JUREL VARNER ... in the Army now

Time passed, and Jurel nough. In January of 1954, he visited the local office, reported that he'd grown and was sent back for another examination. The examiners marked him up with a half inch gain, but alas that still wasn't enough. So he remained in the IV-F classification because of his height - or lack of it.

Clerk Reaves reports that at various intervals over the vears voung Jurel came in, told her he thought he'd grown enough, and wanted to volunteer. But local medical examinations showed that he still hadn't got tall enough.

The patriotic volunteer was undaunted, still hoping for enlistments. Things began to change for the better this year - the 13th. The local board was reviewing IV-F classifications for the purpose of placing those persons who could, in case of national emergency, be inducted and put to some use for the armed forces. Well, Jurel fell into this category, because short or tall, he certainly could serve in some capacity under emergency conditions.

So he was notified that he was now in I-Y classification. As soon as he got the notice, he came to the Eastland office, wanting to know if he was not now eligible for service and he also happily reported that "he had still grown taller since his last visit to the board.'

Sure enough, the local medical advisor concurred — Jur-el now measured 5' 1" in height and he was advised that he would be placed in I-A at the next meeting-but that he would not be eligible to volunteer as he was over 26 years of age.

Jurel got busy, but he didn't have much time. He went to the Armed Forces Induction and Recruiting station for enlistment in May-less than a month before he would reach the "too-old" bracket of 32. On May 19, the local board officially put him in I-A which opened the door for his enlist-

Right now, he's likely doing "close-order" drill—and being patriotic, loving every minute
