Gas Supply And Market Discussed At Ranger Meet

RANGER, June 10—Many millions of feet of gas that are produced in the oil belt will be without a market if Fort Worth carries through a plan to obtain a municipal supply of gas from Oklahoma or Amarillo, declared representatives of citizens who attended a meeting last night at the Ranger Chamber of Commerce offices.

Breckenridge and Cisco as well as Ranger were represented and Eastland citizens had previously indicated their support of the meeting though no one could attend from that city.

The sale of gas is vital to Ranger, Eastland, Breckenridge, Strawn, Desdemona, Rising Star, Albany and other cities of this section, declared John M. Gholson of Ranger, and will be of increasing importance to Cisco as the field to the north of that city is developed.

Many wells are producing a small amount of oil and the sale of the gas represents the margin of profit. Destroy the market for the gas and many wells would have to be plugged, which would be of course detrimental to operators, workers and royalty owners. The sale of residue gas is also of great importance to the natural gasoline industry.

"This section has built Fort Worth, it was pointed out, and any move by Fort Worth that would cripple the prosperity of this section would react to the disadvantage of Fort Worth. It was agreed that Fort Worth business men probably had not considered the matter from the standpoint of the welfare of its trade territory and that the matter was submitted to them in this light, they could be counted on not to take action adverse to the interests of these counties.

Otto Peters and H. E. DeLane of Breckenridge, as well as J. E. Spence and James Collins of Cisco, spoke. W. D. Conway, chairman of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, launched the discussion by telling of letters that had been written by the C. of C. The various towns would act as they deem best, each appraising the others of the action taken so that the movement can be kept going forward until success is attained.

Kingsbury Fire Does Much Damage

KINGSBURY, Tex., June 10—Five business establishments were destroyed by fire with total damage estimated at $6,000 here early today.

The flames originated in the brick building occupied by the First National Bank, which was gutted. The brick building housing the Kingsbury Drug Company next door was also destroyed, while the frame Mercantile Establishment of J. A. Lynch and Company and two frame garages were total losses.

Less than half the loss was covered by insurance.

Fire fighting equipment from Luling and Seguin came here, but did little because of the lack of water connections.

Senate Probes Jake Selling

WASHINGTON, June 10—An investigation of reports that thousands of persons in the south have been paralyzed by drinking defective ginger "Jake" was instigated today by the Senate Agriculture Committee as part of its inquiry into administration of the pure food and drug laws.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, member of the committee, directed W. G. Campbell, head of the drug division of the Agriculture Department to bring up his records concerning the regulation of ginger before the committee for examination.

Wheeler read a statement by prohibition commissioner Doran following a southern inspection tour recently, that thousands of people in the south are suffering from paralysis as a result of drinking "Jake."

Campbell said the widespread under cover sales of the drug presented a "serious administrative problem, but that he and Doran had decided it was a prohibition problem rather than a matter for the drug unit.

"It can't be a prohibition problem when the Jake is sold with a government label guaranteeing its standard of purity," Wheeler said. "The prohibition unit couldn't stop that if it knew about it. Here is an article being sold to thousands and causing death and blindness and yet you haven't interfered with it."

"When ginger Jake and innumerable other articles with alcoholic content are bootlegged, we can't undertake to prevent it in its entirety," Campbell replied. "Our entire force and funds would not affect the marketing of it in a very material way."

Howard Ambuster, New York drug importer, who has charged that the drug unit has allowed the importation of inferior goods, used to have lives in child birth, continued his testimony today. He charged Department of Agriculture officials, manufacturers and others have prevented a market for Spanish ergot "by continued open and defiant violation of the pharmaceutical standards."

He also charged "similar conditions" exist with regard to datura and ginger and other crude drugs and that Campbell had not enforced the law with regard to either because of a "secret agreement" with certain other manufacturers.

Youth Dies When Neck Is Broken

ORANGE, Tex., June 10—George E. Colbert Jr., 17 year old Texas A. & M. freshman, died here this morning from a broken neck sustained when he dived into shallow water in Blue Lake near here Sunday.

The youth had presence of mind enough to hold his breath until fished out of the water by friends, but the injuries proved fatal.

RODEO PERFORMERS 14
WYOKA, Ok., June 10—A cowboy of frontier days who now exhibits his skill in rodeo shows still demands that he get what is coming to him.

Five cowboy members of a rodeo show, disgruntled because they had been paid only $5 per cent of their salaries, raided the Sears Hotel here last night and seized $2,500 in rodeo receipts from promoter Jack Gladden. Officers sought John Bowman, Rube Roberts, Mike Hastings, Gene Ross and Jim Massey in connection with the raid today.

Walsh Asks For Broader Powers For Committee

WASHINGTON, June 10—A Senate resolution to give the lobby committee authority to inquire into the political activities of Bishop Cannon Jr. was advocated today by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, one of the members of the committee.

Walsh said he had no doubt about the committee's authority as it had been questioned he favored passage of a resolution to broaden the committee's powers.

An invitation has been received by the Chamber of Commerce "to your organization and the oil fraternity as a whole" to attend the Oil Men's Jubilee to be held at Big Spring on July 3, 4 and 5.

$149,000 Prize Brings Family Row

It was a house divided against itself when $149,000 dropped down out of a clear sky for the Dougherty family, pictured above, in Brooklyn, New York. The winning ticket in the English Derby sweepstakes of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada was made out in the name of Edward P. Dougherty, 19, lower right, a $20-a-week stock clerk in a brokerage firm. But his father, Daniel Dougherty, left, an apartment house doorman, claimed the prize money, saying he gave Edward the dollar to buy the ticket. Dan, Jr., upper right, another son, claimed a 50 cent half interest in the ticket.

Hoover Ages in White House
Burglars Enter 3 Ranger Homes

A burglar of the light treading and nimble finger tribe made the rounds of three Ranger residences and one business establishment last night. A man's watch and a small amount of change was all he obtained for his trouble, it was stated.

B. H. Peacock, whose home was one of the three visited, by the prowler, lost his watch and a little pocket change. Peacock left his trousers on a chair near his bed when he retired last night. This morning they were found by police hanging on the limb of a tree half a block from Peacock's house.

Neither Peacock nor the occupants of the other two residences entered were disturbed by the burglar. The homes of R. E. Powers and B. A. Jones were two of those entered.

The Ranger laundry was entered, presumably by the same thief that entered the Ranger residences. The inner door locks to the safe was broken but nothing of value was in the safe.

Police this morning were working on the case.

Governor Moody's Withdrawal Not To Effect Mayfield

MEXIA, Tex., June 10—Earle B. Mayfield, candidate for governor, said here today all politicians are picking him to lead the ticket in the first Democratic primary and that he believes Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson or Thomas B. Love is his most likely opponent in the second primary.

Withdrawal from the race of Governor Dan Moody does not effect his campaign in any way, Mayfield said.

He left here today to speak at Teague this afternoon. A crowd of 300 heard his address here last night.

Sales Manager's Shortage Causes Bank's Closing

CINCINNATI, O., June 10—The Cosmopolitan Bank & Trust Company here mailed to open its doors today as a sequel to the arrest of A. O. Shafer, district sales manager of Henry L. Dougherty & Company, on charges of embezzlement.

Independent Oil Men To Meet In Ranger Thursday

A county-wide meeting of independent oil men and all others who are interested in the welfare of the independents will be held at the Gholson hotel in Ranger Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Speakers representing the Independent Petroleum association will be present. Preceding the program, a banquet will be served.

Tickets to the banquet are now in the hands of committees in Cisco, Eastland, Ranger and other cities of the county. It is hoped to have many in attendance from each town.

The new pipe line law, the tariff and other matters of great importance to the independent oil men will be discussed.

Frank Killough of Eastland is in charge of arranging for the meeting. He is assistant to the executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum association.

It is likely that Chas. Morgan of Fort Worth, secretary-treasurer, will deliver an address. He drew up the new pipe line law.

Tom Cranfill, president, may attend. Claude C. Wild, executive vice president, also may be present.

All who plan to attend are urged to buy tickets so it can be known as nearly as possible how many to prepare for. However those whom the committees do not see are asked to attend as the greater the attendance the more successful the meeting will be. Tickets can be obtained at the respective Chambers of Commerce.

The meeting is not confined to independent operators but royalty owners, business men and others who recognize the importance that the success of the oil men means to the prosperity of Eastland county are invited.

Steamer Transfers Sick Man At Sea

UNITED STATES LINES George Washington, enroute to Hamburg, went far off her course last night to perform an errand of mercy, according to dispatches to home offices here today.

Capt. A. B. Ramsdell of the George Washington received a message from the freighter West Caddo, New Orleans bound from Manchester asking that third officer Harold Mann, who had become ill, be taken aboard.

The George Washington changed her course and met the freighter in mid-Atlantic. Mann was taken aboard the George Washington and was immediately placed under the care of ship physicians. He was described as "very ill" by radio advice.

Moody Will Not Say Who He Will Support In Race

Belief is That He Will Attempt to Throw Administration Vote to R. S. Sterling.

AUSTIN, Tex., June 10—Governor Dan Moody's dramatic withdrawal from the race for a third term was followed today by curiosity to discover whom Moody will support.

While a large part of the administration support will go to Ross Sterling of Houston, Governor Moody is apparently to be supported by Sterling's entry to be ready to support him.

Yesterday he called Sterling a "loyal friend whom he would not want to combat." This taken with the additional statement that Sterling was "not brought into the campaign by me or as an administrative candidate" is construed to mean that the Governor will keep hands off in the first primary.

In the second primary he will be supporting whoever gets into a run-off against Ferguson or Mayfield. If those two should be the rival run-off candidates, the governor probably would go fishing election day.

Lynch Davidson is still expected to make a formal announcement. Efforts to bring him and Moody together were made over the weekend but Lynch's recent reference to the governor as a "petulant boy" probably will cool the Houston lumberman the governor's influence.

Yesterday Davidson outwitted Governor Moody. When the Democratic executive committee recessed for luncheon the two were together. They were asked simultaneously to declare themselves. Both refused then. Moody and Ferguson later had their tilt before the committee. The committee held that all whose names were filed would go on the ballot unless they requested to be omitted. Davidson was a silent center.

Tom Love won compliments even from his bitter political foes for his straight forward declaration before the committee. Whether the net result will be to array the "party regularity" advocates more solidly behind some single candidate against him, or win him new followers remains to be seen.

An effort was made to keep the name of C. C. Moody, Fort Worth laundry wagon driver off the ballot on the ground that Moody had made statements that he was not seriously a candidate.

Whether Moody signed the application and sent in the requisite $100, chairman Wilcox ruled he must go on. "I think it is a joke, myself," said Wilcox, "but under the Supreme Court ruling, we have no choice but to make him a candidate."

Green And Tarver Cases Before The 88th Court Today

Sam Green, charged by the 88th grand jury with forgery, entered a plea of guilty in the 88th district court this morning and received a penalty of two years in the penitentiary in each of the two cases against him. He has previously been given sentence of two years on May 14 on a forgery charge.

Green was indicted by the grand jury about two months ago. He had left the county and yesterday, Steele Hill, deputy sheriff, went to Abilene and got him and brought him back to Eastland for trial. When he was taken before the court this morning he said that he wanted to enter a plea of guilty.

It took the jury but a few minutes to determine his punishment after he had entered the guilty plea.

After disposing of the Green case the trial of Fred Tarver, charged with selling whiskey, was started.

Tarver was charged with four offenses and was tried on one count on April 17. The trial resulted in a hung jury, nine being for acquittal and three for conviction. He was tried again on May 13 and the jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

The trial, which started this morning was on one of the three remaining indictments against him on charges of selling whiskey. The jury was still out this afternoon in the Virgil Day case, in which he was being tried on charges of violating the liquor laws. The case was given to the jury yesterday afternoon. Court followers this morning said they were afraid the jury was hopelessly hung because it was taking them so long to reach a decision.

Wife And Sister-In-Law Victims Of Man's Bullets

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., June 10—Joe Dyer, 45, shot and killed his wife, 45, and sister-in-law, Mrs. Dina Childress, 33, at the Dyer home here today and twenty minutes later sent a bullet into his own brain, inflicting a fatal wound.

The only explanation police could offer for the triple tragedy was that Dyer had gone temporarily insane.

A .38 calibre Smith and Wesson revolver was used in all three cases. The shot killed Mrs. Dyer and two proved fatal for Mrs. Childress.

Dyer had been out of employment for some time, police said.

'Ingagi,' Gorilla Picture, Faked

HOLLYWOOD, June 10—The members of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors Association no longer will show "Ingagi," the so-called gorilla picture which has been drawing record crowds throughout the country.

Behind the decision lurk charges that the widely talked of film was mostly produced here with characters from the Los Angeles black belt taking the parts of African savage tribesmen.

Nat H. Spitzer, president of Congo Pictures, Ltd., which produced the film told the United Press today that 85 per cent of the film was faked.

FORT WORTH'S CANDIDATE.

(Dallas News)

C. C. Moody of Fort Worth has announced for governor on the laundry ticket. As collector of that city's soiled linen, he feels himself competent to handle the issues in a Texas democratic primary, and it must be admitted that his qualifications do seem to fit the reputation of these contests. He explains that he will continue the same kind of house-to-house campaign that he has been accustomed to for the last 15 years.

As to his platform, it is not clear that he is exclusively wet wash or rough dry. Favoring prohibition "as she is," it is at least a guess that he is something of both. But he proposes to iron out all difficulties, and calls attention to the fact that his specialty is delivering. Doubtless he prides himself also on the fact that there are no back-seat drivers in laundry wagons.

Presumably Mr. Moody feels that he has the white-collar vote already in the sack. Whatever his vote, it will not be lacking in loyalty, since he knows that his supporters will give him the shirts off their backs, so to speak.

Rewards Totaling $40,000 For Newspaper Man's Slayer

CHICAGO, June 10.—Gangland had roused against it today every agency of the law, city, state and federal—as search was made for the slayer of Alfred L. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, shot to death yesterday afternoon in a crowded subway.

Rewards totaling $40,000 for information leading to the conviction of the slayer or slayers of the reporter, who worked 18 years for the Tribune covering the underworld. Of this amount the Tribune offered $25,000 the Chicago Evening Post $5,000 and the Chicago Press Club $10,000.

As many as six gangsters were believed to have participated in the murder. Witnesses told of seeing three men motioning at Lingle as he entered the subway and three others near him when he was slain.

Police admitted they were without a definite motive for the murder and the mystery of the slaying was further complicated by the mystery that surrounded Lingle's life.

Soon after he was shot a general roundup of possible suspects started and in the first drive Dominick Aiello, reported sharpshooter of the notorious Aiello gang of alcohol cookers, was taken into custody. Two 45 caliber revolvers and a shotgun, all of the weapons loaded, were found in his apartment.

The next arrested was John J. "Boss" McLaughlin, former member of the legislature who was reported to have threatened Lingle because the reporter assertedly interrupted in his attempts to open gambling resorts, according to Patrick Roche, chief of state's attorney's detectives.

Lingle was on his way to take a train for the Washington Park race track when he was shot down. His assailant, close behind him, fired a single bullet from a short-barreled .38 caliber revolver and the reporter fell forward, shot through the head.

Two of the witnesses to the shooting positively identified Sam Hunt, Capone gangster, as the man who killed Lingle. The names of the witnesses were withheld.

Lingle was known to have been acquainted intimately with "Scarface" Al Capone, gang chieftain, and was one of the few men who Capone trusted.

The degree to which Capone had confidence in Lingle was illustrated when "Scarface" Al refused when he was being held in jail during the investigation of the murder of assistant state's attorney William McGowan to allow anyone but Lingle to bring him food, for fear he would be poisoned.

The friendship between the reporter and Capone, who at one time

gave Lingle a diamond studded belt buckle, was known to have lessened after the gangster was released from the Pennsylvania state penitentiary some months ago.

A score of witnesses were under subpoena today for the coroner's inquest into Lingle's death.

The gun used in the murder was turned over to Calvin Goddard, in the scientific crime detection bureau, in the hope that it would furnish a clue to the identity of the slayer. The numbers had been filed from the weapon, it was discovered, and it bore no finger prints, since the slayer wore silk gloves which later were found.

Lingle, who was 38 years old, married and the father of two children, was widely known among Chicago newspaper men as the "Jake" born and reared on the West Side, where gangsters' haunts are numerous, he became a reporter for the Tribune after several years.

He acquired sufficient wealth to permit his retirement, but continued with the Tribune because "the loved the work." It was said today by the Tribune. The paper attributed his financial independence to his friendship with Arthur Cutten, wealthy grain trader, whose investment advice was freely given Lingle.

PILL BOX TRAPS RID HOUSE OF RED ANTS

An ordinary pill box can be converted into an excellent trap for ants in a few minutes, and does not call for any mechanical ability whatever. When properly made and baited this trap has been unusually satisfactory for breaking up colonies of the little red ants, sometimes known as Pharaoh's ants, which are so fond of sugar.

The pill box trap, devised by Dr. R. T. Cotton and G. W. Ellington, entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture, is very simple to make. Take an ordinary cardboard pill box, remove the top and cut out four small square holes from the inner cover. Pour a thin layer of hot paraffin inside the box to make it water-tight.

When in use the top of the box is partially raised to expose the holes and allow the ants to enter. Poison baits attract the ants to the trap, where they either die at once or carry the poison away and spread it among other ants.

A good homemade bait can be prepared by rubbing a small quantity of tartar emetic into small bits of bacon rind. Another bait which has given excellent results is made by dissolving 4 ounces of sugar in one-half pint of water, to which is added 39 grains of sodium arsenate and a little honey. Heat to boiling and strain. The best plan is to have the local druggist prepare this and other baits which contain

FORT WORTH'S CANDIDATE.

(Dallas News)
C. C. Moody of Fort Worth has announced for governor on the laundry ticket. As collector of that city's soiled linen, he feels himself competent to handle the issues in a Texas democratic primary, and it must be admitted that his qualifications do seem to fit the reputation of these contests. He explains that he will continue the same kind of house-to-house campaign that he has been accustomed to for the last 15 years.

As to his platform, it is not clear that he is exclusively wet wash or rough dry. Favoring prohibition "as she is," it is at least a guess that he is something of both. But he proposes to iron out all difficulties, and calls attention to the fact that his specialty is delivering. Doubtless he prides himself also on the fact that there are no back-seat drivers in laundry wagons.

Presumably Mr. Moody feels that he has the white-collar vote already in the sack. Whatever his vote, it will not be lacking in loyalty, since he knows that his supporters will give him the shirts off their backs, so to speak.

Rewards Totaling $40,000 For Newspaper Man's Slayer

CHICAGO, June 10.—Gangland had roused against it today every agency of the law, city, state and federal—as search was made for the slayer of Alfred L. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, shot to death yesterday afternoon in a crowded subway.

Rewards totaling $40,000 for information leading to the conviction of the slayer or slayers of the reporter, who worked 18 years for the Tribune covering the underworld. Of this amount the Tribune offered $25,000 the Chicago Evening Press $5,000 and the Chicago Press Club $10,000.

As many as six gangsters were believed to have participated in the murder. Witnesses told of seeing three men motioning at Lingle as he entered the subway and three others near him when he was slain.

Police admitted they were without a definite motive for the murder and the legislature who was being further complicated by the mystery that surrounded Lingle's life.

Soon after he was shot a general roundup of possible suspects started and in the first drive Dominick Aiello, reported sharpshooter of the notorious Alvin Karpis gang, was taken into custody. Two 45 caliber revolvers and a shotgun, all of the weapons loaded, were found in his apartment.

The next arrested was John J. "Boss" McLaughlin, former member of the legislature who was reported to have threatened Lingle because the reporter assertedly interrupted in his attempts to open gambling resorts, according to Patrick Roche, chief of state's attorney's detectives.

Lingle was on his way to take a train for the Washington Park race track when he was shot down. R. T. Cotton and G. W. Ellington, his assailants, close behind him, fired a single bullet from a short-barreled .38 caliber revolver and the reporter fell forward, shot through the head.

Two of the witnesses to the shooting positively identified Sam Hunt, Capone gangster, as the man who killed Lingle. The names of the witnesses were withheld.

Lingle was known to have been acquainted intimately with "Scarface Al" Capone, gang chieftain, and was one of the few men who Capone trusted.

The degree to which Capone had confidence in Lingle was illustrated when "Scarface Al" refused when he was being held in jail during the investigation of the murder of assistant state's attorney William McSwigen to allow anyone but Lingle to bring him food, for fear he would be poisoned.

The friendship between the reporter and Capone, who at one time

gave Lingle a diamond studded belt buckle, was known to have lessened after the gangster was released from the Pennsylvania state penitentiary some months ago.

A score of witnesses were under subpoena today for the coroner's inquest into Lingle's death. The gun used in the murder was turned over to Calvin Goddard, in the scientific crime detection bureau, in the hope that it would furnish a clue to the identity of the slayer. The numbers had been filed from the weapon. It was discovered, and it bore no finger prints, since the slayer wore silk gloves which later were found.

Lingle, who was 38 years old, married and the father of two children, was widely known among Chicago newspaper men as "Jake." Born and reared on the West Side, where gangsters' haunts are numerous, he became a reporter for the Tribune after several years. He acquired sufficient wealth to permit his retirement, but continued with the Tribune because "he loved his work," it was said today by the Tribune. The paper attributed his financial independence to his friendship with Arthur Cutten, wealthy grain trader, whose investment advice was freely given Lingle.

PILL BOX TRAPS RID HOUSE OF RED ANTS

An ordinary pill box can be converted into an excellent trap for ants in a few minutes, and does not call for any mechanical ability whatever. When properly made and baited this trap has been unusually satisfactory for breaking up colonies of the little red ants, some times known as Pharaoh's ants, which are so fond of sugar.

The pill-box trap, devised by Dr. R. T. Cotton and G. W. Ellington, entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture, is very simple to make. Take an ordinary cardboard pill box, remove the top and cut out four small square holes from the inner collar. Pour a thin layer of hot paraffin inside the box to make it water-tight. When in use the top of the box is partially raised to expose the holes and allow the ants to enter. Poison baits attract the ants to the trap, where they either die at once or carry the poison away and spread it among other ants.

A good homemade bait can be prepared by rubbing a small quantity of tartar emetic into small bits of bacon rind. Another bait which has given excellent results is made by dissolving 4 ounces of sugar in one-half pint of water, to which is added 30 grains of sodium arsenate and a little honey. Heat to boiling and strain. The best plan is to have the local druggist prepare this and other baits which contain

PEAS, BLACK-EYED, CROWDER, CREAM AND LADY PEAS

The same method of canning peas may be used as given for canning string beans except for the time of processing.

The black-eyed peas may be shelled and included with snapped peas. If snaps are used with the shells, about 12 snapped pods are sufficient for each No. 2 can and about 18 pods for No. 3 cans. Bacon may be added in the same proportion as given under string beans, about 1/2 pound of pigskin suet, white peas are hot. Time for processing: requires more time because of the extra amount of starch in peas. No. 2 cans 50 minutes at 15 pounds. No. 3 cans 60 minutes at 15 pounds.

The seventh place San Antonio Indians today boasted a 6 to 4 victory over the Wichita Falls Spudgers in the opening game of their triple series Monday. The Indians staged a three run rally in the seventh inning and scored one run in the eighth and ninth frames to win over the league leaders.

Houston and Fort Worth split a double header, 3 to 5 and 6 to 3. In the first game the Cats drove Floyd Rose off the mound with a rally in the eighth. Houston, however, came back to bunch their hits and win the nightcap.

Waco defeated Dallas, 6 to 4 by scoring two runs in the first inning and then taking advantage of the Steer's errors to score two more in the seventh.

Bunching their safeties, Shreveport defeated Beaumont, 10 to 9.

With The Majors

The Brooklyn Robins, having gained a three game lead in the National League pennant race, today hoped to increase their advantage at the expense of the last place Cincinnati Reds.

All of the National League teams shifted opponents today, the second place Cubs moving to Philadelphia; St. Louis invading Boston and Pittsburgh opening a 4-game series with the New York Giants.

All National League clubs were idle yesterday because of rain and wet grounds.

The Philadelphia Athletics increased their American League lead to three games yesterday, defeating Chicago, 3 to 2, while Washington was losing to Cleveland, and

The Husband Hunter

© 1930 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Natalie Converse, jealous of her husband's friendship with Bernadine Lamont, leaves him, consoling by his secretary, Phillipa West, who is seeking to make an advantageous marriage.

Natalie returns, and Alan realizes that he loves her, but the entanglement that Phillipa has cleverly engineered prevents him from attempting reconciliation. Phillipa refuses to release him.

Natalie goes to Alan's office and there meets Bernadine. Her old jealousy flares up again and she quarrels bitterly with Alan. The secretary, Natalie comes to the office to plead for forgiveness, but Alan is out. She waits a while in his private office, then departs in despair.

Phillipa, fearful lest Alan's anger should not endure, plots to discredit Natalie. In a letter she charges the name of Bernadine wants to buy to one that is worthless. Bernadine comes to the office after the order has gone through, and discovers the change that has been made. In the investigation that follows, Phillipa directs suspiciously Natalie. Alan believes her guilty.

Natalie is stricken to utter hopelessness by the accusation. Alan leaves her and goes to Bernadine to make good her losses. Not long afterward he is hastily summoned to Bernadine's deathbed. Left in care for her son, Bobby, he turns to Phillipa. Natalie, living with an aunt in Philadelphia, reads of Bernadine's death. She decides to make one last plea to Alan for a reconciliation. Alan misunderstands her and tells her he is going to marry again as soon as she is granted a divorce.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLV

Alan learned how idle it is to build upon the anticipated emotional reactions of a fellow mortal.

For Natalie was not overcome with despair when he told her he was going to marry another woman. He found himself keenly disappointed in her manner of accepting what he had thought would be an overwhelming declaration.

She did not shrink, or pale, or tremble, as he had expected. The calm way she looked at him brought him a second shock. She did not love him! In a flash he realized that through all the weeks of his life he had fed himself upon the belief that she was suffering under her proud self-exile. He had no inkling of how shattering it would be to him to have this conviction upset.

But he knew it now. And he blamed Natalie for it. At least his temper rose as she sat there looking at him—waiting. Damn it all, she was motivated all through the whole sorry mess by nothing more than viciousness. And he thought it was pure jealousy. Pure jealousy! That was a good one, wasn't it?—if such feeling as she had for him could be called love!

He felt like laughing in her face. Love! Why, the woman had been merely fiercely possessive. Her passion had been nothing more than an insane desire to keep what belonged to her. And he gave her credit for being able to love. He thought he could hurt her, punish her, through her affections.

He felt he had been cruelly mocked, for he had been in a constant struggle to suppress his desire to forgive her. He thought now of the soft memories of her that had crept upon him in the night and threatened to make him forget what a rotten thing she did. He was glad he had banished them with firmness. His common sense had told him that he could never respect her again even though he had to go on loving her to the end.

And now, after all this battling to put aside their love and begin his life anew on a sensible basis, he learned there wasn't any love on her part.

It wasn't love that had brought her back, trying to re-establish herself. It was self-interest. Probably sick of the simple life she led at Aunt Emma's. Missed her friends in Westchester. Thought it would be easy to come back, now that Bernadine...

"Well?" he said challengingly. "Alan," Natalie spoke patiently—"are you trying to hurt me, or do you merely say that as a way of refusing to give me the little boy?"

"Hurt you!" Alan exploded. "Is it possible?" Natalie put out an imploring hand. "Please. It isn't necessary to be cruel, is it? You know you can't expect me to believe what you said."

"Believe it?" Alan repeated. Then he said, sobering: "Perhaps you can't, for you still imagine I was in love with Mrs. Lamont, don't you?"

He seemed to thrust the question at her as though he dared her to answer it. And his heart pounded furiously as he waited for her to speak, because if she said

"Yes, she believed he had been in love with Bernadine," then all his disappointment of a moment ago had been uncalled for.

She nodded.

"Then you thought I was bluffing?" he went on excitedly.

Again Natalie nodded.

Alan hesitated. He lost his desire to hurt her. But the truth has to be told. If she suffered over it—or if it left her cold—what could it matter to him?

He did not look at her, gallantly denying himself a chance to measure her feeling for him. He was bluffing, Natalie, he said quietly. "There was a girl—and it was not Bernadine."

Natalie did not cry out, but this time it was not disbelief that silenced her. The unexpectedness of Alan's admission had come upon her with crushing force.

Alan would not look at her, but he heard her breath flutter through her lips.

"There was a girl—" the words were branding themselves upon her brain while she sat frozen to lifelessness. "There was a girl—"

Her hand flew to her lips when her anguish could no longer be contained in her breaking heart. The paralysis of shock had left her. She felt herself slumping down in her chair.

But what did it matter? What did it matter? Bernadine or another? She had lost Alan long ago. This suffering was not new. Only a new stab on an old wound. She ought to be able to bear it better than this. But she never had heard Alan say it before. There was a girl—he denied loving Bernadine Lamont. She never dreamed what it would be like to hear him say it himself—that he loved someone else.

She prayed he would give her time to recover before he spoke again. Blindly she fumbled in her handbag for a handkerchief. Alan saw the movement of her hands, but his gaze did not follow them to her face.

God, this was awful. But there was no retreating now. This was the price of jealousy and temper—that they had put impassable barriers between them.

He felt suddenly driven to talk to Natalie as he would to a friend. It might make it easier for both of them. He began to speak clearly with suppressed feeling, telling her about Phillipa West. How she had been an understanding companion in his loneliness.

"And Natalie," he paused to interject, "that it not a joke, that sympathy racket. It led to my asking Phillipa to marry me when you got the divorce. She didn't demand that I must be in love with her. But she's a good kid. And she'll be kind to Bobby. I had talked to him, but I had talked to Phillipa before that. I don't remember exactly how it happened, but she's giving up a lot for me. She could have married well, and she's had trouble with her family over our... engagement. You see how it was when you came back with Florence?"

"Oh, why didn't you tell me?" Natalie moaned.

"I didn't dare to," Alan replied, and Natalie winced under the unequivocal implication of his words. "But I did hope that Phillipa would see how matters stood and put an end to the situation. I think she might have, too, but..." he stopped stammeringly.

"But I spoiled it," Natalie ended for him.

"Yes," he said bitterly, "you spoiled it, Natalie."

"And you're going to marry Phillipa West?" Natalie asked. "You've made up your mind to go through with it?"

Alan nodded, gloomily. "I see no reason why I shouldn't," he answered. "It'd be a cad to back out, and Phillipa has done nothing to deserve such treatment."

Natalie's pale face flushed. She was thinking of Alan's believed she merited very harsh treatment indeed. She was reminded that the finger of guilt still pointed at her. What if Alan should find a way to break his engagement to Phillipa? Would it bring him back to her? She was obliged to confess that in all probability it would not.

She made a gesture of acceptance, weighted with weariness. She was suddenly very tired. It was all so hopeless, so useless, so futile. She didn't know where her own responsibility began, or where it ended. Perhaps, when she had time to think...

She got up, and held out her hand. "If you should wish to have a talk with me," she said, "come to see me. I'm going back to Philadelphia, to Aunt Emma's."

"Tonight?" Alan asked, reluctantly letting her go.

Natalie glanced at her wrist-watch. "I can make a train before dinner," she said. "Goodbye."

She turned quickly and hurried away. She had meant to tell him she was going on with the divorce proceedings, but fear of a complete breakdown in his presence had checked her. Well, she could write to him, and wish him luck. Oh, she hadn't wished him luck!

As she made her way to the nearest elevator, she was glad she had taken a room in the hotel, glad she had some place to go where no one would see her.

Alan stood watching her until she was out of sight. The thought was in his mind that he might never see her again—but it was too haunting to be retained.

Why had he let her go? He walked out of the hotel like a man going to his own execution. He went back to his office, and sat stark-eyed at his desk until Phillipa telephoned to learn if he had started for Westchester. She wanted to dine early—she was still looking after Bobby in his home—and go for a drive.

She was tired of confinement to the death-shadowed house and petulant over Alan's continued depression. After all, why should he mourn? The dead woman was nothing in particular to him. Phillipa saw no reason why she should be made miserable over Bernadine's passing.

She had been through the house thoroughly—was sick of it. Alan didn't spend any more time there than he was obliged to, she reflected bitterly. It was all very well for him to claim her absence from the office made it necessary for him to devote more time to his business—she didn't want to give up work to look after a crying kid—she would much rather be downtown.

She was certainly going to bring up the matter of putting Bobby in a school very shortly, or having the three of them move into Alan's home. It might be some time before Natalie obtained a divorce.

The fear that Natalie might not sue for a divorce was settled with an offhand: "Alan's got enough on her to protect it." She could not help smiling over the thought of Natalie's "crime." What a joke it was!

She felt sure of Alan, nevertheless she wanted to keep a tight rein on him. His voice, when he answered her call, warned her she was not as secure as she thought.

Police Patrol Of Chickasha

BY UNITED PRESS

CHICKASHA, Okla., June 10—Several negro families had evacuated the colored section of Chickasha today as police patrolled the neighborhood in anticipation of possible mob violence.

The situation continued quiet throughout the night, although officials feared rioting might occur with the release of 12 white federal prisoners indicted in connection with mob activities last week.

Dr. A. J. Anderson, one of the prisoners, was said to have threatened to seek revenge on a negro who attacked him Sunday. He was expected to obtain release on bond today, and police prepared to cope with a possible attack on the negro section.

"Dad, gimme a penny." "See, don't you think you're getting too big to be forever begging for pennies?" "I expect you're right, dad. Gimme a dollar."

Now is a good time to fix up your home

The same home as shown above after modernizing

Everyone likes a good-looking home. Making homes modern is often simple and inexpensive. A little change made here and there frequently is the only difference between an old house and an up-to-date home.

A coat of paint—repairs to the roof—a new concrete driveway—board in the attic to provide a play room for the children—a vermin-proof and water-tight basement—a new sun parlor or sleeping porch—a concrete sidewalk—just two or three small improvements like these often are all that are needed to make a home up-to-date.

Now is a good time to make one or more of these improvements. Many excellent "before and after" photographs of remodeled houses are shown in the booklet "Remodeling with Stucco." Just fill in the coupon if you would like to have a copy.

HAS THE LAXATIVE IN YOUR HOME A DOCTOR'S APPROVAL?

Some things people do to help the bowels whenever any bad breath, feverishness, biliousness, or lack of appetite warn of constipation, really weaken these organs. Only a doctor knows what will cleanse the system without harm. That is why the laxative in your home should have the approval of a family doctor.

The wonderful product, known to millions as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a family doctor's prescription for sluggish bowels. It never varies from the original prescription which Dr. Caldwell wrote thousands of times in many years of practice, and proved safe and reliable for men, women and children. It is made from herbs and other pure ingredients, so it is pleasant-tasting, and can form no habit. You can buy this popular laxative from all drugstores.

One Healthful form of Necessary Nourishment that kids need no coaxing to drink

Little "human dynamos" run out of "juice" between meals. That's why they tease for sweets. Sugar is the quickest energy food and Mother Nature knows it. She prompts the appetite. It's as natural as hunger can be.

If your kiddies crave sugar, give them as much as they want... but in a form that can't be abused. Dr. Pepper contains fruit juice for flavor and health... pure sugar for quick-energy supply... and sparkling water for bulk and thirst. No tax on digestion. No ingredients that can possibly harm.
