Root & Fehl's Balderee No. 1 Estimated Making 75 Barrels

New Producer from the Marble Falls Pay Apparently Has Opened Up New Territory Within Short Distance of the City.

Indications for a good well in the Root and Fehl Balderee No. 1, located between Eastland and Cisco, today cheered the hopes of the people of this section for a revival of oil activity.

The well was being agitated this morning and was flowing by heads. Root and Fehl, whose headquarters are in Eastland estimate production at 75 barrels daily.

A shot of 190 quarts was set off yesterday afternoon in the Marble Falls sand from which the well is producing. According to reports the first flow was made early last night. This morning 10 minutes after the tools were run it began making heads. A test of gravity was made early today showing the oil to be around 39 degrees corrected.

Total depth of the hole is between 3,400 and 3,500. The correct gauge could not be obtained. Neither could the correct shot record.

Nearest production to the well is the Chestnut and Smith on the Kurkline. This is about one-half mile to the southeast.

The Texas company on the Dr. C. C. Jones tract, known as the old Balderee, still has a fishing job at 1,750 feet.

On a Reducing Diet Man Gains 4 Pounds Weight

By United Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 15.—Norman Pendley today branded the 18-day Hollywood diet a failure.

Pendley, 18 days ago vowed he would follow the diet to a caraway seed. He weighed 255 pounds then. Today he weighed 259 pounds.

Doctors were inclined to believe he ate the diet in between meals.

Tulsa Man Is Shot to Death; Another Held

Two Were Rivals for the Affections of Young Woman.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 15.—E. O. Shepherd, prominent Tulsa real estate broker, was held in the Tulsa county jail today after being charged with first degree murder late yesterday in the death of Robert Hatcher, 25. The two men were rivals for the affections of the pretty 22-year old Alice Andrews.

Hatcher was found shot to death in an apartment which Shepherd had rented for Miss Andrews. Shepherd told police he entered the front door in time to see Hatcher shoot himself.

In a 5,000-word statement made by Miss Andrews, she said she and Hatcher were planning to be married. Shepherd, she said, was attempting to interfere with their plans.

Miss Andrews denied that Hatcher ever had been married.

She had been a secretary in Shepherd's office for the past three weeks.

Defeats Cheney By Score of 7-6

John Mouser and J. C. Day Start the Play. A Large Crowd Witnessed the Game and Everybody is Pleased.

Fort Worth lost a ball game because one of its players was suspended—Cheney lost a ball game because one of its players was not suspended! After catching a beautiful game for 14 innings, Gentry, Cheney catcher, overthrew a third base and let in the winning run, and New Hope won the opening game 7 to 6. It was one of the most interesting games ever witnessed in Eastland, and if other games are as well attended and prove of such intense interest, the baseball tournament sponsored by the local chamber of commerce will have been a big success.

The tournament was officially started at 10 o'clock when J. M. Nunn, chairman of the local athletic committee, introduced Jno. M. Mouser and J. C. Day, president and vice-president, respectively, of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce. Mouser threw the first ball of the tournament to J. C. Day and the umpire ruled it a strike. After considerable protest by Mouser, the game opened with G. Hallmark on the mound for New Hope and Fox for Cheney. Neither team scored in the first inning, but Cheney scored two in the second on a single by Duvall followed by the first home-run of the tournament by Kitchens, Cheney second baseman. Kitchens won the prize offered by the Texas Drug Store for the first home run of the tournament. New Hope retaliated with five runs in the third, and Cheney tied the score in the seventh. Each team scored in the eighth inning and the game was not decided until the last half of the 14th inning.

The second game will be played this afternoon at 4 p. m. between Flatwood and Pleasant Grove. This promises to be a very interesting game and you are invited to be our guest witness. A large crowd of town people, as well as good delegations from the rural communities witnessed the morning game.

Verdict In The Stallworth Case Expected Today

CANYON, Aug. 15.—With practically no show of emotion, Mrs. Levi P. Stallworth faced another day in court as closing arguments were resumed in her trial for murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Mrs. Grace Morrison of Plainview.

After a dramatic recital from the witness stand of her own story of the events which led to the shooting, Mrs. Stallworth dropped back into the same impassive demeanor which has marked her attitude through nearly every step of the trial.

She blamed the shooting on Mrs. Morrison's attempt to steal the affections of her husband and did not seem deeply impressed when District Attorney Thomerson in his opening arguments for the prosecution failed to ask that the death penalty be imposed. Thomerson was followed by Judge J. W. Cullwell for the defense.

Addition arguments were to be heard today and the case probably will reach the jury this afternoon.

Hoping to See Her Kidnapped Baby, Mother Is Lured to Her Death In Speeding Automobile

WEST CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Lured by the hope of seeing her 2-year old kidnaped daughter, Mrs. Flora Fener was stabbed to death in a speeding, careening automobile which crashed into a telegraph pole. As she died by the side of the road she accused her husband of killing her.

Police in four cities hunted the husband, Clarence Fener, today to confront him with the dying accusation and a multitude of other evidence.

The child, Dorothy, was found alive and well early today in a Chicago apartment, police there notified Du Page county authorities.

The body of Fener was found today within 200 yards of the spot where he was believed to have killed his wife. Fener had cut his throat apparently with the same knife which caused Mrs. Fener's death.

Former Inmate of Insane Asylum Among Those Held By the Police

Grant Blake, 45, Is Unable to Give Satisfactory Explanation of His Whereabouts. Had Blood on His Shoes. Admitted He Spent Tuesday Night in Hotel Near Aune Home.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 14.—Grant Blake, about 45, a former inmate of the St. Peter Insane Asylum, who claimed Fairbault, Minn., as his home, today was arrested for questioning in connection with the brutal mistreatment and murder of 12-year old Dorothy Aune.

Police said there were bloodstains on Blake's shoes.

Four men, including an escaped inmate from the insane asylum, were held here today for questioning in connection with the brutal murder of Dorothy Aune, 12-year old Minneapolis school girl.

The suspects were to be viewed late today by Mrs. David Gill and her brother, Herman Fink, visitors, who informed police on Tuesday night they saw a terrified young girl attempting to escape from an automobile near the place where Dorothy's mutilated body was found the following day.

Meanwhile 500 police continued the roundup of suspicious characters and rewards for the capture of the slayer were increased to $4,275 when the three Minneapolis newspapers offered sums of $1,000 each.

He was arrested after employees of a lumber yard out in the region of the Aune home reported that he was annoying women.

Blake was unable to give a clear account of his actions on Tuesday night when Dorothy disappeared from near her home or on Wednesday morning, when the mutilated body was found tightly bound in gunnysacks near the railway tracks on Hiawatha avenue.

The middle aged former asylum inmate said he stayed in the home hotel, not far from the Aune residence, on Tuesday night, but police found Blake was not registered.

Later he declared, police said, that the blood stains on his shoes were caused by blisters.

The man had no underwear and wore a pair of new trousers which he said also had been bought at a pawnshop Tuesday. He could not remember when he was released from the asylum.

Young Women Say Were Forced to Appear Disrobed

Charges of Medical Quackery Also Made Against Noted Divine.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Charges of medical quackery and alleged physical examination of disrobed young women, involving the Rev. James Empringham, National Church, have been forwarded to ecclesiastical officials of the church by health commissioner Shirley Wynne.

The charges were based on the official files of the department of health and contain assertions by young women patients, that they were forced to appear before Empringham, lightly clad and submit to physical examinations in the mistaken belief that the divine was a medical doctor.

The church temperance society is composed of clerical and lay members of the Protestant Episcopal church and the now defunct Health Educational Society, Inc., of which Dr. Empringham was national superintendent.

It Was the Bath That Did the Job

DALLAS, Aug. 15.—While a group of Woman's Christian Temperance Union workers sang "Washed in the Blood of the Lamb," four little boys in the juvenile ward of the city jail were baptized in a bathtub today.

The youngsters, ranging in age from seven to fourteen, took the matter very seriously as far as could be detected and promised to be good "from now on." Two of the boys had been confined in dark cells last week because of repeated attempts to break jail.

"You look so much better than when I saw you tiring up your mattress in the dark cell last week," one of the workers said to the boys.

"It's the light of the Lord shining in their faces," commented another.

"Nah, it was the bath that did it," chirped one of the juveniles.

Heeny-Campola To Fight Tonight

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Weather permitting, Tom Heeny of New Zealand will meet Victorio Campolo, the six foot six inch Argentinian heavyweight, in a 10-round bout at Ebbets field tonight. The bout was postponed from last night because of rain.

Campolo, holding a big advantage in height, weight and reach over the plodding New Zealander, ruled a 7 to 5 favorite in the betting.

When they weighed in yesterday Campolo scaled 223, Heeny 204 1-2.

E. G. Senter Opens His Campaign For The Governorship

ALVARADO, Tex., Aug. 15.—Declaring that Texas is the "worst governed state in the union and that there must be a complete reorganization of government in order to make any substantial reduction in taxation," E. G. Senter of Dallas, formally launched his campaign for governor here yesterday at the old settlers' reunion.

In order to get the best results, it will be necessary to hold a constitutional convention and to provide for a reorganization of the government from top to bottom along business lines," he said.

Senter opened his campaign near Stubblefield mill where in 1875 he settled when, with his widowed mother and two elder brothers, he came to Johnson county from Kentucky.

SNOOK GETS DEATH FOR HIX MURDER

Jury Out Only 28 Minutes Before Returning Verdict - Defense Will Appeal.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 15.—Although the electric chair casts its shadow over Dr. James Howard Snook today, the convicted murderer of Theora Hix, will fight for his hold on life.

The fight will begin at 9 a. m. Monday, when the former university professor's attorneys argue a motion for new trial. They will charge, among other things, that two of the jurors who convicted Snook had "determined upon conviction before they retired from the jury box."

Affidavits will be filed against the two jurors. E. O. Bicketts, chief of Snook's counsel, said today. He refused to reveal their names, but said he would claim they "were actuated by undue influence."

Dr. Snook, meantime, rested in his cell at the county jail. The steel nerve which carried him through the first phases of his trial and but seldom cracked, supported him today and he seemed composed. He spent a restless night, he told his jailer, and awakened this morning with a severe headache.

"Wasn't that trial an awful strain on you, Doctor?" the jailer asked.

"No, it wasn't any strain at all," he said. "I never had any real interest in what was going on."

The jury didn't even need to retire so far as I was concerned. With all that stuff (meaning evidence of the most sordid type) before them I'm surprised they even retired."

MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 15.—On the appeals court and 100 days of grace, the time required by law before a doomed man can be executed, stood today between Dr. James Howard Snook, murderer of Theora Hix, his college girl inmate, and death.

Dr. Snook, former Ohio State university professor, bald, bespectacled, middle-aged, unobtrusive, was convicted late yesterday of killing the 24-year-old medical student with whom he philandered for three years, and was condemned to die in the electric chair.

"We will fight the verdict through the United States supreme court if necessary," E. O. Bicketts, chief of Snook's counsel, told the United Press. "The verdict was unfair. It was born of prejudice and influenced by public opinion and we will easily obtain a reversal."

"All I can say," said Prosecutor John Chester who obtained the conviction, "is that the jurors did their duty. The verdict speaks for itself. It could have been no other else."

Dr. Snook, back in the county jail cell he has occupied since the 15, two days after Miss Hix's hammer-beaten and knife-clashed body was found on the New York Central rifle range where she had her last tryst with Dr. Snook, seemed unperturbed.

"Keep a stiff upper lip, Doc," said Sheriff Harry T. Paul as he looked Snook in his cell again.

"You don't need to worry about me," Snook replied. Then they shook hands. Snook refused to receive newspapermen.

Endurance Fliers Aloft After 21 Hours

By United Press.
LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 15.—Jack Reed and Emory Bronte, attempting to break the world's non-refueling endurance flight record had been in the air 21 hours at 3 a. m. Pacific coast time, today, and reported all was going smoothly.

Reed, who is chief pilot for the Emsco Aircraft corporation, and Bronte, who flew to Hawaii with Ernie Smith, took off at 6:04 a. m. yesterday in a single motorized plane carrying 830 gallons of gasoline. The present record of 65 hours, 25 minutes is held by two German aviators.

MARSHALL, Tex., Aug. 15.—Injuries received when struck by an automobile late yesterday proved fatal to W. E. Lancaster, 73.

OUT OUR WAY

MOMENTS WED LIKE TO LIVE OVER REVEILLE.

"I guess it isn't my turn to talk," he told one reporter. "No, I have nothing to say."

Back in his cell, the former professor retained his calm. It was supper time and after dining heartily on a pot of pork and beans he lay down on his steel bunk and read a periodical.

Dr. Snook's wife, near collapse, was in seclusion today at the modest Snook home on West Tenth Avenue. She sobbed hysterically when the verdict was read. She was not in court but with Snook's mother in an anteroom.

The elder Mrs. Snook, the braver of the two, wept but grew calmer when Dr. Snook, under a double guard stepped into the room. She kissed him, murmured words of encouragement and saw him led away. Both women later visited him for a short time.

The double guard had been posted earlier in the day when Dr. Snook became increasingly nervous.

The final phases of the trial were highly dramatic. Just before Chester began his closing plea to the jury, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin T. Hix, parents of Theora, walked into the court room and took seats in the first row of the spectator's gallery. A few moments later Snook's wife, literally propelled through the crowd-jammed room, went to the counsel table and sat beside her husband. Both wept and Snook grasped her hand and clung to it. Hardly had Mrs. Snook been seated than the doctor's 73-year-old mother, tall, sharp featured, dignified, entered. She, too was weeping.

The verdict—one of the quickest ever returned in Ohio criminal annals—marked the conclusion of a sordid tale of illicit love of a university professor who, though married, sought and found companionship of the most intimate sort; who, finally, finding himself "dominated," killed.

Most of the testimony was unprintable.

Four Shots Fired Into Woman's Body

AMARILLO, Aug. 15.—Police closed their investigation today of the double shooting of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Parkie in a hotel here after finding what appeared to be conclusive evidence of murder and suicide.

A note found among Parkie's possessions, addressed to his mother at Mangum, Okla., stated "there is nothing to live for but grief. Am going to end it all."

Miss Ludie Rayner, roommate of Mrs. Parkie, gave officers an eyewitness account of the shooting. She said Parkie had tried to persuade his wife to return to him Wednesday night and failing in this, returned to the room while Mrs. Parkie was asleep and fired four shots into her body. Parkie then turned the gun on himself, dying in a hospital several hours later.

Wall Street

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The heralded secondary reaction failed to materialize in the stock market today, but the list changed leaders and prices of the principal shares moved in a narrower range as if the gains of the last few days had brought a slight ailment which may require time to heal.

American Can supplanted U. S. Steel as the leader of the industrial group. It rose to a new high and was followed on a smaller scale by Continental Can. Railroad shares spruced up one to 7 points on report of record car loadings for this time of year; copper sagged slightly; oils perked up and so did motor shares.

Losses were sprinkled about in all groups but only rarely were they of any consequence. The declines resulted from a moderate volume of profit-taking by the more cautious traders who disliked the possibility of another increase in brokerage loans in the report to be made known after the close.

United States Steel lost ground and so did other steel shares.

In the afternoon Chrysler resumed its place as an active favorite. General Motors approached and Packard spirited several points and firmer prices were noted in Hudson, Hupp and Pierce-Arrow. Successful launching of new models is beginning to attract buyers for the shares.

EXPERT HERE

C. F. Redlich, Minneapolis, Minn., nationally famous Rupture Appliance Expert, will demonstrate without charge his unequalled method at the Daniels Hotel, Cisco, on Thursday, Aug. 29, and in Ranger on Friday, Aug. 30, at the Gholson hotel from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Mr. Redlich says: "The 'Perfect Retention Shields' hold the rupture perfectly, no matter what position the body assumes or how heavy a weight you lift. They give instant relief and contract the opening in a remarkably short time.

The secret of their success is in their simplicity. An expertly adjusted device seals the opening without discomfort or detention from work. It is practically everlasting, sanitary, comfortable and actually holds ruptures which heretofore were considered uncontrollable.

"IF YOU WANT TO HAVE IT DONE RIGHT—SEE REDLICH."

Doctor J. W. Seaver, for many years in charge of the Physical Education of the students of Yale College, has recorded 75 per cent cures with this system.

Mr. Redlich is internationally known and speaks English, German and Spanish.

Zeppelin Starts Trip Around World Carrying 20 Passengers

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—The Graf Zeppelin, bound from Friedrichshafen to Tokio, crossed the border between Lithuania and Latvia at 7:30 p. m. (12:30 p. m. EST).

By MAURITZ A. HALLGREN, United Press Staff Correspondent.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 15.—Germany's mighty aerial pathfinder, the dirigible Graf Zeppelin, took off with the first rays of the rising sun today for the second and most hazardous trip of her globe-gridding journey, a 6,800 mile flight to Tokio across the wastelands of northern Siberia.

The great dirigible, four times conqueror of the Atlantic, took off from the airport here at 4:35 a. m. today (10:35 p. m. EST, Wednesday) for the longest flight ever attempted even by a dirigible. She carried a crew of 40 men and 20 passengers. Officials of the Zeppelin line hoped she would reach her destination within five days.

The Graf was so heavily laden she had considerable difficulty in rising. The crew had to drop a record amount of her water ballast before the ship could be maneuvered into the air. Even then the Graf flew so low at the start she almost touched the top of the administration building on the field.

Finally, she gained sufficient altitude for proper management and in a few minutes veered in a northerly direction. After circling the city she disappeared toward Berlin.

The passengers were called at their hotel two hours after midnight and at 2:55 a. m. were at the hangar. At five minutes past four, they were all on board.

Mystery surrounded the refusal of Zeppelin officials to permit Nelson Morris, of the Chicago packing family, to make the trip to Tokio, in spite of the fact that he had a ticket for the whole journey around the world and that he had come on the Graf from Lakehurst.

A strict watch was kept over the Graf or hours prior to its departure. Fifty motor cars filled with friends of the passengers and the members of the crew were stopped at the gates of the field and their credentials examined. At the field large numbers of police kept the crowd back. In spite of this precaution a crowd of 150 broke through the cordon when the Graf was brought out of the hangar. Police prevented a further approach.

The commander hoped to make the trip in about 200 hours.

The passenger list included one woman, Lady Drummond Hay. The names of the 19 male passengers follow:

WHERE THEY PLAY TODAY

Texas League Fort Worth at Wichita Falls. Dallas at Shreveport. Houston at San Antonio. Waco at Beaumont.

National League Pittsburgh at Boston. Chicago at Brooklyn. St. Louis at New York. Cincinnati at Philadelphia.

American League Washington at Chicago. Philadelphia at Cleveland. New York at Detroit. Boston at St. Louis.

TEXAS LEAGUE Good work at the bat accompanying the excellent pitching of Vic Frasier yesterday enabled the visiting Dallas Steers to win their game from Shreveport, 5 to 0. It was a series opener.

The Spudders defeated the Fort Worth Cats at Wichita Falls when they scored six runs in the sixth inning, four of which came in when Turgeon knocked a homer with the bases full. The score, 7 to 2.

The Beaumont Exporters took their second consecutive game from their visitors, the Waco Cubs. Waco's downfall was brought about by a too great abundance of errors that allowed the home team to pile up a 5 to 4 victory. Kelly and Pratt hit homers.

The San Antonio Indians bit the dust again yesterday when they went down, 7 to 0 and 7 to 5, in their double header with the Houston Buffs. It was the Indians' eighth straight defeat.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD Yesterday's hero: Robert Mose Grove, lanky southpaw, and Jimmy Fox, cherubic first baseman, who played the leading roles in the Philadelphia Athletics' 17-inning victory over Cleveland, 5 to 3. Grove pitched the entire game, allowing 20 hits, but keeping them scattered and pulling himself out of frequent holes until Fox hit his 28th home run of the season in the seventeenth. Fox's homer broke a 3-3 tie and won the game, but the A's added another run for good measure. It was Grove's 18th victory of the season.

Combined with the Yankees' defeat at the hands of the Tigers, the Athletics' victory widened their lead to 13 1-2 games—their longest of the season.

Scoring fourteen of their seven.

Milt Gaston outpitched Sam Gray and the Boston Red Sox beat the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 1. Phil Todd had a perfect day with three hits in three trips.

The Pittsburgh Pirates gained a half game on the idle Chicago Cubs when they beat the Boston Braves, 1 to 0 on three hits. Adams' sacrifice fly scored Paul Warner with the winning run. The Cubs, rained out at Ebbets field, now lead the National League by 8 games.

Don Hurst's 25th home run of the season with a man on base enabled the Phillies to beat the Cincinnati Reds, 2 to 1, in a game halted at the end of the seventh by rain.

CATCHES FISH AND BIRD
By Union Team

GARDEN—Earl Ansell did not kill two birds with one stone but he has a recent accomplishment that rivals it. While fishing he landed a nine-inch trout which had a bird in its mouth, the wing of which was protruding. The fish's appetite was sufficient to cause it to grab the worm before it had disposed of the bird, a small one which had not yet fully feathered out.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
MOLLY BURNHAM, who has returned from Italy to care for little RITA NEWTON, the child of her dead roommate, receives a call from a young woman named ELSIE SMITH, who seems to be something of a blackmailer.

Elsie is determined to marry BOB NEWTON, Rita's father, although he has been widowed less than a month. She asks Molly to use her influence with Bob, and does a little threatening. Molly, disgusted, protests that the affair is none of her business.

Meantime, her second play—"Sacrifice"—opens in New York. And, in the front row, sits Jack Wells, Molly's sweetheart, with a middle-aged woman!

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXI

Of course it spoiled the evening for her—Jack's being with a woman. And sitting, as they were, in the front row, where Molly could hardly keep her eyes off them all evening. SUCH a woman, too!

"If she were young and pretty, I wouldn't mind half so much," fumed Molly.

But that, of course, was wrong. She would have minded a great deal more.

"The wretched creature!" she fretted. "Done up like a circus rider, and fat enough to burst! A woman like that WOULD wear red—it's exactly the color of her face."

There was no doubt about it. It was Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton all right. "A charming matron," the papers called her! Well, Molly knew what SHED would print it. The big fat ox! Hadn't she sense enough to think that coquetry in a woman of her age was simply disgusting?

The way she was hanging on to Jack's arm! And Jack red as a beet. Molly was glad he had the decency to be embarrassed.

At last it was over. The curtain came down on the last act. And the lights went up over the theater. Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton was clapping her puffy hands. And her diamonds were gleaming like mad.

"Author! Author!" cried the audience.

And, once again, Molly found herself on the stage, breathless and bowing.

She was wearing yellow tonight! Yellow taffeta, with an enormous bow in back, like the bustles of long ago. Over her shoulders she wore a spangled scarf of chiffon the color of water-lily leaves.

Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton, against her crimson front, clasped a sorage of white orchids. With a quick movement, she snatched them from her gown, and threw them at Molly's feet.

Molly had meant to ignore Jack. But now she stooped for the orchids, and accepted them with a smiling nod.

Jack's face was as scarlet as his lady's gown. Molly was glad if he were embarrassed. She wished he would burst a blood vessel. It would serve him right!

Afterward she had supper at the Exclusive Club with Mr. and Mrs. Durbin. And there they saw the morning papers.

On the front pages were the threats of the censors! They meant to close the show. To padlock the theater. To arrest the author and the producer and all the actors.

Molly's coffee cup clattered from her hand, and, breaking on the table, spilled its amber contents over the skirt of her lovely yellow frock.

But Mr. Durbin struck his knee with his hand, with a mighty slap. "Great!" he applauded.

"Great!" echoed Molly faintly.

She felt as she did that day in Pension White, when she opened the cable that told of Rita's death. Quite as if, she were going to faint, and slide right under the table.

A waiter was trying to mop her lap. A buss boy came running with more serviettes. But she waved them away.

"Please. It doesn't matter."

She reached, instead, for a glass of water. It would be too awful to make a scene.

"Wonderful!" Mr. Durbin was saying. "The best break I've had in a long time."

"I think it's dreadful," quavered Molly. "Perfectly dreadful!"

"But think of the advertising!"

"Close us?" he cried. "They can't close us. Maybe they can bring us to court, and maybe they can't. I doubt if they can. But anyhow we win. They can't put a legitimate endeavor out of business. There isn't a fair-minded judge in the state could find us guilty of presenting an obscene spectacle. We'll get a clean bill of health all right. Nobody but a bunch of fanatics could object to a play like 'Sacrifice.' But, meantime, while the thing is dragging—while they're trying to padlock us—think of the publicity we'll have!"

"I think it's awful," said Molly. "Imagine being accused of writing an obscene play!"

Then she thought of her mother. "Oh dear—or dear!" she wopt.

Mr. Durbin patted her shoulder. And Mrs. Durbin patted her hand. And they laughed at her sensibilities, and all her fears.

"But you don't know my mother," she cried. "This will just simply kill her."

Oh, no, it won't," contradicted Mrs. Durbin gaily. "It will pay off the mortgage on the old farm. It will buy mother a fur coat, and an electric refrigerator and a gas furnace."

"I told you you didn't know her," moaned Molly. "She wouldn't touch a blessed cent of my 'Delphine' money. Do you think she'd soil her fingers with 'Sacrifice's' filthy lucre?"

But Mr. Durbin was not particularly interested in the moral scruples of Mrs. Burnham.

"Read what the critics have to say," he advised. "I'll make you feel better."

He folded a paper at the dramatic page.

"There! Read that," he directed.

"Miss Molly Burnham, charming and youthful playwright, has scored another unprecedented success with 'Sacrifice,' an emotional drama in four acts.

"With rare understanding and delicacy Miss Burnham has drawn the love life of an emotional, highly-strung girl. In the throes of a tumultuous romance, the girl turns from her parents. But the lover, for whom she would sacrifice..."

Molly threw the paper down. "The kick's all gone," she said. "It leaves me cold."

"You're all tired out," consoled Mrs. Durbin. "You're still a new hand at the game. You've got to be hard-boiled—haven't you, George?"

"You bet!" he agreed. "That's the trouble with you, Molly. You think you're hard-boiled. But you're not, really. What do you care about a few adjectives?"

"But I do," she moaned. "I care terribly."

"You're just afraid of your mother," he joked.

"No," she said. "It's not that. Maybe I'm foolish. But I DO care what people say. I can't help it. I suppose it's weakness. After 'Delphine,' when they all said such lovely things, I was thrilled to death. Then Mother started finding fault. And it spoiled the fine edge. The beautiful glamour was gone. It wasn't because she was my mother. It was because she represented a certain provincial group who were going to think 'Delphine' was coarse and crude, and not fit for nice people. That hurt me. Because I don't want to write things that ANYONE will think are vulgar."

"I'd lots rather that people would think I was just a nice, every-day sort of person, with a nice, ordinary every-day mind. I don't want to be intellectual, or hard-boiled, or anything of the sort."

The Durbins laughed, humoring their guest.

"You sound as though you were giving an interview for a religious weekly," declared Mr. Durbin.

"You can laugh all you want!" she flared. "But it's true—I'm nothing but a country girl. I'm Snodgrass, born and bred. My mother's a pillar of small town society. My father's the salt of the earth. And no daughter of theirs could ever glory in a lot of cheap publicity. It simply goes against the grain. I'm provincial. And proud of it!"

"Lucky," she thought, "with the censors calling me names—and Jack down front with a woman!"

She smiled politely, and admitted that maybe he was right. Only she couldn't see it, not for a minute.

"Then we'll have an invitation performance for clergymen. You can give them a little spiel from the stage, Molly."

"Count me out," instructed Molly. "I've had all I can stand now."

"Well, leave it to me," compromised Durbin. "I've a clever little press agent, and I'll let her manage it all."

"Maybe the papers will start an opinion pro and con. Solicit the argument of clubwomen. Educators. Reformers. It doesn't make any difference whether they pan us or not. We get the advertising anyhow, and it's publicity that money can't buy."

The little producer smiled happily.

"You're a lucky girl, Molly," he pronounced. "Only you don't know her. But, after all, you can't rob a dead woman. Besides, Rita wouldn't mind. She wanted—really wanted—her child to belong to Molly. It was a little word—and it was beginning to mean more to Molly than any sound in the world.

Her first night home she permitted Rita to stay up late. For a special treat, they had their evening meal together in the drawing room. Rita had cambric tea, and there was ice cream for dessert.

Later Bob dropped in. He greeted his daughter affectionately, and seemed surprised at finding Molly there.

"Hello, Mama," Rita would say. "Oh, hello, darling. How are you?"

"I'm all right. . . . Such a fluttery, sweet little voice, with inflections like the thrilling of a bird! The child of her own accord, called Molly "mama." At first Molly thought she ought now allow it. It seemed like robbing Rita of something that belonged to

"I suppose so," she conceded. "Well! That doesn't make sore, does it?"

It was on the tip of her tongue to retort that she would never be a plain penny, but she was tired and pointless. If they quarreled, Bob might take the child away. And that, she felt, would break her heart.

If a Husky had the Speed of a Greyhound

The modern, high-compression, high-speed motor demands an oil that will stand up under the excessive heat generated and will function as near perfectly as is humanly possible under the conditions prevalent in today's motors. The problem has been to secure in one oil the best qualities of the finest paraffine and naphthene crude oils. In our laboratories we have perfected a blend of lubricating oil made from two crude oils. It has advantages only to be found in a two-base oil. If you regard your motor with the affection you have for a favorite dog (as some of us do) you should at least try

New Calendar, Thirteen Equal Months, Favored

By HERBERT LITTLE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Recommendations favoring the proposed new calendar of 13 months of 28 days each were made to Secretary of State Stimson today by the national committee on calendar simplification. American participation in an international conference to provide such revision of the calendar was urged.

The report was transmitted to Stimson by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde on behalf of George Eastman, Rochester, N. Y., chairman of the committee.

"It seems the time is near at hand when the adoption of one simple universal calendar by all the nations of the earth will confer important benefits upon all humanity and our posterity," Secretary Hyde wrote. "I believe that the efforts of this department to perform its functions in the fields of science, agriculture and meteorology, would be materially promoted and facilitated under a better calendar than the one now in use."

The committee is an unofficial body with government representation from several departments. Charles F. Marvin, chief of the U. S. weather bureau is vice chairman.

The committee was formed when the league of nations two years ago asked this government to furnish useful information on the subject of calendar revision.

Eastman reported the committee after a year's investigation found "a large and representative body of American opinion" favored calendar improvements.

Suggestion was made that 1933, when Jan. 1 comes on Sunday, would be the most favorable time to put the proposed calendar into effect unless this step were delayed until 1939. The report did not recommend that the United States should enter any conference committed to any special plan, although reporting that the 13-month calendar was preponderantly favored in this country.

Out of 1433 organizations canvassed by the committee, 1154—more than 80 per cent—favored calendar simplification or participation by the United States in an international conference on the subject. On the question of particular plans of calendars, 98 per cent of the 488 answering favored the 13 equal months fixed calendar—which will include one blank

STAR BOARDERS, NOTICE-WINGLESS CHICKENS!

By NEA Service.
OMAHA, Neb.—Dr. T. T. Reinwald, an unemotional scientist, has done a great favor for the small boy who sits hungrily up to the dinner table on Sundays and has to watch the "company" get all the best portions of the roast chicken until nothing is left for him but a wing.

He has bred chickens which have no wings at all!

Small boys and star boarders, accordingly, may be expected to fare somewhat better after this—provided poultry breeders generally take to Dr. Reinwald's discovery.

Dr. Reinwald has a whole brood of chicks here that lack wings and in some cases, lack claws, as well. These chickens, he said, will lay more eggs than the ordinary hen, which has an idle period of about 15 weeks every year when she devotes all of her energies to the moulting of her wing feathers. Having no wings, his chicks will not be bothered with moulting, and can give all of their attention to egg-laying.

He produced this new type by selective breeding and did not resort to surgery. Chickens, he says, are descended from fish, and his wingless type is a sort of throw-back to an earlier type.

Of the four wingless hens which Dr. Reinwald has allowed to lay eggs the year around, one produced 287, another 296, a third 315 and the fourth 304. Production of the ordinary hen averages only 76 a year. The wingless hens, he says, are much tamer than the ordinary kind, do not run away when people get close to them and never fight with each other.

Eventually, he believes, nature will do exactly what he is doing. Chickens a 100 years ago, he says, had a much longer and stronger wing and toe than ordinary present-day chickens. Natural evolution processes, however, he believes, would take 300 or more years to accomplish what he is doing.

Incidentally, he points out that a two-foot fence is plenty high enough to keep a flock of wingless chickens at home. He believes that within five years his wingless variety will be as common as the ordinary variety—and, he says, because of their great egg production, the price of eggs will fall to around 10 cents a dozen.

day a year, and two blank days every fourth year replacing leap year's February 29.

The report said similar national committees to sound out public opinion are being formed in Germany, France, Holland, Hungary, Peru, Ecuador, Costa Rica, Panama and Salvador.

Arguments advanced in behalf of the plan include these points: All months would have the same number of work days, the same number of weeks; fractions of week at month ends would be eliminated; week days and month dates would always be the same; split-week payrolls would be avoided; with 13 monthly settlements a year money turn overs would be faster and the same business could be handled with less money; holidays would always occur on the same week day Monday is recommended.

Objections proposed: quarters of the 13 month year would contain fractions of months; there would be 13 business closing instead of 12 requiring more bookkeeping; more adjustments in comparing statistics would be required with an added month; the thirteenth of the month always would be Friday and superstitious regard for this would be difficult to overcome; complications and expense would be involved in the change.

The "blank day" principle has aroused opposition of religious leaders of Jews, seventh day Baptists and Seventh Day Adventists to the simplified calendar, but the religious question can be settled only at an international conference, the report said, adding that authorities of other religions have not raised objections.

New Element Is Injected Into Strike Trouble

New Orleans Street Car Strike now is the time for Street Car Tracks Dynamited—Windows of Cars Shattered, Etc.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 14.—Dynamiting of street car tracks here today injected a new element of disorders into strike-torn New Orleans, and brought vigorous orders from police superintendent Theodore E. Ray to quell all further disturbances.

Windows of two street cars were shattered by explosions of bombs placed on the tracks of Napoleon Avenue and Laurel streets. While city and federal authorities rushed investigation, reports were received of gun fire upon a bus. No one was injured.

The fresh disorders climaxed a hectic 24-hours during which a mob stormed city hall in protest against refusal of the city commission council to remove restrictions from operations of jitney cars. Five persons were shot or clubbed in the subsequent rioting.

Meanwhile, federal, state and city authorities moved rapidly to alleviate a situation described in New Orleans front page newspaper editorials as "a grave crisis."

Four major steps to restore order had been agreed upon before the dynamiting altered the situation.
