MISTRIAL OF STRIKERS IS ANNOUNCED

Judge Then Suspends The Order Member of the Jury Is Ill.

By UNITED PRESS
CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 9.—Acute emotional insanity of one of the 12 jurors today caused the collapse of the trial of 16 textile strikers of Gastonia, N. C., for the murder of police chief Aderholt, just as the trial opened its third week.

Justice M. V. Barnhill ordered a mistrial after defense attorneys made several attempts to avert the order.

By UNITED PRESS
CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 9.—Theatrical of 16 textile workers charged with murder of police chief Aderholt of Gastonia, was ended in a mistrial here today on account of the collapse of one of the jurors.

Judge M. V. Barnhill ordered the mistrial, but a few minutes later he suspended his order, while defense attorneys conferred on ways and means of averting such a collapse.

Judge M. V. Barnhill took this action today, after J. G. Campbell, newspaper vendor and one of the jurors, suffered a nervous collapse on his way to today's session, which would have opened the third week of the spectacular trial.

"I would rather these defendants go free than try them with an insane man in the jury box," Judge Barnhill said.

Arthur C. Field, defense lawyer, immediately asked that the charges against the three women and 13 men defendants be reduced from first degree murder to manslaughter and for admittance to bail.

Davenport of the 91st district court. The bond had not been signed this morning, according to Sheriff Virge Foster, who stated that he understood it would be signed.

Powers gave bond in the sum of $1,500 in Justice of the Peace J. H. MacCracken's court in Ranger soon after the shooting and was released. He was arrested on the night of the shooting by Chief of Police Jim Ingram of Ranger and Patrolman B. F. Ricker, also of the Ranger police force.

The 88th district court grand jury returned an indictment last week charging murder against Powers, and he was taken in custody again Sunday.

Charred Bodies Of Plane Crash Victims Removed

By FRANK FARLEY
United Press Staff Correspondent.
GALLUP, N. M., Sept. 9.—The charred remains of seven men and a woman, victims of the crash of the air liner "City of San Francisco" into the side of Mount Taylor last Tuesday, were moved toward their final resting places today while officials began a series of investigations to determine, if possible, responsibility for the latest tragedy of the air.

A gruesome caravan carted the remains of the five passengers and three crewmen from the scene of the liner's plunge, near the summit of Mount Taylor, over a precarious trail 20 miles to Grant. The bodies then were placed aboard ambulances and sent to Gallup and Albuquerque to be prepared for burial.

The first official investigation of the crash came late yesterday when a coroner's jury assembled at the almost inaccessible spot on Mount Taylor, around the strewn wreckage of the once proud air liner, peered at the burned bodies, the tangled mass of plane and rendered the routine verdict that the party of eight passengers came to their deaths as a result of an airplane accident.

The tense position of the bodies, all with hands firmly clutched, left more than a hint of a brief, terrifying experience—the hurdling of a great plane through the trees, the explosion and death and incineration for all.

There were eight burned bodies, only two of them not too badly scorched to make identification possible. These were later given names through various articles, including rings and watches. The bodies were identified as:

H. M. Campbell, Cincinnati; William H. Beers, Merrick, L. J. N. Y.; Harris Livermore, Boston; A. S. McGaffey Albuquerque, Calif.; Cornia Raymond, Glendale, Calif.; passengers; Chief Pilot J. B. Stowe, Co-Pilot Edwin A. Dietes, Courier C. F. Canfield, crew.

On top of the wreckage appeared the letters "AT" indicating that the plane turned over after it landed. There was no indication of its being struck by lightning, although John J. Herlihy and officials of the department of commerce inspected the wreckage in an attempt to discover the cause.

Inspection of the wreckage led to the belief that the crew and passengers were killed instantly.

The time of the disaster was set at 11:01 a. m. Tuesday by the fact that all the watches of the plane and its passengers were stopped at that hour.

A searching party from Gallup was the first organized party to reach the scene. The Gallup party was augmented by a group from Cubero and San Fidel.

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex., Sept. 9.—The second trial of Mrs. Rebecca Bradley Rogers, former University of Texas co-ed, on a charge of robbery in connection with the celebrated holdup of the Buda bank Dec. 11, 1926, opened in Judge J. C. Watson's district court this morning.

Defended by her attorney husband, Otis Rogers, Rebecca will try to escape conviction on a plea of temporary insanity. Her husband announced the entire official staff of the San Antonio hospital where Rebecca had been under observation would testify in her behalf.

Selection for the jury will probably consume a day or two.

Rebecca was tried first in 1927 at La Grange and assessed 14 years in prison. On appeal, however, the case was reversed. A second trial was attempted at La Grange last May but when it was found impossible to obtain a jury the case was transferred here.

Boat Capsized On Colorado River With Fishing Party—Two Are Rescued.

By UNITED PRESS
AUSTIN, Sept. 9.—Three members of one family were drowned in the flood waters of the Colorado river late yesterday when the boat in which they were fishing capsized a short distance above the Lake Austin dam.

Two members of the party were rescued.

F. J. Bryant, 24, driver for the Bryant Creamery; his wife, Gladys Bryant, and their son Freddie James Bryant, Jr., 3.

Thomas Bryant and his wife were rescued from the swirling waters by Bob Campbell and Frank Guillette of Hillsboro.

The boat, equipped with an outboard motor, capsized when the party tried to take it across the river. The boat had traveled five miles down stream after an overnight fishing party. When the craft was turned broadside to the current and waves, the motor failed and the boat swamped.

Guillette and Campbell immediately put out from shore in another boat. They were able to pick up Thomas Bryant and his wife, the former being a good swimmer.

Bodies of the three victims had not been recovered early today. A sharp watch was kept at the dam through the night and expert divers were searching the muddy bottom of the lake today.

The Colorado, normally about seven feet deep, had risen much in the last two days because of heavy rains in western counties Friday and Saturday. The water was fifteen feet deep where the accident occurred.

among the great common folks— Out of the loins of sure enough to God American stock—Endowed with common horse sense, have touched every phase of human life, have rubbed shoulders with the commonality, know their needs, their desires and short-comings— Having plowed, followed a mule down a cotton row, split rails and dugged post holes, dined on corn pone, bacon and home made lasses— Attended the country side school, town meeting, revival service under a brush arbor, had corns in their hands and sore shins—We said that they had touched every phase of human life, hence their sympathy goes out to the common herd, and they understand them— But O god of good government, give us more of this old common corn bread stuff, clean, unbiased and unafraid to sit in judgment and render justice to all alike— Come again, gentlemen, the easy chairs in the News office await you.

Indicated U. S. Cotton Crop Is 14,825,000 Bales

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The agriculture department today announced an indicated United States cotton production of 14,825,000 five hundred-pound gross weight bales, based on census reports to the crop reporting board Sept. 1.

The reporting board based its prediction on an unestimated condition of 55.4 per cent of normal September 1, an abandonment for the season of 3.83 per cent, and an indicated area of 46,594,000 acres left for harvest.

The census bureau at the same time reported 1,570,030 running bales of cotton have been ginned from the 1929 crop up to September 1, as compared with 956,577 for 1928, and 1,532,577 for 1927.

The reported indicated yield of 152.2 pounds of lint cotton per acre for harvest.

The estimated cotton crop of 14,850,000 bales predicted by the agriculture department represents a decline of 718,000 bales, or 4.6 per cent under the estimated of August 1.

Abandonment of cotton crops in Texas, North Carolina and California is above the average the department said, but added abandonment in all other states is below the average.

Unusually hot weather in August prevailed throughout the cotton belt from Georgia west, it was said. Although this heat, amounting to a severe drought, checked boll weevil damage, it also "seriously interfered" with the fruiting of the plants and reduced the prospective yields. This was assigned as the main reason why crop prospects now are less than they were a month ago.

"Losses from drought were particularly severe in Texas, Mississippi and Alabama, although there also has been damage in Arkansas and Georgia," the department stated.

"In Louisiana the drought greatly reduced the threat of weevil damage but did not effect plant growth as adversely as in Texas, Mississippi and Alabama.

"The dry weather has reduced the threat from boll weevils," the department said. "The crop generally is maturing and opening earlier than usual and in the areas worst affected by dry weather, there has been some premature opening of young bolls.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—A steady, orderly decline took place on the stock exchange as of September 1 which indicated a yield 718,000 bales less than that forecast on August 1. The trade generally had looked forward to an official estimate of about 15,000,000 bales, compared with the government's figures of 14,825,000 bales.

Heavy short covering for the account of wire houses and southern operators lifted prices from 35 to 50 points above the previous closing levels, when the market reopened after having closed to receive the official figures. Just prior to issuance of the government estimate prices had slumped about a dollar a bale.

cured on option from the Kansas City club, made his first appearance in a Dallas uniform. Shreveport, already in second place, gained half a game over league leading Wichita Falls by taking both games of a double header from Beaumont, while the Spudders won their single game with San Antonio. The Sports victories were by scores of 6 to 5 and 2 to 0. The game at Wichita Falls was a long, free hitting affair that ended 12 to 9. Eddie Moore, idol of Fort Worth baseball fans, further entrenched himself in their esteem by shattering the league's triple record by knocking two of them in the first game which the Cats won 5 to 2. Waco won the second game, 4 to 2.

Watching the Scoreboard. Yesterday's hero: Babe Ruth, who crossed the plate with the winning run after hitting his 42nd home run of the season in the New York-Detroit game here. Encouraged by the blow, New York went on to pile up a 9 to 3 margin of victory over the Tigers.

The Boston Red Sox played 19 innings with St. Louis, at the hub, without a loss being charged against them. After beating the Browns, 4 to 3, in the regulation nine innings, the Sox went on to a 16-inning scoreless tie in the second game. Blaholder and Gaston were the opposing pitchers in the second contest, the former holding Boston to three hits while the latter allowed St. Louis eight.

Red Faber and Ted Lyons pitched the Chicago White Sox to a 4 to 3 victory over the senators at Washington. They allowed the losers seven hits—one more safe blow than their mates were able to make off Thomas and Burke.

The Chicago Cubs lost a free-hitting contest to Boston, at Chicago, 13 to 11, despite a sixth inning rally that netted the losers seven runs. Guy Bush, who started for the Cubs, was routed in the second inning. Carlson, who replaced him, lasted five innings and was charged with the defeat. Cvengros finished the game.

Dazzy Vance pitched a seven hit game at Pittsburgh and Brooklyn beat the Pirates, 2 to 1. French, who opposed the dazzer, held Brooklyn to eight hits.

Philadelphia divided a double-header with the Cardinals at St. Louis, winning the first, 8 to 6, and losing the second—a six, inning affair—4 to 3. The second game was called because of darkness.

Rain prevented the scheduled double-header between New York and Cincinnati, at New York.

WILL AGREE ON PLAYERS' LISTS

RANGER, Texas, September 9.—An agreement has been made between Ranger and Big Spring high schools whose teams clash on the football field next Saturday whereby each team will accept the other's list of players as eligible. Superintendent Holloway of Ranger was in long-distance conversation with Superintendent Blankenship of Big Spring on the matter. Each agreed that if it was found later that some player was not eligible, the result of the Big Spring-Ranger game would not be disturbed.

BERLIN, Sept. 9.—The next major flight of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin will be an attempted non-stop flight around the world in 14 days, dispatches from Friedrichshafen said today. Officials of the Zeppelin works, according to the dispatches, plan to have the giant dirigible refueled in the air.

United Press Staff Correspondent DALLAS, Sept. 9.—Tomorrow is the official day for the opening of the 1929 grid training season. At the crack of dawn many of the in the seven schools which comprise the Southwest conference, candidates for the teams will be hard at work on their arduous training schedule. Indications point to a most interesting race in the Southwest conference this year, despite the fact that Baylor is pretty generally conceded to be the favorite. The interest lies in the knowledge that, though on paper, Baylor should win the pennant, there are five other teams anyone of which might easily be capable of upsetting the dope. A sixth team, Rice, is admittedly looking toward its 1930 season. Only by the queerest turn of circumstances would it be likely to threaten the championship. Widely circulated rumors that Arkansas would not be in the conference this year and that its berth would be occupied by another institution are groundless. The only change in the conference of any importance will be that which has been caused by alterations in the coaching staffs. Jack Meagher has been sent to Rice, Matty Bell to A. & M., Francis Schmidt to T. C. U. and Fred Thomsen to Arkansas, and the conference has perhaps the greatest coach of which it ever boasted, Dana X. Bible, who has shifted to Nebraska. The almost universal choice of Baylor to be the leader when the final gun is fired is based on the Bruins' successful season of 1928, augmented by the return this year of so many of last year's sophomores, who more than once proved a sensation. Jack Wilson, the conference's premier punter, will again be in the Baylor backfield, along with Gilliland and McElreath. The fourth place will be filled from among a half dozen high schoolers of unusual promise. Koch, Lucas, Potter and Paradaux will be included in the line. Should Baylor fluke it will undoubtedly be due to one of two reasons. It will be because the fourth place in the backfield cannot be filled to complete satisfaction, or because what is the more likely of the two, it will not be able to withstand the pointing that will follow its having been picked as the winner. Baylor being such a heavy favorite, every team in the conference will assume the stand that to does Texas. T. C. U. had a great team last year and will have a better one this season. The Texas Aggies are in a good psychological position. They do not have Baylor to fear, for a game with the bears is not scheduled, and they play Texas and S. M. U. on their home field. They take on Arkansas just after the latter team has met both Baylor and Texas. The Aggies' biggest stumbling block will be their game with T. C. U. at Fort Worth. If they get over that its likely to be an A. & M. year. S. M. U. is looked upon as a dark horse by no means devoid of a chance at victory. It's game with the Nebraska Cornhuskers at the first of the season will probably injure its chances in the conference however. Nor should Arkansas be overlooked, for with Fred Thomsen as their new coach, the Razorbacks may do a world of damage.

PLAY CHILDISH GAMES ENGAGEMENT STORY A HOAX

The talent for the intrigue and play acting does not rest entirely with the professionals of stage and political life but is met with in other line that sometimes turn it to a surprising use. The hoax played and Mrs. W. K. Jackson in regard to a well planned and deceptive message purporting to come from friends of the family of the young man whose fictitious engagement was announced in Sunday's paper, was a most carefully planned one and backed up by two calls from seeming friends of the family concerned and which verified the story. Also, a feminine call at the Telegram office for the editor was made, that same morning, the caller stating that she wished to turn into the office the information of the engagement dinner tendered by Mrs. Key to her son Allen.

There is no engagement, there was no dinner. The entire thing was planned by youths of a childish frame of mind who thought such things were funny.

Whenever pranks over-step the decorum of good taste and feeling and invade the sanctuary of sacred things in life then these actions cease to be pranks and become the childish expression of a defiance of the rules of good breeding.

Newspaper people know that they are more or less dependent upon the integrity of the public for their news as well as its truthfulness. No one editor or reporter is physically able to both see and hear personally everything that makes news-stories or goes toward the making of a paper. For no one person could possibly go, see, and hear, everything that is used in a newspaper make-up.

OIL MAN FROM CADDO TEX. TALKS

Helps Suffering People By Telling His Experience With Orgatone.

C. T. Satterwhite, a well known pumpjack for the Gulf Refining Co. and residing on rural route 1, Caddo, Texas, recently made the following remarkable statement regarding his experience with Orgatone.

"It didn't take many doses of Orgatone to satisfy me that I had found the right medicine for my case at last. For six months I had been in a general run-down condition from indigestion and gas forming on my stomach. I had no appetite or energy and nothing I would eat seemed to agree with me. I was nervous and this gas finally started affecting my heart and it really was almost impossible for me to take interest in anything.

"I have now taken two bottles of Orgatone and my improvement is remarkable. My strength and energy has returned. I eat like a farm hand and feel fine all the time. My heart does not bother me any more and everything I eat agrees with me perfectly. Orgatone is the greatest medicine I have ever come into contact with."

Genuine Orgatone may be bought at Eastland at the Texas and Corner Drug Stores.

AIRPORT

Mark Sullivan says in the Sunday Dallas News "that in 1900 there were approximately eight thousand automobiles in the United States and now 20 years later there is estimated to be twenty five million."

It is given out by good authority that there are now in use in the United States a little over eight thousand airplanes. Will the airplane in twenty nine years make as great a change in our life as the automobile has? Will there be twenty five million airplanes in use in 1945? It would be a rash prophet who said no.

It is an astonishing fact that the use of automobile the past twenty nine years has revolutionized American life. Paved highways have been built every where and cities have sprawled out in every direction for it is just as easy now to live twenty five miles from your business as it was two miles in the old days.

This leads us to think what effect will several million airplanes flying over head have on Eastland. Will it not be as easy to live in Eastland and do business in Fort Worth or Dallas as it is to live in Olden and do business in Eastland. If progress continues at the rate now going on a one hundred and fifty mile trip in an airplane will hardly give you time to read the morning paper.

If it does take place why not make Eastland a superior place to live in? We have a splendid start I doubt if there is another city in Texas with the same population that has as many fine public build-

THIS HAS HAPPENED

HELEN BRENT feels unhappy when the girls at the Spann boarding school tease her about being Miss Simplicity just to please her handsome guardian, LEONARD BRENT, who supplies her with ample funds and smart frocks which are brought from Paris for her by a woman friend whom Helen has never met.

But she dares not question his reasons even when her roommate, SHALLIMOR MORRIS, accuses her of being in love with Brent and calls her a fool for giving up dancing and parties for him.

Brent refuses to tell her anything about her parentage until after her graduation and, realizing her infatuation for him, exacts her promise to do anything he asks her to.

One day Brent spies a gold and diamond locket on a starving beggar who has fallen in an alley. He bends over to take the locket and hears mumbled words about "Evangeline—money—disinherit" and decides to feed the old man and try to find out his story.

His name is CHARLES OWENS NELLIN, and that his wife is dead, but cannot find out where the baby EVANGELINE is—except that the father has hidden her from the wealthy grandfather, CYRIL K. CUNNINGHAM.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V
"I've fixed it! I've fixed it! I've taken care that he'll never have a chance to ruin the little girl's life!" The pauper, Nellin, shaken with his dim memories, crashed his fist down upon the table with a burst of energy that seemed to desert him the next instant. He slumped in his chair, the flash of spirit died out of his eyes and he began to mutter disconnectedly. Habit overcoming him probably, Brent reflected.

"...wasting his life... waiting, like a vulture, there is that old house... hungry for another chance to make us suffer... but I've fooled him... Evangeline died and the little girl... he'll never find her... she died... and cackled deep in his throat at the memory of some way in which he had thwarted his revengeful father-in-law.

Brent pressed in with a question. "Little girl?" he said. "Wasn't this all a long time ago?" Nellin's head dropped lower on his chest. He seemed not to have heard Brent's question. Brent did not repeat it. For the muddling was reaching a point on which he wanted more information. He leaned farther over the table, listening attentively.

"Nobody knows where to find her," (Brent assumed this referred to the child Evangeline.) "He'll never have a chance to shake his money bags in her face... money bags... poor Evangeline, nothing, once, but raw carrots for two days... went out a grocery store... did you ever steal a raw egg... too hungry... but I got the carrots... they paid me with carrots... too bad about the egg... might have worked all day..."

Brent waited for more about the child. The muttering continued. "...pretty kid... no Cunningham, not a sign of them. All Nellin... then... He maybe she'd like her mother now. Like her mother..." The voice failed, faded away.

"Grown, you mean?" Brent prompted softly.

"Eighteen next month. And I haven't seen her for years... she wouldn't know me... wouldn't know her father."

"Does she know she's Cunningham's granddaughter?" The bleary eyes lifted, the wob-such a fool I could love you. You know how I hate to be reminded of that East Side and yet you never forget it. You are a fool!"

"Well, even fools must eat, my dear. Can't live on love. Do come along."

"I hate you!" She flung out of the room in haste but Brent waited, knowing that she would return when she felt she had taxed his patience to the utmost.

What a vast relief it would be to fill her place in his life with Helen Page. Helen Page! Brent frowned over his next thought. Could he induce her to fill that place? Wouldn't it be better perhaps to chuck the whole scheme of things and let her go her own way? No, she was too valuable, much too valuable. He would find use for her.

Carmel broke in upon his thoughts, surprising him by her abrupt return. He wondered about it but she said simply that she was hungry. Brent smiled over her revelation of appetite and thought of Helen, who could not eat when her sensibilities were wounded.

"What was your business?" she said softly, slipping her arm in his and turning a dazzling smile upon him.

"Had to see a dark man with a bundle," Brent teased. And Carmel knew him well enough to give up questioning him further. She pulled her arm away and drew her light evening wrap closer about her slender voluptuous figure.

But her question had sent Brent's mind back to the old beggar he had left in the coffee house. The encounter already seemed a bit fantastic, but there was one thing he had set his mind on doing before he dropped the matter.
