

FORMAL TEST OF PLAN TO RETIRE JUSTICES TO GO TO CONGRESS SOON

NEW ECONOMY IS URGED FOR DROUTH AREA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The House today passed the Summers bill providing voluntary retirement of supreme court justices on full pay at the age of 70.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The first formal test of congressional sentiment toward President Roosevelt's proposed judicial reorganization was sought in the House.

Chairman Hatton Summers of the house judiciary committee, which is considering the program, prepared to bring to the floor two bills which embody less controversial parts of the proposal.

Although the bills do not involve the prime issue of enlarging the supreme court, debate on them may show house sentiment on the entire plan.

The two measures called today provided:

1. Full pay for supreme court justices who retire after they are 70 if they have served 10 years.

2. Authorization of the U. S. Attorney General to intervene in private litigation in federal court, if a constitutional issue is involved.

The house acted while the country discussed the president's proposal on a tremendous scale.

The Texas senate asked that state's congressional delegation to vote against them, while the Colorado house asked its state's delegation to support them.

From every section the country is heaping plenty of interest on the president's proposed legislation regarding the United States Supreme Court.

The Texas legislature is debating a law to ban all kinds of liquor advertising from the newspapers and magazines of the state.

Next meeting of the organization, composed of doctors of Eastland and Callahan counties, will be in April at Eastland, permanent meeting place.

The explosion occurred about nine-forty o'clock on the night of February 15, shortly after a young Marine trumpeter had blown "Taps."

Following the blast the whole forward part of the ship catapulted upward in a searing flame, amid the crash of falling beams and twisted bits of debris.

In the confusion that followed discipline was superb. Every able-bodied member of the crew did his part in rescuing those not fatally injured.

There were many individual acts of heroism, among them that of Private William Anthony of the U. S. Marines.

The cause of the explosion is still more or less of a mystery. It destroyed a warcraft which, at that time, was the pride of the navy.

Important issues will be discussed, it was announced by Rev. Robt. E. Bowden, Secretary.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The following proceedings were had today in the court of criminal appeals.

ELEVEN KILLED WHEN PLANE CRASHES INTO SAN FRANCISCO BAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—A derrick moored alongside the wrecked United Airlines plane half submerged in San Francisco Bay, today attempted to raise the wreckage and determine the fate of eleven occupants.

None believed that any of the eight passengers and three members of the crew had survived.

Salvage operations began at low tide. The barge was moored between two coast guard boats about one and one-half miles off shore.

The cause of the crash may never be known, however. Weather conditions were perfect as A. R. Thompson, veteran pilot, eased the big plane into a landing that ended in the far west's fourth major air crash of the winter.

The county coroner also waited to start an investigation and the United Airlines began an inquiry.

The 21-passenger air liner crashed five miles east of Municipal Airport at 11 o'clock Tuesday night. The wreckage was discovered five hours later.

PROTESTS ARE HEARD UPON COURT PLAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Rep. Maury Maverick, Dem., Texas, House supporter of President Roosevelt's judiciary bill, today charged that Congress is being bulldozed with fake telegrams seeking to defeat the measure.

Maverick, leader of the House liberal faction, charged that opponents of the measure are flooding Congress with telegrams of opposition.

Austin, Feb. 10.—The Texas House of Representatives today was torn between a non-committal attitude and outright opposition to President Roosevelt's proposed increase in the membership of the United States Supreme Court.

Yesterday the House killed a resolution to commend the plan, while the Senate decided to protest through members of the Texas delegation in Washington.

While decision was cut off by lack of time on whether the House should go on record as "neither favoring or opposing the President's position," or opposing the proposal outright.

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 10.—The San Antonio Bar Association today adopted a resolution denouncing President Roosevelt's judiciary plan.

Can We 'TVA' Ohio, Mississippi Valleys?

There is nothing new about floods in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. Impersonal and relentless, the mighty rivers overflow their banks periodically. They have done so ever since the first keel-boaters went downstream from Pittsburgh; apparently, they always will.

But because they flow through the most fertile valleys on the planet, these rivers have millions of people along their banks. Great cities and teeming farmlands lie on either side, all the way to the Gulf. When floods come, as they have come this winter, the record is written tragically in terms of death, suffering, disease and property loss.

Now we have spent millions of dollars to get these rivers under control. After each great flood a new program is launched. National and state governments give money generously; the best engineering brains are summoned to see that the money is spent wisely.

Yet one winter of abnormal rain or snow seems able to cancel all of this control work between week-ends. Despite all that has been done, this winter's rampage of the Ohio is the worst in that river's history.

And that must mean that one of two things is true. Either we have not been using the right tactics in our control campaign—or the campaign is doomed to defeat by the very nature of things, and we shall have disastrous floods every so often in spite of anything we may do.

If the latter is the case, we can take it; we have so far, at any rate, and we probably can go on doing so. But before we admit defeat, we might do well to study the whole problem from a new angle. Isn't there some other way of attack that might lead to victory?

It may be that there is a way; a strategy by which we would look on the whole tremendous river system as a unit, to be curbed by a great, co-ordinated campaign more far-reaching and thorough than anything we have ever tried.

We have a handy laboratory in the Tennessee valley. The river there is being put into harness in a comprehensive way. Under the Tennessee Valley Authority, it is not merely being turned to the production of electric power; it is being made flood-proof and erosion-proof, chained with an indefinite network of dams, spillways, sluices, forests, terraced slopes, and similar works so that, when the job is finished, the Tennessee and its tributaries will be permanently under control.

To do the same thing for the great Mississippi and Ohio valleys would be a job such as even America has not tackled before. It would take millions upon millions of dollars, years of effort, and the best brains the nation could call to its service.

It might be that the job would just naturally be too big. But in view of the record of the last fortnight, we ought to find out about it. If these mighty rivers can be harnessed and controlled, no price is too high. The tragedy of the Ohio valley will not be wasted if it forces us to make the valley safe for all time to come.

be the title of one of Robert L. Ripley's illustrated items of unusual facts concerning the backyard plots of O. M. Bradley and Jack Martin.

These two Tyler neighbors have discovered that upon digging for potatoes they often find "minnie balls" and when furrowing to plant tomatoes they rake up grape-shot and rifle balls—relics of the War Between the States.

Bradley explained that the site of his home and backyard is identical with that of a demolished U. S. arsenal that was built when federal soldiers occupied Tyler during the Civil War. Embedded in the earth are relics of the army storehouse. In Martin's garden may be found pockets of charcoal left from the ruins of a powder-making branch of the establishment.

Although he has recovered many different types of shot and war materials, Bradley was non-plussed recently when he came upon a spherical shaped out of iron.

It was six or seven inches in length, oblong and tapered in the manner of a high explosive shell or a headpiece off one of those old-fashioned iron fence posts. It was eaten away by rust but seemingly was solid.

Bradley has failed to establish its identity with any degree of positiveness but he thinks it may be a kind of bullet fired from an old muzzle-loading field piece.

At least he's certain it isn't a jam.

Twin Sisters of 75 Are Master Farmers

By United Press
THOMPSON, N. D.—Master "farmerettes" are Mrs. Ella Peterson and Mrs. Lila O'Neale, believed to be North Dakota's oldest twins—each robust at 75.

Mrs. O'Neale owns 1,500 acres near here, and her sister has a large tract near Westhope, N. D. Throughout the depression the sisters, who live together, have managed to get along without government aid.

The sisters, both widows, actively supervise farming operations on their respective tracts. "It may take a man to dig like a good farmer, but it requires a woman to think like a good farmer," smiled the gray-haired Mrs. O'Neale.

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—A vast new New Deal program — with flood control, conservation of both natural and human resources and cheap electric power as primary objectives — may be launched as a result of America's great flood of 1937.

The administration has as yet no long-time proposal to apply in the wake of the catastrophe. But a certain strong, active group which in the past has often exerted great influence in its policies will urge plans for high dams on the headwaters of the Ohio and other rivers, for a continued big federal works program with emphasis on flood and conservation work and for simultaneous development of federal power projects along with the high dams.

It is proposed to maintain workers on the federal payroll in numbers equal to current WPA, PWA, and CCC armies, not only for those specific aims, but also to keep up the volume of government-fed purchasing power and to maintain a theoretical "floor" to labor in private industry to better wages which will permit organized labor to at least hold its wage scales despite the presence of millions of unemployed.

There is reason to believe that such a general program will appeal to Roosevelt, if he is not already considering it.

Its promotion means a struggle between progressive, liberal forces here and the conservative Democrats in Congress and the treasury who are responsible for the current administration deficiency relief bill which at least theoreticcally cuts 600,000 persons off WPA rolls in the next four months. Already Chairman Jim Buchanan of the House appropriations committee, our official penny-pincher though he is, admits that the flood with its hundreds of thousands of homeless persons probably has made it impossible to cut relief rolls.

FOES of the "power trust" are prepared to charge that opposition of power companies to erection of high dams in headwaters of the Ohio has been a factor in the recent flood damage. This opposition is attributed to fear that presence of dams adaptable for the purpose would be a temptation for public power development. Also, whenever dams were erected for water control purposes, power companies lobbied against any attempt to make them productive of electricity.

Since money invested could not be recovered through power sales, success of such lobbying naturally discouraged building of dams which could have ameliorated floods. On the other hand, dams built by private power companies have been constructed as cheaply as possible and for the sole purpose of generating electricity.

Chairman Arthur Morgan of TVA, whose amiable attitude toward private power companies has been repudiated by Roosevelt during a long career in handling flood control projects always insisted his dams mustn't be used for power. Army engineers have insisted so firmly on "one-purpose dams" that it took Roosevelt six months to make them put pen-trenches in the Tygart dam in West Virginia. (Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.)

Trade Secrets Sold By Refinery Worker Cause Quite a Stir

BAYTON, Texas — Trade secrets leaking into national petroleum publications caused Humble Oil and Refining company officials to make an exhaustive search for the "tattletale."

The company officials were sent scurrying when 10 articles appeared in succession and revealed secret, new oil refining processes.

Laboratory details finally were narrowed down to cover a process used exclusively by the Baytown refinery of the company. This was the first clue as to the whereabouts of the "tattletale."

Magazine editors told company detectives that checks of $100 each were sent to New York City. Specimens of handwriting were compared with that of every worker in all of the company's laboratories before the "tattletale" was found. The man, popular young laboratory worker, will not be prosecuted, but he was dismissed from his position.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT

CRIME FILE ON BOLITHO BLANE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
BOARDING CARLTON ROCKSAY-
AGENTS night, GOLDEN ROCKSAY,
Miami, to investigate the disappearance of BOLITHO BLANE, British financier and Rocksave-
agency chief competitor in world
soap trade. Detective Officer KET-TERING finds strange marks on Blane's cabin carpet and blood on the curtain.

LADY WELTER: Motive in her case, which was weak in our first analysis, is considerably strengthened by the cable from Scotland Yard, in which it appears that she has been expend-ing a portion of her fortune for numerous years in supporting a non-commercial group of papers.
Further, that she lost a considerable portion of her capital in the Hstry crash, and is now principally dependent upon her holdings in the Rocksave companies.

P: So that's the line, is it—
trying to frame me, are you?
K: Not a bit of it. I want your help, that's all.
P: Oh, yeah! That's what all you guys say, and once I start to shoot my mouth I'll say whatever I didn't mean, then you'll be on me and I'll be for the hotseat
before I know what's happened.
No sir, I'm not talking.

MR. HAYASHI: Nil, as far as is known at the moment, but the fact that he wrote to Blane, asking for an appointment, brings him much more strongly under suspicion. If it can be proved that he visited Blane's cabin between 7:45 and 8:15, when he appeared in the lounge, it will look very much as though he is our man.

MR. JOCELYN: As dependent of Lady Welter his motive is considerably strengthened by the facts about her financial situation which have now emerged. From the report of his activities previous to his marriage with Lady Welter's daughter it is obvious that he is something of an adventurer and, since he was frequently written, probably unscrupulous where money is concerned. Moreover, he is responsible for having introduced into the party a known criminal, "Slick" Daniels, alias Count Posodini.

P: There you are—what did I say? Just because I'm known to the bulls you're jumping to it that I bumped off Blane. What's a gun, anyway? Your bunch have never known me to use one,
have they?
K: No, that's the whole point.
Murder is not your racket, Slick,
so you've got nothing to be frightened if you'll come clean, but if you didn't do it, you're in a spot, you're in a spot, my boy.

MR. ROCKSAY: Strong
and to do away with Blane, as
was set out in previous analysis.
The becoming even stronger on
the occasion of the precarious
condition of his companies.

THE BISHOP OF BUDE: Nil,
as far as is known at the moment, but his possession of a letter from Blane mailed from New York on the 5th shows his acquaintance with the murdered man to be far stronger than he would have us believe in his first statement. This letter lays such stress upon the friendship existing between the two that it reads to me much more like a threat by Blane that, whatever might occur
on the yacht, the Bishop had better keep his mouth shut. This is supported by the suggestion in the cable from Scotland Yard that there was some unpleasant scandal in which the Bishop was involved in 1917.

K: You know how things pan out, Slick. It's a bad break, but that's just how it might be.
P: Will you play ball with me,
if I play ball with you?
K: Sure I will, Slick. I know you didn't do it. You're a con man and a sharp. This isn't your racket, but you've got to tell me
just what you know.
P: O. K. Shoot the questions.
K: You were in the lounge until 7:45 the night before last with Mrs. Jocelyn, then, according to your previous statement, you both went below together. You turned up in the lounge again at 25 after
8. It doesn't take a man 40 minutes to change his clothes and I want to know just what you did during that time.

POSSIBLE MOTIVES, 9-1-37
MRS. JOCELYN: Nil, as far as is known at the moment.

MR. POSODINI: Nil, as far as
is known at the moment, but the fact that he was identified as the ex-convict "Slick" Daniels, so I hope to be able to make him talk,
as there must be some special reason for Reginald Jocelyn having
asked him on board, when he was
quite unknown to any other member of the party.

P: Well, now, just fancy your people being as quick off the mark
as all that.
K: You don't deny it?
P: What's the use, friend? I kept up the little bluff yesterday because I had half a hope that you might lay your hands on the man who gave Blane his right-away. Then I could have gone back to business without any sort of trouble from you folk at all,
but it was only half a hope and I know that if you didn't get your man you'd pick it up that the Count stuff was all hokey by today.

COUNT POSODINI: Nil, as far as is known at the moment, but the fact that he was identified as the ex-convict "Slick" Daniels, so I hope to be able to make him talk,
as there must be some special reason for Reginald Jocelyn having
asked him on board, when he was
quite unknown to any other member of the party.

MR. ROCKSAY: Strong
and to do away with Blane, as
was set out in previous analysis.
The becoming even stronger on
the occasion of the precarious
condition of his companies.

Q. How old is the Bible used in the inauguration of the Governor and Lieutenant Governor of Texas?
A. It was printed in 1816 and has been used in the Texas inauguration ceremonies since some time in the 1840's, the exact date not being known. The old Bible has been kept by the Supreme Court in its safe, and contains a written inscription, "Supreme Court Republic of Texas 1846."
The part of the leaf with the last figure has been torn out, so we can only know that the date was prior to 1846. It is about half the size of a sheet of letter paper, and about three inches thick.

Q. What governor of Texas initiated the custom of presenting his successor with a Bible in which is marked a verse for guidance of the incoming governor?
A. Gov. Pat M. Neff, presenting the Bible to Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson.
Q. Where did LaFitte establish his Galveston Island home?
A. At a place he called "Cam-pachey," on the ruins of D'Aury's settlement, and in a house known as the "Red Mansion" around which there grew a settlement of more than 1,000 followers who called him "Lord of the Isle."

Down East Codfish Balls

(9 balls)
This is the kind that is flaky,
meltingly tender and not too regular in shape. 1 cup salt codfish, 2-1/2 cups raw cubed potatoes, 1-2 tablespoon butter, 1-3/8 teaspoon black pepper, 1 egg.
Soak codfish in cold water for at least 8 hours. Pour off water, then shred with fork. Cook potatoes until tender, drain and dry thoroughly. This drying is very important if you want flaky cakes.
Mash well, add butter and pepper and beat until light. Add slightly beaten egg to mashed and fluffed potato, then shredded codfish and beat with stern insist-

Commerce has for distribution
two booklets, "House Insulation,
Its Economics and Application," and "Insulation on the Farm."
Both of these have been extremely popular.
"House Insulation" covers in considerable detail the advantages gained through insulation such as lowered fuel costs, the greater comfort, etc.; the types of insulation used, such as rigid, flexible, and fill types; the thickness of insulation to use; the methods of application; the cost of insulating, etc. A particularly interesting and enlightening table presents the insulating values of the different types of wall construction. Information on weatherproofing and on the fuel savings to be effected through insulation is found in appendix form in the back of the booklet.
The radio has been of great service through the flood. As a matter of fact, however, singers are ignorant of the beautiful Ohio.

Meningitis Season Opens In Texas

AUSTIN.—It is at this time of the year that cerebro-spinal meningitis usually shows a marked increase in Texas, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer. While the number of cases is not alarming as yet, preventive measures should be followed.

The best method of escaping this disease is the prevention of overcrowding either at home or in public. Overcrowded conditions in camps, barracks, jails, or other institutions where men are brought in close contact are most favorable for outbreaks. Children and old people are more susceptible than those of middle age, and negroes contract meningitis more frequently than whites.

People with colds and coughs should stay indoors if possible, should practice personal hygiene and cough into their handkerchiefs.

Sport Glances. By Grayson

IOWA and Nebraska seek football coaches.

Sources close to the Hawkeye board say that it favors the installation of the Notre Dame system, and that Charles E. Dorais heads the preferred list.

I happen to know that "Gus" Dorais, one of the truly great grid-iron instructors, would listen to a reasonable proposition, and, like the race horse handicapper, ask: "What's Iowa waiting for?"

As for Nebraska, all the Corn-huskers have to do is break their habit of going on the outside for mentors. Ed Weir, their All-America tackle of 1924-5, has been an outstanding success as tutor of their freshmen.

Dr. Eddie Anderson, an Iowa boy who played plenty of end at Notre Dame and who now is in charge at Holy Cross, also is being considered by the Iowa board members.

I do not know how Anderson feels about a change. He no doubt would be highly acceptable. But what I started out to talk about was Dorais.

Why Dorais long ago was not chosen for a big-time assignment is a mystery. Notre Dame men of considerable less prominence and of much more recent vintage hold choice positions throughout the country.

DORAIS is vastly more than the 140-pound directing genius of the teams of 1911-12-13 which made Notre Dame a pigskin power. Dorais, the organizer, has built a fine record as athletic director and head coach.

In a note too favorable setup at the University of Detroit, Dorais' teams have lost on an average of 1 1/2 games a season for eight campaigns. Prior to going to Detroit, Dorais turned in splendid jobs at Gonzaga University, Duquesne College, and at Camp McArthur during the war.

Dorais assisted his college roommate and friend, Knute Rockne, as the immortal "Rock" made his start as head coach at Notre Dame.

Detroit material is not so good. Generally speaking, the Titans get the leavings after Michigan and Michigan State, not to mention other Western Conference schools, have had their pick. Yet last season the Titans beat two of the country's leaders, Duquesne, conqueror of Pittsburgh and Marquette, and Villanova.

Dorais would enjoy a whirl in the Big Ten, generally considered football's fastest company.

The renowned product of South Bend doesn't promote power, for that is the hard way. Like the true Notre Damer he is, he banks on deception and passing.

DORAIS should know more about passing than anybody else.

He was the young man who threw the ball in the game that, as the squatty little end who was a receiver once explained, demonstrated that the forward pass was an integral part of offense and not merely a threat. The squatty little end was Rockne and the game was the history-making one in which Notre Dame astonished the world by trimming a powerful Army team, 35-13, at West Point in 1913.

Dorais is one of the more progressive coaches. He was one of the first of the Notre Dame men to make minor changes in the South Bend scheme.

If Iowa really wants a big name and a Notre Dame man from 'way back who is right up to date, it can't go wrong in naming Charles E. Dorais.

Narcotic Farm to Open On Feb. 13

FORT WORTH, Texas—Formal dedication of the federal government's new narcotic farm, located a few miles southeast of Fort Worth, will be held Feb. 13.

Officials recently announced that Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service, and Miss Josephine Roche, assistant secretary of the treasury, had accepted invitations to appear on the dedication program.

Work now is under way on the farm's administration building, nurses' home, clinical building and custody ward. When completed the institution will cost $4,000,000 and house 1,200 narcotic addicts.

Bids will be opened Feb. 19 on a second group of buildings including a dining hall, kitchen, power house, auditorium, warehouse and two maintenance buildings.

Air Traffic Hits A New High Peak

By United Press FOR WORTH, Texas—Air traffic at Meacham Field, Fort Worth's municipal airport, reached the highest level in history during 1936, operators have reported.

Thirty-eight airlines which operate on daily schedules in and out of Fort Worth carried 57,173 passengers, nearly 20,000 more than were registered at Dallas, second largest air transportation center in the Southwest. In 1935, passengers carried in planes from Fort Worth totaled 51,819.

9th, and I shall strive, with the cooperation of my fellow citizens, to arrange suitable ceremonies at their departure and return. THEREFORE, I, C. W. Hoffmann, Mayor of the City of Eastland, do hereby recommend that the citizens of this city observe this Boy Scout Week for the purpose of strengthening the work of the Boy Scouts of America. I earnestly recommend that our civic organizations, our churches and our schools cooperate in carrying out a program for a definite recognition of the effective service rendered by the Boy Scouts of America in order that the work of the Boy Scout program may be extended to a larger proportion of the boyhood of this city. The Boy Scout movement offers unusual opportunity for volunteer service. It needs men to serve in various capacities as leaders of boys. I hope that all who can, will, through the organizations with which they are connected, enlist for such personal service. Anything that is done to increase the effectiveness of the Boy Scouts of America will be a genuine contribution to the welfare of this City, the State and the Nation. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of this city to be affixed. Done this 9th day of February, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven. C.
