Bob Miller at Paint Rock, president of the West Texas Sheriff's was painfully injured while helping officers destroy a lot of captured beer. Miller hurled a bottle against a metal post, and broken glass bounced back and severely cut his leg. His life was endangered by loss of blood.

Two men at Victoria had the shock of their lives while stacking hay when a wire they were placing across the hayrick touched a high voltage power line. The current severely burned soles of the two men's feet.

A bride-to-be at Port Arthur called in the police to see that her wedding would be quiet and orderly after a girl was reported to be on a jealous rampage because of the marriage, after having been jilted by the intended groom.

Stories of hidden gold beneath the old Spanish governor's palace in San Antonio have caused so many people to tear up the floor that the city is having to repair the building. What could be more fascinating than a midnight hunt for hidden gold in a cavernous building a hundred years old? This seems to be the prompting of numberless nocturnal visitors, officers said. The prowling was redoubled recently when workmen discovered a buried wall in the grounds about the old mansion.

Cleveland Cariker is at Corpus Christi, paralyzed, victim of a spider bite 15 years ago.

The giant liveoak tree in LaGrange under which the Fayette company of 53 men that lost 41 men dead in the Dawson massacre of 1842, was organized, has been saved. It is in the middle of the street, but will be left there and saved around it. Mexicans are making Texas massacred the Dawson defenders whom they met on the Salado river.

The millennium may be far away, but its nearest approach seems to have come to railroad men at Marshall. Now they have a five-day week.

Three Jurors Obtained For Strikers' Case

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 29.—With two youthful farmers and a middle-aged steel worker in the jury box, attempts to obtain a jury to try 16 textile strikers on murder charges entered the third day here today.

There remained 132 of the 200 special venire to be examined. Neither prosecution nor defense looked forward to the selection of a jury from this number.

Questions asked prospective jurors reveal a firm prejudice against the strikers. The defense is dismissing any venireman that announces he has reached an opinion that some of the strikers are responsible for the murder of Police Chief Aderholt, of Gastonia, for which crime they are being tried.

Trackless Waste Faces Lindberghs In Air Mail Flight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—A trackless waste of water and jungle extending nearly 1,200 miles from San Juan, Porto Rico, to Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, lies in the path of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh on their pioneering air mail flight over that territory next month.

Inaugurating service on the air mail route between those two points on Sept. 23, Colonel Lindbergh will traverse the area by one of three routes now under consideration, each of which is over uncharted wilderness and ocean for most of the distance.

Lady Mary Heath Injured in Crash

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 29.—Lady Mary Heath, famous British aviatrix, was so severely injured that physicians hold little hope for her recovery when the airplane in which she was flying crashed into a small building on the outskirts of Cleveland today.

Lady Heath's mechanic, Erwin Kirk, escaped with a crushed right hand. The British noblewoman came here this week for the international airplane exposition in which she played a prominent role as an exponent of women's equality in the air.

At the emergency hospital it was found that the crash had rendered Lady Heath unconscious and that both of her legs were severely cut. There were deep lacerations on her chest. She was taken immediately to the x-ray room for further observation.

She had been up three times in the Great Lakes plane in which she crashed. As she banked vertically over a factory building, just as she had done safely many times in her racing, the plane went out of control and dashed through the roof of a building.

DUBLIN, Aug. 28.—Young Ben Hogan returned to his home town this week to display his learnings in the world of golf. He climaxed the visit Thursday afternoon with winning of the championship of the annual Dublin-DeLeon tournament.

It was 10 years ago that Hogan's family left this town for Ft. Worth. Ben was a strapping 7. But upon his return here this week he was a husky, sun-tanned lad of the fairways, regarded as one of the outstanding young golfers of the state. At 17, he has added the championship of his old home town to his collection.

Pastor to Conduct Funeral Rites of Minister Friend

FORT WORTH, Tex., Aug. 29.—For many years Elmer I. Nichols and Roy H. Lanier, Church of Christ ministers, enjoyed an inseparable companionship. Their friendship began when they became pals in college, where they were roommates.

Later both were married, and in each case the ceremony was performed by the other. Then the two comrades entered into a covenant. It was agreed that when one died the other should preach the funeral sermon. Today the covenant will be fulfilled.

'Truth Seekers' To Fast Again

LYONS, Colo., Aug. 29.—Chris Solbrig is dead and a coroner's jury, last night said he came to his end by starvation. But George Huntley Aron, leader of the Chicago cult, of which Solbrig was a member, says next summer's fast will be a greater event than ever and will be attended by 100 "truth seekers."

Aron did not attend the inquest over the emaciated body of the once Adonis-like Solbrig, who ended a 31-day fast by eating, and died a few minutes later yesterday. He was busy at that time issuing a statement to the effect that long periods of lying-nude in the sun proved too much for the Chicago art school model.

With the Rev. J. Arndt, a Cincinnati minister and author of the book "Why Did Christ Fast?" it was neither too little food nor too much sun that killed Solbrig. It was merely a case of "The Master will it," and the tragic matter is dropped there. Rev. Arndt says he has fasted for forty days on three occasions while he was training to write his book and is ready for another food defying derby next summer.

In the meantime, the fast of the Aron pilgrims is over. There are but fourteen of the original thirty in Meadow park, near here, and they now have nothing to do but begin their trek back to Chicago.

Shipwrecked Crew Saved After Long Fight With Gale

After three days of fighting a mid-Atlantic gale in a life boat, their ship having sunk under them, members of the crew of the German steamer Quimistan are shown in this remarkable photo as they finally reached them. When sighted by the Dollar Liner President Harrison, from which this picture was taken, the men were exhausted from nights and days of baling their open craft; the commandeer collapsed as he was taken aboard the liner. All of the crew were saved. The Quimistan, a 58-year-old hulk, on its last voyage—to a junk yard in Genoa, began to sink in a furious gale 1,000 miles off Norfolk, Va. After the crew had deserted her, the vessel caught fire.

Twelfth Juror Obtained at 1:30 This Afternoon

Man Under Death Sentence Sings in Courtroom; Looks Worn and Haggard.

The Helms sanity hearing jury was completed about 1:30 o'clock this afternoon with the selection of the twelfth juror.

Only one juror was needed to complete the panel in the Henry Helms sanity case on trial before Judge George L. Davenport of the 91st district court when court recessed for noon until 1:00 p. m. Nine of this number were secured Wednesday the opening day of the trial. Of the 30 talesmen summoned into court this morning, only seven had been examined in securing the 10th and 11th jurors.

The defense at noon had exhausted 11 of the 15 peremptory challenges allowed by the court and the state had used 6 of its allotment of 15. This indicated that the additional juror would be secured within a short time after court re-convened and the taking of testimony would be started.

Singing the same song and carrying the same tune, that he sung throughout the entire day Wednesday, Helms was in court this morning looking more worn and haggard than on yesterday. In addition to his continual repeating in a sing-song manner of the words "Ain't Gonna Sing No More," and "Aye, Captain," Helms worked industriously all during the trial this morning tearing small pieces of paper, cigarette packages, etc. into fine bits, letting the pieces fall over his lap onto the floor.

Alienists for both the state and defense gave Helms a thorough examination in his cell at the county jail this morning before he was brought to court. The doctors took numerous blood tests from different portions of his body, examined his eyes, took his pulse count and made other examinations.

Helms' breakfast this morning consisted of a ham and egg sandwich and coffee. For dinner last evening he ate a slice of watermelon, a sandwich and drank water.

Attorneys followed the same line of questioning this morning in examining prospective jurors as they did Wednesday. The state attempted to make it clear to the prospective juror that in this case the burden was on the defendant to prove he was insane and that the state was to have the benefit of the doubt, if there was any in the jurors' mind, instead of that going to the defendant as in criminal cases. The state also questioned carefully as to the prospective jurors' opinion on capital punishment and as to whether he was prejudiced against the law that permitted sanity hearings after conviction for crime.

Frequently, in the course of their questioning of jurors, both state and defense mentioned the fact that Helms has no appeal from the verdict in this trial and that should he be adjudged sane, must be executed on Sept. 6, also that should he be adjudged insane, he cannot have his freedom—but must spend the balance of his life confined in an insane asylum.

- Following is the jury panel:
- J. T. Graves, married, farmer, Cisco.
 - J. W. Vaughn, married, farmer and minister, Carbon.
 - J. F. White, married, farmer, Carbon.
 - R. M. Burns, married, farmer, Gorman.
 - R. F. Wynne, married, garage man, Eastland.
 - J. B. Connelly, married, oil man, Ranger.
 - A. W. Wright, married, auto mechanic, Eastland.

AND NOW THEY KNOW Like a refreshing breeze comes the statement of Alexander Legge on his social status at the dinner tables of Washington's bon ton.

Legge, as doubtless everyone knows, is the man who gave up a job at $100,000 a year with the International Harvester company to accept the chairmanship of President Hoover's farm relief board.

The tempest in a teapot that has raged as to whether the vice president's sister should take precedence over the wife of the speaker of the House at affairs of the elite of the national capital was followed by a ruckus somewhere in the West when some American admiral got miffed because someone was seated above him at the dinner table.

A fine fighter he would make! Imagine John Paul Jones beefing about social precedence!

Anyway, Legge's status at meal time was a question that was working Washington. Whether he would sit at the right of the ambassador from Bolivia or should be seated between the Akhond of Swat and the King of Siam was causing many wrinkled brows.

Consequently it was decided to get a line on his ancestry to see whether they came over in the Mayflower or the Cauliflower. When one prospective host called on Legge to learn something of his past record, the Chicagoan told him:

"My first claim to prominence was robbing Wells-Fargo stage coaches. When that went out, I took up train robbery, rustling horses between as a member of Doc Middleton's gang of boss thieves.

"Since I've been in Chicago, I signed with Al Capone and you can just put me down wherever this rates me."

As to where he should sit when the peacocks of aristocracy preen their feathers, Legge said:

"We farmers are busy and don't hanker after any social functioning. If we have to put on fried shirts and such things, then all I want to say is: We respectfully ask that we be given places in the kitchen with the rest of the help, and if that interferes with the culinary business, we want to wait for the second table."

Doubtless, Legge has been classed as an insufferably crude by the Washington upper circles but his biting satire will endear him to millions of ordinary folks throughout the land. His scorn of the trivial thanks him, in that regard at least, with Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Will Rogers.

That little interview gives us a broad insight into the sort of man the president has selected to help the farmers. He is a man of common sense, with an eye for things that are really important. He's the kind of fellow who'd smoke a pipe—a corn-cob one at that—if he wanted to—and would rather have ham'n'eggs than asparagus tips au gratin.

Let's have less artificiality and pretense and more sincerity and simplicity in public life.

If this man Legge doesn't watch out, he'll be as popular as "Hell and Maria" Dawes.

Three Escape Jail In Caldwell County

Farm Bloc's Ire Up Over Wheat

Senate Body Irritated at Farm Board's Failure to Take Care of Wheat Grower.

By PAUL R. MALLON United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The senate farm bloc is assembling for the coming session in an irritated mood because of failure of President Hoover's federal farm board to take care of the wheat farmer.

Following announcement of Senator Brookhart, independent republican, Iowa, he intended to ask hearings on nominations of board members Senator Nye, republican, N. D. revealed today he is planning a full inquiry into the fitness of two board members whom he declined to name as yet.

The plan of the farm bloc is to refer Mr. Hoover's board nomination to the agriculture committee when they are sent up from the White House September 4 and then to call the nominees before the committee for examination.

"The board has helped the fruit farmer but has ignored the wheat farmer," said Nye. "The north-west was expecting some action because Congress had provided sufficient funds, but thus far our people have received no help whatsoever and there seems to be no prospect of them getting any from this source in the immediate future. The present wheat situation could have been helped immeasurably if the board had functioned promptly.

Other members of the bloc have concurred with the views of Brookhart and Nye, and their strength is sufficient under the liberal senate rules to force a perfunctory investigation of the board even if it does not prevent confirmation of some of the nominees.

The situation was entirely unexpected after the widespread confidence expressed by farm representatives in congress after Mr. Hoover's own announcement of the board personnel.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Representatives of cooperative marketing associations, who conferred for three days to organize the $20,000,000 national farmers grain corporation, adjourned today with assurances that farmer members may obtain funds from the federal farm board without waiting for the central holding corporation to be set up.

Alexander Legge, federal farm board chairman, at the closing session of the conference promised that farmer members of cooperative five grain marketing associations whose loans are approved by the federal intermediate credit bank may obtain funds amounting to 10 cents a bushel on unpledged grain.

In addition to loans made by the credit bank, while those who hedge their grain—that is, sell it for future delivery, are eligible for advances up to 50 per cent of its total value.

Replying to Legge's telegram urging immediate action on all applications from wheat cooperatives, the federal farm loan board stated that all such applications had been approved.

Applications for the additional aid offered by the farm board will be coming in within a few days, Legge believes.

While the committee of 16 farm leaders who were selected to organize the national farmers grain corporation adjourned after agreeing on the type of corporation to be set up, a sub-committee of three remained in Chicago to draft the articles of incorporation and by-laws. The final draft or organization papers must be passed on by

Legal Squabbles Enter Bout Case

FAIRFIELD, Aug. 29.—Legal squabbles over technicalities took up the entire morning session of court today in Judge Fountain Kirby's court where "Dutch" Meindert, Dallas boxing promoter, is seeking to have District Attorney Hood of Dallas and Ranter Captain Tom Hickman of Fort Worth held in contempt for stopping the kid Dallas a few weeks ago.

John T. Gano, who with Tom Fletcher and John Miller, represents Meindert, told Judge Kirby that McCraw had had all the court papers including the original petition and the defendants' answer since they had been filed and the plaintiffs' attorneys had not been able to see them.

Rice Tilley, assistant attorney general, representing McCraw and Captain Hickman, told the court that the papers were in the district clerk's office in Dallas and were available to the plaintiff. When Tilley did not agree to bring the papers into court, the plaintiffs' attorneys asked time to prepare a motion which, if granted, would compel the defendants to bring the papers into court.

Judge Kirby allowed time for preparation of the motion and passed the case until this afternoon.

The plaintiffs will seek to have the three officials held in contempt and the limit of a $100 fine and three days in jail imposed.

Girl Engaged to 'Poster' Model

BRIGHTON, Eng., Aug. 29.—It is one thing to fall in love with a man in a poster and another to marry him.

But Miss Gladys Hewett, young typist of this city, is going to do that.

On her way to work every morning Miss Hewett used to feast her eyes on a cigarette advertisement poster bearing the advertisement of a handsome man with a crisp, curly hair. She sighed and wished such men actually existed.

And then dawned the great idea. She wrote to the company displaying the poster and asked if the man's picture was made from real life and if so would they please forward the letter she enclosed to "that man."

The letter was duly forwarded, and the young man, a wireless operator in the merchant service and a brother of the commercial artist who had made the poster, answered it. They exchanged photographs. They met. They fell in love. Now they are engaged to be married.

Wife Gets Second Divorce from Hubby

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Mrs. Margaret Ryerson, 65, a great-grandmother, was irked by the bonds of marriage so she appealed to the court and won a second divorce from her husband, Stonewall Jackson Ryerson on grounds of desertion.

"I've had enough of marriage," Mrs. Ryerson told the court. "I have four children, six grandchildren and I feel I've done my duty to the world. I'm an independent woman and don't care to be bound."

She married Ryerson first in 1882, divorcing him 36 years later when he deserted her. In 1925 she consented to remarrying "cloped" but six years ago, she said, Ryerson left her again and since that date she has not heard from him.

Legal Squabbles Enter Bout Case

FAIRFIELD, Aug. 29.—Legal squabbles over technicalities took up the entire morning session of court today in Judge Fountain Kirby's court where "Dutch" Meindert, Dallas boxing promoter, is seeking to have District Attorney Hood of Dallas and Ranter Captain Tom Hickman of Fort Worth held in contempt for stopping the kid Dallas a few weeks ago.

John T. Gano, who with Tom Fletcher and John Miller, represents Meindert, told Judge Kirby that McCraw had had all the court papers including the original petition and the defendants' answer since they had been filed and the plaintiffs' attorneys had not been able to see them.

Rice Tilley, assistant attorney general, representing McCraw and Captain Hickman, told the court that the papers were in the district clerk's office in Dallas and were available to the plaintiff. When Tilley did not agree to bring the papers into court, the plaintiffs' attorneys asked time to prepare a motion which, if granted, would compel the defendants to bring the papers into court.

Judge Kirby allowed time for preparation of the motion and passed the case until this afternoon.

The plaintiffs will seek to have the three officials held in contempt and the limit of a $100 fine and three days in jail imposed.

Girl Engaged to 'Poster' Model

BRIGHTON, Eng., Aug. 29.—It is one thing to fall in love with a man in a poster and another to marry him.

But Miss Gladys Hewett, young typist of this city, is going to do that.

On her way to work every morning Miss Hewett used to feast her eyes on a cigarette advertisement poster bearing the advertisement of a handsome man with a crisp, curly hair. She sighed and wished such men actually existed.

And then dawned the great idea. She wrote to the company displaying the poster and asked if the man's picture was made from real life and if so would they please forward the letter she enclosed to "that man."

The letter was duly forwarded, and the young man, a wireless operator in the merchant service and a brother of the commercial artist who had made the poster, answered it. They exchanged photographs. They met. They fell in love. Now they are engaged to be married.

The TRAINING TALENT

By ELEANOR EARLY NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
MOLLY BURNHAM writes plays and books, and is generally adored. In a single evening, two men ask her to marry them. One of them, RED FLYNN, is a reporter. Molly and Red have been friends for years, but Red has an invalid mother, and she has never been able to contemplate marriage. The other man is BOB NEWTON, the widower of an old friend, whose little girl Molly adores. Bob reminds her that if she marries him, she will become little RITA's mother. If she refuses, he will take the child and go away. Bob has been drinking, and is rather abusive, when he finds Red in Molly's apartment late at night. Then, in front of Bob, Red (whose mother has died that very night) asks Molly to marry him. Shortly, Bob flings angrily out of the flat, and Red and Molly go to the office and talk of love. She tells him that she is very fond of him, but that he would make a perfectly impossible husband. And, besides, she loves JACK WELLS. While they are talking, Bob returns with a policeman.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLIII
 The policeman was Big Tim Dug, the night patrolman. Molly and he were old friends, but now he greeted her differently. "Why, Tim!" she exclaimed. "What under the sun is the matter?" He designated Bob with a jerk of his huge, grizzled head. "The gentleman says you're keeping his daughter against his will, Miss Burnham." "Bob Newton, are you crazy?" She wheeled furiously on him. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself. What's the matter with you anyhow?" But Bob preserved a frozen silence. Red was scowling menacingly, and Molly saw that his fists were clenched. She laid her hand on his arm. "You keep out of this, Red," she ordered. Then she spoke again to Officer Duggan. "It's quite true, Tim, that I have Mr. Newton's little girl here. You know Rita. Mr. Newton is her father. When Mrs. Newton died, she asked me to take her baby. Mr. Newton surrendered her of his own volition. I've had her ever since. I've never tried to keep her away from him. It isn't true that I have her against her will. He has been coming here whenever he chooses, to see the child, and to be my guest. Our relations have always been perfectly friendly." The big policeman scratched his head. "It's none of my doings, Miss Burnham, and he comes to the station now, looking for a warrant. See?"

Chamber of Commerce Chips

By the Secretary DR. H. B. TANNER

Charity
 In the city ordinance adopted by the government of the Board of City Development, we find that section 6 the subjects over which they shall have general supervision are enumerated at considerable length winding up with charity. It is not perfectly clear in the mind of the writer as to just what the framers of this ordinance had in view when they delegated to the Chamber of Commerce the general supervision of "city charity." However, it is more likely that it was designed for them to afford relief in the case of dire necessity where no other means were provided. At this particular time it appears that this branch of the service was not mentioned in the budget that was presented to the city commission last January, hence at the present time there are no funds available for this work. Nevertheless should the occasion arise where relief is called for the secretary will endeavor in some manner to assist any deserving person. It seems to me I have read in the Bible that "Charity covers a multitude of sins." It is true our citizens and particularly the business men in and about our public square are called upon frequently for donations for charity. It might be well to heed Dr. Paul's advice wherein he said "Let all things be done decently and in order." No doubt there are many things that are worthy of attention where they involve sudden disaster like a fire destroying the entire belongings of some individual family from serious illness or accident involving the life of a breadwinner of a laboring man. And these and similar types of disaster that matter will be met with immediate and adequate relief. It is called for by the Chamber of Commerce. Doubt but that in the minds of our citizens lingers a desire to follow the advice given by Solomon in the Book of Proverbs when he says: "He that hath compassion on the poor lendeth unto God; and that which he hath will pay him again." In the light of this desire out there are many appeals that a warrant should be given in order that ing as I knew you, I comes, friendly-like, to see what the trouble is. "Newton's crazy," injected Red. "That's all the trouble, Tim." "I told you to keep out of this," repeated Molly sternly. She ignored Bob, who stood in the doorway, twisting his hat awkwardly. "What if I refuse to give her up, Tim?" "You'd have to show good reason. There'd be a hearing before a judge, and you'd both have a chance to tell your stories." "But I mean tonight. You're not asking me to wake the poor child at this time of night, and give her to Mr. Newton, to take God-knows-where. It's the most idiotic thing I ever heard!" "I would be much more sensible now if you two could get together," suggested Duggan peacefully, "and argue it out between the two of you. There's nothing to be gained by running to the judge with your tale. Sure, and the child is his." "She's mine," contradicted Molly. "He gave her to me." "To be having for a little while," soothed Duggan. "And sure you want to keep the little angel, which is only nature, God knows. For she's as pretty a one as ever I saw."

Molly turned her back squarely on Bob. "Ask him," she directed the policeman, "if I may keep her tonight and if he will come tomorrow to talk things over." "You heard Mr. Newton. He a good lad now, and let's have no more talk this night. For Miss Burnham is a fine little lady, and you shouldn't be breaking her poor little heart." They waited, like actors in a drama, for Bob's answer. Officer Duggan drew his shaggy gray brows together, frowning. Molly bent to a bowl of flowers on the table, twisting their blossoms this way and that. Red's fists were still clenched, and he glared at Bob like an animal that seeks to hypnotize before it springs. Bob bowed. He was looking at Molly, but she kept her back to him. "If I have Miss Burnham's promise to see me tomorrow, and conclude the matter at that time," he said. Molly raised her head, and returned his gaze steadily. "At three o'clock," she said. Then she spoke to Officer Duggan again, explaining Red's presence. Mr. Flynn's mother died tonight. Tim. He came to tell me about it. And was she ailing long, the poor woman?" inquired the big policeman sympathetically. "May God have mercy on her soul." "She'd been sick a long time," Red told him. "She's better off now, Tim." Bob had stepped quietly into the hall, and now Duggan followed. The child laughed delightedly. It was a new game they were playing. "I'd rather live with you'n' daddy bofe," she cried. "But if you couldn't have us both, darling?" "I'd rather live with you!" declared Rita, pointing her little finger. "And I'd rather live with daddy too!" Molly sighed. "You're a born diplomat," she said. She spent the morning in the park with Rita, and they had luncheon together in the nursery. Every moment today was a precious jewel. At three the butler announced Bob. He was calm and courteous today, with a sort of detached politeness. First he apologized for the unpleasantness of the night before. "It was a bit melodramatic," she conceded coolly. "Rather like the movies, don't you think?" "It was the only way I could convince you that I was in earnest," he declared. "I had to show you how much it would mean to you to lose Rita." "Oh, no you didn't. I knew quite well. Was that the only reason you staged your charming little act?" "I wanted you to know that the law is in on my side. You can't possibly keep Rita without my consent." She shrugged wearily. "Are you trying to make me hate you, Bob?" "I wish I could make you love me." "You act like an eager lover." "But I would," he cried, "if you'd let me. I'm crazy about you!" "Maybe that's why you behave like such a darn fool," she hazarded insultingly. We won't get anywhere quarreling though. Listen, Bob—would you care to try out a trial engagement? For a little while, I mean. It's so absolutely awful to talk about getting married right away quick, when we haven't done anything but quarrel for weeks. Maybe, if you should be engaged to me for a little while you wouldn't want to marry me at all." "You'd try to scare me off, I suppose?" "Oh, no. I'd be just as nice as anything. It would be a real engagement. You know I'd play stances a gentle hint of calling in the city marshal will cause a hurried departure of such unwelcome visitors, and save our citizens considerable cash which might be devoted to a more worthy cause.

engagement should be an absolute secret, until we had given it a fair trial. "If we can get along peacefully for three months, say, then we can be married. I love Rita so much that I'll do anything in reason to keep her. If marriage between us seems to be reasonable, then I am quite willing to be married. But you know yourself that there would be no earthly sense in leading a cat and dog life, for the sake of sharing Rita. That wouldn't be any good for her, and it wouldn't bring any of us any happiness. "Why not announce our engagement, if you really mean to go through?" "No," she shook her head firmly. "You see, I am a public sort of person. People, for some strange reason, are interested in what I do. If I should announce our engagement, every newspaper in America would carry the story. I loathe and despise advertising my personal affairs. An engagement is always a more or less hazardous affair. There is nothing disgraceful about an experiment that fails. But if our experimental engagement should prove a mistake, I should not want everyone gossiping about it." She continued reasonably. "You see, a public person has so little private life. Look what happened when John Gilbert and Ina Claire were married. Well, if you and I should become publicly engaged, it would create a good deal of interest, because my plays are still running, and 'Ashes of Desire' is up with the best sellers. But if you had I should break our public engagement, the story would be 10 times as good! A romance is always good copy. But a broken romance is better." "You talk as if this trial engagement were already broken," he objected. "Honestly, Bob," she promised, "I'd try to make it successful. I'm only pointing out the very good reasons for being discreet, until we are sure." "And at the end of three months, if you can stand me at all, you'll marry me?" "That's a dreadful way of putting it, but I suppose that's about the idea," she admitted. "And meantime I get the privileges of a fiancée, but I have to keep my mouth shut about it?" "Exactly." The Cave family is making a tour of the United States in a campaign to lessen forest fires. They have lived for five years in their trunk-and-tree home and have stopped at every community on their tour which included trips from Canada to Mexico and through most of the states of the Union. The inside of the log-hut presents a comfortable home scene.

The log is polished and varnished. Fixtures and furnishings all are built-in. The home contains beds, a library, breakfast nook, shower bath, porcelain sink, kitchen cabinet, automatic electric cooker, linen closet and ice box. The Caves are en route to the Atlantic coast, spreading propaganda urging campers, picnickers and tourists to be careful with their cigarettes and camp fires, in order to prevent forest fires.

Historic Bells Of Texas Town Accounted For Last One, Relic of Spanish Mission Days, Finally Found.

BY UNITED PRESS
 VICTORIA, Tex., Aug. 29.—The search for the bells has ended in the thickets of mesquite and cacti southwest of this old Texas town. There were four great bells in the beginning, four crude bronze bells that hung in the old Spanish mission at Refugio. They had been hung there in 1549 when the Spaniards brought the sword and cross to Texas. The Indians thought they were the voice of the white man's God. They called the faithful to worship. They tolled the gladness of the first births in that wilderness settlement. They tolled the sorrow of its deaths. Their bronze voices thundered warning of the Indian raids. In them, so ran the people's legend, was the voice of this new land of the Texas. No man knew whence came these bells. Perhaps the priests cast them. Perhaps they were made in Nuevo Santander, the present Tamaulipas. Church Destroyed The bells tolled the passing of the years and the scene changed with blue eyes and fair skins, came into the wilderness. War came, the war of Texas' liberation. The Mexicans fled south. The priests returned, carrying with them two of the bells. The church the Mission of Our Lady of Refuge was destroyed by Gen. Urrea's artillery. The bells disappeared. That was in 1836. The Irish colonists repaired the mission, but no trace was found of the bells until 20 years ago when Mrs. Annie Deal's memoirs revealed that one bell was hanging at the O'Conner ranch house on the San Antonio river. Another, the tale ran, had been cracked and so it was left by the roadside. Still Calls the Faithful A few years ago Father Joseph G. Donohoe of Waxahachie found two of the bells hanging in the patio of a priest's house in El Paso. But there was no trace of the fourth bell, the broken bell which had been abandoned. And then, a little while ago, word came out of the thicket of a strange gong that called the negroes to worship in Mount Zion Baptist church. Men went there. They heard the heavy clanging. It was louder than the voices of the negroes, louder than the singing and the shouts. And there, calling the negroes to worship in the tangled river bottom, they found it—the broken bell, the last of the great bronze bells which vanished almost a hundred years ago.

Rabbi Describes Moslem Attack

By JACOB SIMON United Press Special Correspondent

Copyright 1929 by United Press.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 29.—The fury of the Moslems as they descended upon the Talmudic students of Hebron with sword and dagger was described to the United Press correspondent today by Chief Rabbi Slonim of the Rabbinical seminary at Hebron, where scores of boys, including 12 Americans, were ruthlessly slaughtered.

Rabbi Slonim and his aides knew that trouble was brewing and had tried to take precautions. But the Arabs swooped down so suddenly and so furiously that all caution went to waste.

"On the morning of last Friday," the Rabbi said, "Khaled Ibrahim Abu Khaled, the Moslem servant of a Hebron carpenter, Jacob Mirzahi, intimated that the Moslems of Hebron were contemplating a massacre of Jews. The carpenter immediately informed me. Accompanied by a delegation I went to the chief of police, who assured me that everything was quite safe and to disregard the servant's warning."

"At 11 a. m. the Arab attack began. They penetrated the Talmudic college, killed one student and wounded another. The others escaped through the cellar to a neighboring house. I, together with a delegation, again attempted to interview the chief of police, he refused to admit us.

"As a measure of precaution, my son, the manager of the Anglo-Palestine Company, collected the students in his house, because he was friendly with the Arabs, who had promised him safety. Eighteen students and my son and daughter-in-law passed a sleepless, disturbed almost terror-stricken Friday night and instead of going to the synagogue on Saturday they prayed in the house.

Rabbi's Life Saved.

"At 11 a. m. on Saturday the rioters penetrated my house. My life was saved by a friendly Arab, who stood in front of attackers and said he would rather himself be killed than to see me, his bosom companion, stabbed.

"Thus it was that I was saved. Later the police took me and other refugees to the police station for protection." The Arabs were armed with axes and iron bars. Eighteen persons were killed in the house of the Rabbi's son, only one, a woman, escaped, by smearing blood on herself and pretending to be dead.

In fairness to the police it was said by the Jewish people at Hebron that the police were obliged to remain indifferent because of their fear of provoking the mob. Thus the Jewish houses continued to be penetrated during that terrible day Saturday, and kept on looting and killing until Sunday, when the British police arrived and halted the pillage after shooting down about 30 Arabs summarily.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—There is no danger to American lives and property in Syria, although there have been slight repercussions there to the Palestine outbreaks, Consul George L. Brandt, Beirut, reported to the state department today.

Rioting and bloodshed continued unabated in Palestine today, and it was feared that a general Moslem uprising against British and French rule in Asia Minor might occur if the trouble is not checked.

Syrians in Paris reported that Sultan Atrash, a powerful Bedouin leader, has risen against the French and was marching on Jerusalem with 2,000 Bedouins and 800 Druses.

Demonstrations were occurring in Syria, where Moslem feeling rapidly was becoming inflamed. A fatal clash took place in Damascus. A dispatch from Vatican City said reports to the Pope confirmed the seriousness of the situation, which it was feared would become worse if the menace of a march of the Druses against Palestine is not checked.

Sheik Hafiz Wabba, counselor to King Ibn Saud of the Hedjaz, in a statement to the United Press urged the appointment of a neutral independent commission of non-Jews and non-Arabs to investigate thoroughly the claims of both sides. He warned against armed intervention.

Orient Shows Varying Taste In U. S. Movies

By HARRY W. FRANTZ United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—

Hollywood's dashing cowboys may gallop across the silver screen to thunderous applause in Singapore but ride to a popular fall elsewhere along the road to Mandalay if one may judge by an analysis of film preferences made by department of commerce agents in a survey of the Far Eastern film trade.

"Western thrillers" and "slapstick" comedies are reported to be the most popular pictures shown in British Malaya, where films must cater to native as well as European tastes; but across the China Sea in sophisticated Manila there is said to be a tendency to get away from the "westerns" in favor of historical films and "heart appeal."

Pictures sent to British Malaya encounter a growing competition with Chinese films, and apparently also must run a hard race with the official censor, as burglary, gun play, intermingling of races and "eternal triangle" are among the grounds for banning.

"Kabuki" Films Practically all pictures made by larger producing companies of the United States have been exhibited in the Philippines. Costume of "period" pictures enjoy popularity, and "society" dramas with the triangle complex still have a following. There are now 275 motion picture theaters in the Philippines of which 191 are located on the island of Luzon.

Japanese film producers are furnishing a large part of national requirements, due to the popular favor for "Kabuki" films. "Kabuki" is the classical Japanese type of play, which now has been adapted to the screen. It involves formal acting of a stilted nature in accordance with rules of the Japanese legitimate stage. Fixed gestures with set meanings and extensive posing are used to register emotions, and the plots deal with legends or romantic incidents in medieval Japanese history.

"Kabuki" plays do not require elaborate sets, and moderate salaries are paid to the actors, consequently feature films can be produced at a much lower cost than American features. The Japanese motion pictures of outdoor subjects are said to be excellent.

During 1928 Japan imported 419 foreign feature-length films, of which the United States furnished 70 percent. An interesting feature in the exhibition of motion pictures in Japan is the interpreter and interlocutor who explains the action and meaning of a production to the audience. This unique profession was created when motion pictures were first introduced in Japan, since all the early films were foreign productions and gestures, actions, and properties were unintelligible to most of the spectators.

Serials Losing Favor.

In the Netherlands East Indies, the native public prefers action pictures and comedies; serials are losing favor and the better type of films are increasingly in demand.

Society dramas and problem plays possess no appeal for the natives, however, in view of the fact that their religion (Mohammedan) and family life give them no background for sympathetic comprehension.

Only four motion-picture films have been produced in the Netherlands East Indies thus far, three of which were native folk-lore pictures and one an action picture with Batavian setting. "Haksen Wraak" and "Lily of Java" were ambitious attempts by Chinese producers.

In Siam 42 picture theaters have a seating capacity of 36,800. In the Bangkok theaters the usual program consists of news reel, a comedy and a picture film, but in the latter the news reel is not appreciated and comedies and features make up the programs. An American corporation in Siam last year was organized for the producing of Chinese motion pictures.

'Sunday Movie' Appeal Filed

AUSTIN, Aug. 29.—The state law against Sunday movies, which was repealed by the legislature this year but left in force by the governor, Monday's veto of the repealing act, is attacked in an appeal filed in the court of Criminal Appeals here today from Ellis county.

The appeal is from a $35 fine against John M. Sayeg convicted of operating a picture show at Emis on May 12 at which no admission was charged but a box placed in the theatre for free will offerings.

The constitutionality of the law is attacked on the ground that it discriminates in allowing conduct of other businesses on Sunday. The law is attacked also on the ground that it is "so indefinitely framed and of such doubtful construction" that it cannot be understood.

BY UNITED PRESS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 29.—Completion of Prairie-Slick Last er in southeast Asher townsite is scheduled for Saturday or Sunday this week. Six inch flow lines and tankage capable of handling 15,000 barrels of oil a day is being installed.

Shell Petroleum company No. 6-McCully in northwestern Logan County has finally been completed and its latest gauge showed 2,015 barrels. The same company's other wells produced 69,444 barrels from the county during the week ending August 24.

The two sensational producers in the Oklahoma City field, Shell Petroleum's No. 1-Petty and Sinclair's No. 1-Stamper, continued their outstanding flow Wednesday. The Petty well proved one of the largest producers of the field yesterday with a 6,075 barrel flow. Stamped held up Wednesday with an average of 395 barrels an hour for a total of 9,605 barrels. The well may be deepened.

Total production for the Oklahoma City field made another new record yesterday, flowing a total of 53,743 barrels, compared with 45,123 Tuesday.

Greater Seminole area showed an increased production Wednesday over Tuesday of 2,840 barrels. Total production from 1-650 wells was 305,573 barrels.

Important Fossils Found During Buried Gold Hunt
LAS CRUCES, N. M., Aug. 29.—Fossils believed to be more than 25,000 years old, discovered several months ago in a cave at Bishop's Cap fifteen miles south east of Las Cruces, are described as being the "most important scientific discovery ever made in America," by Dr. William A. Bryan, director of the Los Angeles county museum in Los Angeles. The fossils have been sent to the museum for study and exhibition. The fossils were found by Roscoe Conklyn, amateur archeologist of El Paso, following the report of John and Joseph Benavides, brothers, who found queer bones in the cave while searching for buried Spanish treasure.

Pro Issue Is Shifted in N. Y.

By HARY FERGUSON

United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The federal government and the New York police department were playing football with the prohibition issue today, and it seemed that Federal Administrator Maurice Campbell was in possession of the ball on his own one-yard line.

The rick in the game apparently was, get rid of the abill. Three ball over into the police department's territory, but last night police commissioner Whalen kicked the ball right back at Campbell who, somewhat bewildered, grasped it and sought to revise his strategy.

Prominent among those who were enjoying the game were the 32,000 owners of speakers in New York.

Campbell kicked off last Monday by mailing a batch of prohibition complaints to the police department, pointing out that Whalen could prosecute speaky-ance owners under the state nuisance act.

The state prohibition enforcement act in New York has been repealed, and since that time federal officials have admitted that New York is one of the major problems confronting the enforcement agents. Attempts to prosecute under the Jones law have, in most cases, found juries here unwilling to convict.

Whalen held the ball for three days and then went into a huddle with county prosecutors, city magistrates and police officials. The police commissioner then called signals for punt formation and the ball went flying back to Campbell accompanied by the following letter:

"If you are unwilling to discharge your sworn obligations to the federal government or wish to make a confession of your inability to direct effectively the activities of your department, the admission should be made primarily to your superior in Washington instead of passing the buck to the state law enforcement officers."

"I am sending these complaints back to Campbell," Whalen said after getting rid of the ball, "and from now on I will send back every complaint he sends to this department."
