Why Heal Man's Ills, and Ignore Society's?

Two years ago skilled doctors performed a medical miracle on the body of a middle-aged Ohioan named Joseph Kruchmar.

This man was suffering from what looked like the very last stages of angina pectoris. His chances of living more than a few weeks weren't worth a nickel, and the doctors told him so without any hesitation.

Dr. Claude S. Beck, of Cleveland's Lakeside Hospital, has been experimenting on animals with an operation designed to cure angina pectoris. He hoped that it would work with human beings, but he wasn't sure.

Mr. Kruchmar took the chance. An epoch-making operation was performed. A muscle from his left arm was grafted onto his weakened heart. He survived the operation, spent four months in hospital—and, at last, returned to his home cured, a man who had come back to life from the very gates of death.

Now, if the story ended there it would be all very pretty. But real-life stories don't stop with the happy ending of fiction. They keep on going, and sometimes the original happy ending gets snowed under.

So it was with Mr. Kruchmar. Restored to health, he faced the task of providing for his wife and their three small children—and he couldn't get a job. The family was on relief when he went to the hospital; since then he has struggled in vain to find a job that would get them off relief and keep them off permanently.

He got one job—and it paid him only $5 a week, which wasn't nearly enough to make the family self-supporting. At present he is out of work and he sees no immediate prospect of changing that status. And he says:

"Lucky? Well, they say wealth isn't everything. I know now that health isn't, either."

This little story is worth telling at some length because it is such a perfect example of the dilemma into which modern man has blundered.

He can master the physical world as never before. He can whip foes that were unconquered a short time ago. With his science he can perform all sorts of miracles.

But the task of arranging his own society so that any man who is able and willing to work can support his family is decent comfort—that seems to be beyond him.

What good does it do to snatch a man back from the jaws of death if the man can't make a living after he gets back?

A local moviegoer can't remember much of "After the Thin Man" because of sitting behind a tall one.

Santa Claus must have left empty-handed. The children have the toys, and the dads are holding the bag.

The president seems to think the aged supreme court justices need aid, though they've carefully guarded their constitution.

Mrs. I. N. Williams, accompanied by Mrs. Roy Ashburn, drove to Breckenridge on business Wednesday.

Glen Howell of Kilgore was visiting friends here Friday. Mrs. O. D. McDonald returned Monday from Olden, where she had been for a week at the bedside of her mother, Mrs. E. L. Mitchell, who was seriously ill but is now improving.

Mrs. Walter May was able to be up Monday after having been at home for a week, suffering with the flu. Her sister, Miss Mae Thompson, who had pneumonia, is also improving.

Mrs. Dick Cutting of Cisco was here Thursday visiting her aunt, Mrs. Charles Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Walker and children of the Cheaney community visited her mother, Mrs. J. R. Buchan, and family, on Thursday night.

Mrs. Worth Smith of Eliasville visited her mother, Mrs. John Williams, in the Salem community, last week. On Thursday Mrs. Smith and her mother came to town and spent the day with Mrs. J. H. Rushing, Sr.

The meeting of the Methodist Missionary society was held Monday afternoon at the church, with seven members present. After a short business session the world outlook program was presented with Mrs. G. S. Bruce as leader.

Mrs. W. H. Whitworth led the devotional. Examples of helpful work done by the doctors and nurses were given. Those present were Meses. C. O. Bragg, G. S. Bruce, W. H. Whitworth, Charles Lee, S. E. Snodgrass, O. D. McDonald and W. C. Bedford.

A large crowd gathered at the high school auditorium on Thursday night, at which time an inter-community program was presented under the sponsorship of the "21" Study club. Programs were made by members of the typewriting class under the direction of their teacher. Business firms who helped in making the entertainment a success by paying for ads on the programs were Davis Dry Goods Store, Desdemona Motor Co., G. S. Bruce Market and Grocery, Earl Abernathy Barber Shop, Mrs. Kate May News Stand, T. H. Key and Son Groceries and Meats, City Pharmacy, T. L. Acrea General Merchandise, and Parks Beauty Shoppe.

Low-Cost Terracing to Be Shown

Terracing on the Abraham P. Key farm at Reagen, shown above, will be one of the better farming practices to be pointed out in an educational tour of the county starting at 8:30 a. m. Monday, from Olden.

The tour is sponsored by County Agent Elmo V. Cook, his assistant, Hugh F. Barnhart, and T. G. Caudle, Cisco vocational agriculture teacher, to point out recommended methods of modern farming.

Farmers, ranchers, business men, housewives, students and others are invited to participate in the tour, to be made in automobiles.

Mrs. V. O. Dickson, who has been ill the last ten days, is now able to sit up. The "21" Study club met Tuesday of last week at the clubhouse. As one of the series of programs of the travel course that is being studied by the club, the country of Palestine, the Holy Land, was studied. Roll call responses were "Points of Interest in the Holy City." Leader of the program was Mrs. S. E. Snodgrass, whose talk on "A Walk Through the Holy City," was very interesting, one special feature being the Joppa Gate, showing why one goes "up" to it. "Shopping Centers of a Religious City," was the subject of Mrs. Charles Lee's paper, which described the shops, some only 9 by 12 feet, in which a great variety of things can be purchased.

Mrs. J. E. Heeter's talk on "The Old Jerusalem and the New" brought out the features of the city that have remained unchanged and others that have become modern. A poem, "Winter Day in Texas," was read by Mrs. C. W. Maltby, and an English drill was given by Mrs. W. C. Bedford. The next program will be Bible day.

Mrs. Mattie Henry and her son, Walker, Eastland, visited friends here Saturday. Walker, who is attending Daniel Baker College at Brownwood, was on the honor roll at that institution. Mrs. Henry and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mendenhall, had just returned from a trip to South Texas. "Buster" Hoover of Kilgore came in Friday for a few days' visit with his sister, Mrs. Ed Hanson, and family. Mrs. Owen Clark of Cisco was here Thursday visiting her mother, Mrs. H. G. Salyer.

LAWMAKING TODAY TAME TO Ross Helps Keep Bailey From Senate MEMBER OF 33RD SESSION

AUSTIN, Feb. 20.—The House of Representatives of the 45th Legislature is a caper-cutting body in many respects, but anything that happens will seem pretty tame to Tip Ross.

You see, he served in the 33rd. When that session was over, he decided to go back to West Texas and catch his breath. It took a mite longer than he had calculated, but now, 24 years later, he is back in the legislative wars, having answered the clarion call to do something for pensions and taxation.

The raw-boned representative, 63 years old and upright as a prairie windmill, hails from Gorman, deep in Eastland county, and, as he puts it, he's "in lumber." Back in the 33rd, he was one of that midnight-caucusing group that put Morris Sheppard in the United States Senate.

The whole story takes a deal of background political novices would do well to study, but in brief it was with discovery of oil around Corsicana, continues through the days when the kerosene price was the big thing in Texas and certain companies ran afoul of the anti-trust laws, and goes on to the Waters-Pierce case. That, of course, brings Joe Bailey into a picture he was long to dominate. Tip Ross was always an anti-Bailey man himself, the turn of the century equivalent to the Anti-Ins men of today.

"I was running for office myself about that time, and when I'd hand out a card I didn't get to talk about my qualifications. A man would look me over and say, 'Bailey or anti-Bailey?' and 'I'd look him in the eye and say, 'Anti-Bailey.'" Ross got beaten.

He got into state politics, however, by winning a legislative seat to fill an unexpired term, and served through the 31st, 32nd and 33rd.

The 16th amendment to the United States Constitution took the election of senators out of state legislatures and placed them before the people. With the trust scandal beating in his ears, Bailey had resigned from public office, but his friends, planning to take advantage of what Ross has always termed a "white-washing," decided the 33rd legislature, the last body with the right to fill a United States senatorship, should elect Bailey.

By vote the people had expressed a choice for either Morris Sheppard, then a congressman, or Jake Walters, but their preference was complimentary rather than mandatory in that unprecedented interval lying between the old and new means of senatorial balloting.

"When the 33rd convened, a group of us—there were 11 besides myself—took a secret poll the day the session opened, and we found 76 Sheppard men. It took 72 to elect," Ross explained. The Sheppard men caucused at midnight in the state supreme courtroom, where the lights were kept extinguished so that opponents would not get wind of what was happening. As each of the 12 reported on the members he had contacted, the Sheppard list grew to certain victory. Newly pledged members were then invited to the caucus.

While this session was going on, a group of newsmen pounded at the door. "What's going on and why aren't we in there?" was the theme of their demands.

"Well, sir, one man stalled them while we finished our business of getting our list complete. Then we let the reporters in on promise they wouldn't violate confidence. Of course, we had to have the help of the newspapers to do what we were doing. And I want to tell you now a newspaperman can be trusted."

The story was released in time for morning editions, and, as Ross remembers it, Texas dailies dusted off their "War-Declared" type and played the Sheppard vote for all it was worth. Legislators reading it over their morning coffee dashed off in uproar before the stuff was sauced and brewed.

The sequel? Sheppard, 76; R. M. Johnson, 35; Walters, 15, and a scattering of other votes making up the then 142 legislative total.

Ross recalls the whole business fondly as the "best coup this capitol ever saw."

And one of the sweetest sidelights to the story is the fact that it was his roommate who was to have nominated Joe Bailey.

That Reminds Me

(Continued from page 1) sidewalks . . . all the paved streets . . . all the houses . . . the hotel and business houses . . . but they still own the town and nobody living in it."

That's the wonderful part about it . . . when no particular man owns the town. With fair competition, all folks working for the best interest of the town . . . and no man thinking he is bigger than his neighbor . . . and all piling in and doing their bit to make it a better town to live and do business in . . . that's what counts.

And Eastland has got that very thing. There is no man . . . no matter how rich or poor, that lives here, that can do it all alone. That's why it pays to get together, iron out difficulties and talk, think and dream Eastland. Buying in Eastland should become an obsession. The Chamber of Commerce is the best medium we know of to work out all problems for a better Eastland. Working together saved the levees of the Mississippi . . . and saved thousands of lives.

Members of the Texas Legislature stopped over in Eastland Saturday and were guests of the Eastland business interests at a luncheon at the Connellee hotel. They were on their way to Breckenridge to attend the big oil men's Representative Tip Ross' attitude is pensive and more than a little reminiscent as he watches his colleagues at work. "Why, the 33rd beat this a mile," might be the thoughts of the West Texas solog who with 11 friends pulled the midnight coup that kept Joe Bailey from going back to the United States senate.

Questions About Church Answered

BY REV. S. E. BYRNE

Question: Is the Church Christ established a visible or invisible society?

Answer: Historic Christianity is without a question a social organism, plainly set forth as such in the Acts of the Apostles. From the beginning it appeared in corporate form, a perfect social organization exercising full executive, legislative and judicial powers. The convert to Christianity not merely accepted certain religious truths but also became a member of a definite religious body, a society visible to all men.

Far from being "the invisible society of all the elect," held by many of the denominations today, the Church of Christ is and has ever been "a city seated on a mountain" (Matt 5,14), so unmistakable that all men might see her and find their way to her portals.

Those who hold that the church is an invisible society seem to forget that the Incarnation itself was nothing less than the visible manifestation of God to man. The fact that the Second Person of the Blessed Trinity assumed human form and became man is surely of some significance. No one will deny that Almighty God could have saved us in a purely spiritual manner. A simple act of His will would have sufficed to blot out all of the sins of mankind. Although God could have saved us in this invisible manner, as a matter of historical fact, He did not. In His infinite wisdom, He sent His only-begotten Son in the visible form of a man, the Word-made-flesh, to redeem us. "There is one mediator of God and men, the Man Christ Jesus" (1 Tim. 2,5).

Just why God chose to save us through the visible mediation of His Son, made man, is a mystery, something that we are not able to fathom. This much, however, we know for certain: His infinite wisdom and love lay behind it all. On our part, too, we can see a reason for it, and that reason is the simple psychological fact that God would save man, and man is not a purely spiritual being. He is a composite creature made up of soul and body. In the body he cannot be reached save through the soul. For this reason abstract religion must ever be a nonentity. When people attempt to worship in what they are pleased to term a purely spiritual manner, they end by not worshipping at all. Man is a dual creature composed of body and soul, the one clamoring for redemption as insistently as the other. However we explain it, the fact remains that Almighty God did send His own Divine Son to us on Christmas night in the visible form of a man; and He it is, the God-man, who saves and sanctifies us.

Jesus, having come as a visible mediator, we naturally would expect that the means wherewith He would perpetuate His mediation and apply the merits of the same to the souls of men down through the ages would likewise be of a visible nature. And what we naturally have been led to expect, we find fulfilled when we see Christ, our Savior, making the formation of a visible society one of the chief concerns of His earthly career. One of the first things Jesus did when He began His public ministry was to call about Him a body of men whom He might instruct in all knowledge and prepare with all care for the work that He had in store for them. These men, to whom He gave a distinctive name (Luke 6,13), and a special mission (Mark 16,15), and from among whom He chose one to be their chief and leader (John 21,15), were none other than the Apostles. Manifestly our Lord intended them to continue His own mission and to step into His own place when He returned to the Father. The brief span of time which Christ was to spend among men stood in no proportion to the great task for which He had come into the world. In the selection of this visible body of men Christ made provision for the continuance of His work. They are act with His authority. to be His representatives and to The purpose of our Lord, indicated clearly enough by His actions, is made explicit by His definite and direct references to a Kingdom which He came to establish. Though spiritually, this Kingdom was to have an outward appearance and a real unity, for "if a kingdom be divided against itself, the kingdom cannot stand" (Mark 3,24). Christ provided His Kingdom with power and authority. His Kingdom was to be the Kingdom of Truth; therefore, He established a teaching authority. It was to be a Kingdom of Grace; therefore, He established a sacred ministry. It was to be a Kingdom of Holiness; therefore, He established a rule of discipline. This triple authority is expressed in no uncertain terms in the final words of Christ to His Apostles: "Going, therefore, teach ye all nations; baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you" (Matt. 28,20).

This authority is Christ's own authority. He alone has received it from His Heavenly Father. He alone can confer it on others. "And Jesus, coming, spoke to them saying: All power is given to Me in Heaven and on earth. Going, therefore, teach ye all nations" (Matt 28,18); "As the Father hath sent Me, I also send you" (John 20,21); "He that heareth you, heareth Me, and he that despiseth Me, despiseth Him that sent Me" (Luke 10,16). Truly, then, Peter and the Apostles teach and rule with the authority of the Master and to disobey them or their legitimate successors is to disobey Christ and the Father who sent Him.

It is evident, then, that Christ had in mind a real society, visible and perfect even to details, possessing full authority and empowered to exercise jurisdiction in all matters of religion. No other construction could possibly be put on words such as these: "Go ye into the whole world and preach the Gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not, shall be condemned" (Mark 16). Unless the church be His own institution, visible as He was and accessible at all times, He could not refer us to that church, saying: "If thy brother shall offend against thee, and if he will not hear thee, tell the church; and if he will not hear the church, let him be to thee as a heathen and publican. Amen, I say unto you, whatsoever you shall bind on earth shall be bound also in Heaven; and whatsoever you shall loose upon earth shall be loosed also in Heaven" (Matt. 18,15). No amount of twisting can rob these plain words of their plain meaning. At other times Christ speaks of His flock and of the one sheepfold that shall embrace it. To Peter is given the office of feeding both the sheep and the lambs. To him

Steer Lasts Three Meals at College, Head Chef Finds

FORT WORTH — A steer lasts just three meals in the cafeteria of Texas Christian University.

"Steam and roast beef are the diners' favorite dish," says Jim Montgomery, chef.

"Those students eat the equivalent of a steer every three meals. And I mean a big cow, too!"

also are entrusted the keys of the church. The church on earth therefore is and must ever be an organized visible society. None other will fit the pattern of Christ.

Jim's greatest worry is that he can't "learn" the students to eat sweet potatoes. They shy away from liver and hamburger meat too, he reports.

Second to steak and roast beef in popularity are Jim's special sandwiches—chicken salad, bacon and tomato, and toasted cheese. Cream pies, which Jim calls "soft-pies," are the favorite dessert.

It seems there is some psychological factor which takes away the appetite, involved in preparing huge quantities of food. Jim eats only two meals a day and never between meals.

And he doesn't take a "post-man's holiday" when he has a day off.

"Yes, sir; I let my wife do the cooking at home," he says. "I get enough of it here!"

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK THEM WILL

DELLIS CRANE, working on the assembly line, has been on the Buick payroll for 20 years

SPEAKING for myself and 16,000 other Buick workmen—we're mighty glad to be back on the job! It's been tough to stand by, knowing how eager thousands of people were to get one of these great cars. And it's a grand feeling now to see the wheels turning and the line rolling, and to watch those big, handsome babies pouring out regular as clockwork! There's power in them, and style, and comfort—and when you see them made, like I do, you know they're packed with good, honest workmanship as well as top-notch engineering. We're proud of those Buicks, and the way you've taken to them, and we're going to get yours to you as quick as we can.

"It's Buick again!"

Carbon Peanut Company Increasing Capital

BECOMES ONE OF COUNTY'S BIGGEST FIRMS

PLANTS LOCATED AT CARBON AND DALLAS IN SALE OF ITS PRODUCTS

The Carbon Peanut Company, Inc., which annually buys the majority of the county's "biggest crop," peanuts, is increasing its capitalization from $30,000 to $200,000.

Started in Oct., 1931 by G. C. Atkins at Carbon and Dallas, the company has grown continually and is one of the largest industries in Eastland county.

The rapid and consistent growth of the company is shown in the following figures on sales for the fiscal years ending Dec. 31:

- 1933—$122,565.08.
- 1934—$137,120.90.
- 1935—$250,953.85.
- 1936—$571,892.03.

On July 12, 1932, Atkins and A. H. Groulx and W. W. Hilbrant formed a corporation with a total authorized capital stock of $8,000. The stock was increased to $15,000 on May 9, 1933. Groulx and Hilbrant transferred their stock to Charles E. Darden and Houston Flowers of Carbon. The volume of the business became so great as to necessitate a further increase to $30,000 which was done by charter amendment May 21, 1934.

During the first year of the company's operations, its principal activity was the buying of farmers' stock peanuts and the shelling and manufacturing into shelled Spanish peanuts and their sale to the trade in the Dallas area and the filling of some orders from Kansas City and St. Louis. The earnings during the first four years of its existence amounted to approximately six times its first issued capital more than $50,000.

The company maintained a branch office and warehouse at Dallas where it has conducted a branch office business, catering principally to the Dallas trade territory and manufacturing interests requiring the company's shelled peanuts.

In Carbon the company has a two-story building, together with an office building, feed and milling house and elevators, milling facilities including shellers, graders, conveyors and sacking facilities.

The firm employs approximately 100 men and women as mill employees, together with four men and women in the Carbon office. About 15 men and women are employed in the Dallas office and mill. The company also operates a division the Atkins Popcorn Co.

The set-up of the company is unique, it is observed, in that it has a ready market for all its finished products. Many times they have had to refuse bona fide orders for their products, in as much as 10 and 15 carload-lot orders.

The company buys peanuts and popcorn direct from the farmers and producers in Eastland county, and the adjoining territory, Bexar county and in the adjoining producing territories all of which raw material has been shipped to the milling plant at Carbon and there processed and sold by freight railroads direct or through the Dallas warehouse.

The company has one of the most up-to-date peanut and popcorn shelling plants at Dallas.

The management of the company is in the hands of Atkins, president and member of the board of directors, who has had considerable experience in the business. He is the son of Center Atkins, a well-known in San Antonio and Dallas.

Charles E. Darden is an office manager, bookkeeper and executive of the company with an understanding of marketing products and of the peanut and popcorn markets and trends.

Houston Flowers is in charge of the milling and shelling operations at Carbon.

Darden is secretary-treasurer and director; Flowers, vice president and director; Paul H. Gunther, director, and A. H. Groulx, director.

The company has maintained a policy of selling quality products direct to the food manufacturers and consumers. The consuming market has never reached a saturation point and it has never been necessary for the company to seek by solicitation new orders for their products.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT

CRIME FILE ON BOLITHO BLANE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Investigating the murder of ALBERTO BLANE, British financier, aboard CARLTON ROCKSABAVE, yacht, Detective Officer KETTERING runs into a maze of conflicting clues.

As investigation progresses he charts the possible motives for each of the ship's passengers: MRS. REGINALD JOCELYN, none so far as known; COUNT POSODINI, strong motive; BISHOP OF BUDES, of one motive since Blane knew of his unsavory past.

LADY WETHER, strong motive of financial gain; KOSUKE HAYASHI, strong motive of financial gain; MISS ROCKSABAVE, none; CHARLES YOUNG, Detective Officer and NICHOLAS STODARE, Blane's secretary, are comparatively ruled out.

Blane was in the ship's lounge all during the period in which Blane obviously was murdered.

As Kettering rounds out his deductions, Rocksavage appears with physical evidence of proof of his presence in the cabin when the first shot was fired. Blane's long-sleeved shirt corroborated this testimony.

CHAPTER XXII

THEN examined the contents of the wastepaper baskets, which had been removed from each of the parties' cabins on the morning following the crime, and three items of interest emerged from this examination.

In the refuse from Count Posodini's cabin I found 31 cigarette ends, 25 of these are Chesterfields, but the other 6 are an English brand called Players, and out of these six have obvious traces of lipstick on them.

In the refuse from Miss Rocksavage's cabin I found a twist of hair which had obviously been removed from a comb. Most of this hair comes from the head of Miss Ferri Rocksavage, but mingled with it there are a few short, black curly hairs, which definitely suggest that a man had used that comb after her.

Among the refuse from the Bishop of Bude's cabin I found one match torn out of a booklet of matches, upon which is printed in black letters the words "Adieu-Claridge."

I then re-examined various members of the party.

DETECTIVE OFFICER NEAME'S SHORTHAND NOTES OF DETECTIVE OFFICER KETTERING'S THIRD EXAMINATION OF THE HONORABLE MRS. JOCELYN.

K.: Come in, Mrs. Jocelyn. Sit down, do.

P.J.: What, more questions, already?

K.: Yes. Sorry I've got to trouble you again, but let's make it as pleasant as we can. Have a cigarette?

P.J.: No thanks, I only smoke

my own.

K.: Right, then. May I have one of yours so we can be sociable?

P.J.: Certainly.

K.: I see you smoke Players. Very popular brand in England?

P.J.: Very.

K.: That's a charming shade of lipstick you use, Mrs. Jocelyn.

P.J.: Need we go into that?

K.: I'm afraid we've got to. I'm going to trouble you for the lipstick you have in your bag at the moment.

P.J.: But I don't understand.

K.: Never mind. Just hand it over, will you. I'll save all sorts of trouble in the end if you'll oblige me now.

P.J.: All right. There's nothing very exciting about my lipstick, but I'm sure I don't want to be searched. Here it is.

K.: Thanks. You won't mind if I keep it will you? We shall need it later to prove that it matches the lipstick on these cigarette ends which I've got in this little tin box—see?

P.J.: Why—yes. But . . .

K.: Players, all of them, Mrs. Jocelyn, smoked by you and found the morning after Blane's death in Count Posodini's cabin. Now, don't get me all wrong. I'm not trying to fix you for murder, and I'm not trying to raise any nasty scandal about you. The point is that some time between the morning of the 7th and the morning of the 8th you smoked these cigarettes in Posodini's cabin.

If it was, as I have reason to believe, that you were at 7:45 and 8:10 p. m. that lets you out of any suggestion that you were doing anything with the Count that you shouldn't have.

On the other hand, if you didn't smoke them at that time, it might suggest that you were there for a very much longer period and then—no offense—but it might be suggested that you and the Count were up to the sort of thing your husband wouldn't care to hear about.

P.J.: I have nothing to add to my previous statement.

K.: All right, Mrs. Jocelyn. Then the presumption is that you were in the Count's cabin at some other, and probably a much longer, period during that 24 hours. If that comes out, as it may quite well have to in a case like this, what will your husband have to say?

P.J.: A lot I expect. I'm . . .

K.: That doesn't appear to worry you much?

P.J.: As a matter of fact it's just the sort of little lesson I've been meaning to give him for some time.

K.: So he's been playing you up with Ferri, eh? I guessed as much.

P.J.: I did not say so.

K.: Wait a minute, though. I'm going to put you wise to something which may make you think differently before you burn your boats. The bird you know as Count Posodini is actually "Slick" Daniels; con man and card sharp. Here's his police record. Take a look.

P.J.: I have nothing to add to my previous statement.

K.: Oh, Lord! Let me put it to you another way, then. Mr. Rocksavage and the ship's doctor both saw your husband still unchanged in the passage at 8:10. So your bluff about his being in his bath at 7:45 is now quite useless. Get that?

P.J.: Yes.

K.: On the other hand there is very strong presumptive evidence that Posodini did in Blane. As "Slick" is a known criminal that makes the presumption doubly strong. Now, you seem a decent sort of girl. Just because a man has a criminal record behind him you're surely not going to see him sent to the chair for a murder he didn't do, if you can stop it, are you?

P.J.: I see. Yes, that does make a big difference, doesn't it? All right, then. I was in the Count's cabin. When we came below at a quarter to eight I went in to borrow a book and I sat there talking to him for the best part of half an hour.

K.: Then, why the heck didn't you say so to begin with?

P.J.: Isn't that obvious?

K.: Yes, because your husband told you not to. Did he know where you'd been?

P.J.: I intended that he should. I suppose I might as well tell you everything now. My husband and I haven't been getting on very well lately and this trip has brought matters to a head. When he and Ferri started throwing eyes at each other on the first day out from New York I decided to start a party of my own with the Count.

I knew quite well that I could take care of myself and I thought that, if I spent half an hour alone with the Count in his cabin, before changing that night, Reggie would be certain to ask why I was so late. As it was I had all my trouble for nothing. He was so occupied himself that he never even thought to ask where I had been.

K.: I understand.

P.J.: I wouldn't have told you this unless you'd had proof already that he didn't come down till ten past eight.

K.: Thank you, Mrs. Jocelyn. (To Be Continued)

Save this installment as evidence to help you solve the crime.

THE NEW COMMANDMENT

Text: John 12:20-33; 13:34-35

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of Advance

THE shadow of death that hovered over the Master is already evident in the story of this lesson about certain Greeks, evidently devout men who shared the faith of the Israelites, and who were among those who went up to worship at the feast of the Passover at Jerusalem.

They had heard of Jesus, and they wished to know more about Him. There is a certain air of mystery about the narrative. The Greeks came to Philip, and made known to him their wish to see Jesus. Philip seems to have questioned whether the Master would receive them or not. He tells Andrew about it, and Andrew and Philip tell Jesus.

Without any indication whether Jesus had received the Greeks or not, we have the record of His breaking forth in words concerning Himself. "The hour" He says, "is come that the Son of man should be glorified." And He adds the mystic words, "Except a grain of wheat fall into the earth and die, it abideth by itself alone; but if it die, it beareth much fruit."

He continues in the mystic saying concerning the love of life, and the losing of life by which one finds it. He is emphasizing very strongly the crucial nature of Christian discipleship. It is not something easy. It means the linking of men with Christ in great matters of judgment and destiny.

THE disciples could hardly have understood these mystic words of Jesus and all He continued to say concerning the judgment of this world and the casting out of the prince of this world.

They could hardly have understood what He meant when he said, "If I be lifted up from the earth, I will draw all men unto myself." But afterwards, in the light of Calvary, they were able to perceive that He had said this concerning His death.

What was the essential meaning of all this for the disciples? What is the meaning of it for us today? Jesus says that it is all found in the new commandment of love. This is the meaning of His earthly life and mission: to bring into the world a new order of love. It is this that is the test of Christian discipleship.

A LATER writer was to emphasize this when he asked, "He that loveth not his brother, whom he hath seen, how can he love God, whom he hath not seen?" The best commentary upon this passage in the Gospel of John is to be found in the fourth chapter of the First Epistle of John. There we find set forth very splendidly the whole philosophy of Christian love as a bond between man and man, and as the one great link between God and man.

It is the same theme that Paul expounds in the great chapter on love—the 13th of First Corinthians. It is the greatest theme in the history of man, and to live that love in act and thought, is the highest possible life for man.

WHEN you seek novelty, add a few nuts to your recipe. Most people like the taste of almonds, pecans, walnuts and peanuts for a change, and as they are cheap now and also add calories, better try them.

Walnut Pecan Bread

(1 loaf)

One cup chopped walnut meats, 1 cup chopped pecan meats, 3-4 cup sugar, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 2 3-4 cups flour, 1 egg, 2 teaspoons baking powder.

Sift flour and sugar together. Add sugar. Slowly add milk, mixing evenly. Beat egg, add. Sift in baking powder, then add nut meats chopped fine. Mix well and stand in warm place for 15 minutes. Pour into greased bread tin. Bake in fairly hot oven (375 degrees F.) for about 1 hour. When it cools, slice and watch the youngsters grin.

A fruit salad makes a grand spring tonic. Serve it with a nut dressing.

Pecan-Almond Dressing

(1 cup)

One-quarter cup lemon juice, 1-4 cup orange juice, 1-2 cup olive oil, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 3-4 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons pulverized pecans, 2 tablespoons pulverized almonds.

Combine the liquids and then add pulverized nuts. Stir well and chill and pour over the fruit and lettuce.

children want to help you, give them several bags of nuts to shell. Then, in order to keep shelled nuts on hand in first class condition, put them up in jars. The Consumers Council recommends this method:

First put freshly cracked nut meats into sterilized glass fruit jars. Adjust, but do not tighten, the glass lids and rubbers. Place the jars in an ordinary clothes boiler, or a big kettle with a wooden rack on the bottom. Put in about 2 inches of water, and make sure the lid is on tight. Let the water boil for 20 minutes. Then remove the jars rapidly and tighten the tops down as quickly as possible.

Prepared this way, and stored in the dark at ordinary room temperature, nut meats will keep fresh even during hot weather. Remember that the jars must be left uncovered and that water must not be higher than 2 inches when canning them.

Wednesday, testimonial service, 8 p. m.
Public cordially invited.
"Mind" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, February 21.

The Golden Text is "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding" (Proverbs 3:5).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord" (Deuteronomy 6:4).

The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "We can have but one Mind, if that one is infinite. We bury the sense of infinitude, when we admit that, although God is infinite, evil has a place in this infinity, for evil can have no place, where all space is filled with God" (page 469).

Mrs. Hollis Bennett

Entertains Club Board:

The executive board of the Junior Thursday club attended its first board dinner, as guests of Mrs. Hollis Bennett, library chairman of club, who entertained with a dinner party, 6 p. m., at her home 209 South Connellee, on Thursday, prior to the evening session of the club in Community clubhouse.

Two tables, laid in Maderia linens, and centered in canary color vases, or sweetpeas and ferns, in pastel tints, matching the spring time place cards for seven covers, were arranged for the first course, pineapple cocktail; the dinner plate, pork chops with mushroom sauce, green peas, potato au gratin, hot rolls; combination vegetable salad with mayonnaise topping, and last course, date pudding with whipped cream and coffee.

Plate favors were corsages of sweetpeas.

In the business transacted by the president, Miss Mary Carter, it was voted to subscribe to the new scholarship fund of the sixth district.

The "Twilight Tea" to be hosted by Mrs. Carter.

Would Plow Patsy's Pups Under

If Rosamond Wright of Los Angeles, above, had her way, then pensive Patsy, this Irish setter, couldn't keep her even dozen omnivorous offspring, Miss Wright recently appeared before the Los Angeles Board of Supervisors, asking that legislation be passed condemning to death all except one of every litter of puppies. It would, she said, combat rabies. When Los Angeles dog lovers rallied to the dogs' cause, it appeared that Patsy could exchange her woe-begone look, keep her 12 pups

Daredevil Airmen In Lyric Picture

A thrill-packed melodrama of flying aces, foreign spies and modern romance, "Crack-Up" the Twentieth Century-Fox picture today at the Lyric Theatre, is pulse-quickening entertainment that keeps spectators on the edges of their seats, with its fast-action and suspense, right up to the exciting surprise climax.

The story opens at the christening of a giant plane, designed to pioneer trans-Atlantic travel service. Ralph Morgan, builder of the plane; Brian Donlevy, famous ace who is to fly it; Thomas Beck, his co-pilot; and Peter Lorre, half-mad cripple, mascot of the airport, are present.

Beck idolizes Donlevy, who is really the tool of a foreign spy ring. To excite Beck's sympathy he tells him that the manufacturer for whom Beck's sweetheart, Helen Wood, works, has stolen the plans of a propeller which he invented.

The plans are missed, Helen questioned, and investigators realize at once they are on the plane. Lorre, a stowaway, appears, and says he is the foreign spy to whom Donlevy was to sell the plans. A dramatic radio message from Helen tells Beck the real truth.

The final scenes provide a most unusual and thrilling climax to a picture loaded with thrills.

Colbert, MacMurray In New Romance

The romance of a Puritan maiden and dashing Virginia cavalier in old Salem, brings Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray together again in "Maid of Salem," a Frank Lloyd production which begins today at the Connellee Theatre.

The popular pair, enact their latest love story in the period of American history when the famous witchcraft scare of 1692 broke out in Boston, spread to the adjoining colonies and, before it was over, was responsible for the execution of nineteen innocent women who were charged with being in league with the devil.

The film romance, directed by Lloyd; the only director who won the coveted Academy Award three times, is based on actual occurrences which took place in Salem in 1692. A staff of over one hundred expert research workers was employed to dig into libraries and private collections for old documents and letters to make the film authentic.

CHURCH OF GOD

Robert E. Bowden, Pastor.

We had unusually large attendance upon all the services last Sunday. We welcome back all the new folks who were at our services.

Next Sunday all services at the regular hour. Sunday school at 9:45. Morning Worship, 11 a. m. C. G. Y. P. at 6:45. And the evening sermon at 7:30.

Plans are being made for our spring revival to begin sometime in April.

The young people had an enjoyable time at their social at the parsonage Tuesday night. Different games were played in which all that were present took part. Strawberry shortcake with whip cream and cocoa, was served as refreshments.

A large group from the Eastland congregation attended the Young People's Rally at Cisco last Friday night. The program was composed of solos, duets, quartets, readings, sermonets and a splendid talk by Dr. Lindel of Cisco.

If you are not attending Sunday school or church elsewhere and would like to cast your lot with a

HOME OWNERSHIP PAYS IN SATISFACTION AND MONEY DIVIDENDS..

A good home is a real treasure . . Homes do not happen by miracle. People still have to work and sacrifice for home ownership. Much money is spent on maintaining the home and keeping it beautiful but usually not as much as the tenant pays for rent month by month. Satisfaction in owning pays half the cost. The other half is so small that you would not miss it from the monthly budget.

Remember 10% down buys any place we have. Taxes and insurance are conveniently paid by the month along with your loan payment. It's your fault if you are not a home owner in thirty days.
