Says Mrs. Ferguson Could Lose Court Election Contest, Then Be Legally Sworn In As Governor

BY RAYMOND BROOKS
AUSTIN—Mrs. Ferguson could lose in the court election contest and still legally be sworn in as governor. This is the theory of lawyers friendly to the Ferguson cause. "It doesn't make a particle of difference," said one Ferguson lawyer who has studied the election code, "whether there is a decision on Governor Ross S. Sterling's contest, or what the decision is. Mrs. Ferguson will be on the job, et, she will be elected, and will be inaugurated. "All this will be by strictly legal proceedings under the election law. He did not debate the merits of the contention of illegal voting, but said the election law is such that time limits make Mrs. Ferguson's victory certain. That, he said, will be in line with the ultimate Ferguson court strategy in the election contest. He described the mechanism. (CONTINUED ON PAGE 6)

Wichita Falls May Furnish Four 1934 Candidates

AUSTIN—Wichita Falls, which this year has furnished two candidates for the governor's race, now promises four probable candidates for the same office two years hence. Tom F. Hunter was the democratic candidate and Orville Bullins, now in the republican nomination for governor this year. The Lubbock state convention made Charles I. Francis a logical and important figure in the governor's race two years hence, as the outstanding leader of the anti-Ferguson forces in Texas. Attorney General James V. Aldred is regarded as a certain candidate for the office, one who is returned from taking sides as between the leaders of the opposing forces this year. Mr. Hunter already has said he will be a candidate again. And C. C. McDonald was made the crown prince of the Ferguson forces, and as the all-Ferguson convention closed he was the heir apparent of that side to carry on the fight in the next campaign. He will likely be the candidate for governor, unless the Ferguson decide to seek a life tenure.

Prof. J. Frank Dobie To Appear Here Later

"Comic Characters at the Convention" will be presented by 25th Street Ladies Friday evening in the high school auditorium. Previously it was erroneously stated that Prof. J. Frank Dobie of Texas university would appear in the high school auditorium on the same date. He will appear here later, it was said.

Free! Circus Tickets
Here you are boys and girls! Free tickets to the time limits make Mrs. Ferguson's victory certain. That, he said, will be in line with the ultimate Ferguson court strategy in the election contest. He described the mechanism. (CONTINUED ON PAGE 6)

THIS FALL DISPLAY

In Big Spring stores carrying men's apparel is a complete Style Show of what is proper in men's wear for the Fall season. It submits the vogue in its many phases, in clothing, haberdashery, hats, in style for business men, college men, sportswear, in merchandise priced to meet various budget plans. It offers correct style and value guidance for every man's taste, requirements and appropriation.

Prosperous Looking Men

They're the ones that are meeting prosperity more than half way on its return back. They're the advance guards, the self-appointed reception committee. Their appearance is the badge by which they are identified as belonging to the Prosperity Parade. And the beauty of it all is that at today's prices you do not have to be prosperous to look prosperous. You are simply making your appearance do some advertising for you... advertising that pays and brings results in other men's estimates of your business and social importance.

You'll get the idea when you see yourself in the Fall clothes offered by the merchants of Big Spring. You'll go in for the idea when you see how favorably priced all men's wearing apparel is in the Big Spring Stores. Visit them today! Join the Prosperity Parade.

CHAPTER XI
The weeks drifted by. Steve, male and weak but each day growing stronger, lay in bed, humped about with a cane. He spent the time thinking of the terrace driving to the kitchen, or other things lying in the shade of the coconut palm trees on the beach and loving with Grace.

Grace who risked her life draining the poison from the wound. Nothing the rest of us did would have saved Steve without Miss Gracie!
She was an awful butcher, thought Barry, added, trying to undo Steve's suffering was an unpleasant thought. She hacked and whipped at the wound, you know,
with a knife.

Mona said, "Yet, let's!" The tourists, in twos and threes, were leaving the steamer now, bargaining the companionway for the most desirable of the shifting boats before them.
Mona watched the oars dipping rhythmically as the two boatmen in each craft brought their boats to shore.
"Here comes the mail," Barry
remarked idly.
The motor boat, ignoring the proximity of the rowboats over which it proceeded ruthlessly, had turned and was making toward the dock. A man in white with a dark canvas bag slung over his shoulder leaped ashore, lit a pipe and strode slowly across the square to the postoffice.

Chemical Laboratory

Established To Study Texas Potash Deposits

AUSTIN, Texas—What may be regarded as an important step toward the ultimate development of potash deposits situated on lands owned by the University of Texas has been taken by the establishment of a chemical laboratory by that institution in connection with the geological and mineralogical department of the Board of Geographical Names at San Angelo. The primary purpose of the laboratory is to analyze samples of salts taken from test wells drilled for oil with the view of discovering their potash content. W. C. Cunningham of the chemical department at the university has gone to San Angelo to take charge of the new laboratory. By systematic study of the well cores from wells drilled on university lands it will be determining the extent and commercial possibilities of the potash beds that are known to exist in a number of areas of West Texas.

ree, Hatliff and others. Lubbock is wonderfully situated to grow for many years from 4,000 in 1920 to 22,000 in 1930; it has developed a great farm hinterland of 90 miles of caprock country to the south and east, 100 miles or more to the west and nearly as much to the north. It has developed cotton as a big crop, and sorghums, corn, watermelons and vegetables as other crops and dairying as a big industry. Its magnificent wheat facilities are well known. Convention visitors had a glimpse at a city of the future.

Texas University Has Received More Than 15 Million Dollars From Oil Royalties In 11 Years

AUSTIN—The University of Texas has received $15,560,576.69 during the eleven years since the first oil royalty was received at the State Land Office, according to a statement made from that office recently. This money is turned over to the University permanent fund. The interest from the permanent fund is available for use in the construction of buildings.

Dean Anderson, Keith Dobbin, Jimmie Ray Tamsett, Florence McNew, Billy Marie Boatler, McWade McDaniel, James Brooks, Jr., Lille Nell Tamsett, Kathleen Boatler, Maxine Scherrable, Ralph Sheetz, J. L. Wood, Jr., Dorris Nell Tompkins, Billie Jean Anderson, Howardene Foosehe, Patsy Ann Tompkins, Allie Claude McDaniel, Billy Dobbin, Mary Joyce Mims, Claudene Ely, Jerry Hodges, Elizabeth Moody and Mary Ann Dudley.

A recent report from the auditor's office showed that the University had received a total of $18,317,429.12 during the 11 years since oil was discovered on land owned by the University in Reagan county. This amount includes the money received from sources directly connected with the product. It composes the greatest portion of the University permanent fund. It was in April, 1923 that the original well was completed on a block

SAYS— (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) ...of being out of the court test, and added that only the legislature has the right to pass on the qualifications of a person once elected to the office. ...the election contest in Judge Robertson's court should be against Mrs. Ferguson, this lawyer pointed out, her attorneys would have the right to file a supersedeas bond and take the case up on appeal. And they have 90 days in which to do that. ...On or after October 7, when the time came for Mrs. Jane Y. McGowan, Sterling's appointee as secretary of state to certify the nomination of the general election, McGowan attorneys would demand that her whether she would certify Mrs. Ferguson's name. Unless she agreed to do so they would have to go to the supreme court for a writ of mandamus to compel certification. McGowan attorneys already established in her own former case before the court, finally upholding her right to compel printing her name on the ballot. ...Then after the general election the primary election contest would become moot. If the court finally ruled that Mr. Sterling was the legal nominee, he would not have been governor, and thus could not take office. Mrs. Ferguson would have been elected, and could not be denied the office by any court. ...The legislature of Texas, during the first week of the 43rd session will convene the general election results for governor and lieutenant governor, and declare the result of the election. This is required to be done before the governor is inaugurated.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN The G. O. P. in Trouble

The voting in Maine indicates that the anti-Republican sentiment which has been mounting steadily since 1929, is now stronger than ever. As that admirable student of elections, Mr. Simons Michlet, points out, the result in Maine confirms the evidence from primaries and registrations in other states in showing marked losses by the Republicans and distinct gains by the Democrats. No abstract calculations are necessary. When the shift of votes is as large as it was throughout Maine there is little reason to doubt that the movement is national in its character. There can now be no question whatever that the Democrats have a strong lead and that they will win in November unless there is a radical, unprecedented and sensational reversal of opinion. ...The President has recognized the deplorable position of his party by calling upon it to make stronger efforts to have the people understand the issues at stake. His party will have to do more than this, it will have to alter feelings which are deeper than reasoning, feelings which are impervious to mere argument. It will have to deal with a profound popular conviction that the time has come to re-examine the eleven years' period of Republican rule. Mr. Hoover is the man who is best qualified to make a change to do have done with the men who presided over the miseries of the war. Today they are quite evidently determined to have done with the men who presided over the inflation and the crash. ...The Republicans should not complain. They capitalized the disaster of 1929 and won. Today the tables are turned and the Democrats have capitalized the discontent of 1932. ...Against such tides of sentiment ordinary campaign argument is of little account. But as a matter of fact the Republicans have not as yet developed very good campaign arguments. Their strategical plan up to this point, as developed by the President and by Mr. Coolidge, is to disclaim all responsibility for the depression and to project the responsibility upon foreign nations; having rid themselves of any necessity of justifying or revising the major policies of the last decade they then emphasize the intricate and elaborate emergency measures of the last twelve months and base their claim to re-election upon the implication that only the Hoover Administration knows how to operate this improvised machinery. ...The Republicans must admit under our system of government a party which controls only one House of Congress and has no Presidential leadership is almost invariably irresponsible. Mr. Hoover himself will have no difficulty in remembering how the Republican Congress behaved for the last two years of Wilson's term. It is not necessary that it should do so, but the history of government to a standstill. ...The truth is that only through Presidential leadership can the American government work in an orderly fashion. Therefore, the real point at issue here is whether Governor Roosevelt assesses the qualities which will be needed to discipline and lead his party. As to that, we may know more as the campaign proceeds. ...Westbrook SCHOOL NOTES School opened Monday morning with a large crowd in attendance. The opening song was "America." Invocation by Rev. C.
