Legion To Sell Poppies Here On Saturday, May 24

City Manager Proclaims Saturday, May 24, as American Legion Poppy Day

Saturday, May 24, is to be Poppy Day in Eastland. On that day the Dulin-Daniel Post of the American Legion will sponsor the sale of poppies. Part of the proceeds will go to the local Post through the greater portion will be forwarded to the Disabled Veterans' Association.

H. O. Tatum, city manager of the City of Eastland, issued the following proclamation concerning the sale of poppies:

"The Dulin-Daniel Post No. 70, The American Legion, has set tomorrow, Saturday, May 24th, as Poppy Day. This day has been set for the same purpose by every American Legion Post in Texas. Therefore, I, as City Manager of Eastland, hereby proclaim Saturday, May 24th, as American Legion Poppy Day in the City of Eastland.

"When we think of growing poppies since the World War, our thoughts are naturally turned to Flanders Field. The poppies that will be on sale on the street corners in Eastland tomorrow did not grow on the fields of Flanders, or on any other field. They grew on the counterpane of sick beds, on the arms of wheel chairs, or tables in hospital wards. They were made by the fingers of blind and body wrecked Americans who saw Flanders Field when it was never covered with poetry-inspiring poppies.

"Those poppies to be sold in Eastland tomorrow were made by disabled veterans of the World War in hospital in Legion Hospitals. Some of these veterans will never leave their beds and others will never leave the hospital.

"The American Legion and the Disabled Veterans' Association sell poppies each May for the purpose of raising additional funds for the care of their comrades who are war wrecked. The inmates of the national hospitals are permitted to make small wages by turning out the poppies by hand. Some are able to make $10 or $12 a month by that method, while others only make a dollar or two. They use the money so earned to buy small articles, including paper and stamps to be used to write the 'folks at home' and friends that slapped them on the back and called them 'patriots' and 'heroes' when they said good-bye before leaving for France.

"Every coat lapel in Eastland should wear a poppy tomorrow. Whatever your cause for not buying one, it is not sufficient. You must remember that except by the Grace of God—or Destiny—or Circumstances—you would be one of the Poppy Makers of Legion Texas."

Gregory Hatcher Is To Visit Here

Mrs. Hamilton Testifies In Fritts Case

Saw Husband Shot to Death and Son Shot in the Back As He Attempted to Run Away From Fritts

Mrs. D. W. Hamilton wife of D. W. Hamilton and mother of Earl Hamilton, testified for the state as the first witness in the Will Fritts murder case on trial in the 88th district court here, told of the slaying by Fritts of her husband and son at their farm home near Rochester in Haskell county on the night of Oct. 24, 1928. When she reached the point where her son, running away from Fritts, was shot in the back and fell down on the kitchen floor, the mother became hysterical and Judge Davenport, sitting in the case for Judge Bean, ordered a recess until 1:15 for her to regain her composure.

Mrs. Hamilton testified that on the night of October 25 the Hamilton family had retired early because they had been picking cotton all day and were tired. Shortly after they retired someone knocked on the door and D. W. Hamilton went to the door. When he returned he said it was Will Fritts and he wanted to see Earl. The boy slipped on a pair of overalls and went to the door barefooted and the three men, Will Fritts and W. D. and Earl Hamilton sat on the porch talking.

She said that she heard Earl say "I told them I got it from you."

She then heard a shot and rushed to the door. Earl was running around the corner of the house and Will Fritts shot him in the back, she stated. The boy went to the back door, opened the screen and fell down just inside the back door, she continued.

After giving this most testimony Mrs. Hamilton broke down and the court recessed until 1:15 o'clock.

The nature of the questions asked each juror by the defense attorneys indicated that they would use an insanity plea as a defense for their client, though no positive statement to this effect has been made.

After the noon recess Mrs. Hamilton again took the stand and testified that after her son had been shot in the back as he ran around the house W. D. Hamilton, who had entered the house, went back on the front porch and was shot through the chest by Fritts.

She also testified that after the shooting of her son and husband she went to the home of a tenant farmer who lived on the Hamilton farm and told him what had happened. He returned to the house with her and then gave the alarm to the officers.

The tenant farmer was the next witness on the stand. His testimony was to the effect that he was awakened by shots on the night of October 25 and shortly afterwards Mrs. Hamilton came to his house and told him that her son and husband had been shot. He went to the house, and on the way saw a man go out the front gate, get in a car and drive away toward the town of Rochester.

A large portion of the legal talent of Eastland and Haskell counties is represented in the case, six lawyers aiding in the prosecution and three acting as attorneys for the defense.

Old-Time Hymn, Popularized by Radio, Becomes Most-Loved of Broadcast Aids

Now the day is over,
Night is drawing nigh—
Shadows of the evening
Steal across the sky.

This simple refrain, breathing its note of peace and quiet, probably has reached more millions of listeners during the past four years, and has become better-loved by them, than any stanza of any other hymn in the English language.

Each Sunday evening, for more than two hundred weeks, artists in the Atwater Kent Radio Hour—including the most famous opera and concert stars of this generation—have, one and all, ended their programs with this old hymn. But while no classic aria, no great work of famed composers has brought from the radio audience such heartfelt expressions of appreciation and pleasure, few of the millions who have come to love this song know its origin or the name of its author.

The hymn from which this stanza was taken was written by the Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould, best known among English hymn writers as the author of "Onward Christian Soldiers." First published in 1867, it had been written by Baring-Gould for the children of his parish shortly after he had been assigned as rector to Horbury Bridge, in Yorkshire, following his graduation at Cambridge.

It was for these same children of Horbury that Baring-Gould wrote "Onward Christian Soldiers." Of the circumstances surrounding the writing of this, his most famous hymn, he afterward explained: "What Monday is a great day for school festivities in Yorkshire. One Whit Monday our school was to

Youth Claims Shooting Wife Was Accidental
By United Press
MARION, Ark., May 23.—County officers, aided by Memphis detectives, today attempted to break down the story of Emmett Bernero, 20, that he accidentally shot and fatally wounded his young wife late yesterday.

Bernero was arraigned before Magistrate A. H. Newman on charges of first degree murder. He stuck to his original story that he accidentally shot his bride of 10 months, Gladys, in an expectant mother, while on a fishing trip.

The couple's home was in Memphis, Tenn. "I killed my wife accidentally," Bernero told sheriff Claude Cooper here last night. He brought her body home in their automobile in which they had gone to Blue Hole for a day of fishing.

"If you do, I'll shoot you," Bernero said he replied. "I turned around with a rifle I had been practicing shooting at targets with and it went off, killing her." The bullet entered the young wife's heart.

FAMILY MENU

SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

MEAL planning must be considered from many angles. Individual tastes, nourishment, attractiveness, economy and appetizing variety all enter into the problem of furnishing plenty of good wholesome food necessary for the needs of the human machine.

The average American family spends a large part of the annual income for food. This money must be spent wisely and well if the greatest good be derived from it.

Each meal should be planned with close regard for the other meals of the day and should contain all the constituents needed by the body. The menu for the entire day as well as the menu for each meal must be "balanced."

There are three important factors in building balanced menus: the fuel value of a food, meaning the calories; the organic salts, these are minerals; and the vitamins.

The amount of protein, carbohydrate and fat found in a food determines its fuel value—ordinarily expressed in terms of calories. Protein is necessary for muscular growth. Carbohydrate—the starches and sweets—is needed for quick energy and heat. Fat is required for heat and reserve force.

The minerals are those chemical elements which are purifiers and tonics. Iron, calcium, phosphorus, sulphur, iodine, copper and manganese are all necessary in sufficient amounts to promote growth since each one adds to the efficiency of the others.

Very often one dish is regarded as a "full meal" in itself. It supplies adequate fuel value, mineral and bulky foods. However, the vitamin content of most "made" dishes is low, and a raw, leafy food is necessary to "balance" the meal. A cream soup is also advisable to provide sufficient milk.

Loss Of Weight Is No Calamity Is Judge's View

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 23.—She lost sixty pounds worrying over the way her husband was treating her, Ruth E. Warnick testified in her divorce proceedings—but the court did not regard that loss as a calamity.

Rather, Judge Drew, the presiding jurist, intimated that the loss of weight might have been beneficial.

"How much do you weigh now?" he asked.

"One hundred and nineteen pounds," she said.

"You weighed too much," the court commented.

The judge has not rendered a decision on the case.

MEAL planning must be considered from many angles. Individual tastes, nourishment, attractiveness, economy and appetizing variety all enter into the problem of furnishing plenty of good wholesome food necessary for the needs of the human machine.

The average American family spends a large part of the annual income for food. This money must be spent wisely and well if the greatest good be derived from it.

Each meal should be planned with close regard for the other meals of the day and should contain all the constituents needed by the body. The menu for the entire day as well as the menu for each meal must be "balanced."

There are three important factors in building balanced menus: the fuel value of a food, meaning the calories; the organic salts, these are minerals; and the vitamins.

The amount of protein, carbohydrate and fat found in a food determines its fuel value—ordinarily expressed in terms of calories. Protein is necessary for muscular growth. Carbohydrate—the starches and sweets—is needed for quick energy and heat. Fat is required for heat and reserve force.

The minerals are those chemical elements which are purifiers and tonics. Iron, calcium, phosphorus, sulphur, iodine, copper and manganese are all necessary in sufficient amounts to promote growth since each one adds to the efficiency of the others.

Very often one dish is regarded as a "full meal" in itself. It supplies adequate fuel value, mineral and bulky foods. However, the vitamin content of most "made" dishes is low, and a raw, leafy food is necessary to "balance" the meal. A cream soup is also advisable to provide sufficient milk.

Final Figures Of Literary Digest's Prohibition Poll

31 Pct. Dry, 29 Pct. Moist, 40 Pct. Wet

Five States Bone Dry Five For Repeal, One With Plurality For Modification. Nearly Five Million Ballots Cast Record Vote For Polls of This Kind

Forty voters out of every hundred in the United States desire the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, twenty-nine prefer modification of the Volstead Law, and thirty-one stand for strict enforcement, according to The Literary Digest's final report on its nation-wide poll, to be published in tomorrow's issue of that magazine.

A grand total of 4,806,464 of the twenty million ballots sent out came back properly marked, as follows:

For enforcement, 1,464,998, or 30.46%. For modification, 1,399,314, or 29.11%. For repeal, 1,943,052, or 40.43%. "An unparalleled return, this, from the twenty million blank ballots which began their outflowing pulsations through the mail routes of the entire country in the last days of Winter and the first days of Spring!" exclaims the editor. "The harvest of votes far exceeds the fruits of The Digest's most famous and disputed Presidential polls. Does not this indicate that the American people are more deeply stirred by the existing Prohibition situation than they were even by the Hoover-Smith contest, whose astonishing outcome was so categorically forecast by our 1928 poll?"

"Compare the totals. The Hoover-Smith poll of some nineteen million ballots brought a return of 2,767,263 votes. That was unprecedented, but it fades perceptibly in the presence of our Prohibition-poll harvest of over four and three-quarter millions out of twenty millions."

A Card of Thanks The Almighty recently called home another of his loved ones in order to make heaven a still better place. We wish to thank our many friends for their numberless deeds of kindness, the beautiful flowers, and the kind words of sympathy, which were given us during the illness and recent death of our husband and father. Our sorrow was made lighter by them. May the Omnipotent hand of our Heavenly Father serve as your guide through life in our prayer. Mrs. J. R. Wright and children.

Thirteen States gave over 40% of their votes for enforcement: Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Texas.

Eighteen States are more than 40% for repeal: Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Wyoming—and the District of Columbia.

Washington State is the only one to give even a slightly larger vote for light wines and beer than for either enforcement or repeal, but the States that cast approximately 30% of their ballots for such modification include nearly one-half of the whole country—namely: Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, New Mexico, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin. A generous portion of The Literary Digest's editorial comment in this issue is devoted to thanking the press of the country and all those on both sides who have helped to make the poll a success.

"To The Digest it is a deep satisfaction to have grappled successfully with this immense task. But all our hard labor and lavish expenditure would have been of little use without the eager cooperation of those who marked and returned their ballots. To these 4,806,464 public-spirited Americans of both sexes we proffer thanks and congratulations. They are the poll!"

"In all fairness The Digest also congratulates and thanks those other thousands who received no ballots but were so keen on voting in this sweeping expression of the national attitude that they besieged us with pleas for ballots—pleas to which we were obliged to turn a deaf ear, since the very essence of our polling system is the wholly impersonal drafting of the names and addresses. "And the letters that have come to us! One wonders whether on any previous occasion in history so many personal letters on a single topic—letters larded with thought and feeling and cemented with anxious sincerity—have been delivered to the same address."

Of its critics The Literary Digest says: "Honest criticism, honest questioning, The Digest has enjoyed, though it hasn't had time or space for disputation during these strenuous months. But there has been a darker side. In the heat of bitter partisanship some poisoned shafts have been aimed at The Digest. Misguided zealots have sprung more than one bit of 'dirty work at the cross-roads,' and here and there some actionable stuff has found its way into print. However, all such naughty excesses tend to defeat themselves, and we believe that some not to hardened cheeks will blush as partisan passions calm down. Moreover, we find in the country at large such abundant evidence of The Digest's secure place in the confidence and esteem of the people that we're already forgetting the poison-pen stuff, although it has been a trifle worse during this poll than any previous one."

THE QUESTIONS 1. Do you favor the continuance and strict enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and Volstead Law? 2. Do you favor a modification of the Volstead Law to permit light wines and beers? 3. Do you favor a repeal of the Prohibition Amendment?

Anti-Saloon League Head Says Organization Has $18,709,922 In Pledges On Its Books Now

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Anti-Saloon League has pledged on its books now for $18,709,922 in subscriptions, Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the League, testified before the senate lobby committee today.

These listed assets extend over a period of years, and the league usually collects only about 70 per cent of its pledges, the leader added.

McBride revealed that the League is about to launch a national campaign similar to that of amendment was adopted. One of the salient points will be to educate people to the evils of strong drink.

"The question will have to be fought out for all time by a contest of that kind," McBride said.

His statement caused unusual interest since the policy of the League in the past has been that the question has been settled.

During his examination today, McBride attacked the recent statement of Dwight W. Morrow, candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination in New Jersey.

"Morrow would repeal the 18th amendment and put us back where we were before prohibition," he said.

Senator Blaine Pepp, Wis., a wet, who conducted the sixth day of McBride's examination, read figures indicating the League had to spend as much as 90 cents to collect a dollar.

McBride said he thought this figure too high, although it might be accurate as to certain funds.

The average cost of collecting pledges is 20 to 25 per cent, he said.

McBride gave a full endorsement of "the general tone" of the Hoover administration on prohibition.

Chicago Building Erected Over Cow Trail Left Unsold In Title

CHICAGO, May 22.—There always will be an open highway in the heart of Chicago's busy loop for the use of Bessie, the Bassett cow, despite the traffic regulations which are very clear on the subject of herding cattle through the city streets.

It takes a handy guy like Earl Sande to boot classic, with Sande, the dean of America's jockeys, piloting Gallant Fox (1), the favorite, past the finish line an easy winner by two lengths over Gallant Knight (2), whose lead over Ned O. (3) was equally convincing. "I talked 'The Fox' into his full stride," Sande said following the race, "and he moved right away from them. He's a great horse."

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED IN ORIGINAL FASHION

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Horton entertained recently a large circle of intimate friends at their home on the occasion of their fifteenth wedding anniversary, set in an atmosphere of past days in the garb of five women guests and four men friends who wore the clothes in which they had been married, some of them many years ago. The hostess received in her wedding gown of lace cloth of white ground with small pink flowers, with high waist and black girdle. The house was charmingly decorated with Texas wildflowers in pink and white colors and places of honor were accorded the bride's wedding cake, that centered the dining mahogany, the top of which was wreathed in vines interspersed with pink rosebuds over a hand made cloth. The groom's cake, important in its decoration, centered the rose wreathed buffet.

Each arriving guest brought pictures of herself and husband, if possible, and these were arranged as an exhibit on the wide mantel shelf. Souvenirs were sketches in water colors of each couple done by the artist Mrs. Virgil Seaberry and presented the originals that evening.

A Carnival was the amusement and the many contests in the usual carnival games made a most amusing evening. Scores were kept in each section. Winners were Mr. and Mrs. William Jessup and losers Mr. and Mrs. Gray who were presented as favors by the hostess.

heart—her generation, while only a few years younger than Natalie, being much farther removed from inhibitions of speech. She guessed very closely to the truth about Alan.

"But try and get him," she thought challengingly of the unknown woman in the case. "I'd like to make her a bet that Natalie will have him back here inside of a week!"

Of Interest To Women

LONDON, May 23.—The short but expressive word "damn" may not be worth money to the countless thousands who use it each day in giving vent to their feelings, but when George Bernard Shaw uses it, it is worth at least $250—he thinks. Shaw recently received a letter from a woman asking for a free copy of his book "An Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism" for a society she had just formed. "Damn it, No!" Shaw wrote across the bottom of the letter. "A woman's society that cannot afford 15 shillings for a copy of my book has no right to exist." He returned the letter and a short fortnight later received a short note from the woman saying she had taken the letter to a bookseller who in return for it had given her a copy of Shaw's book. At the bottom of this letter, the famous author wrote: "What fools women are! If you had taken it to the right place you would have got 50 pounds for it."

Youth Who Killed Nine For Thrill Gets Forty Years

NEW YORK, May 23.—James Baker, 25-year-old youth who boasted of having committed nine murders for the thrill of watching the reactions of his victims, was sentenced today by Judge Charles Nott, Jr., to serve from 40 years to life. He had pleaded guilty to second degree murder earlier in the week as his trial started on a charge of killing with poison Henry Gaw, a laboratory watchman here. His counsel, James D. C. Murray, informed the court before sentence was passed that defense attorneys had found that a piece of bone was resting against Baker's brain and ascribed that as a probable cause of the youth's abnormality.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: Matt. 25:1-13

Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom.

And five of them were wise, and five were foolish. They that were foolish took their lamps, and took no oil with them:

But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps.

While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept.

And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him.

Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps.

And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil; for our lamps are gone out.

But the wise answered, saying, Not so; lest there be not enough for us and you: but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves.

And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage: and the door was shut.

Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us.

But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not. Watch therefore; ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 25: Christian Preparedness, Matt. 25:1-13.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist "Preparedness" is a subject of which we have heard a great deal in recent years, and concerning which there has been very much difference in opinion.

In relation to the safety of the state and the maintenance of military strength as a means of safety, there has been wide difference of opinion. There are those who share Napoleon's cynical idea that "God is on the side of the great battalions"—an idea that brought ultimate disaster in Napoleon's career and that for the most part has brought disaster to every people in history who have trusted to the sword. There are those who believe that preparedness in the state and society is rooted deeper in the promotion of friendship and in the development of those sound ideals and virtues without which there cannot be a great and true society.

Prepared for Anything Here in our lesson, however, we are reminded that preparedness has a personal and spiritual significance. There is a sense in which there is a sound philosophy of preparedness without reference to the thing for which one is to be prepared. There is in life a general slackness and inefficiency that would be fatal to any enterprise and that is essentially the denial of strength of character, quite independently of the ends to which character may be directed. There is a moral discipline of life upon which all success in any achievement depends, and without preparedness there is no guaranty that one can meet situations of difficulty as they arise.

As with most of his teaching, Jesus enforced this matter not by theory but by a very effective illustration, an illustration that has become ingrained in literature and in our thought—the wise and foolish virgins going forth to meet the bridegroom facing this great occasion—so differently where one might have supposed that the occasion itself would have insured the fullest preparation.

It is easy to emphasize the foolishness of the foolish virgins, to wonder how they could have perpetrated anything so ridiculous, and yet the man or woman who has been stranded some distance from a filling station in these automobile days cannot scoff at the foolish virgins.

Perhaps we should discover exactly the sort of teaching that Jesus meant to emphasize if we realize that the illustration that he used applied to his own day just as the illustration of an automobilist who had passed many filling stations, only to run out of oil in a crisis, might illustrate the matter today. Preparation is a matter of discipline and calculation. If it involved no thought, there would be nothing special to prepare for. It is almost impossible to discuss a lesson like this without dealing almost entirely in platitudes and commonplace relate to the most important and ordinary circumstances of life. Loss and even tragedy are constantly associated with sheer slackness and failure to do things at the proper time and in the proper way.

Nothing is clearer than the fact that the foolish virgins meant no disrespect to the wedding occasion. No one was more surprised than themselves at their lack of oil in their lamps, and they took the easy way out of trying to share with the wise and well prepared virgins.

A Drawback to Others Unpreparedness has a way of leaning on, and to that extent penalizing, those who are efficient and prepared. The world is full of those who not only neglect their own duty, but hamper and limit others in the fulfillment of their task. Our weaknesses help to destroy the strength of others.

The hopeless discomfiture of the foolish virgins illustrates the irrevocable nature of human dereliction. There are things that, left undone at the proper time, can never be done. One need not read into this story and denial of God's prerogative of mercy, here or hereafter, but the plain fact is emphasized that even repentance can never restore a situation that once lost is irrevocably lost. The soul may survive and recover, but it can never fully recover what was the soul's full privilege.

Barbara Stanwyck's Aid to Shiny Noses

Barbara Stanwyck, star of "Mexican Rose," the Columbia all-talking drama of love and revenge coming to the Connell Theatre on Saturday, has discovered a method of avoiding a shiny nose. Here it is—something we've all been waiting for. "The continuous application of the powder puff," says Miss Stanwyck, "only stimulates the oil glands. A better method is not to use cold cream the night that is shiny, but to use an astringent as a powder base. I recommend eau de Cologne. If you follow this procedure you will have your nose shine regardless of the weather."
