the same I'm going to do something about it," he returned. "Oh, not with money," he added quickly to forestall an expected protest. "But I have some influence in a field where you ought to be able to make a name for yourself if you have any talent at all." Jerry looked at him inquiringly, skeptically. He saw that she did not trust him. "There's no catch," he assured her. "I just happen to have a friend in the theatrical business. I pulled him out of a hole last year and he hasn't forgotten it. So far I've not asked any favors for my help but I'm going to see him about a place for you in his chorus. He's putting on a new show this fall."

"But I don't know anything about the stage," Jerry exclaimed. "You don't need to, for the chorus," Alester replied encouragingly. "You've got the appearance, and I know that you can dance. If you can sing too you'll get a real chance, but at any rate this will be a better living for you than you got from the lace counter."

Jerry was thrilled. She would not let Alester see that she was and of course she couldn't think of letting him do anything for her—she would be certain to demand something in return, but the stage—no dull evenings in a drab furnished room, no early morning alarm clocks! "You're not going to say no," Alester begged. "Give me a chance, Jerry, to win your forgiveness."

Uniformity In Legislation Urged For Air Carriers

Control of the air promises to be one of the difficult legal problems of the near future, in the opinion of Walton L. Crocker, President of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston, who favors uniform legislation for the regulation of air carriers and pilots.

Mr. Crocker has been studying the field of aeronautics to determine, if possible, a classification of the hazards of air travel in order to chart the risks from the standpoint of life insurance. His investigations have led to the general conclusion that while the figures show a decreased ratio in the number of fatalities resulting from air accidents to the total number of persons now flying, there is still room for much improvement.

Among the suggestions the insurance executive offers to effect a further diminution in the aircraft mortality rate are dual licensing and "complete Federal control of air-traffic."

"Questions of State Rights and of enlargement of Federal powers are delicate matters for discussion," he admits, "but here it must be evident is an important matter bearing on the safety of the general public, larger than any individual State interest." And as the number of planes and their daily use increase—they are being produced now at the rate of 3500 or more a year—the problem will become more serious.

Mr. Crocker observes that navigable water have come under Federal jurisdiction as a matter of necessity and convenience, and he is of the opinion that as the air becomes navigable the same factors will require its navigation to come under Federal jurisdiction too.

"It has been suggested and with considerable show of reason," Mr. Crocker says, "that uniform legislation by the several states of the Union and the Federal Government is a necessity. It is obvious that no end of confusion, possibly with serious result, might ensue under a conflict of laws and regulations respecting this activity, especially when it rounds into its full stature."

The fact that inter-state air activity must always exist illustrates this point, Mr. Crocker pointed out, adding that at the same time the most rigid examinations of planes and pilots should be made periodically by those concerned with the public welfare a situation which he believes must lead to Federal as well as State licensing of all pilots.

Other recommendations suggested by Mr. Crocker in the interest of increasing the safety factor in aerial transportation are the prohibition of stunt flying and flying low over inhabited areas, the provision of more and better equipped airports with emergency landing fields between regular stops on all air lines, the restriction of flying for sightseeing purposes to planes and pilots properly licensed and inspected and the education of all pilots in meteorology as applicable to their occupation.

Sealed proposals addressed to the State Highway Engineer of Texas, for the improvement of that part of State Highway No. 23 covered by Job No. M-8-X, Maintenance, in Eastland County, will be received at the office of the State Highway Engineer, at Austin, Texas, until 10 o'clock, A. M., December 18th, 1934, and then publicly opened and read.

Work consists of construction of widening of the road bed between Cisco and Romney, a distance of 8.00 miles. Time for completion to be 100 working days. Detailed plans and specifications.
