Editor Must Have Right to Express His Opinions

The Tennessee Senate has just passed a bill, which has yet to be passed by the House and signed by the governor before it becomes law, but which would provide severe punishment for any editor or publisher in whose editorial columns appears an "untruth."

Publication of such an "untruth," the bill specifies, "shall be deemed to have been done knowingly, wilfully, and with the intention to harm or destroy the character of the person or persons affected."

Besides payment of a fine, the bill provides that the offending newspaper executive is to be barred for life from acting as editor or publisher on any newspaper in the state.

The measure in question is the brain-child of a Chattanooga lawyer, Senator Fletcher R. Morgan, who apparently has been the target of much editorial criticism. In commenting on the bill, Senator Morgan vilified newspapers as vehicles that besmirch and destroy the character of their opponents, and compel public officials to disregard their own consciences or convictions.

For a proper perspective on the situation, it is necessary only to refer again to the recent case of that critical editor of a California weekly newspaper.

In late November of last year, if you will remember, this gentleman issued in his editorial columns a vituperative attack on no less a personage than President Roosevelt.

Among other things, he painted the nation's No 1 man as "a smiling hypocrite," "a mountebank of the lowest order," and "the biggest 'false alarm' since the creation of man."

An irate reader immediately took up the cudgel in defense of the president, filed a complaint, and had the editor arrested on a charge of criminal libel.

Is the caustic newspaperman now languishing in stir? Not a bit of it. On the ground that his language did not exceed the bounds of proper editorial discretion, the case was immediately thrown out of court.

And this, as cannot be stressed too often, is as it should be. If the American variety of press freedom is not to be anemic, or the hollow mockery that exists in certain dictatorships, an editor must have the liberty of expressing his opinion of public officials, however vigorous that opinion may be.

To prevent him from being unfair, there are stringent libel laws. But if he is to be trussed by other measures, trumped up by vengeful public officials, press freedom and, consequently, the public suffers.

If Senator Morgan feels that he has been treated unfairly, it is to be regretted; but if the American tradition of liberty is to remain untainted, an editor must have the right to say what he thinks.

HE WAS A BIG SHOT FOR A FEW DAYS

WTCC Sponsors Soil and Water Conserving Plan

STAMFORD — The West Texas Chamber of Commerce headquarters here, and the extension service of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College are jointly sponsoring a statewide soil and water conservation act now before the Legislature.

The measure is senate bill No. 4 and house bill No. 24, introduced by Senator Davis of Brownwood and Representative Fuchs of Brenham. Public hearing has been set by the agricultural committee of the two houses for next Wednesday, February 24, and a West Texas delegation probably will be on hand urging passage.

J. O. Guleke of Amarillo, and D. A. Bandeen, manager of the West Texas Chamber, who, with Davis, Fuchs and representatives of the extension service wrote the new bill, said it would be in harmony with federal soil conservation and flood control legislation, thus qualifying for federal aid, and has been, in fact, approved by federal agencies. Bandeen made public letters from Alvin R. Allison of Levelland, President of the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners association, and from Van Zandt Jarvis, WTCC president, quoting this excerpt from Jarvis' letter to all West Texas Chamber directors

"The destruction of our land by wind and water and the retention of our water where it falls, is a problem which West Texas must solve if we are to retain and preserve our land, agricultural and livestock industries. This bill will render aid to every county and every landowner in a program of keeping our top soil where it is and our waste water where it falls.

"In addition, the bill renders aid to our cities, and towns in their water, food and allied problems. It does all this without imposing new local taxes. Furthermore, no new agencies are created and we use the agencies and political subdivisions already in existence. The bill in my opinion is the most practical method yet proposed for attacking our various types of conservation problems. Under its provisions, facilities are offered so that everybody everywhere can be benefited." Mayor Ross Rodgers of Amarillo also has joined in solidifying West Texas for the measure by urging all West Texas mayors actively to support it.

The bill declares (a) that the farm, grazing and timber lands of the state are among its basic assets and their preservation is necessary to protect and promote health, safety and the general welfare; (b) that the consequences of soil erosion are almost incalculably tragic; (c) that to conserve soil resources and prevent erosion appropriate land use practices are essential including construction of terraces, check-dams, lower water dams, rodent control, strip-cropping, lister and contour furrowing, reforestation, reforestation, crop rotation, planting of soil holding crops, retirement from cultivation of highly erosive areas, and other measures.

The bill would create a state soil conservation board of nine members, of whom five would be selected from as many districts whose boundaries are fixed in the bill to bring equal representation to all sections of the state. Members would be paid not to exceed $10 for each working day, with travel expense. The state treasurer would have custody of all funds and securities of the board. A $10,000 appropriation is asked for, to get the program started; and for the next biennium, $50,000 appropriation.

The bill would create county soil conservation districts co-extensive with the boundaries of any county, which may be formed into a conservation district by vote of its qualified citizens. When a district is created, the county judge and county commissioners would become the governing body. A district board would assist landowners in carrying out soil conservation measures, to be financed, so far as the state is concerned, by the diversion to each district, for a period of ten years beginning 1937, of funds accruing from 10 cents of the state ad valorem tax rate. The act says:

"Funds arising from property taxed lying outside of incorporated cities and towns and within the county soil conservation district shall be used for soil conservation purposes x x upon lands lying outside of incorporated cities and towns.

"Funds arising from property taxed lying within the territorial limits of incorporated cities and towns located within the x x district shall be used for municipal water supply, flood control works, drainage and other municipal purposes either within or without the territorial limits of such incorporated cities or towns."

The bill provides that no debt or obligation shall ever be created by any soil conservation district that cannot be reasonably retired within a period of 10 years out of funds granted under provisions of the act.

Under the bill, two or more county districts may organize and pool their resources and labors in meeting common problems.

Houses "Divided" in Strike Protest

Dislike for the policies of John L. Lewis, leader of the CIO's sit-down strikers, has prevailed over the neighborliness of Mrs. Fleming Holland, leading to her announcement that she would not open her palatial house (top) in Alexandria, Va., for the annual tour of historic residences if Lewis' cottage (below) is included in the itinerary. Both houses are famous examples of colonial architecture and are furnished with antiques.

Memorial at San Jacinto Will Tower Up 564 Feet In Air

HOUSTON, Texas — Construction of the huge memorial at historic San Jacinto Battleground, 22 miles from this city, will bring to Texas a tower whose apex will be nine feet nearer the clouds than the Washington Monument.

Representing committed expenditures of $1,150,000, this magnificent memorial will tower 564 feet above the hallowed soil on which General Sam Houston and his tattered band of fearless pioneers so decisively defeated General Santa Anna, thus lifting the yoke of Mexican oppression from Texas.

The actual height of the San Jacinto Memorial will be 549 feet the additional footage being represented in the terraces.

Approaching the monument will be two terraces, one rising six feet above the ground and possessing a spread of 364 feet in each direction; the other rising nine feet and having a spread of 244 feet each way.

The base building of the monument will be 124 feet square and 36 feet high. The entrance approach to this will be through a Hall of Honor, 44 by 45 feet, in which niches will be provided for statues of the heroic men and women who penetrated the wilderness that was Texas 100 years ago.

To the left of the Hall of Honor will be a museum of historical relics, which will occupy a space 36 by 103 feet. To the right will be a spacious meeting hall and art gallery, matching in size the Museum Hall.

The spacious entrance lobby will run directly through the Hall of Honor. An elevator will whisk visitors to the observation tower far above the lobby.

The tower shaft will be 47 feet square at the base and 30 feet square at the top.

For a time there, when the heat was turned off, it appeared that the Flint "sit-down" might turn into a "walk-about beating arms" strike.

An amphitheater seating more than 5000 persons will be included in the rear of the base building. The memorial will be constructed of reinforced concrete faced with variegated golden buff Texas limestone. This stone is of shell formation and when polished has a surface similar to Travertine marble. The polished stone will be used for interior work; the rough sawn material for the exterior.

A top shaft will be a huge star, which will show five points from every direction. Plastered Relics and the meeting hall will be decorated with mural paintings, the subject matter of which is yet to be worked out. However, it is believed these will depict the pageant of Texas history during the past 100 years.

Funds for the erection of this gigantic project were made available through an appropriation by the State of Texas, a grant by the Public Works Administration, the Works Progress Administration and the federal government by direct appropriation.

The estimated cost of the structure does not include proposed expenditures for sculptural groups and murals.

The work is being performed under the supervision of the Public Works Administration and Alfred C. Finn, Houston architect. Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, who several months ago broke ground for the memorial, using a 100-year-old wooden plow drawn by a team of oxen, is responsible for the design. During his Christmas vacation, which he spent in Houston, Mr. Jones planned the beginning of the project and during subsequent visits, reviewed and dictated the design to its completion.

The base has in it 315 tons of steel, 22 carloads of cement and 1,800,000 gallons of water.

For a time there, when the heat was turned off, it appeared that the Flint "sit-down" might turn into a "walk-about beating arms" strike.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—A recent decision of the eighth circuit court of appeals and the events and factors surrounding it provide at least partial answer to several current questions, among them:

Why didn't the National Labor Relations Board function in the General Motors strike?

What did Roosevelt mean by "government by injunction" in his recent message to Congress?

What is the significance of the Wagner act now spectacularly before the supreme court?

Why has the administration failed to take a stern attitude toward sit-down strikes?

The decision of the three judges in the circuit court of appeals (only one of whom is over 70) was a refusal to vacate a stay which since last July has prevented the NLRB from investigating and holding hearings on complaints that General Motors had discharged numerous employees for union activity, employed industrial spies and dominated employee organizations at the St. Louis Chevrolet-Fisher Body assembly plant. The complaints involved alleged violations of the Wagner Labor Relations act and the board complained that under the stay it was "prevented from discharging its duties under the laws of the United States."

The court denied the request to vacate the stay.

ROOSEVELT, in his message, said, "We find the processes of government itself brought to a complete stop from time to time by injunctions issued almost automatically, sometimes even without notice to the government, and not infrequently in clear violation of the principle of equity that injunctions should be granted only in those rare cases of manifest illegality and irreparable damage against which the ordinary course of the law offers no protection."

The administration unofficially holds that sit-down strikes are no more unlawful than the threatening, coercion and discharge of employees in violation of the Wagner act.

to its continued operation. The NLRB, on the other hand, claimed it was seeking to prevent industrial strife arising from grave violations of law, which would create a stoppage in the flow of interstate commerce. The court decided for the company.

After that time, strikes of 3900 workers at the St. Louis plant and 2500 in General Motors plants at Kansas City, Mo., also under jurisdiction of the eighth circuit court, closed those plants. While the strike was on, NLRB petitioned the court to vacate the stay, urging that "the situation has greatly changed and a present emergency exists in respect thereto. The industrial disputes which the National Labor Relations Board sought to prevent, and of which it warned in its June complaint have now occurred. . . . Every consideration of equity, as well as of the paramount public interest, indicates that the stay herein should be vacated and the National Labor Relations Board allowed to administer the applicable law of the United States."

The court denied the request to vacate the stay.

ROOSEVELT, in his message, said, "We find the processes of government itself brought to a complete stop from time to time by injunctions issued almost automatically, sometimes even without notice to the government, and not infrequently in clear violation of the principle of equity that injunctions should be granted only in those rare cases of manifest illegality and irreparable damage against which the ordinary course of the law offers no protection."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

SOME cakes must be eaten at once, others can wait amiably on the pantry shelf, hoping that some friends will drop in by and bye. One such expansive type is Molly Saunders' Upper Self Cake. It's made with:

Molly's Pound Cake (3 loaves)
One cup butter, 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 cups flour, 1-4 teaspoon mace, 5 eggs, 1 t. lespoon brandy and 1 more teaspoon brandy to pour over the cake after baking.

Sift flour and mace together 3 times. Cream butter well, add sugar a little at a time, and cream together until fluffy. Add eggs by beating into mixture one at a time. When half of the eggs have been added, add a scant cup flour, beat, add remaining eggs, one at a time until all have been used. Again add flour and beat until mixture is light and fluffy. Add flavoring and remaining flour. Blend thoroughly. Line loaf pans with greased paper. Pour in batter.

Bake in very slow oven (200 degrees F.) for 3-4 hours, then begin gradually to increase heat until it reaches moderately slow (325 degrees F.). The baking time will vary, taking from 2 to 4 hours depending on your oven, the altitude and general weather conditions. Test it yourself for finished baking. When cool, pour brandy over the loaves and put away on "the upper shelf" to wait for that sociable call.

Kentucky women are noted for their sturdy hospitality. This loaf cake recipe comes from such a person—from Mrs. Frank McCollum, whose ancestors had much to do with the founding of the famous Berea College.

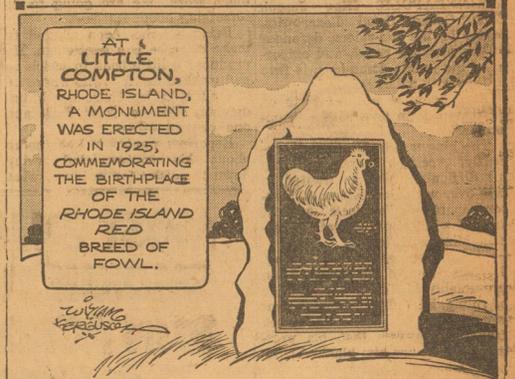

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Sliced bananas and cream, corn flakes, orange muffins, coffee, milk.
LUNCHEON: Baked lima beans with bacon, shredded carrot salad, eggless butterless cake, tea, milk.
DINNER: Chopped celery and lettuce salad, veal fricassee, brown rice, buttered kale, canned apricots, Molly's pound cake, coffee, milk.

Butterless—Eggless Cake (2 small loaves)
One cup brown sugar, 1 cup water, 1-2 cup lard or clarified grease, 2 cups seedless raisins, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-4 teaspoon ground cloves, 1 teaspoon salt. Then, 1 cup broken nut meats, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder.

Boil sugar, water, lard, raisins, cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves and salt together for 3 minutes. Then sift in flour, soda and baking powder. Mix well, add nut meats. Bake in 2 small greased pans in moderate oven (350 deg. F) for 45 minutes, or until done.

Both these friendship cakes are rather old fashioned. Which may explain both their satisfying qualities and their willingness to wait patiently for the friendly tap of the brass knocker on the door.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD - By William Ferguson

WAS THERE EVER A YEAR "ZERO"?

IN 1900, there was considerable discussion as to whether that year was the last of the 19th century, or the beginning of the 20th. However, since there was no intervening year "zero" between A. D. 1 and 1 B. C., it follows that the first century ended with the completion of the year A. D. 100, and the 19th century ended with the completion of 1900.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT

CRIME FILE ON BOLITHO BLANE

By Dennis Wheatley

MEMO

To Detective Officer Kettering, Solution of murder perfectly clear on evidence submitted.

Arrest Bolitho Blane, now posing as his secretary, for the murder of Nicholas Stodart.

JOHN MILTON SCHWAB, Lieutenant Florida Police.

LEUTENANT SCHWAB'S ANALYSIS OF THE FOREGOING EVIDENCE.

THE TIME of the murder was set between 7:45 and 8:30, owing to a message, supposedly in the victim's handwriting, appearing on a leaf torn from Stodart's diary, which was not in existence until 7:40.

Compare the share quotations supposedly written by Stodart, however, with other examples of handwriting known to have been written by Blane. The word "Rocksavage" in the share list also occurs twice in Blane's letter to Stodart and twice in his letter to the Bishop. The similarity of the first to the other four immediately springs to the eye, only the "s" and the "g" differing to any extent. Other similarities appear on closer inspection and there can be no doubt that all three documents were written by the same person.

Not the victim, but the writer of the share quotations therefore wrote the alleged last message, so there is no evidence as to when the murder was committed. The alibi of the man presumed to be Stodart begins only at 7:25 when he entered the lounge. If the crime was committed before that his alibi falls to the ground.

Examination of the evidence brings other points to light showing that the man known as Stodart throughout the investigation is in reality Bolitho Blane. These are as follows:

First—Photograph D of Blane's bathroom shows a safety razor of the washstand, whereas photograph E of Stodart's cabin shows a cut-throat razor on the washstand. The photograph presume to be of Stodart, flashed by Detective Officer Neame on the morning after the crime, shows a razor cut on the man's face. It is obvious that he had always been used to shaving with a safety razor but, as suite C was locked after the murder, he could not get at this, and had to do the cut-throat razor that was in Stodart's cabin.

Second—On examination of the photograph presumed to be of Stodart, it is apparent that his coat is wearing is too big for him, as the sleeve is overlong, and the garment must have been built for a slightly taller man. It is obvious that Blane, having changed identities with his secretary, had to wear his secretary's clothes, which did not quite fit him.

THIRD—It will be recalled that on the night of the 8th, when the man presumed to be Stodart dined with Kettering, he complained of an abscess which was causing him trouble with his false teeth and, as the upper set were slipping badly, he was unable to eat any solids. An examination of photograph D of Blane's bathroom, shows a tooth brush and a plate brush, the latter being an indication that Blane had false teeth, whereas in photograph E of Stodart's cabin there is on the wash basin an ordinary tooth brush only.

Further, in the inventory of Blane's belongings there appears a bottle of Gum Tragacanth powder, which is used for sprinkling upon dentures in order to keep these in position in the mouth. As suite C was locked after the crime, Blane was no longer able to get at this powder, hence his difficulty in keeping his false teeth in place on the following night.

Fourth—It will be recalled that, at the end of his first examination, on the morning after the crime, the Bishop of Bude fainted. At that time it was assumed, upon the Bishop's word, that his faint was caused by a weak heart and the fact that he had had no breakfast.

It is clear, however, that the true reason was the shock he sustained upon the man, presumed to be Stodart, coming into the cabin. As the Bishop had not breakfasted with the others it was the first time that morning he had seen the secretary and, as he knew him to be Blane, he must have thought at first that he was seeing a ghost.

The reason for Blane's letter written from New York to the Bishop, warning him that some very strange things might occur once the yacht put to sea, and that whatever might happen the Bishop was to keep his mouth shut for his own sake, now becomes apparent.

Blane's confession on his arrest confirms the above deductions.

JOHN MILTON SCHWAB, Lieutenant Florida Police.

CONFESSION OF BOLITHO BLANE.

YES, all right then, I killed him. Little scyphont, what se was he, anyway?

I've known since last December at I might have to get out any minute. In fact, I suppose I've realized it might have to come sometime ever since I started sinning.

All I wanted was peace, and I saw if I could find someone to go into my shoes and leave me to step into I could have it. I started looking in January for someone whom my shoes would fit. It was only a question of patience. Someone of the right sight, build, age and with no friends would turn up.

Stodart turned up in Ipswich about the fifth place I had spent week in, advertising and interviewing applicants. He was ideal, no friends, no family—just the sort of man I wanted to become myself, so I decided to let him do the first big thing he'd ever done—go out with a bang.

When Rocksavage asked me to his conference I thought there was a faint possibility of pulling things together, and Stodart could have gone back to his clerking. By the time we got to New York, though, I knew my position was hopeless and I decided to put Stodart through the hoop.

I had a nasty shock in New York when I learned the Bishop of Bude was to be on board. Very few people know me by sight and it was rotten luck that one of them should chance to be among this party. Fortunately, however, I knew more about him than he did about me—a nasty business during the war which everyone's forgotten now and I knew that the Bishop would rather that they weren't reminded, so I wrote him a little warning that there was a real trouble coming to him unless he kept his mouth shut.

I DON'T suppose you want to know how it was all done. I got some closing prices from New York by long distance before coming on board and wrote them in a disguised handwriting I had been practicing a long time on a page of my diary. I wrote a message to Stodart in my own writing on the other side, and put it in my pocket.

As soon as we were on board I gave Stodart some work to do in our drawing room and went to the Bishop. I found my note had had the desired effect.

Then I went back to the drawing room and gave Stodart a little knock on the back of the head with a hammer I had with me for the job. He was sitting at the small round table, so I moved the writing table away from the window and dragged him across to it and popped him out. It was quite dark by then so no one could see from the deck. Then I threw the hammer and the gloves I wore while I was arranging the room to join him. I found I'd cracked his silly thin skull, so I had to sponge out a spot of blood on the carpet before I changed into evening dress in his room.

I GOT up to the lounge at half-past seven and introduced myself as Stodart and after a while wrote the closing prices in my diary again in front of everyone, and in the same kind of handwriting. I told the steward to push it under the door of the cabin and stayed in the lounge until the bugle sounded for dinner.

After that everything went according to plan. At 8:30 the Steward came up with the note I had left addressed to Stodart and I hurried down with him to the cabin. I exchanged the note I had kept in my pocket with the one that had been pushed under the door. That proved the missing party was alive at 7:45, and you see, although I'd worked this thing out pretty carefully, the difference between doing a thing just well and doing it properly is the make allowances for the unexpected. I didn't see why the suicide story shouldn't be accepted.

You know, it's almost worth it to have seen the Bishop's face when he saw me the next morning and realized I hadn't committed suicide. After thinking he was rid of me he must have realized what I had done. That's why he fainted.

Well, that's all, and since it hasn't come off I want to see it finished with as little delay and formality as possible.

Teacher of Marriage Course Says That Texas Marriage Laws Are Not Perfect

By United Press

AUSTIN, Texas—It's all right to marry a 14-year-old girl in Texas so far as the law is concerned, but a man may not marry his son's widow.

Socially-conscious persons pointed out this anomaly in the state's marriage laws while others found satisfaction that statutes at least prohibit so-called "child marriages," such as that which made a bride of a nine-year-old Tennessee school girl.

Dr. C. W. Hall, who teaches a marriage course at the University of Texas, believes the minimum ages for marriage with parental consent—14 for girls, 16 for boys—should be raised but hesitates to name new brackets. "Statistics show a high percentage of marriages by those under 20 are unsuccessful. I don't know just what limits the law ought to set, but 14 and 16 are too young."

Judge Speer, now attorney for the state banking department, is a ranking authority on Texas' marriage laws and author of a book on the subject, "Law of Marital Rights in Texas." He would set minimum marriage ages at 16 and 20 if he were writing the law.

Probation officers who have talked many a young couple out of juvenile matrimony have denounced generally parents who "sell their children" in early marriages.

Texas' laws governing matrimony are so simple they allow for few freak quirks, but they came into being in revolutionary times and it was necessary for the Republic of Texas to pass several measures giving blanket validation to existing marriages.

"Whereas, many persons heretofore previous to the passage of an act approved June 5, 1837, regulating marriages and for other purposes, had, for want of some reason legally qualified to celebrate the rites of matrimony, resorted to the practice of marrying by bond, and others have been married by various officers of justice not authorized to celebrate such marriages . . . therefore, all such marriages are declared valid to all intents and purposes . . ."

Thus the Republic relieved highly worthy couples of any possible stigma.

Because their lack of legal status precluded a civil contract, slaves could not marry; theirs was merely a "permitted cohabitation," Judge Speer points out, until the constitution of 1869 validated the marriages of those who were living together although the law of bondage cut off their matrimonial rights.

Marriage without parental consent is set at 21 for men, 18 for women. When a woman marries as a minor, she automatically attains her majority, except to vote, and although she might be widowed or divorced the next day, she still would be able to execute contracts without consent of parents or guardian. But here the law fails to work both ways. Many marrying under 21 remain minors in the eyes of the law until they are 21.

Judge Speer believes marriage had its origin "in the breast of Divinity," and cites the Adam and Eve case as a "precedent the wisdom of which no court has ever questioned."

The legislature questioned its own wisdom, however, when it created a three-day marriage law in this state. Marrying couples evaded it so smartly that in 1933 the law was repealed so as to keep license money within state borders.

In prohibiting incestuous marriages, the state took in a great deal of family. Hence a man cannot marry his father's widow; his son's widow, or the daughter of his wife's son. A woman cannot marry her father's half-brother, her mother's husband after her mother's death or her husband's son.

Employment and Payrolls In Texas Show An Increase

AUSTIN, Texas—Employment and payrolls in Texas during January continued the favorable comparisons with like months of the preceding year which have

The present minimum marriage ages go back to an act of 1866. Before that time youngsters could marry at 12 and 14. The Spanish rule, which once dominated Texas, required couples to be at least seven years old before they might become "betrothed," but marriage without parental consent was forbidden unless the man was 25 and the woman 23.

Texas, like most other states, early recognized common law marriages, which to this day continue in good standing despite the attacks of moralists.

been noted during the past eighteen months, although there was a slight seasonal decline from the preceding month, it was stated in the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Nearly 1,600 Texas establishments have reported 77,000 workers in January, an increase of 8.8 per cent over the year before, but 3.3 per cent under the preceding month. Aggregate weekly payrolls of these establishments were $1,791,882, an increase of 14.9 per cent over January last year, but 2.6 per cent below December, 1936.

Cities in which the increase in employment and pay rolls in January equaled or exceeded the average increase for the State were Amarillo, Denison, El Paso, Houston, Laredo, San Antonio and Sherman.

The following industries showed records superior to the State average: Building materials, clothing and textiles, food products and furniture manufactures.

ALLEY OOP By HAMLIN

IN closing this report I now have to confess myself completely at a loss.

The following is an analysis of what occurred according to my latest information.

MRS. JOCELYN. Could not have done it, because she was with her husband, changing.

MR. ROCKSAVAGE. Could not have done it, because from 8:10 when he came down to his cabin, until he went up changed at 8:35, Dr. Aekland was with him and couches for his presence there.

THE BISHOP OF BUDE. Could not have done it, because from 7:15 until 8:0 the ship's carpenter was doing a job of work outside his cabin and vouchers for the fact that he never left it during the whole of that time.

LADY WELTER. Could not have done it, because her maid, Mildred Short, was with her, in her cabin from 7:05 until 7:35, and from 7:35 till 8:05 she is proved to have been knitting the last sleeve of a jumper, which would have occupied her the whole of that time until she went up to the lounge.

MR. HAYASHI. Could not have done it, because, when he rang his bell at 7:50, the steward found him in his cabin still unchanged, and he was still unchanged when the steward returned at 7:55, with the notepaper. Eight out of the following 20 minutes he was occupied in writing a letter and the balance in changing to arrive in the lounge at 8:15.

MR. JOCELYN. Could not have done it, because from 7:15, when he went below, he was with Miss Ferri Rocksavage in her cabin, until 8:10, and from that time until 8:30 he was with his wife changing.

MISS ROCKSAVAGE. Could not have done it, because from 7:15 she was with Jocelyn in her cabin until 8:10, and from thence onwards she was occupied with changing in the presence of her maid, Nellie Orde.

It seems to me, therefore, that all the parties under suspicion have incontestable alibis, and as we know that Stodart was in the company of various persons in the lounge from 7:30 until 9:35 he could not possibly have committed this murder either. Moreover it could not, on the evidence shown, have been any member of the crew. This leaves me at a completely dead end, and I am now awaiting further instructions.

King Leon of Rods Is In Love But He Won't Abdicate

MINNEAPOLIS—King Joseph Leon—Cohen Segal Lazarowitz, leader of the rod-riders, defender of the no-work creed, and emperor of the jungle dominions, is face to face with a dilemma.

King Leon, as he prefers to be addressed, is in love with a "comonomer."

The king was in Minneapolis recently, "resting" and cogitating his difficulty. Also he wanted to talk over with Gov. Elmer A. Benson reports his "subjects" are not treated with proper respect in certain Minnesota towns.

Since he succeeded the old king, J. Eads How of St. Louis, Leon presumably has done a grand job of ruling. His subjects admire him; worship him, he says. He admitted frankly, however, that his present problem has him blanked completely.

If he marries his lady love, he will have to go to work, that is clear. And if he goes to work, he will have to quit his throne. Whoever heard of a hoboo working?

He is going to make up his mind—soon; as soon, that is, as he visits a certain woman in Winnipeg. Maybe she will have something to say about the decision. King Leon isn't sure.

Leon toyed with a slightly ragged, slightly used cigar as he discussed the problems of the day. He talked freely on national economics and their relation to the knights of the rods.

"We want to return to a 40-hour week," he said, flicking the ashes from his stogie. "We went back to a longer-ride week when the NRA passed out, but that's too much work. We are going to do something about it."

Being a hobo, Leon wanted to make clear he is a gentleman. He produced a little book in which he had marked down towns where he had taken baths. There was Philadelphia, Chicago, New York and one or two others.

Reporters wanted to know more about his contemplated swing down the aisle; for instance, what kind of work he would do.

"That's got me stopped, too," he said slowly. "I never did any work. I'm pretty good at executive work, though."

New Charters In Texas Above the Number for Dec.

AUSTIN, — Number of new charters granted to Texas corporations during January increased in comparison with the preceding month, but decreased in comparison with the corresponding month last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Total capitalization showed an increase over both comparable periods.

"According to reports from the Secretary of State's office there were 129 corporations chartered in January, an increase of 14.2 per cent over the preceding month but a decline of 8.5 per cent from the like month last year," the Bureau announced. "Capitalization totaled $1,980,000, an increase of 15.3 per cent over the preceding month and 17.2 per cent over January last year."

Corporations engaged in manufacturing comprised the only group that showed outstanding gains over both comparable periods.

FIGHTING EDITOR MEETS TWO-FISTED NEWS LASS IN LIVELY SPORTS FILM

The laugh-provoking story of a newspaper man who thought he knew all about women, until a little spiff, knocked him for a wed-ding-ring loop, "Woman-Wise," the Twentieth Century-Fox production which opened yesterday at the Connellee Theatre, moves excitingly through the worlds of news and sports.

In roles which demand an unusual range of ability, from drama to romance to comedy, Michael Whalen and Rochelle Hudson gain new stature in the films, in a strong cast which also features such reliable performers as Thomas Beck, Alan Dinehart, Douglas Fowley, Astrid Allwyn and Chick Chandler.

Michael Whalen plays the crusading sports editor of a great metropolitan daily, who finds that unscrupulous fight promoters, led by Alan Dinehart, are victimizing both old-time fighters and the public, using the once renowned has-beens as setups for vigorous young fighters, and staging betting coups.

When Whalen knocks out one of the ex-champs himself, to expose the fraud, the veteran's daughter, Rochelle Hudson, flails at him with her fists, denouncing him for taking away her father's only chance of support.

Intrigued by the spirit of the little spiff, Michael takes her on as his assistant, giving her the task of keeping the publisher's young son, Thomas Beck, on the job at sports events. She takes so readily to that work that Michael believes her in love with the lad, and forbears to mention his own feelings.

To raise money for the needy ex-champs, Michael demands a weekly cut from all fight promoters, on pain of banning ring news from his department. Through the momentary weakness of young Beck, the promoters frame Michael and expose him as a "shakedown" artist.

Accused of fraud by those he sought to expose, Michael puts up the best fight of his life, breaks up the fixed-fight ring, and, in a surprising romantic climax, gets jolted himself into a different sort of a ring, this time a gold one, for he wasn't as woman-wise as he thought, and the pretty but determined Rochelle has a few things to tell him herself.

Lions Name Four To Assist Band In Uniform Debt

President Donald Kinnaird of the Lions club appointed a committee from that organization to assist in raising money to pay off the indebtedness on the band uniforms at the regular Lions luncheon Tuesday.

The committee consists of Ernest Jones, George Harper, Ted Waggoner and G. W. Cullum, the director of the band.

This committee will work with committees from other organizations in an effort to pay off the indebtedness against the uniforms for the band.

Don Russell and Cyrus B. Frost, Jr., high school students, appeared before the club and made an announcement regarding a series of plays being put on by the high school students. The second of the series will be enacted next Friday night and a special invitation was given to the members to attend. These plays are being sponsored by the dramatic club.

Lions Cartledge, Woody and Patterson were appointed as a program committee for the month of March.

Lions Clyde Grissom and Rip Galloway had charge of the program at Tuesday's meeting, and Lion Grissom introduced Carl Springer, who delivered an address on the problems confronting citizens of today, and urged the members of the club to think and vote intelligently.

He stressed the fact that all national problems affected the citizens of Eastland, which is an average American community, and asked the question, "How do the people of Eastland react to these national problems?"

Visitors at the luncheon Tuesday included Lions Kelly, a n d Clarke of the Ranger club, B. E. Garner and Ted Waggoner.
