BANDIT GANG ROUNDED UP NEAR CHICAGO

CHICAGO, April 23.—Police of three states operating in concert, arrested 19 men and women today in a series of raids ...

Chief Investigator Pat Roche of Cook county said confessions had been obtained from several of the prisoners.

The raids occurred simultaneously at Chicago Heights, Ill., Racine, Wis., Lafayette, Ind., and Pendleton, Ind.

Roche characterized the arrests as sounding the death knell of one of the most highly organized criminal bands in the central states.

The kidnaping which police claimed was solved by the roundup was that of Howard Wolverton, 52, prominent South Bend, Ind., industrialist, who was held for $50,000.

Gun-play marked one of the raids in Chicago Heights, where the investigators seized 12 men and two women in hide-aways ...

Those arrested at Chicago Heights included James Barrett, 34, charged by Roche with being the ring leader, and his brother, Joseph, who was suffering from serious bullet wounds received mysteriously a few days ago.

STORY OF STOCK MARKET POOL THAT LOST MANY MILLIONS TOLD COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The story of how a group of financial wizards lost approximately $25,000,000 on paper in an Anacostia Copper pool as the bull market folded and collapsed in 1929 was told today before the senate banking and currency committee by a slight little man named Thomas E. (Tommy) Bragg, once a broker's clerk and now a millionaire.

Bragg was pool manager for John J. Raskob, William Jenney, Fred Fisher of the General Motors organization, Percy A. Rockefeller, W. C. Durant, M. J. Mehan, and "a great many others."

The nervous witness looked a little bit like Mayor James J. Walker of New York as he sat before the senate committee and under oath, related details of the huge losing venture.

"About $400,000," said Bragg. "That's four-fifths," mused an auditor, "and four-fifths of $32,000,000 is $25,600,000."

It was decidedly a day to cheer the heart and improve the morale of the "sheep" whose little trading has been described before the committee as dumb, stupid, pathetic and sad.

Raskob has been known as the "financial genius" of General Motors. He was crowded out of office as chairman of the finance committee of that organization when he became Alfred E. Smith's party chairman in 1928.

There were "oh's" and "ah's" from startled senators and auditors as Bragg revealed his list of names. Senators required a moment to absorb the fact that Raskob, Kenney and Fisher had been caught in the market even as you and they.

Car Is Stolen At Eastland School

A Pontiac sedan was stolen from in front of the Eastland High school building Friday night according to a report made to the sheriff's office Saturday morning.

BANKS SHOW MORE STRENGTH DURING MARCH

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Marked strengthening of the banking situation is reported by the Federal Reserve Board today.

In March there were only 45 bank failures, the least in 15 months. So far this month three national banks have succeeded.

Banks which reopened in March had nearly as large deposits as those which closed.

The board's favorable report removed apprehension concerning the results of the next call for the condition of national banks.

It is estimated $250,000 have been brought out of hoarding in the past two months.

Jacksboro To Play Golf Today At Eastland

The Eastland Country club will have as its guests some 15 members of the Jacksboro club this afternoon for a golf tournament between the two clubs.

The first foursome will tee off at 1:30 p. m. with others following as rapidly as the starter can arrange the matches.

Mail Plane Is Forced Down At Eastland

The night eastbound mail plane made a forced landing at the Eastland emergency landing field about 8:30 Friday night.

The plane had passed over the field when radioed information on weather conditions to the east was so unfavorable that a landing was decided upon.

The plane was in charge of Pilot Joe Glas and William Miller, who remained in Eastland over night and took off at 10 o'clock Saturday morning to finish their journey.

Grand Jury Hands Down Seven Bills

Howard Nichols and Truman Young were indicted and have already entered pleas of guilty and accepted a sentence of two years confinement on charges of burglary and liquor law violations.

Leslie Hayne was indicted on a robbery with firearms charge in connection with the attempted hold-up of the Star Grocery on the old Carbon road last week.

All But Four of Celina Suspects Released Saturday

McKINNEY, Texas, April 23.—County Attorney W. C. Dowdy today ordered the release of all except four of the suspects arrested following the Celina bandit raid Thursday.

Two charges of robbery with firearms and a charge of burglary have been filed against Ralph Howard Alsop and Jack Hammett, both 20-year-old Denton youths.

Dowdy said the Celina mayor and three other men locked in a box car during the looting of two stores positively identified these two.

Police Guard Ralph Plane At Dallas

DALLAS, April 23.—Ranger Captain Tom Hickman and a squad of policemen greeted Gov. James Rolph Jr., of California, when his plane landed here today but rumored violence failed to materialize.

The governor said he had seen no indications of an effort to molest him on the trip.

Priest Restores Kidnaped Child

It was in the hands of the Rev. Joseph M. Pugliese (above), South Philadelphia priest, that frightened kidnapers left 8-year-old Hilda Brodsky of Wilmington, Del.

He turned the freed child over to police authorities.

THOMAS LOVE TO SIGN THE PARTY PLEDGE

DALLAS, April 23.—Thomas Love tonight said he will enter the democratic precinct convention next Saturday, take the loyalty pledge and vote to send a Garner-instructed delegation to Chicago.

He said he is convinced it is his duty not to be driven out of the party by the pledge and he can best serve the party by supporting Garner.

"And in the November election I am going to comply with the pledge to the utmost limit of conscience and good faith, but I shall in no event go beyond those limits as under the holding of the supreme court I am sure the pledge does not bind me to do so," said Love.

"There was never a time when votes of dry democrats were so badly needed in the democratic primary and in the November election as this year," Love said.

"In the nation evidences of a widening effort to destroy the eighteenth amendment appear. Here in Texas we are confronted with a threat of a return of Jim Ferguson to control the party and the state government and numerous headquarters are being maintained of so-called tax reduction leagues and modifiers and compromisers and other booze aids whose avowed purpose is to nominate wet congressmen and wet legislators in every possible district."

Massie Is Sane Say Two Doctors In Honor Trial

HONOLULU, April 23.—Lieut. Thomas H. Massie was sane when he killed to avenge assault upon his wife, two alienists for the territory of Hawaii testified today at the trial of Massie and three others on second degree murder charges.

Dr. Paul Bowers of Los Angeles and Dr. Robert Faus of Honolulu, both said the young naval lieutenant was capable of distinguishing between right and wrong when he shot the half-caste Joe Kahahawai.

After they left the stand court was adjourned until Monday when prosecution intends to conclude its attack on the temporary insanity defense. This defense was the only one advanced by Clarence Darrow, Chicago attorney, in his attempt to free Massie, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Grace Fortescue and two seamen, E. J. Lord and A. O. Jones.

Bonus Hearing To Be Continued Next Monday

WASHINGTON, April 23.—After five days of hearing opponents of the two-billion dollar soldier bonus bill, the house ways and means committee was in recess today until Monday, when the administration will again offer witnesses.

Veterans Administrator Hines and Secretary of the Treasury Mills are due to appear before the hearing's end, next week.

FARMER DIES OF BURNS AT SISTER'S HOME

House, Barn, Smokehouse, and All Provisions Are Destroyed.

W. Wiley McCollum, farmer of the Long Branch community, southwest of Carbon, was fatally burned early Friday morning when a jug of kerosene, with which he was lighting a fire in the kitchen stove, exploded.

McCollum got up about 5 o'clock Friday morning and went to the kitchen to light a fire in the kitchen stove. He used a jug of kerosene and when the match was applied to the fire it spread to the jug, which exploded, throwing flaming kerosene over his night clothes, which he was wearing.

The house, garage, barn and smokehouse was completely destroyed by the fire that followed the explosion. Other members of the house escaped injury, but were unable to save the buildings.

McCollum had received a government loan check the day before the accident that caused his death, and had spent the money to buy seed and provisions with which to put in a crop this year. All the seed, feed and the meat he had put away in his smokehouse was destroyed by the fire.

Old Landmark of Ranger Removed

One of the landmarks of Ranger's South Rusk street succumbed to the law of the changing order of things Saturday when the overhanging sign proclaiming the word "Liberty" was removed from its hanging over the street in front of the old Liberty theatre building.

The sign hung across South Rusk for years from the Masonic building in which was located the original Liberty theatre, a show house operated by Bill Palmer in the oil boom. During the hectic days of the theatres being in politics Palmer secured what was then the Majestic theatre and changed the name to the Liberty and removed the sign to its location where it has hung since.

The removal of the sign will change materially the familiar appearance of the street, for it has hung across there so long as to become a fixture in the eyes of those familiar with Ranger at its height and during the declining years following the oil boom.

Bruises Found On Body of Flier

MIAMI, Fla., April 23.—Doctors have found bruises on the body of Hayden Clark, flier which indicated he died after a struggle and handwriting experts assert they have found differences in suicide notes left in Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller's home.

Mrs. Keith-Miller is a famous international flier. Clark was found dead by W. N. Lancaster, a British flier, on the sleeping porch of the Keith-Miller home Wednesday. The two reports led to his rival in love with the woman flier, occupied beds on the porch; Mrs. Keith-Miller slept inside.

HOUSTON, April 23.—Expansion of the Texas properties of the Consolidated Oil company, probably will result from an inspection tour now being made by Harry F. Sinclair, his spokesman said today.

The party inspected its properties in East Texas and the refinery here, the second largest owned by the firm. They will leave tonight for New York.

BLALOCK PAYS TRIBUTE TO CREEKMORE

And now the president of the American Co-operative association, U. B. Blalock, answering allegations that the co-operatives pay unreasonably high salaries, says that 557 employees of the association draw an average salary of $1588 a year, which is $700 a year less than the average government employe. Speaking of the $75,000 a year paid to E. F. Creekmore, he argued the association is entitled to have a big business man as its chief executive officer; that Creekmore bought 120,000 bales of cotton this season from cotton merchants on which he made profits for the association more than enough to pay his salary and commissions; that he saved $119,000 for the association within three weeks of coming into the organization by changing methods in handling contracts on the New York in handling contracts on the New York Exchange; that he reduced storage charges in New York warehouses by $480,000; that his membership in the New York exchange saved the association $150,000 on futures contracts. There is a show down coming. In the last analysis the cotton buyers and shippers and traders are going to be the masters of the field or the co-operatives will be the victors. It goes without saying that the surplus fixes the prices. It goes without saying that the government-aided board cannot go on piling up surpluses year in and year out.

DEMOCRATIC DELEGATES ELECTED TO DATE

Michigan democrats rolled into line Thursday and elected 28 delegates to the Chicago convention instructed for Franklin D. Roosevelt and adopted resolutions calling for the repeal of national and state prohibition laws. This is the record: democrat delegates selected, 468; Roosevelt instructed and pledged, 254; Lewis pledged, 50; Reed instructed, 36; Murray instructed and pledged, 23; Smith pledged, 1; uninstructed and in doubt, 104.

ALFALFA BILL AND HIS PREFERENCES

Alfalfa Bill is back on the job in Oklahoma. He may cancel his Ohio speaking engagements. He was interviewed, ed. Of course he submits to interviews daily and freely. He was asked whom he would support if he lost out in the democratic convention in Chicago. His reply: "I don't know who I would support. I might support Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, but I won't support Franklin Roosevelt." Senator Norris is a Republican. He classifies himself as a republican. He makes his races as a republican. He sweeps aside Republican bosses and their slate. He is not only able to stand alone but to run alone to victory—as a Republican. Alfalfa William sees in the distance a third party in the field with standard-bearers for the offices of President and vice president. He admits that he is a man of vision. He is likewise a man of trouble. His lieutenant governor played havoc with some of his plans and programs while Governor Bill was chasing the grass rooters across the continent and almost into the Pacific ocean.

CALM AND SERENE CAL BAITS HIS HOOK

Calvin Coolidge in or out of office never loses his head. He never loses his temper. He never throws out surplus words or hands out contributions for the literature of the day without first exacting a safe and a sane financial return for his wares. Now he is fishing. Away down in Connecticut when the open season for bating the hook was ushered in, he found himself on the banks of a brook and in 30 minutes he had placed 13 fat trout in his basket.

A Washington correspondent who has front door entry to the White House recently told a sad story that the Hoovers spent every cent of the $75,000 salary and then had to dig into the private income of the chief magistrate. Calvin was the throne and the power behind it for seven years. His intimates reported on his retirement from the White House that he had managed to save $50,000 a year. He owns a half interest in a cheese factory in Vermont that is said to return rich dividends and a combination of cheese and brooked trout isn't so bad for a thrifty son of Vermont, now an adopted son of the Old Bay State.

A 7-year-old girl whose immigrant parents could neither read nor write English is teaching school in Chicago. She is Joanna Xenos, who prefers American newspapers and French history to fairy tales. She spends half of each school day teaching and the other half looking after her own studies. Her father and mother are of Creek and Polish nationality, respectively. She was unable to read or write English when she entered the first grade. Within 10 months she was advanced to the fourth grade. Next she was promoted into the eighth grade. Then she was put in charge of a room of 40 pupils from eight to 11 years of age to help them with their reading and writing. Joanna should be given a place in the press picture gallery. Chicago is not all underworld.

CRUDE AND GASOLINE MOVING TOGETHER

Price levels of crude have been advanced to a pretty figure in the Southwest and now the refiners are advancing the price of gasoline. Turn about appears to be fair play. Tennessee lawmakers imposed a gasoline tax of seven cents. This appears to have been more than the traffic would bear in old Tennessee. More than 50,000 owners of motor vehicles refused to pay the registration fee. They parked their cars in the garages of the commonwealth and roundly cursed the lawmakers responsible for the hike. Now the old Volunteer state public servants are hoping to float a bond issue of $9,000,000 "to balance the budget and restore the credit of the government."

Now they're saying that freedom for the Philippines would destroy the "balance" of power in the Far East. Let's see, didn't we have a "perfect balance" of power in Europe in 1914?

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
WASHINGTON—The lovely cherry blossoms of Washington, which are all too often considered the only living thing the capital has to brag about, are observing their twentieth anniversary.

Their brief period of bloom is considered the very best time of the year to come to Washington and for weeks ahead there seems to be more interest in the question, "When will the cherry blossoms be out?" than in such problems as when the budget will be balanced and whether our form of government can survive.

The people of this city, strangely enough, make as much of a rite out of visiting the cherry blossoms each year as do the folks who come all the way to Washington for it.

The first blossoms appear on a thousand trees which encircle the Tidal Basin below Potomac Park. After many preliminary excursions of investigation, the buds burst, the news is flashed to the newspapers and photographers, professional and amateur, start on the run.

Everyone Goes
The rest of Washington follows, more or less en masse. Pretty girls have their pictures taken, nestling against flower-laden boughs. The Japanese ambassador and his family, with the ladies sometimes in costume, go to pay their respects.

Everybody gets excited and fragrance mingles in the air with exclamations of admiration and delight. Arguments break out as to whether the blossoms are more beautiful this year than last.

Boys and girls, husbands and wives, walk hand in hand beneath the big white trees. Sentimentality buds and blooms, sometimes reappearing in hearts where it hasn't been known for years.

"Springtime in Washington" becomes a fond lifetime memory. The twentieth anniversary of the cherry trees, coming at a time when Japan is somewhat unpopular in America, recalls the pretty gesture which brought them here.

Mrs. Taft Responsible
EARLY in the Taft administration it was being discovered that they could grow in this vicinity. Miss E. R. Scidmore, a student and writer on Japan, suggested to Mrs. Taft that the Japanese cherry be planted along the new Potomac parkway, which was about to be landscaped. Mrs. Taft got on the job and soon the government was collecting all available cherry trees and setting them out as an experiment.

Japanese in this country got word to Japan, after asking Mrs. Taft whether a gift of 2000 cherry trees would be acceptable and being told they would. In November, 1909, the trees were sent as a gift to Mrs. Taft from Madame Osaki, wife of the mayor of Tokio.

Then the Department of Agriculture found the trees were infected by a parasite which its scientists considered dangerous. There was no way to disinfect them, so they were simply burned up.

Develop New Trees
INSTEAD of being peeved, the Tokio mayor and his city council proceeded to have trees developed which were free from the blight and in 1912 came 3000 tiny trees, which were shipped across country in a specially heated car. Mrs. Taft wielded the spade at the first official planting.

Later, in return, a group of Americans sent to the mayor of Tokio a number of small dogwood trees and seeds which now grow in the Japanese city and were regarded as producing the most beautiful wild blossom in this territory.

The Japanese trees here began to attract wide attention about three years after they grew up. They bear no fruit in this country, although similar trees do in Japan. Those which line the Tidal Basin blossom with a pinkish tinge, which they lost almost immediately, and become quite white. Emerging first, they are the most familiar. The pink double-blossom cherry trees line the automobile speedway which runs for miles out into the Potomac around Haines Point.

Two Dallasites Suicide Saturday

DALLAS, April 23.—Mrs. Elsie Lando, 25, bride of two weeks, and J. O. Williams, elderly grocer, died violently here today at almost the same time.

There was no connection between their deaths, however. Mrs. Lando staggered to an usher in the foyer of a theatre, saying, "I have just taken poison."

The usher thought she was joking but as she became ill he summoned an ambulance. She died at a hospital.

Williams was found dead behind the counter of his store, a shotgun wound under his heart and the gun nearby. He had one shoe and one sock off. Police said he had held the gun against his body and pulled the trigger with his toe.

BASEBALL Frosted Fruit Fattened Pigs

By United Press. BAKERSFIELD, Cal.—may make Hollywood queer but on the farm of James they make hogs fat.

Frost-bitten oranges, valueless to the grower, were to pigs on Moses' farm in experimental test. Five pigs for the test weighed 52.5 each when the experiment began.

On a diet of grain and oranges in which the grain was reduced in proportion to oranges, the pigs gained an average of 1.1 pounds a day for 30 until each weighed 66.2 pounds. Figuring the substitution angles for grain, the frost fruit was worth $2.80 a ton formerly it was valueless.

At first the pigs received 10 pounds each of oranges. Moses revealed, but the last of the experimental oranges they were receiving 15 pounds each.

That the porkers became peramental about the oranges is a fact to be taken into consideration, Moses said. At first the whole orange, not just the pulp, was fed.

The $10,000 salaries of the international joint commission will be cut to $5,000.

Farm Board Will Get Salary Cuts

the man HUNTERS
 BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY
SUSAN CAREY, an orphan, lives with her AUNT JESSIE on Chicago's west side, and works in the office of HERBERT WERTH, an architect. BEN LAMPMAN, a moody young admirer, takes Susan to a studio party, where she meets ARNOLD and SONIA STRINSKY and DENISE ACKROYD, a society girl. Later, lunching with BOB DUNBAR, young millionaire whom she met at business school, Susan sees Denise again. JACK WARING, Denise's assistant, tries to flirt and is rebuffed. Lonely when her aunt is away, Susan goes driving with Waring and she kisses her. He asks her to marry him and she temporizes. Her employer's wife snubs her. Susan hears Bob Dunbar is to be married and is heart-broken. Denise Ackroyd asks her to come to a week end party at her country home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXII
ROSE said, "You can take my white lace. It was only $18.50, marked down, but you can hardly tell it from the original model."
 "I'll take it," Susan demurred. "It's brand-new. Terry hasn't even seen you in it yet, has he?"
 "That doesn't matter in the least," Rose assured her. "Terry will have plenty of time to get used to it—the rest of the winter." Rose's pretty, rather florid face was aglow with enthusiasm.
 "You'll have to buy slippers, of course," she rambled on. "I think you ought to get bright blue ones, or maybe green. They're all wearing them this season." When Rose said "they" in that firm voice Susan bowed to her superior knowledge. Rose, an assistant buyer now, knew exactly what "they" were going to wear before "they" knew it themselves.
 For the 11th time that evening Susan said, "I can't go."
 "Nonsense!" Rose was very brisk. "It's the chance of a lifetime. Wouldn't I jump at it, though? And it isn't as if they were all strangers. After all, Ben's an old friend and these Strinskys—or whatever their name is—they're so 'nd all right."
 "Oh, they're terrible," Susan announced with simple earnestness. "If you ever saw them—"
 Rose gave this comment scant attention.
 "Well, you're not responsible for them anyhow," she said with calm. "Just go along and look your prettiest and have a good time. I'll come over tomorrow night and bring the bag. Wasn't it lucky the girls gave it to me last Christmas?"
 Rose arrived at 5 o'clock with the new dressing bag of green leather.

She stood up. Susan hugged her remorsefully.
 "You're so good," she said. "What makes you so good?"
 Rose viewed this remark dispassionately. "Well, if you don't take the greatest nonsense, Susan Carey!" she said. "As if anyone would be glad to see you enjoy yourself."
 "No wonder Terry is crazy about you," Susan cried. "I would be too, if I were a man."
 Rose made a face at her in the mirror. "A lot you know about what men like," she said good naturedly. "You, who won't even give poor Ben a little encouragement!"
 "Oh, Rose," cried Susan impatiently. "You know he's not my kind. He's so serious and moody, he bore me."
 "Well, he worships the ground you walk on. That's all I know about it," said Rose, putting on her hat. "You might be half-way decent to him once in a while."
 Susan looked despairing. It seemed no use trying to explain the irritation produced in her by Ben's jolting, earnest, devotion. It wasn't what she wanted. It annoyed.
 Rose gave the other girl's shoulder a reassuring little pat. "Nobody wants a to marry him, you goose," she said. "Just be friendly and nice. My mother always says that one beau attracts others and I think she's right. Anyhow, be nice to him at this party."
 "I will," Susan promised. She told herself she would try to be friendly but if Ben started any more nonsense about wanting to be engaged she'd have to snub him.
 She went about her work Friday almost in a daze. Her face was hot and her hands were like ice. She thought several times, wildly, of sending a telegram to Denise to say she was ill, but always the thought of seeing Bob Dunbar deterred her.
 Pierson snapped at her once or twice during the afternoon but she scarcely heard him. Susan's thoughts were all on the morrow. Her heart would thud painfully at the prospect. The fashionable world in which Denise moved and had her being was an uncharted land for Susan. There were no guideposts. Through the whirlpool of her reflections there persisted the nagging idea that Denise had some curious purpose in inviting her. Again and again Susan banished this thought.
 Rose arrived at 5 o'clock with the new dressing bag of green leather.

"It's much too nice. I shall be afraid something will happen to it," Susan worried.
 Aunt Jessie chimed in, "I declare I never heard of such fancy goings on. House parties!" she sniffed. "Isn't as if I knew the young lady's folks or anything."
 "I've told you," Susan said patiently. "Just who they are. Denise's father is Samuel Ackroyd of that old law firm. You've heard of them for years."
 Aunt Jessie knitted on steadily, her nose in the air. "Ackroyds!" she repeated, moved by some force, inner disdain. "Weren't they grocers when my own father drove his two black horses up and down Lake street? Indeed, my father had nothing to say to Ackroyds then. He was Dr. Thaddeus Carey!" she said to Rose who had heard the story a hundred times before.
SUSAN folded a pair of gossamer stockings and tucked them into the corner of the bag. Aunt Jessie's flow of conversation was not stemmed.
 "Couldn't my father have bought the Ackroyds' lock, stock, and barrel in those days?" she demanded indignantly. "Didn't the lake come right up into our front yard and the Ackroyds living in some hole or corner out south?"
 "Well," Rose supplied brightly, "they've come along since those days. They've got wads of money now and that's what counts."
 This decidedly was not the right answer. Aunt Jessie glared at her.
 "Manners were manners when I was a girl," she stated. "If a person wanted you to come to visit they at least had the decency to sit down and write you. But now, oh no, they can't be bothered!"
 Rose laughed. "Come on, you know you're pleased that Susan has this chance."
 "Indeed I'm not. It will be putting a lot of nonsense in her head and no good will come of it."
 Susan tried not to listen. They had been over all this before during the past few days.
 Rose leaned over and took the white lace frock from Susan. "Here, let me 'old that." With capable fingers she arranged the dress. "There, that's right. It won't need pressing or a thing but be sure to shake it out as soon as you get there."
 "I will."
 The two girls kissed. "Lots of luck," Rose whispered in Susan's ear. "And be sure to tell me what everybody wears."

AFTER she had gone Susan ticked off the various items on her fingers. The sheer underthings, the stockings. Rose had lent her all of these. Dear, good Rose! Kind Rose! She would make it up to her some day. Jessie had been bitter over the purchase of slippers but Susan, usually so docile, had held to her determination to get them. She must be properly dressed. She laid reverent fingers on the white lace, dreaming.
 Aunt Jessie's voice recalled her. "High time you were in bed," she was saying. Susan looked up with the dream still in her eyes. She was seeing not a middle-aged woman in a worn black dress but a smooth and polished dance floor on which a white-froked girl floated in the arms of a tall young man. "I declare, you don't seem to hear a word I say," Aunt Jessie complained, not without reason.
 Susan threw her arms around the older woman eagerly. "Say, you're glad I'm going. Say you're glad I'm having some fun at last!" she demanded.
 Aunt Jessie attempted to disengage herself but the strong arms held her fast. The rosy young cheek was pressed to her faded one. "You're wild as a young colt these days and that's the truth," Aunt Jessie cried. "There's no doing a thing with you."
 Susan released her, laughing in a sudden excess of high spirits. She prouetted around the sitting room. As the older woman watched, in some subtle way her expression altered. "I declare, she looks for all the world like father this moment," Jessie Carey was thinking to herself, half in awe. She reflected that Susan was a handsome girl and no two ways about it. She sighed. What could she give a young, high-spirited creature like this? A home, and a bride for her irrepensible enthusiasms? Was it enough?
 She shook herself free of this momentary weakness. "Susan Carey," she scolded quite in her usual form. "You pack yourself off this instant to bed."
 Susan went. Aunt Jessie felt suddenly old and tired.
 "I'd be glad if she married that young Lampman and settled down," she murmured as she wound the clock. "Then I wouldn't have to worry about her any more."

Demonstration Of Paint Draws Big Crowds In Ranger
 Calvin Brown, manager of the Pickering Lumber Sales company of Ranger, said Saturday that the paint demonstration put on in Ranger far surpassed his expectations.
 A. C. McCoy, paint expert from the True Paint company, put on the demonstration. Over 1,000 cans of paint were given away during the few days of the demonstration and an additional supply had to be ordered to supply the demands.

 Hundreds of bottles, vases, jars, jugs and other articles were painted by Mr. McCoy and his assistant during the demonstration and good crowds were present all during the day each day.
THREE RIVERS—Three Rivers Glass company factory resumed operations.

Adding Years of Health and Beauty
 When our mothers and grandmothers were forty, they were usually worn and prematurely old. The years lay heavily on face and figure.
 More often than not, a large family of children used up every ounce of energy, and seldom did you find a mother who was anything but a "home body."
 Women in those days were more than middle-aged at thirty-five and forty.
 During these last two decades health education, proper diet, scientific care before, during and after child-birth, more sensible and balanced living, have done wonders for the average woman, in adding years of health and beauty to her life.
 Women at thirty-five now are at their best—they retain their youth, beauty, interest in life and sports, and are far more companionable mothers, wives and friends.
 A regular yearly physical examination and a little co-operation in following the Doctor's advice, will add more happy, healthy years to the life of every modern woman—also true of the modern man.

You owe it to your family to pay your doctor first!

ONE BULLET WOUNDS MAN SIX TIMES. By United Press. SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—One bullet left six wounds in the body of C. H. Harrison, shot to death here. The bullet entered the upper left arm, passed through it into the body and out through the right arm, lodging in a tree. Thus there were two wounds in each arm and one in each side of the body. His slayer, pleading the "unwritten law," was freed by a coroner's jury.

"Tarzan, the Ape Man" Here Today. The strange story of a white man who was brought up in the jungle and lived in the tree-tops like the apes is told in "Tarzan, the Ape man," which will be seen Sunday at the Lyric theatre for two days. This is a screen version of the famous adventure novel by Edgar Rice Burroughs and the fact that it was directed by W. S. Van Dyke of "Trader Horn" reputation guarantees it to contain the full flavor of the African jungle in which dangerous and always exciting locality the plot is unfolded.

Fights with lions, apes, blood-thirsty pygmies and other wild animals; a spectacular charge of a herd of elephants through a native village; the imprisonment of an English safari and their escape from a man-eating gorilla pit play a prominent part in this story of jungle adventures. Principal interest, however, is centered on the fascinating romance of Tarzan with an English girl. Their life in the tree-tops and exploits in warding off the perils of the beasts and savages by which they are surrounded is said to make this one of the most thrilling pictures yet to come to the talking screen.

Johnny Weissmuller, world's champion swimmer, plays the title role, and the cast also includes Neil Hamilton, Maureen O'Sullivan, C. Aubrey Smith, Doris Lloyd, Forrester Harvey and Ivory Williams.

The man who says the right thing at the right time is rare. But not half so rare as the man who says nothing at the right time.

EASTLAND CHURCHES

ST. FRANCIS XAVIER CHURCH Sunday, April 23, mass at 10 a. m.

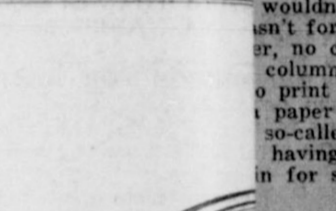

This is the fourth Sunday after Easter and the gospel read is taken from St. John 15:5-14. Why does Christ assure his apostles that he should go? First of all, because by his going to the Father he accomplished the work of our redemption. If he had not died on the cross and ascended into heaven, we should not be redeemed from sin and eternal damnation, and heaven would be barred against us. But the going of Christ was especially expedient for the apostles. They, like the rest, had an erroneous opinion of the Messiah and his mission; they thought that he would establish a temporal kingdom, and make the Jews the mightiest and most prosperous nation on earth. By separating himself from them he became evident that his kingdom was not of this world, and that the work of redemption referred, not to temporal evils, but to sin and damnation. To this must be added that the faith of the apostles was still weak, and their love entirely human and sensual. Only after Christ had risen from the dead and ascended into heaven, was their faith to become immovable and their love pure and spiritual. Lastly, as long as Christ was with them they depended wholly on Him and did nothing of any importance; but when he was no longer in their midst, they worked with indefatigable... therefore what the apostles considered as an evil was a blessing for them.
