Eastland

By VIRGIL E. MOORE

You probably noticed where we re-elected Frank Sayre as president of the Rotary Club in Tuesday's edition. Seems those two little letters "re" made the story a little wrong. Truth is, Frank is just a rookie at the job. He will take over the duties now held by Cyrus Frost. Just didn't notice it in time to erase it, that's all. Just put it down as experience. You know what experience is don't you—it's a name everyone gives for mistakes.

Cub Scouts seem to always have a good time when they meet. They give prizes and everything. For instance, Travis Wheat won the door prize at the Cub Banquet Monday night. Charles Foster made the presentation. The prize? Oh, just a door!

And we were shocked at the behavior of the Cubs, and for that matter of the parents and visitors, too. We caught them pulling gum off the bottom of their chairs and chewing it. Sounds awful, doesn't it. In reality it was nice fresh (never been used before) wrapped pieces tapped there by the banquet committee.

This blowing sand that we have been getting of late has got us worried. Now being from the South (South Texas that is) we just aren't used to such as this. We kinda worry about the loss of top soil. And we are not the only one spending our time wondering what can be done. You know, about the clearest demonstration of low fast this country is losing its topsoil is giving a small boy a bath.

Still you hear talk about juvenile delinquency. We believe it was Edmund Burke who said, "All that is necessary for the triumph of evil is that good men do nothing."

Heard two six-year-olds talking on their way to school Wednesday. One, looking irritated, was saying to the other, "The trouble with those new miracle drugs—they get you back to school in no time."

Don't forget to visit Eastland's schools this week. Teachers and students have fixed things up in anticipation of your visit. Don't let them down.

Noticed in the big city press where the Temple Baptist Church of Amarillo was robbed of $850 while services were going on Sunday. Rev. Hal Upchurch, pastor, was pictured in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram scratching his head after a thief sawed a hole in the floor of the rostrum, directly under the pulpit, and reached through. Cat Held For Rabie Test

The Ranger Police Department reported that a cat is being held for observation for rabies. Proper authorities have been notified and the animal will be investigated to see if this condition exists.

Ranger Police department officers mentioned that it would be a good idea to have all dogs, cats or other pets vaccinated for the protection of the children that play with them. It was added that your dog might be in good health but if he comes in contact with an infected dog he will be infected also, if vaccination is not taken.

Eastland Thinclads To Test Cisco Team

Blowing sand and a nippy cold spell have hampered Coach Ed Hooker's Eastland High School tracksters, but the Mavs will swing into action Friday when they journey to Cisco for a dual track meet.

The Mav thinclads, paced by J. D. Hanson, a senior who set four new district records and two new regional records in his junior year will be gunning for district 14-B honors.

Coach Hooker, who is assisted by Carrol Shelton, wasn't very pleased with weather conditions when approached by a reporter. "We haven't even had time to clock the boys yet," he said.

Hooker wasn't saying much, but when he talked of Hanson, Larry Graham, Jimmy Martin and Verne Meroney, a light shone in his eye. Hooker, who is definitely on the conservative side, said Martin, a Question: Do you believe in the Eastland "Old Rip" story?

Answered by: Joe Faircloth, 571 Farm to Market Road, Eastland County.

Old Rip is resting in peace in a small casket in the Eastland County Court House. There has been various tales and lots of rumors on "Old Rip". If the good people of Eastland County say that Old Rip rested in the corner stone a few years before he was removed I will agree with them. Because, as you know, the people here might not tell the truth every time, but when they tell something that reaches every paper in the nation and had as much publicity as your favorite cigarettes we can't let the people of Eastland down. We must go along with this story, as the Chinese say to "keep from losing face."

Question for Tuesdays paper: Will you let your children go to the youth center when it is built? What activities do you want them to take part in?

ONE HUNDRED YEARS GROWTH OF STATE SCHOOLS RECORDED

Eastland schools have opened their doors to visitors this week in celebrating Texas Public School Week.

A large number of parents and others who are interested in the schools, have visited.

Today's Texas public schools are a far cry from their humble beginning back in 1854, when the per capita payment was 62 cents and the permanent school fund was started with an initial endowment of $2,000,000. The per capita payment has now grown to $68 and the permanent school fund to $249,016,781.

In the same state where youngsters used to be considered lucky if they were given three or four months of schooling a year, a minimum foundation program now guarantees every child a minimum of nine months of school each year.

Despite these vast improvements, Texans have not yet achieved the goal outlined by their forefathers. The Texas Education Agency, the Texas State Teachers Association, the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers and other participating groups hope the centennial celebration will renew their interest of the general public in its schools and lead to additional improvements.

It was on Jan. 23, 1854, that a group of Texans converged on Austin for a mass meeting. "We will not only be the Empire State in point of territory," they solemnly resolved, "but in the number and excellence of our institutions of learning."

It was a bold boast from a young state—one which had been admitted to the Union less than nine years before. But just eight days later, the Common School Law was enacted. It established the free public school system of Texas.

"It was the first mile of a long road—still under construction—that leads to happiness and prosperity," Executive Secretary Charles H. Tennyson of the Texas State Teachers Association said recently. "It is a well traveled road, with traffic increasing at an astounding rate. There are 72,000 more children traveling on it now, for instance, than there were a year ago."

Six periods of peak interest in schools have been selected by the State Board of Education for state wide observance of the centennial, but local groups will decide for themselves if these are of the greatest interest locally.

The six periods are: January 31,

Backstage With My Little Margie High School Senior Play Cast Is Introduced By School Writer

The senior play cast, who will present "My Little Margie" on March 18 and 19, would like to introduce their characters to the people in more detail.

Margie, Joy Lynne Robinson, is a girl with so much mind-of-her-own that other people are apt to lose track.

Vern, Charles Collins, is a father with a problem.

Roberta, Arzell Brock, is an attractive career woman whom Margie likes, but whom she hesitates to welcome as a stepmother.

Freddie, Pearson Grimes, is a young man with normal common sense, except where Margie is concerned.

Mrs. Oletta, Sue Courley, is the nice old lady across the hall, whose idea of aging gracefully is to keep moving faster, preferably on roller skates.

M. Honeywell, Don Webb, is Vern's iron-wisted boss, who lectures the office staff if he finds even a paperclip in the wastebasket.

Sir Saiyid Nasif, Richard Jones, is the handsome "potentate."

Amos, Pat Linkenhoger, is a clever bellboy who tries to help Vern in his schemes.

Miss Sherman, Wanda Harp, is a strong-minded secretary who hates to quit working for Vern.

The Assassin, Sammy Miller, is a dangerous member of the Wha-da.

The Nurse, Lou McFatter, is a red-head who tries to keep Sir Saiyid under observation.

Madame Nasif, Mary Jo Jesse, is a woman from Berabia who is confused about a certain bomb.

Television programs have already introduced the pert and vivacious Margie to most of America, but we sincerely hope to see everyone at the high school auditorium either March 18 or 19.

Teen-agers Run Traffic Court

Teen-aged traffic violators in Ponca City, Okla., now face a court composed of their classmates.

City commissioners set up the teen-age traffic court by law, and high school students elected Judge Bill Boaz and other court officers to try all driving offenses committed by youths under 18.

However, violators may choose to appear before regular police or traffic courts.

The only power not in student hands is the authority to arrest. A violator can have a "public defender" to plead his case against a prosecuting attorney, and if found guilty his punishment could include suspension of his driver's license.

Cash fines are not allowed, but the judge can "fine" a guilty student a traffic essay to be written at any length the judge requires.

Violators also may be sentenced to attend sessions of the traffic violators training school conducted by police.

There even a provision for contempt of court. The teen-age judge can transfer cases of disrespectful drivers to municipal court, where a defendant has to post bond, and face a cash fine.

HOFFMAN SAYS SPORTS CARS GAIN POPULARITY

One of the nation's top automotive officials believes that the American family is gradually switching from the four-door sedan to the American version of the sports car.

Paul G. Hoffman, chairman of the Studebaker Corp., South Bend, Ind., says the growing popularity of the sports models stems from the "new look" and the basic engineering design which gives the car both a lower center of gravity eliminating road sway, and better visibility through the forward sloping hood.

"Actually, for most trips today, American cars are occupied by one or at most two persons," Hoffman said. "Statisticians say that the average number of persons per car per trip is about 1.5 persons. Naturally, the American type of sports car is ideal both in economy and ease of driving for this typical or average 'load' for an automobile."

BOSCAWEN, N. H. — James Lee, chief state research biologist, asked to identify a bird shot by a hunter, replied: "It's a coot, a distinct species. It's tame and, when cooked, tastes like an old rubber boot."

It's a long jump from the old rangy Longhorn steer to the modern beef breeds. Generations of constructive breeding have produced cattle that are beautiful in conformation, efficient in the use of feed and that create wealth from the land. Breeders constantly seek the ideal, and the routine of select, test and cull has almost become monotonous as they continue from one generation of cattle to another in their search for better bred livestock.

The Longhorn has gone the way of scrub bulls and eroded soils. In its place has steadily come improved cattle that make economical gains from improved pastures and soil building crops.

Army in Korea Tries To Teach Unschool'd Men

SEOUL—In a chilly quonset hut near the Korean front, a U.S. sergeant stood up and asked: "Okay, Rodriguez, how much is 4 times 2?"

"I don't know," was the answer.

A few miles away, in a dark mess tent, another sergeant held up cards bearing the words "cows," "pigs," and "today."

Slowly, fumblingly, a private first class tried to read them.

Almost six percent of the American soldiers in the Eighth Army are like these two. The Army calls them "basics"—men who could not make the fourth grade. They become the special charges of the Army's Troop Information and Education program. Some of them are illiterate.

Officers are embarrassed that these men are overseas. An Eighth Army education officer said "it is a waste of time, money, and energy to have these men in the Far East," and added:

"These men should be trained in the States—if they should be in the Army at all. But since we have them here in Korea, they must get first priority in the education program."

So front-line units are now putting great stress on education. In many units, the "basics" must go to school every day until they pass fourth grade.

The Army works on them ten weeks before giving up. Most of the time it is successful, where the public schools were not. Last fall, more than 20,000 Eighth Army soldiers graduated out of the "basic" class.

Today one-fourth of the rest are taking daily instructions. One of these classes is taught by Pfc. Bert Gividen, Mapleton, Utah, just a few hundred yards behind the front in a greasy tent with no lights—the generator is off in the daytime.

There are 14 students in his class. Gividen, who went to Brigham Young University, spelled "finish" and turned to the class.

"Is that okay, Proctor?" "I don't know," Proctor replied. "Can't you spell finish?" "I can't spell finish." Alone among the 14, the class bores him.

"Can you try?" "No, I don't know." "After class, Sgt. Basil Presti, Great Neck, Long Island, who runs the education program in the battalion, talked to the soldier:

"Proctor, wouldn't you like to write your wife? Suppose you finish reserve and go back to the line—wouldn't you like to tell her that?"

"Sure I would," replied Proctor. "Only I don't know how to spell. What do I do?"

"Put it this way. There's lots of words I don't know how to spell. So I try, and I learn it. You don't even try. What's your job back home?"

"I'm a bricklayer." "Okay, you're a bricklayer now. What'll you do when you're 45 years old and too old to lay bricks?"

Proctor had no answer. "Education is not cart of life," Presti concluded. "It is life. The Army gives you a chance to learn what you don't know. If you try, you can do it."

The soldier went back to class. "He'll come around," Presti said. "We had 40 guys like that last time, and 30 of them passed."

Steaming up Cow Gets Results

"Steaming up" cows, a technique by which research has fattening dairy animals during the dry period so they produce more milk in the next lactation, can put extra dollars in the pockets of dairyman's pocket.

Scientists in England turn a cow dry 1 1/2 to 2 months before she freshens, then feed up to 2 pounds of grain a day during her last period. Their idea is to lay on flesh as fast as they can.

Why do the British want their cows fat when they freshen? They know the modern dairy cow has been bred up so her milk producing machinery is more efficient than her digestive equipment. She can't eat enough to make the milk and fat she is capable of producing.

But this latest theory doesn't limit her out put to what can be made by the feed she can stow away. She pulls fat off her ribs and puts it in the milk pail.

The English plan was brought to Capper's Farm's attention by Ken Harshbarger, dairy production specialist at the Illinois station, who keeps up on dairy research around the globe.

He says steaming up ought to start 6 to 8 weeks before freshening.

For a cow capable of producing 40 pounds a day, the British scientists suggest 1 pound of grain daily the eighth week before calving. The feed is stepped up 1 pound a day at the start of each succeeding week. That would mean a daily ration of 8 pounds the week before she calves.

Grain feeding would be much heavier for higher producers, the Illinois dairy expert adds. The cow capable of 64 pounds of milk a day would get up to 16 pounds of grain daily during the dry period. The 21 pounds a day is for still heavier milkers.

The average cow can be expected to produce about 20 percent more than she is 3 years old than when she is 2. A leading British researcher got 41 percent more by steaming up.

Another found that 250 pounds of grain fed during the dry period produced 840 pounds of extra milk the first 4 months of the next lactation. If you can get $4 a hundred for your milk, that much extra would be worth $33.60 to you, a big price for 250 pounds of dairy grain, Harshbarger explains.

He believes that many cows in this country "fail to get rest periods that are long enough." And they don't get enough feed to make them produce at top capacity in the following lactation.

"We're inclined to cheat a dry cow," he said. "Too often we think the rest period is a time to save grain. The English research seems to indicate that our thinking is wrong. Their experiments suggest that the best way to get top production and save dairy grain is to feed the cow plenty."

Christian Science

That we have Scriptural authority for beholding man as perfect ere and now, as the image and likeness of God, is stressed in the Christian Science Lesson - Sermon entitled "Man" to be read this Sunday at the church service.

The Psalmist expressed this thought, which will be read as the Golden Text (37:37): "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace."

Isaiah indicated that this is possible through God's help when he wrote: "I have raised him up in righteousness, and I will direct all his ways" (45:13).

The following passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" will also be read: "In Science man is the offspring of Spirit. The beautiful, good, and pure constitute his ancestry. His origin is not, like that of mortals, in brute instinct, nor does he pass through material conditions prior to reaching intelligence. Spirit is his primitive and ultimate source of being. God is his Father, and Life is the law of his being" (p. 63).

Cattle Raisers Warned To Watch Stock

Cattle raisers were warned today to watch for signs of a late winter intestinal disease which seems to be growing more serious every year.

The American Foundation for Animal Health said the next two months will mark the peak period for outbreaks of winter dysentery, especially in stabled cattle. The problem is particularly serious in dairy herds during early spring, officials said.

Today's report says that a typical outbreak may at first involve only one or two cows with mild scours, which appear unimportant. But 24 hours later a majority of the cattle may be affected and milk flow may be cut in half.

Because the disease may be confused with another cattle problem, coccidiosis, an immediate diagnosis was advised.

"Winter dysentery is seldom fatal but takes a toll through reduced milk production and dehydration of affected cattle," the Foundation says. "With proper treatment, the course of the disease may be limited to three days or a week, but dysentery outbreaks often run two weeks or more if left untreated."

Veterinarians have reported good success in combating the condition if treatment is started early.

The Foundation also recommended several routine preventive measures for visitors from feed and control measures, including alleys, reducing the feed intake when the disease strikes, and avoiding sudden changes in rations.

M. H. Perry Attends Sales Training School

Eleven representatives of Southland Life Insurance Co. attended an advanced school in sales training at Dallas March 1-4. This school, like the others included in Southland Life's training program, was conducted in the company's own classroom, christened by former Southland students "Southland College," and located in the home office building.

These eleven representatives came from six of the company's agencies situated in the states of Arkansas and Texas. Indicative of the outstanding progress already made by this school's student-agents is the fact that nine of them qualified for the company's agency convention recently held in New Orleans.

Attending the school were: Clyde O. Arrington and Leonard Trice Haire of Waco; King A. Bentley, Marshall; Hurley A. Faust, Odessa; Pat Kelly, Lockhart; J. E. (Mac) McNeill, Little Rock, Ark.; Donald M. Nelson, Fort Worth; M. H. Perry, Eastland; T. Z. Walker, Amarillo; and Holland Winder and L. E. Winder, brothers from College Station.
