It is imperative that the government return to the silver standard or else issue currency or "flat" money to reduce the present ruinously high value of money and increasing the value of commodities, he asserted.

RUMORS BABY IS SAFE ARE ALL UNTRUE

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 12. False rumors about the fate of the Lindbergh baby became so insistent late today that state police who are working with Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh in giving out news of the hunt, announced again that the baby is still missing and reports that he had been found alive and safe were untrue.

Statements credited to Morris Rosner, a secret agent, that the baby was definitely known to be safe and alive and about to be returned were branded as "absolutely untrue." Col. Henry Breckenridge, Lindbergh's attorney, made this comment: "That statement was not authorized. I know nothing about it."

The hunt turned westward tonight, confident that they have exhausted every clue in New Jersey police believe that somewhere "out in the country" would come a tip that would put them on the trail.

Had they hidden in the east, police believe that they would have been drawn into negotiations for the baby's return by the many appeals that have been addressed to them.

But if the kidnapers fled to some remote hideaway in the west, the 11 days may have gone by without any reaching them of the efforts that are being made here to establish contact that will restore the baby to his parents.

Through announcement of their circular addressed to every police department in the United States authorities hoped to bring in a clue that will prove more productive than the few that have been turned up and discarded near the scene of the crime.

The late afternoon police bulletin was devoted almost entirely to eliminating Henry Johnson and Rex Gow from direct suspicion in the case.

Angles of Johnson's activities in connection with the case have been thoroughly investigated by various enforcement agencies of cities mentioned by him and nothing definite has been established to indicate he was responsible or implicated in the kidnaping.

Although the New Jersey state police in charge of the inquiry are not interfering with Colonel Lindbergh's own private efforts to cover his son, the Colonel himself has had no authentic communication from the kidnapers. No word has come from them since the note left in the nursery demanding a ransom of $50,000.

The most mysterious element of today's hunt centered around a prisoner in the Tombs, who, it was reported, was a member of a gang which plotted the kidnaping last November, only to abandon the plan, because three other members of his gang might have decided to go ahead with plans.

Carl Wurzbach Is Indicted On An Excess Fee Charge

He left a note in which he said that because of his family and business it would be better to disappear.

BUILDING IN EASTLAND IS A TOTAL LOSS

Frank Bida and Sam Baskin Charged With Arson After Blast.

One of Eastland's finest automobile service stations is a mass of ruins, a residence on South Seaman street is reduced to charred scantlings and three men have been taken into custody and charged with arson as a result of two fires and an explosion which brought hundreds of Eastland people out of their homes to view a spectacular fire at 3:30 Saturday morning.

Sam Baskin, employe of Bida's Superior Paint, Top and Body Works, was placed in jail early Saturday morning and a charge of arson was filed against him after he had confessed to placing an explosive in the safe at the Bida Service station, saturating the building with gasoline and setting off the charge.

Baskin's confession also implicated Frank Bida, owner of the establishment, who was placed under arrest and charged with arson in conjunction to set fire to a house belonging to S. P. Seastrunk on South Seaman street and while the fire experts were asked to locate the fire, the safe at the service station would be blown and the building set afire.

At 3:30 the alarm came for the residence on South Seaman street and the call was answered by two trucks. Shortly afterward an explosion shreds of business part of town and the Bida Service station and the paint shop adjoining were a roaring furnace within a few minutes. Only one truck was available and a second alarm was given for volunteer firemen and assistance was asked from the Ranger and Cisco. Pumps from these two towns arrived within a few minutes manned with firemen and accompanied by Chief Murphy of Ranger and Chief Pass of Cisco.

With their pumps supplying water to eight hydrants the building was drenched and the fire brought under control before it spread to adjoining buildings but not until the Bida building together with its contents had been practically destroyed.

Officers immediately began to investigate the purported robbery and questioned Baskin. Upon Baskin's vacillating story concerning the attempted robbery and his vague description of the robbers, the officers began to cross-question him, having left Eastland made a confession, giving the alleged plan in detail. Assistant District attorney Grady Owen was called and Baskin's confession was reduced to writing and signed by him in the presence of Deputy Sheriff Loss Woods and Chief of Police Lee Reid. Frank Bida was then arrested and both Bida and Baskin were placed in jail.

Charges were also filed against Howard Mayes, bookkeeper for Bida, who was in Fort Worth at the time, having left Eastland Thursday. Mayes was apprehended by detectives in Fort Worth and held there until Deputy Steele Hill went for him. Mayes' name was not mentioned in the confession of Baskin, but was apprehended for questioning and to take his statement before others had opportunity to talk to him.

Merritt F. Hines was lying on a cot in the lobby of the Texas hotel when the explosion occurred. He was awakened by the shock and by falling glass caused by a two-by-six scantling which tore through a transom window and fell beside him. Hines immediately looked across the street and found the building burning on the inside.

The building was owned by the Farm and Home Loan company, represented locally by Donald Kinnaird. Kinnaird said that the building was insured. It is not known what amount of insurance was carried by Bida.

The building occupied by J. C. Penney company was not damaged by fire but a crack was opened in the walls about five feet from the top and extending across the rear of the building. It is thought the wall was cracked by the force of the explosion.

Five automobiles were inside the garage and were almost totally destroyed. One was a shop car with wrecking crane, another was a small coupe presumably owned by the shop.

Rev. A. W. Hall, pastor of the Boulevard Methodist church in Fort Worth, former pastor of the Methodist church in Ranger, had placed a practically new car for the night's storage. Rev. F. E. Singleton of Taylor, formerly vice president.

ORDERLY DEVELOPMENT PLAN IS REQUISITE TO OIL CONSERVATION

In order that the oil industry, the state and the public may most greatly benefit through the exploitation of new oil and gas fields, there is an absolute necessity that, in the recovery of these commodities, there be followed from the very first development of each area, a definite plan of sane production.

Conservation is imperative if these deposits are to be developed with the best interests of the state, the industry and the public in view. It is a fact difficult to realize that no major pool in Texas has ever been developed along strict conservation lines, deliberately planned to prolong the life of the field and give the largest ultimate return of money and crude products over the longest period of time.

The time has come when this utter disregard for public and state rights must cease. Boom development, which has resulted in the dissipation of perhaps as great an amount of these commodities as has been saved, must become a thing of the past—and at once—if the industry is to prosper. Boom development, disregarding the rights of any but those daily concerned in immediately hauling a fortune out of the ground regardless of what tomorrow's conditions may be, has already cost countless millions of dollars. The condition has become unbearable.

This tendency is rapidly changing. Oil men are beginning to realize that as a matter of self preservation, if nothing else, they are faced with an imperative necessity for attempting to abolish wasteful production methods. They are beginning to realize that, after all, they are but the custodians of the commodities which they exploit. As this attitude grows among them, it will be only a matter of time until sane conservation methods are employed in every field development.

The elimination of boom development will react favorably upon every individual interest even remotely concerned with the oil industry. First the state itself will benefit through its gross production and ad valorem taxes when the guaranteed recovery from the field is heightened through the retention of high gas pressures, elimination of waste and prolongation of the life of the field. The industry's benefit is obvious.

The communities in which the fields are located likewise will benefit. Boom development invariably leads to the hasty financing of municipal improvements normally far beyond the reach of the citizenry. When the let-down comes, as it inevitably does under boom conditions, the community finds itself with a burden of bond issues for costly school and other public buildings, streets, etc., from which it finds difficulty in freeing itself. This has been the experience of more than one oil development area.

Employment would receive one of the greatest benefits of sane conservation methods in development. While the personnel necessary to the development of the field under such conditions would remain virtually the same, the employment period would be considerably lengthened, both to the benefit of the employe, his employer and the community.

While the matter is now one of the past, the industrial status of Texas might have been vastly different at the present time had the vast industrial fuel possibilities of the gas and oil which have gone to waste been properly exploited. The time is not too late yet to attract industrial development with the prospect of cheap and abundant fuel of the most efficient type. There is an ample remainder of these resources now to furnish many industries with adequate cheap fuel over a long period of years. Water power and coal also enter into this picture.

THIS HAPPENED IN OLD KENTUCKY

Governor Ruby Lafoon of Kentucky recommended a one-cent state sales' tax order to wipe out a treasury deficit. He was given the surprise of his life when 100 women invaded the executive mansion, chiseled to their hearts' content the members of the governor's family, lacerated their feelings, and did considerable damage to the draperies and other furnishings. They gave the members of the governor's family to understand that they were on the warpath against a general sales' tax and that their purpose was to invade the Kentucky primaries this year and plant their ballots where they would do the most good. A lucky man is this democrat governor of Kentucky. He was not at home when the invaders threatened to play havoc with the executive mansion and its interior decorations.

Theodore Dreiser and his reformers invaded the coal mining districts of Kentucky "to feed the starving women and children of the striking miners." They escaped but Theodore is not going to return to Kentucky. He will have business elsewhere this year.

CONVICT LABOR BARRED ON FEDERAL JOB

The senate of the United States has restored to the agricultural department appropriation bill a provision barring federal highway funds to states for projects upon which convict labor is used. Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania championed the substitute and put it over.
He said the people of the nation would resent paying taxes to care for convicts getting work while free men are idle.
A matter of record shows that the clause prohibiting convict labor was struck out of the house bill by the senate appropriations committee. Then the senate ordered the house provision reinserted, and the senator from Pennsylvania will go home and strut his stuff in the primary election campaign that is on.

Why should free labor be compelled to compete with convict labor? All this is a hint that there are 550 convicts away down on the Texas prison farms or behind prison walls. It costs a lot of money to house and feed and clothe this army of wards of the state.

A news story tells of a piece of lingerie stolen from a Corsicana store six years ago has been returned, with the note: "In this package you will find a piece of lingerie I picked up in your store six years ago. My conscious would never allow me to wear it. Something always told me to return the article."

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

Agricultural Extension News

From the Office of the County Agent and Home Demonstration Agent American Cheese Made In the Homes of the County
Following the short course given by the International Harvest-er Company, some of the representatives visited some of the demonstrators of the home demonstration clubs. At the home of Mrs. E. M. Oney, member of the Friendship-Dathan home demonstration club, these visitors were served cheese sandwiches and grape juice. The cheese was made by Mrs. Oney and the grape juice preserved by her. The cheese is a product as good as any commercial cheese and better than much on the market at present.
Mr. and Mrs. Oney have a filling station and live with their business, but the business does not take all the time. They have time all during the year to preserve the foods, grown in their garden, for use during the winter months.
Mrs. Oney makes the American cheese on the halves, the milk furnished by a neighbor lady and cheese cloth, paraffin and her time and fuel for making. She makes ten gallons of milk at one time and gets approximately ten pounds of cheese. She makes the cheese in one five pound block and two 2 and 1-2 pound blocks.
Mrs. Oney finds a ready sale for all the cheese she has over her supply used at home. The cheese is made and cured before it is sold. The approximate cost of making the cheese (ten pounds) is 88c (includes 25c per hour for the time used for making); selling the cheese for an average of 18c per pound gives $1.80, $1.80 less the cost 88c leaves 92c profit.
Mrs. Oney has made 83 pounds of cheese since January 1.
American cheese has proved a profitable home made product in the food line in the homes of Eastland county, giving another milk product for home use and in this and other instances, something to bring in a little extra money. Any one who has a supply of milk can make the cheese at home. The equipment needed for making: large dish pan, wash tub or similar container, dairy thermometer, gallon syrup bucket (with ends matted off), two "followers" (made of ordinary board, sawed round so they will fit loosely inside the bucket) 1-2 yard cheese cloth; weights for pressing cheese and stove. Supplies needed: five gallons of milk, one half rennet and color tablet (the sure that you have the cheese rennet tablets), three teaspoons salt.
Directions for making cheese:
Be sure that the milk is sweet.
It's a good plan to take the milk obtained at night and morning, place in a large container, and turn on similar way, let stand a few minutes until the whey begins to rise, then place on stove again.
Lift and stir the curd gently, and break into small pieces about the size of grains of corn. If handled too roughly it allows the cream to escape. Heat slowly until it reaches 98 degrees then, after a minute's time, remove from the stove and pour off all the whey possible.
Spread a clean cloth (a flour sack ripped open is good) in a large pan (dish pan or something of the sort) and pour the curd in to it. Raise it up and drain two or three minutes, salt lightly, and it is then ready for the line the hoop with cheese and place one of the following on top, put the cheese press and press down. Weigh the curd in the press, press either follower on and then the weights. Two weights be used, the first one put on the curd is first put into the and after four or six hours the other on. This should pressed over night. Remove press the next morning and cool place for from three to days. The cheese should be dried once or twice each day end of this time the cheese and paraffin should be used the block cut in a cool to cure or press it so that but ever-ready age that improves the product.
Mr. and Mrs. Oney have a press for the cheese they as have some of the other members and families who cheese for home use. These es are made of scrap lumber waste around the house and the expense is the time for making.

Bandit Borrows Sun To Hold Up Intended Victim

By United Press.

DALLAS, March 12.—A bandit lacking a gun sought today to use an intended victim to hold up a man he could rob him.

E. E. Meachum became suspicious as a young man inspecting the Meachum's pawn shop and the one of the revolvers he had. Meachum complied by giving him a gun that was "jammed" and would not fire.

"Stick 'em up," the bandit ordered after he had the loaded gun in his hands.

But Meachum stepped up and the would-be bandit on the ground. The youth pulled the trigger, but it clicked harmlessly. As Meachum reached for a good gun the bandit fled, to escape the two sets sent after him.

Army Engineers Proving Worth In Peace Time

By MERRILL E. COMPTON, United Press Staff Correspondent.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Army engineers today are engaged in one of their greatest campaigns in history to prove their effectiveness in doing peace time duty.

The assignment to the United States army engineers in 1928, one year after the disastrous flood of 1927, will be continued six more years.

To perform this task they were given sums of money never before appropriated for a peace-time government construction project, and since the bill was passed they have worked under forced draught.

Ahead of Schedule.

Today they are ahead of schedule. They believe their work now is adequate to control any floods which might arise in the lower valley. They point to the work they did in the first year, which resulted in no major levee breaks during 1929.

The 1928 congressional bill appropriated $325,000,000 to flood control was a third larger than the sum used in construction of the Panama canal exclusive of its fortifications.

This act commissioned the army engineers to maintain and construct a navigable channel on the Mississippi and its principal tributaries.

Ten million dollars was appropriated for dredging channels.

Twice this amount was ordered for construction work and $80,000,000 is to be expended for revetments—construction work along the river banks to keep them from crumbling away.

Fund Expenditures.

The dredging budget is 48 per cent expended. Revetments funds are 35 per cent spent and 27 1/2 per cent of the appropriation for flood works including right-of-ways, drainage and flowage ways has been spent. The construction work appropriation is 25 1/2 per cent expended.

For every $1,000,000 in the Memphis district, it has been estimated that 296,000 man days of work is provided, a lesser amount—56,000 man days—is spent in construction work and the remainder, 150,000, is spent for revetment work.

Hundreds of steam shovels, motor trucks and tractors have been put to work on this job. The payroll runs from a few thousand to 10,000 or more men. The job is ceaseless, some work going on the entire 12 months of the year.

Levee Costs Low.

In levee construction material costs are low. Earth for the bulk-works is accessible and cheap to move. The machinery is not especially constructed and is standard of equipment.

Construction work and channel maintenance on tributary streams will result in millions of dollars in expenditures.

Sam Brown belts, uniforms, brass and braid were placed in moth balls when the army moved toward this job.

Major Bronson B. Somervell, district engineer here, is an example of the men directing this task. His office is on the tenth floor of a business building near the waterfront. It has a north and east exposure. From the north windows the river can be seen. Eastwardly the city stretches out.

Push buttons line one side of the desk. Maps are on the wall. A table in one corner is almost covered with other maps, technical and each one of importance. The major seldom wears his uniform. A big alarm clock which ticks mechanically gives the office the appearance of a construction boss' headquarters.

Buyers Are Taking Advantage Of Low Prices On Buicks

Thousands of new car buyers are taking advantage of the opportunity for Buick ownership offered by the low-priced series 32-50 models of the 1932 Buick line of eights, according to sales reports obtained from the factory by Murhead Motor company, Buick dealers, of Eastland.

With the total volume of sales of this series advancing steadily as spring approaches, one model alone, the five-passenger 32-27 sedan that is a feature of this series, increased 50 per cent in the number of retail deliveries for the second 10-day sales period of February compared with the first 10 days.

This model, which is the lowest priced Buick sedan since the days of four cylinders, is penetrating a new sales field and bringing Buick ownership to a large class of buyers who heretofore wanted a Buick but hesitated for economic reasons, it is explained.

"This Buick '57' sedan is a sturdy, 3500-pound car, with ample adult roominess and built to Buick's high standards of quality," says Mr. Murhead. "The 1932 model has been increased in size, power, beauty of appearance and economy, as well as being lowered in price. The wheelbase has been lengthened, the five-passenger body is two inches longer and the eight-cylinder Buick valve-in-head engine has been increased to 82 1/2 horsepower with high compression, which the owner can have at no additional cost.

Wizard control, an exclusive Buick feature, brings unsurpassed driving ease to the '57'. It combines the automatic clutch, silent-second Synchro-Mesh transmission, and free wheeling. The automatic clutch makes it possible to shift to any speed without using the clutch pedal. The new Synchro-Mesh transmission with silent second gives featherweight shifting and acceleration up to 40 miles per hour before shifting into high. The free wheeling is instantaneous and entirely foot-controlled, requiring no pushing or pulling of hand levers.

"Dual carburetion, the Buick engine oil temperature regulator, insulated fuel system and the many other 1932 Buick advancements are presented in this sedan. It also has the famous torque tube drive that gives Buick its train-like steadiness.

"The new body by Fisher for the '57' is a counterpart of those for the more expensive models, with smartly sloping windshield, dual horns, slim radiator shell, hood and single-bar bumpers. The roomy interior offers fine upholstery and appointments, including the new instrument panel grouping all instruments directly under the driver's eye at the left, with a capacious compartment in the right side of the panel.

The Time a-dance girl

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Ellen Rossiter, beautiful 20-year-old, falls in love with Larry Harrowgate, young artist, whom she meets at Dreamland where she works as a dance hall hostess. Larry is engaged to Elizabeth Bowes, a debutante, but shows attentions to Ellen until his fiancée returns from Europe.

From a sense of gratitude Ellen agrees to marry Steven Barclay, a kind and wealthy man of 57 who has paid hospital expenses for her brother, Mike, injured in a street accident. He also finds a job for Bert Armstead, engaged to Ellen's sister, Myra.

Barclay has been married and divorced. Scandal accompanied his divorce from Leda Grayson, dancer, and fearing talk of the divorce may be revealed he and Ellen agree to keep their marriage secret. Bert and Myra are to be married the same day as Barclay and Ellen.

Two days before the wedding Ellen goes to the offices of Symes & Prendergast, Barclay's attorneys, where her fiancé is to sign papers settling a fortune on her. However, they leave before the papers are signed. Ellen is unhappy because she can not forget Larry.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

At dawn Ellen awakened when her mother entered the room. Molly tiptoed to her daughter's bed, tucked in the covers and smoothed Ellen's fair hair away from her forehead.

"Harry's going to be a lovely day," Molly whispered.

She was trying hard to be casual but Ellen saw that Molly was frightened. Seeing that, Ellen became determined not to share her own fear.

"Myra's asleep," the mother whispered again. "I wanted to talk to you, darling—to tell you—"

"There's nothing to tell," said Ellen nervously, almost sharply. She drew the light spread closer.

"But honey," Molly went on wistfully as if she were sorry for something. "Do you really want to marry Steven? Do you understand—"

She had never seemed more helpless.

"Yes, I want to," Ellen insisted. The girl's voice had risen slightly so that Myra stirred and woke. Bright sunshine came pouring through the window.

"Happy the bride the sun shines on," Myra cried out and sprang from bed.

The day was bright blue and perfect, a day out from the postcard. Once Ellen was out of bed and had breakfasted the terrors of the night and those strange fears of the dawn were gone. She was not afraid now. She seemed to feel nothing but the strangeness of the fact that she was at her wedding day and that she should be excited and nervous but was not.

She and Myra dressed while Molly, happy and reassured, flew about getting in their way and in her own, too. Mrs. Clancy came flying up from downstairs with a telephone message for Myra, who grabbed a negligee and streaked down after her. When Myra had returned and had begun to do her hair all over again Mrs. Clancy came back with a message from Steven.

He would be there at 10 o'clock.

Through it all Ellen dressed calmly. A wispy chemise, a brassiere sewn with rosebuds, tiny white slippers. She had never noticed before how small her feet were. She eyed her legs critically, standing on tiptoe away from the mirror which tilted at the wrong angle. They were nice legs, a little too long perhaps but then— She sprayed verbenas on her shoulders and sniffed the spicy smell. Her slip next, airy as a shadow. Long chiffon stockings and her garters—blue because Molly had insisted all brides wore "something blue."

The "something borrowed" was a fine, lace handkerchief which Molly had carried when she was a bride. In Myra's case it was a string of pearls that were Molly's also. For the "something old" both girls wore little jeweled pins made from cuff links which had once adorned a blue-eyed, tawny-haired, Charles Rossiter, page at the court of Queen Elizabeth. The "something new" was the dress, shimmering with opaque lights and recalling in its demure fullness and length a debutante of the 50's.

"Something old—something new— Something borrowed—something blue."

Ellen stood away from the mirror and looked at the shining-eyed girl in the lovely dress. That beautiful, tawny-haired girl was Ellen Rossiter. This was her wedding day.

She wondered uncertainly if she should cry or laugh and knew that she did not want to do either. She thought she was composed and steady. She thought that now she was ready to meet anything but she did not seem to be herself. Nothing seemed real to her.

Deliberately she made a test that, in this strange mood, she did not fear. Deliberately she thought of Larry. But Larry was in this disordered bedroom with Myra and Molly running back and forth and chattering endlessly, only a half remembered pain. He that would obliterate the desperation of her spirit.

When the first outbreak of violence had worn out she still lay sobbing quietly, conscious that she must rally the strength to go on. She heard the bedroom door open.

"Ellen—" it was Myra's shocked voice—"what have you been doing? We've waited and waited."

And then, "Oh my darling!" Ellen's tears were spent. She sat up.

"I can't go on with this. I can't be married," she said in a trembling voice.

Myra felt that she must be wise for both of them. "Are you frightened, too?" she asked. "I'm shaking all over. I was so terrified last night I couldn't sleep. I didn't want to be married. I almost jumped out the window."

"Myra! Did you?" thought—

"All brides do this way, foolishly. Nervous and upset and frightened. You do like Steven, don't you? Like him a lot?"

"Why—yes," Ellen answered slowly, beginning to feel the vise that held her heart loosen ever so slightly.

"Then do something to your eyes. They look terrible! I'll wait for you."

Ellen did her best to repair the ravages of her grief and terror while her sister watched.

They were in the living room again and then on their way down the stairs. They stepped out into the glorious day. The limousine swept them out of the shabby neighborhood, out of New York and on to the smooth road that led to Halesy, Connecticut. They had chosen this small town in the hills because Steven knew a clerk who would withhold reporting the ceremony until he and his bride were far away on the ocean.

No one spoke of Ellen's long absence in the bedroom. There had been on time. But as they swept down the tree-lined, shady streets of the little village Ellen sensed that Steven meant to mention it. When they alighted from the car he drew her away from the others.

"I believe you were crying before we started," he said gently. "If you want to stop right here there's no reason for going on. Perhaps you would rather have more time to decide. Shall we wait until I return from Europe?"

Green and Gold Dishes for Those St. Patrick's Day Shenanigans. Shenanigans for Saint Patrick's day? Sure, ye spalpeens! And after them, a menu of green and gold—the green of the shamrock and the gold of Erin's harp—to do honor to the good Saint who sent the snakes chasing their own tails out of the Emerald Isle!

Some maintained that Saint Patrick was born on the 8th, and some insisted that it was the 9th. The story goes that a Scotsman came in and stopped the fight by making both sides agree to add the numbers and call it a day. And a big day it is, too, March 17th!

These green and gold dishes please the mavourneens because they are easy to prepare. And—begorra! they do flatter the palate like the Blarney Stoners flatter you!

A green and gold dessert is easy as walking with a shillalah, if you use the canned grapefruit, with no segments or seeds to bother you. Cut the chilled gelatin into shamorocks with a sandwich cutter, if you prefer. Green and Gold Dessert. 1 pkg. lime gelatin, 1 cup boiling water, 1 No. 1 can grapefruit. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water.

Drain juice from cans of grapefruit into measuring cup; add sufficient cold water to fill the cup. Add grapefruit to dissolved gelatin; pour into a shallow pan which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill thoroughly; cut into cubes, and pile in stemmed glasses with segments of chilled grapefruit, 6 servings.

If you prefer to have a green and gold cocktail with that flavor, then pile the canned grapefruit into tall-stemmed glasses, dissolve an after-dinner martini in each one, and then add green creme-de-menthe cherries.

And how about a very delicious hot bread in the appropriate color? Excellent for luncheon. Golden Buns. 1 cup soft milk, 1/2 cup light brown sugar, 1 tsp. salt, 1 yeast cake, 3/4 cup lukewarm water, 2 cups bread flour, 2 cups Graham flour, 1/2 cup fat, 1/2 cup nuts, 1/2 cup sliced candied orange peel.

Mix milk, sugar, salt and when lukewarm add yeast cake, dissolved in the lukewarm water, and half of the flour. When thoroughly mixed let stand in a warm place until doubled in bulk (about 1 hour). Then add the fruit peel and nuts and enough flour to knead. Fill greased muffin tins 3/4 full. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400° F.) for 20 minutes. Make 24 buns.

"Praties," of course we must have for the Irish holiday. For a party, tiny candy ones, are clever. These are wholesome enough so that even the "wee broth" of a boy or girl may eat them. Irish Cocoanut Murphys. 1 medium-sized potato, 2 cups sifted confectioner's sugar, 1 can moist cocoanut, 1 tsp. vanilla, 1/2 cup chopped pistachio nuts.

Cook the potato until soft, then press through sieve (there should be 1/2 cup of mashed potato). Add sugar gradually, stirring well, then vanilla, and 1 can cocoanut. Form into shape of Irish potatoes. Then roll lightly in cocoa, or dip into melted dipping chocolate, set over hot water. Dot with chopped pistachio nuts for eyes.

Or there is the favorite sweetmeat, known as "gruppy burrs" which may be transformed into bits of Erin: Emerald Isles. 1 pkg. pasteurized dates, 3/4 lb. shredded cocoanut, 1/2 cup nutmeats, 1 tsp. orange juice, 1/2 asp. grated orange rind.

Run dates, nuts, an done cup of cocoanut through the food chopper. Chop remainder of cocoanut in a wooden bowl and tint a delicate green. Knead fruit paste with the fruit juice and peel. Shape with the palms of the hands into balls 3/4 inch in diameter. Roll balls in green cocoanut. Cocoanut may be tinted by dissolving a bit of coloring paste or tablet in hot water and stirring into the cocoanut.

Green salads are simple enough, but the crispest one is stuffed green pepper. Slice the pepper in rings for shampoos or serve small ones whole. A most tasty stuffing is made by mixing 2 packages of cream cheese with 2 tablespoons of minced onion, 2 sliced canned pimientos, serving the salad with French dressing or mayonnaise.

Miss Edwards Honored On Twentieth Birthday. Complimenting her sister, Miss Doris Edwards, Mrs. Johnnie Wrenn entertained with a delightfully planned party at her home, North Austin street, Friday evening with dancing and games furnishing entertainment until a late hour.

The party came as a compliment to the honoree on her twentieth birthday. Gifts in bright wrappings added pastel color hues to the motif carried out in the decorations and favors.

Hot chocolate and cake were served during the evening to about 50 guests including Leon Pafford of Eastland and Fred Masley of Dallas.

Legion Dance Draws Big Attendance. With Lawrence Welk and his orchestra playing, the largest number of guests attending a dance in several months were present at the American Legion hall Friday evening.

Lawrence Welk, known as the accordion king, presented his very best dances to have been given during the winter season. The dance affair came under the arrangement of the entertainment committee, headed by Harry Henry, chairman. Harry who is well known and popular here, can always be depended on to manifest interest in the arrangements of such entertainments among other activities.
