Price Gouging Gets Attention

Complaints of profiteering and other causes under NRA codes have been received at the downtown headquarters and sent to Georgetown for further action. Mrs. Johnson and Emily Newell Brist, a member of the consumers' board, are devising a plan to deal with them. To make such procedure effective, adequate statistical records are necessary and the emphasis in this work is now being placed on organization of proper statistical agencies.

Ask Us Another..

*Here are some of the questions people ask us about the President's Reemployment Agreement
sometimes called the "blanket code"*

Q. Who started all this?

A. President Roosevelt. It's one more step in his big plan that has already put more than a million men back to work.

Q. What's the big idea anyhow?

A. To end unemployment. To wipe out child labor (something the country's been trying to do for generations). And to restore the purchasing power of the richest country in the world.

Q. How's he going to do it?

A. Every employer is asked to split up existing work so that everybody will have a job, and to raise the hourly wage rate, where necessary, so that everybody will have a living wage.

Q. And that's what they mean by the blanket code?

A. Yes—it's called the "President's Reemployment Agreement."

Q. Does anybody HAVE to sign?

A. No. It's a gentlemen's agreement between President Roosevelt and every man, woman and child in the country. He is asking you to lend a hand.

Q. Why should the employer sign?

A. Because when everybody goes back to work, everybody will spend more money. And that will speed up business for every employer.

Q. What does the employee do?

A. You work less hours. You share your job with someone else. But you get a guaranteed minimum wage.

Q. How can the housewife help?

A. By signing a pledge to patronize the stores and industries that display the President's seal—they are SHARING to bring back prosperity.

Q. And one more question—what's all this talk about an industrial code?

A. The industrial code will be the rules and regulations adopted by each industry for its guidance. But the country can't wait for all these individual codes to be ironed out. We need the blanket code to put men to work, and raise wages, right now!

CHAPTER 43
BONNIE and Foster were married within another week. Foster came to talk one evening with Mrs. Vaughn about it, they were married the next day in New York and left for the south at once.

Mrs. Vaughn had opposed the marriage, of course. In her opinion, no girl of twenty-one should marry a man old enough to be her father, and more. But Foster made a good impression with her, Bonnie was determined, and there was nothing to do but give them her consent and blessing.

The girl, she believed, should be grieved and unhappy in the beginning of her married life just because her mother wasn't entirely satisfied with her choice. She had lived her own life, Bonnie and Mary could live theirs. There was some satisfaction in knowing that Bonnie would be taken care of. She needed a man who would provide well for her.

Foster's limousine brought Mom and Mary to the city for the ceremony, and drove them home again. Their eyes were misty with the sweet vision of chiffons and sables and flowers that was their Bonnie—now Mrs. Ronald K. Foster, standing on the observation platform of a limited for Florida ready to leave Pennsylvania Station. Foster, beaming and happy, tucked his wife's little gloved hand under his arm and waved his hat with a final farewell as the long Pullman train with its electric locomotive glided away into the tunnel under the Hudson river.

Feeling strangely alone even in the hurrying throngs about them, Mary and Mom walked up the carpeted incline to the gates, through the vast, columned terminal and up the steps to Vanderbilt Avenue, where Foster's car awaited them. "Well, I suppose it could be worse, all right. It's just so sudden that we haven't got our balance yet—that's all. Doesn't it seem funny to think that our little Bonnie is married and gone away? Here we are, and after our taking care of her all these years, she has done better for herself than we ever could do for her."

Mary devoted herself to Foster's affairs at the office, kept him informed daily of developments by wire. Missing over the events of the past week, she was glad to be reunited with her mother, who had gone south as Foster's wife, even with golden prospects of a secure future. In a way, her problem had solved itself. Bonnie was no longer her responsibility and she would be able to help Mom a little, perhaps. No reason why Bonnie shouldn't spare her mother a small generous one, too.

She smiled a little at the thought that now she would have to manage her sister's finances, pay her accounts, write her checks, even arrange her social appointments to some extent, in so far as they concerned Foster.

Mary was not oblivious of the fact that Bonnie's marriage freed Dick Baldwin. She could not have been human to ignore that fact. But she thrust the remainder from her, resolutely. If he hadn't loved her before, he couldn't love her now. That was that.

She wouldn't let herself be tortured by hopes and speculations. But her heart ached for Dick and his sudden desertion by Bonnie. Didn't she know what it meant to have someone you loved, suddenly desert you for another?

In the events that had followed in such rapid succession, Mary had not been able to spare any time to Frazier. Her excuses had been plausible enough, so he patiently bided his time. On the first day that Mary was alone in the office, he made his usual call.

"Well, well, so Foster married the little sister, eh? We should have made it a double one, Mary."

"That wouldn't be practical," Mary laughed. "I have to be here to steer the ship of state while the captain is away."

"Well, who wants to be practical, anyway? Mary, I'm taking you out to celebrate tonight. I won't be refused."

"All right," she agreed, but there was no eagerness in her manner. "I'll run down to Wilks' and change. I still have most of my things there. I haven't had time to move back home."

"Get them together and we can take them out tonight, dear. No trouble at all, you know. Where would you like to go tonight?"

"You plan, please. I shall like it whatever you decide."

"That's sweet of you." Willa Duchon was voluble with her remarks. She hadn't seen Mary for over a week. So much had happened, of which she had had only the briefest information from Mary by telephone.

"No, I think not. If he loved her, though—"

"Don't you worry about that, my dear. A pretty face and mild flirtation can convince most any man of something he doesn't believe at all. He will recover and not even have a scar. I'll warrant."

"I hope so."

"I hope for other things, too, Mary, but don't be too good to him, But, when he returns."

Mary started, and flushed. "Oh, he won't come back to me. He couldn't have loved me—and wanted Bonnie at the same time."

"Uhm! Well, time will tell. So you're leaving us again? Awfully sorry, Mary. We've enjoyed having you around, and we hope you will drop in often to see us. I know how your mother needs you, though. Why not come over for Sunday evening and stay the night? I'll get Dick to come, too."

"Oh, I couldn't think of that," Mary's voice was frightened.

"Very well. We might give him a little more time to dispose of memories and disillusion. He might not be so pleasant to have around, yet, under the circumstances."

Mary had been changing into an evening dress and packing her trunk and suitcase while Willa assisted with putting her dresses on hangers and trunks in her shoes. Mary's dress of soft tan crepe with a simple, elegant design that best became her quiet loveliness. With a final inspection of herself in the mirror, the realization came to her that the past year and its many conflicting experiences had added character to her face and endowed her with a new beauty that she had not noticed before.

The fact was that Mary was not beautiful in the sense of classic features and measured lines. But she had charm and sweetness and character, which are just as attractive, and often more gratifying. It was evident that Martin Frazier found it so, watching her fondly that evening. Mary discovered that her pleasure in being with him had diminished since their last meeting. She liked him better than she had first thought she would, but was not particularly happy in his company. She experienced no response to his delight in her presence, no enthusiasm for his plans, no interest in his comfort and luxury for herself and those she loved—for the taking. If only she could accept Bonnie's philosophy—hers was wealth, power, comfort and luxury for herself and those she loved—for the taking. She had only to reach out her hand and say, "Martin, I'm yours." But it was not so simple as it seemed. For Mary had a heart that was attuned to more sensitive vibrations and a soul that was her own.

Press Code Is Adopted

Plan Acceptable As Substitute For General Blanket Code

WASHINGTON—A modification of the president's re-employment agreement covering hours of labor and wages in the newspaper industry was approved Tuesday night by Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator.

The code was submitted by the American Newspaper Publishers' association after a previous proposal had been turned down by the recovery administrator.

The plan will be acceptable as a substitute for the hours and pay provisions in the president's general blanket code and compliance with it will permit newspapers to obtain the Blue Eagle pending consideration of a permanent code.

Provisions

Provisions of the approved temporary agreement include: No persons under 16 shall be employed except to sell papers during now established hours where it does not interfere with school hours, but those from 14 to 16 may be employed up to three hours a day between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m.

A 40-hour week for accounting, clerical, office, service or sales employees (except outside salesmen, representatives, drivers, and circulation men), provided the exceptions other than outside salesmen shall not exceed 10 per cent of the total employment.

A 40-hour week, for factory or mechanical workers, or artisans, with a maximum week of 44 hours for any six weeks within any six months period provided no one works more than eight hours in a day.

Minimum Wages

Minimum wages for accounting, clerical, office, service or sales employees of $15 a week in cities of more than 500,000 population; $14.50 in cities between 250,000 and 500,000; $14 in cities between 2,000 and 250,000 and $12 in towns of less than 2,500; provided that all employees receive as much as heretofore; except that up to 5 per cent of the total employees may be classed as learners or apprentices and not less than 70 per cent of the scale.

Hours

Maximum hours not to apply to professional workers (including reporters receiving in excess of $35 a week) persons in managerial or personal capacity who receive more than $35 a week, employees on emergency, maintenance and repair work, employees in special cases where restriction of hours would reduce production and in special cases of emergency, provided that in such special cases at least time and one third shall be paid for hours excess of the maximum.

Hours and wages under contracts in effect on or before July 1, 1933, which cannot be revised except by mutual consent are exempted.

GERMAN DOCTORS DIVIDED

BERLIN (UP)—German doctors were divided by official decree into "German and alien" races, and were forbidden to exchange cases or to consult each other.

Richard Wright, who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. E. V. Spence, has returned to his home in Fort Worth.

Shirley McGlaun of Sweetwater is here as a relief employe at the express office.

typical, pointing out that only a blood test can conclusively determine whether one is immune. He also urged that the vaccine be vaccinated against smallpox if he plans visiting an area that may be infested. Sections of northern Mexico, where many people from this section go to fish are now infested, he said. It is a doctor's duty, he said, to stress importance of having children immunized against diphtheria. A capsule of quinine night and morning will guard one against malaria if he is to visit a section where malaria is prevalent. He warned of a serious poisoning that may be suffered from decomposed food and that such a condition in food may not be easily detected, especially if it is cold or heavily seasoned. Variations would do well when traveling to avoid milk and milk products, to cook at public eating places and to rely to a great extent upon cured meats, breadstuffs and eggs freshly cooked, he said. He also called attention to a germ which may infect food and from which the death rate is unusually high. It occurs more often on meats, spinach and olives and it has been found the effects of the germ may be minimized by boiling the food for 30 minutes. Even then sickness will be caused but it will not prove fatal, he said. A kit containing iodine and other things for treatment of minor injuries ought to be carried on vacation trips, said the speaker. In addition to the effects of the germ from cuts and abrasions dust of roadways usually carries the tetanus or lock jaw germ, he said. Guests of the day included Ned Ferguson, Clyde E. Thomas, Wendell Bedichek, Dr. P. W. Malone, and Mrs. Joseph Edwards and Miss Virginia Edwards, guests of the club.

Farley tried and tried to crash the sacred precincts of the Tennessee Valley setup but to no avail. It got at last to a point where, when he gave a good Democrat a letter of recommendation for a job here he concluded with a paragraph which ran about as follows: "I trust that my endorsement will not influence you against making this appointment."

Now the patronage chiefs are wondering whether they won't have to last laugh. Senators and Congressmen have met with similar rebuffs when trying to put constituents in jobs. When Congress meets next January there will be a question of appropriations.

Some of the boys on Capitol Hill say decide that turn-about is fair play in the gentle game of door-slaming.

Fixers—The Department of Justice finally has interested itself in the activities about Washington of a little group of Democrats who have a certain voice in Party councils. The gentlemen being investigated would call themselves attorneys. They might even answer if called byists.

Those who have been watching their work call them "fixers."

HOME TOWN

While an unemployed man is certainly a liability to the community insofar as trade and commerce and prosperity is concerned, the necessary inference that any apostolic church ever used it. So can we walk by faith and use mechanical instruments of music in the worship? Remember Paul says that we cannot please the Lord without faith, and also that whatsoever is not of faith is sin.

But one says: 'The Bible does not say thou shalt not use instruments of music in the worship.' If the people do not respect the direct commandments of the Lord, do you suppose that they would of the president's advisers have even a promise to quit rate reduction proceedings in return. Of course that's the essence of their shrewdness to come to bat for the Blue Eagle. They think they are entitled to a campaign for relief themselves. Why the governor of New York is actually trying to make them pay the costs of being investigated. It's a sad world.

Incidentally will you notice both the Baltimore and Hartford companies are on very good terms with their respective public service commissions. It is whispered that perhaps they asked the commissions to give them a convenient out on this code proposition and the commissions obliged.

The only trouble is the plan won't work. New Yorkers associated with NRA say that Washington means exactly what it says when it denies the privilege of state authorities to butt in on the eagle's flight. If anyone wants to fight him on constitutional grounds, let him. It doesn't promise to be a healthy pastime.

Utilities are not really bucking the code idea. All they want is a quid pro quo on rates. They look to have as much chance as Huey Long has to become president of the Chase bank.

When the Edison Institute was formed, two large groups were pointedly left out. Sort of a sheep and goat idea.

But recently the Institute sent private emissaries around to those two groups just to make sure they weren't going to sign the blanket code before the Institute had its own code ready. It was intimated that such action wouldn't be clubby. The two groups thought that was rather cool but in point of fact they haven't signed yet because they haven't figured out their own code problems.

Work—In New York's inside opinion General Johnson's industrial setup has more chance of pulling us out of the doldrums than the public works layout. Secretary Ickes wants four or five million men put to work within a year. Expert figures say the maximum possible is three million. A really sensible program will take time. Forty per cent of the whole expenditure will be for labor and sixty for materials. The flotation of bond issues to cover the required three billion will probably be in small issues at different times.

It is understood here that some

Meeting To Continue To Sunday Night

Music In Worship Discussed By M. J. Wise Tuesday Night

A very fine crowd heard Melvin J. Wise last night speak on 'Why We Do Not Use Instruments of Music in the Worship.' He is doing the preaching in the Church of Christ revival meeting now in progress on the corner of Fourth and Johnson streets. Seven responded to the invitation last night, five for baptism and two for restoration. The meeting will continue through next Sunday evening, August 20. Services begin promptly at 8:15 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend. Last night the speaker said in part:

"It has long been a mysterious puzzle in the minds of many people just why we as a religious body, exclude instruments of music from our worship. Some of my best friends fail to understand me on this question. They look upon me as being very peculiar, yet that is a compliment. For God's people are a peculiar people. I Pet. 2:9. PILES Suffer no more! Here's real relief at last for all forms of Piles—Bleeding, Itching and Protruding. Pile Ointment does all the things necessary, in the manner necessary. First, it soothes—relieves the soreness and inflammation. Second, it dries—repairs the torn tissue. Third, it absorbs—dries up the excess mucus and reduces the swollen blood vessels which are Piles. In other words, Pile Ointment doesn't merely relieve—it tends to correct the condition of Piles as a whole. The method of application makes it doubly effective. Special Pile Pipe attached to tin enables you to apply ointment high up in the rectum where it will reach all affected parts. Thousands say Pile Ointment is the thing that ever gave them real relief. Thousands say it saved them from the need of an operation. Get Pile Ointment today and suffer no longer. Cunningham - Phillips All Three Stores

ADVERTISEMENTS Make The Pennies Bigger

WHEN James Buchanan was President and tall beaver hats were in vogue; when gentlemen wore broad cavats and ladies wore hoop skirts, the pennies they tossed to children were as big as quarters. But the cart-wheel coppers your grandfather got for keeping his lace collar clean were not as big in buying power as the pennies of today.

A penny then might buy a pastry, or ten of them take one to the Fair, but your great-aunt and great-uncle couldn't have gone to a movie at any price.

Sixty years ago the ladies could go shopping for dry goods and buy silks that would make you green with envy, linens that were linens and broadcloths that beggar description. But what their favorite store did not have they usually got along without.

You can pick up your daily newspaper and in fifteen minutes you can know what the different shops are offering in fabrics, patterns, varieties and qualities that great-grandmother never dreamed could be gathered together under any conditions.

Times have changed, and so have merchandise and business methods. One of the influences that has helped to bring about so much of change, that has helped to multiply opportunities and increase the spending size of our pennies is advertising.

Every merchant, every manufacturer knows that advertising materially reduces selling costs by increasing the demand for and distribution of the products of hundreds of thousands of mills. Indeed, many of the things we count today as necessities or simple luxuries could not be made and sold at their reasonable prices except as advertising has created a broad market for them, making millions of sales at little prices and little profits.

Under The Dome

At Austin

By GORDON K. SHEARER

AUSTIN (UP)—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson summoned the county officials to Austin by official proclamation, then failed to meet with them. Some had come long distances. Mayor Joseph McGill was here from El Paso.

They were assembled for a statewide conference on relief measures. The governor's absence caused alarm. Reports that she was ill were heard.

A call to the Mansion was answered by Mrs. Ferguson with the assurance that she was not ill. "When I have work to do, Jim attends these gatherings," Mrs. Ferguson explained.

At her office inquiries had met the answer that Governor Ferguson was out of town.

A new directory of state employees lists:

Fred Tennant Jr., pinch hitter, assistant general's department, 1003 W. 22nd Street.

Another departmental employee is listed as key punch operator. There also are code clerks, a Spanish translator, a liquor permit clerk and an "epidemiologist" on the state payroll, the directory reveals.

When William Strauss was called from Houston to take the non-paid job of managing the campaign for $200,000 relief bonds, he didn't talk politics with the Governor. Neither referred to his management of the campaign in which Ross S. Sterling defeated Mrs. Ferguson. Instead, Strauss and "Governor Jim" talked about cotton picking.

"I used to be a good cotton picker. Jim thinks he used to be pretty fast at it too," said Strauss. "If we can't work up interest in this bond campaign any other way, I'll challenge him to a cotton picking contest."

The State Board of Control got into a three-cornered deadlock when it attempted to name a superintendent for the State Confederate Home. All had agreed on tendering the place to R. E. Walthall, former board member. His sudden death called for a new choice. J. C. Clifton, veteran Texas and Oklahoma hotel man, declined the position.

When the board met again to make a choice, each of the three members favored a different man. A proposal to break the deadlock by placing the three names in a hat and picking one was declined. Board member John Wallace left on vacation with the deadlock still unbroken. Board member Adrian Pool may be called upon at any hour to take up federal duties as Customs Collector at El Paso. When he goes, his choice is definitely out. When Pool departs, a new board member will be appointed. No one knows whom he will favor.

President Is 'F. D.' To His Secretary

WASHINGTON (UP)—Some people call President Roosevelt "Mr. President." Some call him "Mr. Roosevelt." Some call him "Mr. Governor."

But Miss Margaret LeHand has a name for him all her own. She calls him "F. D."

"Good morning, F. D.," says Miss LeHand when the President arrives at the executive offices. "This is ready for you to sign, F. D.," she says when she prepares a document for him.

Is Close To Him All of that indicates that Miss LeHand is closer to him even than the members of his cabinet. The indication is correct. As personal secretary of Mr. Roosevelt, Miss LeHand knows more about the business of the United States than any one person, the President excepted.

She lives in the White House and is regarded by the numerous Roosevelt family as a real member of the family.

They take her on picnics and to parties. They confide in her and they call her "Missy."

Texas Strangely Uninterested In Repeal Election With Voting Day Near And Sen. Sheppard On Stump

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent AUSTIN (UP)—Even with U. S. Senator Morris Sheppard, co-author of the 18th Amendment, stumping his home state in an effort to make it the first to stop the national wave of repeal, strange apathy is being shown by Texas voters. Local options elections for single counties have caused more statewide interest in the past.

Texas will cast its vote Aug. 26. The decision will be in the selection of a "dry" or "wet" ticket of delegates for a state ratification convention to be held Nov. 24.

On the same day Texans vote also on modification of state constitutional prohibition. State prohibition was adopted in 1919 by a vote of 129,723 to 110,099. The proposed modification will permit sale of 32 per cent alcoholic beverages if modification carries, beer sales can start legally on Sept. 15. An act regulating the traffic and imposing taxes already has been passed to take effect if the vote is favorable. A vote on repeal of the state beer amendment. Now no declares it is not necessary. "Repeal already has carried," he said. Nevertheless wet headquarters are sending out warnings to their supporters not to be over confident.

Chairman Predicts Victory C. C. McDonald, active chairman of the wet campaign predicts when he wants to talk to his super secretary.

A Charming Woman "Missy" is a vivacious and charming woman. She is trim, well dressed and unsmiling. She has dark brown hair, tinged with gray, and blue eyes which sparkle when she talks about "F. D."

She was born in Somerville, Mass., worked in Washington as a governmental stenographer during the World War, later obtained a job in Democratic headquarters in Austin and finally was hired by President Roosevelt in 1929 when he was campaigning for the vice presidency.

With Him Long Time She worked with him during the busy years in Albany, where he was Governor of New York, accompanied him on his unprecedented airplane dash to the Democratic National Convention in Chicago and then as a matter of course became one of the most important members of his official family in Washington.

Miss LeHand is an expert at drafting innumerable letters which do not require the personal attention of the President. She knows him so well that she always knows exactly what to say and how to say it.

Whenever a group picture of the Roosevelt's is made, Miss LeHand is in it. She frequently lends the President her $150 fountain pen for the signing of bills. She considers it the most historic pen ever. She was about to hand it to him on one important occasion when the movie cameras began to grind. "Franklin," exclaimed Mrs. Roosevelt, "you fix your hair."

Washington And New York Take Games

Yankees Stage Big Inning Against St. Louis; Grove Wins

ST. LOUIS—The New York Yankees, opening their final week-end of the season 5-1-2 games behind the league-leading Washington Senators, put on one of their old fashioned 'big' Yankee innings to defeat the Browns 8-5 in the first game of their series. Washington also won and the Yanks place in the pennant struggle remained unchanged.

The Yanks cuffed young Jack Knott around to score five runs in the fourth inning. New York ... 100 501 001—8 10 2 St. Louis ... 000 002 300—5 12 2 Allen, Penneck and Dickey; Krueft, McDonald, Stiles and Shea.

CHICAGO—Washington's league-leading Senators opened their final invasion of the west with a 5-1 victory over the White Sox Tuesday as Alvin Crowder, their ace right-hander, kept nine Chicago hits well-spaced. It was Crowder's nineteenth victory of the season as against eight defeats.

Washington ... 000 003 020—5 9 0 Chicago ... 010 000 000—1 9 1 Crowder and Sewell; Jones, Heving and eBry.

CLEVELAND—Letty Grove out-pitched Wes Ferrell Tuesday and the Athletics made it two in a row over the Indians. The score was 8-7. Ferrell was hammered for two runs in the first inning when Roger Cramer drove a home run into the right field stands after McNair had started the game with a walk. Philadelphia ... 203 100 020—8 14 4 Cleveland ... 002 120 002—7 9 0 Grove and Cochran; Ferrell and Spencer.

DETROIT—In a game of heavy clotting that saw nine doubles and one home run, the Boston Red Sox defeated Detroit 5-3 Tuesday to even the series at one game each. Fred Marberry, Detroit's hurler, was breezing along with a 3-1 lead when the eighth inning opened. Then he walked a man and three doubles followed to net three runs and the ball game. The Sox got an unneeded run in the ninth. Boston ... 001 000 031—5 9 1 Detroit ... 101 001 003—3 9 3 H. Johnson and Ferrell; Marberry and Hayworth.

Braves Use Five Hits Off Guy Bush To Beat Chicago

PHILADELPHIA—Hitting timely behind Wild Bill Hallaban's tight hurling, the St. Louis Cardinals opened a five game series at Baker bowl Tuesday by downing the Phillies, 5-1. In the seventh, Wes Schulmerich's single brought in Chuck Klein for the Phil's lone tally. The Cards tallied twice in the ninth. St. Louis ... 100 002 002—5 11 1 Phila. ... 000 000 100—1 6 2 Hallaban and Wilson; Hansen, Pearce and Davis.

BOSTON 2, CHICAGO 1 BOSTON—The Boston Braves used all of their five hits off Chicago pitcher, Guy Bush, in scoring runs Tuesday and defeated the Cubs 2-1 in the series opener. The defeat dropped Chicago a full game behind the title Pittsburgh Pirates in their second place duel.

Up to the ninth inning, Bush had given only two hits in a struggle with Ben Cantwell. Chicago ... 000 100 000—1 10 0 Boston ... 010 000 001—2 5 3 Bush and Hartnett; Cantwell and Spohrer.

TEXAS ELECTRIC SERVICE COMPANY

PROPER REFRIGERATION

The tried and proven method of refrigerating mechanically—electrical refrigeration. Other ways have been tried and other types of mechanical refrigerators are available but electrical refrigeration stands out as the only method backed by many years of actual economical, satisfactory operation in millions of homes.

EASY IRONING

The dread of ironing day is a thing of the past. Ironing day in 1933 is just another day—an hour or two of pleasant, easy ironing is nothing for anyone to worry about. And new model electric irons are priced very low.

KEEP COOL

Seems like this hot spell is going to last forever. Days and nights both are still very unpleasant—unless a fan is on the job. Its still electric fan time—drop in and pick out one you like.
