knife and lunged toward Battle, a World War I overseas combat veteran, who grabbed a .25-caliber automatic and blazed away at his attacker. The gun spewed out four fast shots. One bullet plunged through Gonzales right chest, another pierced his left chest, a third ripped through his left jaw and the fourth bullet lodged in his forehead just above the hairline. It was the only slug which remained in Gonzales' body.

Eastland County Sheriff Lee Horn, Ranger Chief of Police Bill Ogden and Justice of Peace M. D. Underwood checked the corpse at a Killingsworth Funeral Home and attested that he had been shot four times.

Justice of Peace Underwood reiterated Friday that still missing since the mid-summer slaying is the knife which Gonzales is alleged to have used at the scene of the shooting.

Gonzales finally fell outside the front of the hotel and died 10 minutes later in Ranger General Hospital following futile emergency treatment. He had been rushed to the hospital in a private car by persons at the scene of the incident.

Battle probably will plead self-defense during his coming mid-November trial.

It'll likely be a colorful duel of legal wits pitting Hart, the defense counsel, against fiery District Attorney Conner, who'll be battling for a conviction.

Turkeys Are On 'Plentiful List'

COLLEGE STATION — The most important ingredients for a traditional Thanksgiving dinner will be especially plentiful this November, reports the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Look for an abundance of turkeys, cranberries and apples — all needed for that special dinner.

Also designated plentiful by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Marketing Service are beef, peanuts and peanut products.

Bigger turkey marketings during the three months preceding Thanksgiving and a larger cranberry crop than last year indicate heavy supplies of both of these foods. The apple crop estimated at 145.9 million bushels promises to be the largest since 1937.

Relatively attractive beef prices likely will continue through November, as beef supplies are expected to remain fairly large. A good peanut crop will probably send production slightly above last year, with heavy movement to market during November.

For the TRUTH on SOCIAL SECURITY Look at the Record

Senator Goldwater's Answer on Social Security:

can think of no other word but lie, to describe the statements that I am opposed to Social Security, or as I would take any action to wreck or destroy the Social Security System. My record is clear. I have done more than just talk about Social Security. I voted to vote on it; and I say again — that the record is clear.

President Eisenhower, in his statement the other day, indicated with pride to his administration's record in improving Social Security. I share his pride in those accomplishments. I was there. I voted right down the line on behalf of Social Security. Anyone interested in the truth just has to look at my record. On July 17, 1956, I voted for the Social Security Act — the administration's pro-extended and increase Social Security coverage. The same month, I voted with the administration to support the line to resist unsatisfactory amendments to the Social Security Bill and finally during those historic days of voting, I stood with my party in voting for the significant liberalizing amendment that lowered the retirement age for women from 65 to 62. On August 1, 1956, I voted in favor of the administration's program to extend and improve the actuarial status and the public assistance benefits to provide for the maternal and child welfare health programs. I am, anyone who says I am against Social Security — and I say the record proves it."

Texas Water Commission Checking County Resources

The Texas Water Commission recently launched a regional study of the ground-water resources in Central Texas, including Eastland County. The study will be conducted from a field office established in Waco.

The study is designed to determine the quantity and quality of underground water available in the region with initial emphasis on the prolific Lower Cretaceous Trinity Sands. Personnel of the Commission's Ground Water Division will conduct intensive field investigations of the area including the collection of information on municipal, industrial, irrigation and selected domestic wells.

A major goal of the study will be the construction of a model of the aquifer system from the data collected in the field. The model will enable estimates to be made of the potential amounts of ground water available to communities and cities in the study area.

This detailed study will require at least three years of field investigation for completion. It will provide valuable information to all cities, industries, and other water users in this important area. Shortly after the study is completed, the Commission will publish a report of the findings which will be available to the general public.

In making this announcement, County Judge Scott Bailey emphasized that this ground-water study will furnish valuable information concerning our water supply and added that this study will be of real interest in determining the possibility of further agricultural and industrial development of our county.

ing at The Fiji Islands

JOSEPH PERKINS ter several miles distant and grew in height and brilliancy. There was then a mad rush for cameras as the folks on deck became aware of this unusual display. Before long there was a complete rainbow arching from the sea ahead with both ends terminating in the water. I have seen many rainbows, but never one so complete and vivid in color. I hope my color picture of it will do it justice!

Darkness came as we neared the open sea and our coastal pilot was still in command of the ship. This was fortunate indeed, as on both sides of the narrow ship channel there were shallow reefs with waves breaking over them.

The pilot stayed on until we were free of all coastal hazards and the wide Pacific lay ahead. Then out of the darkness came the pilot ship with its red and orange light glowing from its mast. Our ship slowed nearly to a halt as the little ship came alongside and bobbed up and down with the swells. The pilot watched his chance and leaped aboard at the right moment and the pilot ship veered away and was on its return trip to Noumea, four hours distant.

At six-fifteen the dinner gong sounded and we entered the dimly lighted dining room. There were astonished to find Chinese lanterns hanging from every ceiling light and a giant red dragon breathing fire from extended nostrils! It was Chinese Night and on our table were chop sticks and the menu in Chinese. Ordering was a nightmare requiring decisions as to Hung Siu Bao Pin, Ho Ghi Nin, Wong Bok, Boh Fan and dozens of others just as confusing. I settled for cornflakes and ice cream but the more venturesome ordered and ate dishes that reminded me of nursery rhyme which mention "snakes and snails and puppy-dog tails."

That evening ended with a lecture by a member of the ship's tourist staff, the subject being Fiji. Among other interesting bits of information he mentioned that the natives are only a few generations removed from cannibals and that the last white person eaten was a Methodist about the year 1870. Missionaries were preferred over sailors because they were more tender.

The Matson Navigation Company has shore trips arranged in advance of each port visited, and the trips for Fiji were signed up yesterday. We did not take any because three years ago we were here and took a delightful shore and river trip at that time. Today we are congratulating ourselves because it is raining hard and those going ashore for the trips looked glum and disgusted. Fiji is a beautiful island, green and wooded, and in Suva there are very attractive shops and a museum in which is the rudder from the ship Bounty.

Tonight we sail for Pago Pago and then Hawaii.

P. S.: I have before me today's copy of the Fiji Times, and the notice on the masthead reads, "Published at midnight from Monday to Saturday at Suva, just west of the international Date Line, where the new day begins, THE FIRST NEWSPAPER IN THE WORLD EVERY DAY."

Winter Cover Crop Funds Still Available

Funds are still available for the winter cover crop practices in Eastland County, according to the ASCS county office manager, Jesse G. Meredith.

The rye cover crop practice is available to the farm effective 1964 peanut allotment, even though peanuts were not planted, he said. The vetch and winter pea practice is available to all farms, with a 100-acre limit per farm. Dec. 20 is the final date for seeding either practice.

The emergency grazing of Soil Bank has been extended to Dec. 31. To be eligible to graze this area, prior approval must be obtained and the grazing charge paid.

Peanut marketing cards are now ready for issuance upon request. Mr. Meredith issued a reminder that farms with excess peanuts may not receive cards until the excess is disposed of or a Form MQ-92 is filed.

Nov. 1 is the final date for requesting a waiver of the 1964 planting provision to preserve history. Also, the State Committee has determined that deliberate burning of any crop, other than flax, violates reasonable conservation principles and will be considered a practice to defeat the purposes of the Agricultural Conservation Program.

Fabric manufacturers have offered consumers greater comfort in stretch garments. Now, prospective buyers need to be more discerning consumers. The comfort feature is keyed to America's accelerated way of life. Before buying a garment, consumers should determine if the stretch property of the fabric or garment really adds to its comfort in wearing, or is it just a promotional sales gimmick taking advantage of a new and different product.

Use of the garment should determine whether or not stretch is needed, how much stretch is needed, and where the stretch should be. Get the correct type of stretch for a garment, and give it proper care.

In selecting garments or fabrics of stretch, the direction of the stretch is important. Today's fabrics have warp, lengthwise or vertical; filling, cross-wise or horizontal; and two-way stretch, a combination of warp and filling.

For longer wear, an extra margin of stretch is recommended. Research results on the amount of stretch desired show Tailored clothing, horizontal stretch, 25 to 35 per cent; pants with stirrups, vertical, 40 to 60 per cent stretch; sportswear, horizontal, 25 to 40 per cent.

Sizing of stretch garments should follow regular sizing methods. Stretch garments have the advantage of a tailored smooth fit, yet provide for movement when it is needed. They are not intended to be worn skin-tight.

In caring for stretch garments, give them a chance to relax and snap back into shape often. Let the garments rest between wearings. Launder and press in relation to the most heat-sensitive fiber. Read labels for fiber contents and care procedure.
