

DEMOCRATIC ECONOMY BILL DEFEATED

Substitute For Patman Bill Is Being Urged

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES

Well, the fishing season was officially opened this morning just after the clock in the old belfry struck 12. That is, just after the clock in the belfry would have struck if there had been a belfry and there had been a clock in it and it was keeping time. Anyway, the fishing season opened and, according to indications Saturday, the creek banks and the lakes should be lined with fishermen by this time, even though, or maybe because, it is Sunday.

But Rev. H. B. Johnson, who either fishes when he isn't preaching or preaches when he isn't fishing, we have never discovered which, says that the fish won't bite until 11:36 a. m., central standard time, on Thursday.

The reason Rev. Johnson knows is because he paid four bits for a calendar. Maybe it was two bits. Anyway, the calendar shows when the fish are going to bite and when they are not. The calendar says that the fish are not going to bite until Thursday, so Brother Johnson is not going to fish until next Thursday. He wouldn't fish on Sunday, anyway, in spite of the calendar, though that is about the only thing that will stop him.

Saturday morning he told us about the calendar and we asked if he believed in it. He was surprised and grieved, not to say dismayed because we didn't believe in the fishing calendar—or at least because we questioned his belief in it.

"Believe in it?" he exclaimed. "Why, of course I believe in it. One day last October I told my wife to have dinner early because I was going fishing that afternoon. 'But you can't catch fish today,' she said. 'The wind is blowing out of the north and it is raining.' But I went anyway and caught four of the nicest fish you ever saw, one of a three-pound bass."

Our idea of fishing is different from some. Some people do not like to take fish hooks and lines along when they go fishing. Others do. We think that the little attachment pictured here is just about the handiest thing yet out.

and if we find one we are going to do a lot of fishing.

This little contraption works while you sleep. It's a neat holder for a fishing pole and will clamp on a tree, a stump, a boat or your wooden leg, if any. Now with a gadget like that one could fish with a minimum of effort while catching up on the sleep that was lost last night.

Calendar or no calendar, there is to be a large and assorted crowd of anglers out bright and early and remaining until late. Which reminds us that Brother Johnson did not tell us how the fish knew whether it was a biting day or not and we forgot to ask the fish fished on the other day.

Here's hoping that everyone who fishes will catch the biggest fish he has caught in years and years, including himself. Which would mean, in our case, one at least three or four inches long.

Battle Expects Big Tourist Trade For Next Summer

SEATTLE, Wash. (By United Press).—Despite the depression, the Chamber of Commerce here expects approximately $12,000,000 from tourist trade in the Pacific Northwest during the summer.

The Alaska tourist business probably will be the most active, with reservations indicated about $2,000,000 from this trade are expected to filter through the Northwest channels.

The Olympic games, the American Legion national convention at Portland and the International Fishing convention here were listed as major drawing cards.

OWEN-THOMAS BILL MAY BE DECIDED ON

Wright Patman May Offer It To House Ways and Means Committee.

By United Press. WASHINGTON, April 30.—A movement to substitute the Owen-Thomas soldiers' bonus plan for the "new currency" proposal of Representative Wright Patman of Texas was gaining ground tonight. It was learned authoritatively that Patman might offer the substitute to the house ways and means committee when he appears before the committee next week. The Owen-Thomas bill is for issuance of government bonds to the federal reserve bank. In return the government gets federal reserve notes to be used in paying veterans' adjusted certificates.

One leading advocate of the Patman bill, which calls for issuance of two billion dollars in new currency to pay off the veterans, said he considered the Owen-Thomas plan meets all objections of the opponents of the Patman measure.

"It would not be a drain on the treasury, does not call for issuance of any fiat money and would answer the argument that credit confidence might be impaired by passage of the Patman bill," he said.

Prof. Irving Fisher, the Yale university economist, and proponents of the Owen-Thomas plan in his testimony before the committee Friday.

Ranger Boys Is Named To Pick Others For Tour

Bob Earnest, senior at Ranger high school and son of H. P. Earnest, of the Prairie Oil & Gas company, has been chosen to select Ranger boys for a trip to the Olympic games this summer under the sponsorship of Ray Morrison, famous coach of S. M. U., Dallas. This announcement was made by Herbert L. Grant, director of the Rio Vista camps at Kerrville, patron of the tour.

Earnest will work with Morrison, Wendell Ley, Rice institute hurdler, and Foster Rucker, freshman coach at S. M. U., in selecting 37 Texas boys, who will meet in San Antonio July 11, and begin a 10-day trip along pioneer trails through the old west. On their itinerary will be Carlsbad Caverns, Juarez, Salton Sea, Imperial Valley, Catalina Island, San Francisco, Hollywood, Yosemite, and many other places.

During the 16 days of the Olympics the boys will camp on the Pacific outside Los Angeles, going in to the games every day, and following an athletic program of their own, designed by Ray Morrison. Morrison is arranging for the boys a series of personal conferences with outstanding international athletes.

Earnest will also represent the Rio Vista camps, which are entering their eleventh season on the banks of the Guadalupe river.

Ranger Masons Visit Breckenridge

A number of Ranger Masons visited the Masonic lodge at Breckenridge Friday night and assisted in conferring the Master Mason's degree on one candidate. Among those in the party were P. E. Moore, J. F. Donley, R. C. Stidham, E. M. Glazner, Dr. A. K. Wier, Rev. H. B. Johnson, D. L. Jameson, H. C. Lonsdale, Ed Dixon, C. E. May, T. W. Harrison and W. A. Hatt.

Yacht Believed On Kidnap Mission

NOFOLK, Va., April 30.—The motor yacht Marion was believed to be out at sea tonight on what may be the crucial voyage in efforts of John Hughes Curtis to recover the kidnaped Lindbergh baby. Persons closely connected with the negotiations said the yacht was not likely to return to port before Monday, certainly not before Sunday night.

COLLEGE STATION.—Construction to start about May 1 on new $200,000 petroleum-engineering experiment station-geology building at Texas A. & M. college.

Alienists Help Massie Defense

Testimony by two alienists that Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie's mind was a blank as a result of grief when he shot the native who assaulted Mrs. Massie may be the deciding factor in Clarence Darrow's battle for the defense. The defense alienists in the Honorable trial, Dr. Edward H. Williams, top picture, and Dr. Thomas J. Orbinson, are shown above.

HAIL DAMAGE REPORTED AT CRYSTAL FALLS

Rain, hail and high winds which visited Crystal Falls, 10 miles north of Breckenridge, Friday night, did damage estimated at more than $5,000.

Four buildings, all unoccupied residences, were reported blown down by the wind and hail killed more than 200 chickens in the vicinity.

The storm swept a path a mile wide and three miles long, devastating crops over the entire area.

Newspaperman who visited the scene of the storm this morning said that the hail was said by farmers to have been between "hankle and knee deep" over the entire territory as the storm subsided about 11:30 Friday night, and by mid-morning Saturday hail was still piling deep in many places.

Most of the damage of the storm was done to crops, entire fields being swept clean of vegetation, according to the reports.

Patton Held On Charge of Murder

DALLAS, April 30.—Ed Patton, 22, was arrested here today on a murder charge in connection with the killing of Robert H. Wall of Sallisaw, Okla., whose bullet-riddled body was found Tuesday morning at the foot of Wild Horse mountain near Sallisaw. He was arrested when he went to the general delivery window for mail. Officers said he confessed to the shooting. A companion wanted for questioning in the case, Vera Frazier, was also arrested in a car which belonged to young Wall, which was recovered.

Huge Capone Still Taken By Agents

CHICAGO, April 30.—Federal prohibition agents crashed into a 25,000-gallon-a-day Capone alcohol distillery after battling against the walls for 12 hours and summoning fire departments to pump out the fumes. The giant still, largest ever discovered in the middle west, was located in an abandoned brewery on Archer avenue.

Caldwell Sentence Reversed By Court

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 30.—The sentence of Rogers Caldwell, a bank robber, was reversed by the supreme court of Tennessee today.

The court granted the defendant a new trial, reversing the "responsibility" of Caldwell, who was arrested in the case of another bank robbery in Memphis.

ALLOWABLE OF EAST TEXAS IS LOWER STILL

AUSTIN, April 30.—The state railroad commission here today fixed a limit of 61 barrels per well daily in the East Texas oil field output for the first 15 days of May. A reduction to 59 barrels a day for the remainder of May was ordered.

The 61-barrel order, effective Sunday morning, retained the 325,000 barrels as the maximum daily output of the entire field.

Two rules are provided in the new order. One rule requires every tank wagon driver to have a ticket showing origin and destination of the oil he is handling.

Another rule requires recording of all oil taken out of tank bottoms and addition of the amount to the allowable production.

The commission hopes the first rule will aid in the state's collection of gasoline and production taxes. The second is based on the theory that every barrel of oil taken from the East Texas field must be computed as part of the allowable.

Mrs. Massie Is Peeved At John Kelley, Prosecutor

HONOLULU, April 30.—Mrs. Thomas Massie, whose husband and mother were found guilty of manslaughter along with two sailors in the killing of Joe Kahahawai, today refused to forgive the man who prosecuted the case.

Her rebuke to Prosecutor John Kelley came as she was leaving the courtroom while the jury was still considering the case.

"I want you to know that I have nothing against you, Mrs. Massie," the prosecutor said to her.

Mrs. Massie's eyes widened with anger.

"I find that hard to believe," she almost screamed.

She turned and walked away. Kelley previously had spoken to Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie and the two men shook hands.

Army Plane Smashes Into Trolley Wire, Hits Truck, Smashes Into Building and Kills Two Pilots

CHICAGO, April 30.—Two army air reserve fliers were killed late today when a training plane hit a street car trolley wire on a south side residential district street, dropped right side up in the street and taxied out of control at 75 miles an hour until reflected by a moving truck into the side of a brick building.

The impact caused an explosion that destroyed the plane, burned its occupants beyond recognition and set fire to the building. The victims were Lt. Charles H. Farro, pilot, and Lt. Henry Sandusky, both members of the army air reserves.

Pedestrians scurried to cover as the plane, an army type ship used for training purposes, hurtled down the street, swerving crazily. The occupants of the brick dwelling ran out as the plane struck. None were injured.

Waco Man Elected Cotton Assn. Head

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 30.—T. F. Bush, Waco, was elected president of the American Cotton Shippers association at the closing session of the annual convention here today. New Orleans was selected as the 1933 convention city.

The convention adopted a resolution urging a "fairer and complete investigation of the federal farm board operations" and demanding legislation to relieve the "injustice and oppression of the high tariff system."

The resolution also placed the association on record as "opening a fight to obtain lower telegraph and telephone rates."

Tagged Flounder Ends Age Question

OSLO, Norway.—How old can a flounder become, if it is not foolish enough to get caught. It can, it is declared by experts, achieve at least 20 years, and they point to one old granddaddy flounder estimated at that age.

The venerable flounder, whose length was 51 centimeters and weight 1.4 kilograms, was taken near Bergen, and when examined had attached to its tail a German mark now identified.

The tag proves that the flounder was marked by a German expedition near Seven Islands, off the Murmansk, June 21, 1913. The fish was then 29 centimeters long. During the following 18½ years it has grown 22 centimeters.

Indictments Are Returned Against Oil Theft Ring

HENDERSON, Tex., April 30.—The Rusk county grand jury returned 13 indictments today in connection with investigation of oil theft and "by-pass" reports in the East Texas oil field.

Authorities withheld names pending arrest of those charged. Officials said only smaller operators were involved. One of the indictments was for conspiracy to commit felony theft and two others were for felony theft. Each had more than one defendant.

Louisiana's Governor, No Huey!

Here's the first woman governor of Louisiana in the history of that state. Alice Lee Grosjean, 25, is acting chief executive of the Creole state during the 10-day absence of Governor Alvin O. King, who is attending governors' convention at Richmond, Va. Miss Grosjean was made Louisiana's secretary of state by Senator Huey Long when he was governor. She still holds that office. As Paul Cyr has vacated the post of lieutenant governor, Miss Grosjean automatically stepped into the governor's chair at Baton Rouge when Governor King, Senator Long's successor, went away.

SLAYERS HOPE FOR LENIENCY FROM JUDGE

HONOLULU, April 30.—Buoyed by hopes of judicial leniency, the four Americans convicted of manslaughter in the honor killing of Joe Kahahawai, remained in custody of naval officials tonight while the city seethed with discussions approving or condemning the verdict.

The prisoners, Lt. Thomas H. Massie, Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, mother of Massie's wife, and E. J. Lord and A. O. Jones, U. S. sailors, were remanded to naval custody immediately after a mixed jury pronounced their fate.

They are to be formally sentenced next Friday, at which time Clarence Darrow, famed Chicago attorney, who came out of retirement to defend them, will request a new trial. An appeal to the territorial supreme court is in course of preparation.

The appeal may be based on the action of Circuit Judge Charles M. Christy in "arbitrarily ordering" a reluctant grand jury to indict the defendants.

Hopes for light punishment were held out because of the jury's recommendation for leniency. There is a remote possibility of a suspended sentence, a bench parole which would require approval of the territorial prison board, or an out-and-out pardon by Governor Judd.

Winter Wheat Crop Short, Report Says

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Winter wheat in Central and Eastern States generally is in a good condition, but there is a doubtful looking crop of wheat in the great plains, the department of agriculture reported today.

"From Western Texas to South Dakota the grain has had to contend with dry weather, dust storms and freezing until the reports now indicate a heavy abandonment of acreage in parts of that region," the report said.

"Current reports point to a crop of hard, red, winter wheat, about half that of last year. The plains region as a whole apparently faces difficult crop conditions this season, with adequate moisture lacking and in the north a serious grasshopper infestation."

The quantity of wheat, including flour, exported last month, was the largest March exportation in three years, the department reported.

Clint Small Says Sterling Will Not Seek Re-election

DALLAS, April 30.—Senator Clint Small of Amarillo declared here today that "Governor Ross Sterling and his friends would like to shove me out of the race in favor of one of three men."

Small said his belief was that Sterling would not seek re-election. He said he would be no means be an administration candidate if he makes the race. He said Friday he would be a candidate if Sterling does not run.

"I made that announcement for the reason I wanted the people to know I was not tied up with Sterling," he said. "Sterling has indicated he will state whether he seek re-election within a week."

ROTARIANS TO LEAVE MONDAY FOR MEETING

A motorcade of Rotarians from Rancier will leave the Gholson hotel Monday morning to make the trip to Mineral Wells, where the tri-district convention will be held on May 2 and 3.

The Rancier club is sponsoring the candidacy of H. C. "Andy" Anderson as district governor of the 41st district. Election will be held at the convention on Tuesday.

Rotarians from all parts of Texas will gather at Mineral Wells tomorrow for opening day sessions of the first all state meeting of Rotary since the 1925 Galveston convention. Pre-registration reports indicated an attendance upwards of 1,200. The convention will continue through May 3.

Nationally known leaders of Rotary were expected to attend. The list includes Sir Charles Mander of Wolverhampton, England, past president of Rotary International; Claybrooke Cottingham, Pineville, La., past director, and Walter S. Jenkins of Houston, song leader of the international conventions at Chicago and Vienna.

The delegates will first meet in a group Monday evening at a union religious service at which Dr. William A. Anderson of Dallas will preach. Ed Shunway, Boy Scout director of Abilene, will direct the singing of the massed church choirs.

Dr. John A. Crockett, governor of the 43rd district, will preside at the Monday morning business session. Allen Guinn, chairman of the Mineral Wells Rotary conference committee, will call the sessions to order.

Sir Charles Mander is on the Monday morning program. John V. Singleton of Waxahatchie, past governor of the Texas district, will speak on "Texas Rotary history" at the afternoon session.

No set program has been planned for Monday evening. Tuesday morning sessions will open with Jesse A. McGill of Paris presiding. Clinton S. Anderson of Albuquerque, N. M., will speak on "The Governors of the World." District groups will meet at luncheon Tuesday and at the afternoon sessions separate business session will be held.

The conference is under direction of Tom R. Brooks Waco governor of the 41st district, John A. Crockett, Mission, governor of the 47th district and McGill, governor of the 48th district.

MERGING TWO DEPARTMENTS WAS SOUGHT

Defeat Climaxed a Week of Rebellion Against the Measure.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Democratic leaders suffered smashing defeat in their economic plans today when the House struck from the economy bill the vital section which would have consolidated the war and navy departments.

The section had been counted on to effect annual savings up to 100 million dollars. Its defeat indicated the leaders would be unable to muster the strength to push through an effective program of federal savings.

The elimination of the consolidation section climaxed the week of rebellion against economy measures which has swept from the omnibus economy bill a total of $118,500,000 in potential savings.

The successful fight against consolidation was led by two prominent Democrats, Martin of Oregon, a former member of the army general staff and Chairman Carl Vinson of the naval affairs committee. Republican minority joined almost to a man with insurgent Democrats to complete wreck of the bill.

Delegates Urged To Stay Out of Party Conventions

HOUSTON, April 30.—The anti-Tammany Democratic association of Texas assailed the state democratic loyalty pledge today and urged voters to show their resentment of it by foregoing participation in the presidential precinct conventions.

The appeal was in the form of a statement signed by Alvin S. Moody, chairman of the association, who organized the bolt of Texas voters to Hoover in 1928.

The loyalty pledge was described as "but another attempt to coerce the consciences of Texas voters and force brass collar rule in Texas."

"The pledge invites minority and arbitrary domination," said the statement, "where coercion begins, democracy ends."

"Whether legal or not the idea that 31 men in no sense truly representative of the political opinion of the state should be allowed to say no shall and shall not vote and this state is repugnant to every sense of justice and fairness."

"There remains but one course for men and women who are determined to repudiate the wet alien Tammany-like machine control of their national party—that is to remain away from these Texas presidential precinct conventions."

Sterling Is Sued For Second Big Houston Building

HOUSTON, April 30.—The New England Mutual Life Insurance company claiming that Governor Ross Sterling, his wife and trustees of the Post-Dispatch building had defaulted in payment of notes and other terms of a contract, filed federal suit today for foreclosure against the building.

The suit sets forth that the company owned notes on the 22-story building amounting to $1,500,000 and asked that the governor, his wife and the trustees be brought into court to answer why the building should not be foreclosed.

Several days ago J. M. West acquired the 21-story Sterling building opposite the Post-Dispatch building, for $1,644,071, of which $10 was paid in cash.

Jobless Men Make Auto Laundry Pay

By United Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Forced by desperation, resulting from unemployment, to start a business of their own, two young Kansas City men today were established in a profitable enterprise, which they started on $2.

The men, Cliff Schneider, 29, and Omar Hurst, 30, lost their jobs months ago. They conducted a frantic hunt for some means to support their wives and children. They counted their money one morning and found they had just $2. So they decided to go into business.

And they started a motor car laundry on a lot secured from a woman, who gave it to them rent free on condition that her son be included in the firm. They found it too expensive to tap a water main, so they made an arrangement to use water from a nearby filling station, paying the excess over the usual water bill.

They spent the $2 for polish and rags, and painted a cardboard sign. Business started with a rush. Then one of the partners decided customers would appreciate some means of amusing themselves while they waited for their cars.

Now the "laundry" has two small putting greens, a horseshoe court and a croquet set, and the firm's profits are mounting by leaps and bounds.

The Newfangles (Mom 'n' Pop)

FROM AGUSTA'S HOME TOWN! NOW EVERYTHING IS ALL SET FOR THE PARTY. WHAT A SURPRISE SHE'LL GET WHEN SHE SEES HOMER!

the man HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY
SUSAN CAREY, 19 and pretty, works in the office of ERNEST HEATH, architect. JACK WARRING, assistant to Heath, tries to make love to her but she is discouraged. Susan lives with her aunt and is usually strict. KAY FLANNERY, employed in the next office, makes friends with Susan and confides her ambition in life—to marry a rich man whether she loves him or not. Susan is secretly in love with BOB DUNBAR, millionaire's son she met at business school. She hears rumors that he is to marry DENISE ACKROYD, debutante. Susan refuses an offer of marriage from BEN LAMPMAN, serious-minded young musician. At a week-end party given by Denise Ackroyd, Ken and Bob fight over Susan. They run away from Bob and meet Ernest Heath, who asks him to take her home. He carries her back to the Ackroyds, thereby arousing his wife's jealousy. A few days later Heath informs Susan his wife has forgiven her for alienation of his affections.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVIII
WARRING entered whistling. It was the morning after Susan's birthday. His ruddy face under the thatch of smoothly combed, sandy hair was aglow with the consciousness of a good deed done.

"I feel like a blooming Boy Scout," he chuckled to himself, throwing his heavy ulster over a chair and beginning to sort his papers.

Susan came in looking as though she had spent a bad night.

"Good morning."

She looked at him in surprise, astonished that anyone should feel cheerful enough to call this morning good!

"Don't be so woebegone," he advised, seating himself on her desk and watching as she removed the small hat and hung away her coat in the closet reserved for that purpose. Suddenly he remembered.

"Surely you've heard the storm is over?" he asked incredulously.

"I don't know what you mean."

He took her hands and gave her a little whirl. "I fixed everything," he announced. "Me, the Boy Scout!"

"You what? Her face came alive. "Just what I said," the man insisted. "The danger's over and there's nothing for you to worry about."

"I don't believe it," Susan told him but her eyes danced just the same. "How did you do it?"

Warring put up one hand and struck an attitude of mock modesty. "It's not a story for little girls' ears," he told her. "All you need to know is that you're safe. The alienation suit is off."

"Then they've made it up!" Susan asked.

"I wouldn't exactly say that. The fact of the matter is Mrs. Heath has decided to get a divorce instead. A very polite, restrained, dignified Reno divorce.

"You mean she's—she's not going to drag me into it?"

"No, not at all. Why should she?"

"Oh, thank God!"

"Well, you might also thank me a little," Warring said irreverently. "I was the little flier, after all."

"I do! I think it was marvelous." She meant it. She thought she must have misunderstood this man. He seemed so kind now. He grinned, reading her thoughts.

"Do you think I can keep my job or will it be too awkward?" Susan asked.

"Awkward for whom? No one knows anything about it but the three of us. We like you here. Why should you trail around town answering want ads because a jealous woman has a brain storm?"

PURE that way, it seemed the most simple and reasonable thing in the world. Susan drew a deep breath and held up her head again. Everything was all right. She was grateful for her escape from danger and she put that gratitude into her work. The three men in the office, so different in background and tastes, felt the magic of her presence. The gray day was brighter because a young girl smiled at them.

"You're a funny one," Ray said again and again. "You seem perfectly happy just to work and not have any fun."

Susan did not try to explain the glorious sense of freedom and release which had come to her that morning when Warring had brought her the good news. It was enough just to be safe and secure. She no longer seemed impatient for good times.

Ray rushed in one day at noon and said excitedly, "Have lunch with me, won't you?"

Susan began to explain that she had planned to meet Rose.

"Please break it. Honest, this is important," Ray urged. Her dandelion locks were ruffled and there was a streak of mascara under one eye. Could Ray have been crying? Susan dismissed the notion but something in the other girl's air of suppressed excitement made her decide to go with her.

"Meet you in the lobby in 10 minutes," Ray threw over her shoulder.

There was no real privacy to be had in any of the restaurants where they usually lunched, but Susan spied a small table back near the kitchen in their pet "Sandwich Shoppe."

Harried waitresses brushed their shoulders with dangerously laden trays and once or twice both girls escaped a deluge of hot coffee but they managed somehow among the clatter and steam and gabble of tongues to achieve a small oasis of calm.

Ray began, "Honest, Susan, it gets my goat. I'm all in a lather about it!"

Susan looked her surprise.

"Do you mean to say you haven't heard? Sky was married last night at Crown Point. Sent me a wire, cool as you please. 'Congratulate me' he says."

"I didn't know you cared anything about him," said Susan.

RAY winked those preposterous lashes once or twice and her eyes were hard and bright as marbles.

"Sky was—well we were practically just like that," she said, holding up two fingers. "What burns me up is the way he did it. Not that I would have married him myself. Honestly, the kid hasn't got sense but we were out together Tuesday night dancing and he came up to the house afterward and he was just as sweet as could be."

Susan was mystified. If Ray thought Schuyler Webb hadn't got sense, why did she mind his having married someone else? Ray gabbled on.

"Course, I've heard him talk about this girl all winter but he always pretended he couldn't see her. She has scads of money. That's the answer."

"I thought Sky was rich," Susan murmured, feeling she ought to say something.

"Sky? He practically lost his shirt in the market last year. His drawing account was all used up. I knew that last week."

"Well, then," said Susan, remembering Ray's oft-repeated remarks about the folly of becoming a poor man's wife. "Well, then, you wouldn't have wanted him anyway. You know what you've always said about wanting a mink coat and a duplex apartment and a roadster."

Ray tossed her head and Susan could see a tear glittering on her lashes.

"A person talks," Ray said thickly and unsteadily. "A person says a lot of things that turn out to be hokey when a person finds out what it's all about."

Susan hated to look at her. She did not need to look to know that Ray was crying openly.

"I'm terribly, terribly sorry," she said. "I didn't know you cared at all." She was shocked beyond words at this exposure. To see Ray, so hard and bright and assured, thus shaken was a shattering experience. If this was love, thought Susan to herself, half humorously, half pityingly, it's something to stare clear of.

RAY dried her eyes and began to talk quickly and irrelevantly about nothing at all. She renewed her makeup and before they went out on the street she seemed her own, bright, slangy self. But Susan could not forget the glimpse of suffering she had seen. It made her fonder of Ray. This little dolled person was real. What a queer world, she mused! Ray had built herself a wall of philosophy and a stupid, rapid, ordinary young man had broken it down.

Of one thing Susan was certain. Ray would not be hurt in the same way again.

The incident awoke for a while the old pain Susan had felt about Bob. She had not heard from him since that eventful night at the Ackroyds. Where was he and what was he doing? She tried not to think of him but in her heart knew that daily she dreaded the news of his marriage. Would she ever rid herself of this foolishness? It was like a fever, an ague. You thought you were over it completely and then some word—some phrase—a strain of music, perhaps, would start it all over again.

She shook her head impatiently. This was getting her nowhere. She would be like Ray, cool and determined and ruthless. She would put Bob out of her heart forever.

Susan bent over her work, trying to efface herself in its calm impersonality.

A voice said at her elbow. "May I see Mr. Heath. Oh, I beg your pardon. How do you do?"

She felt shaken. Her heart plunged frighteningly. She heard herself say calmly, "Mr. Dunbar. How do you do?"

Astronomers Hunt Lost Baby Planet

By United Press.
LONDON—Albert is missing. Albert is a baby planet which has not been seen for 21 years. Recently hopes of finding him were revived when Dr. Delporte, of Upple, Brussels, discovered a minute heavenly body.

Albert's description, however, doesn't tally with that of the new planet.

Albert has a brother and a sister, called Ganymede and Alinda, and although each of these has been seen on several occasions since their discovery, their elder brother has refused to appear when astronomers were looking for him.

Alinda, however, has been the subject, of strong censure by astronomers on account of her name. As an erratic body, she should, according to convention, have been given a masculine name, and indignation is felt at this violation of what is, for some reason, regarded as a male prerogative.

All three members of the family complete their orbits in about four years. Albert and his baby sister are only three miles in diameter. At their nearest approach to the earth, they come within 20,000,000 miles.

There are indications that this new planet may help to estimate more exactly the distance of the sun from the earth. According to calculations, the new planet, although it is going away from the earth, was, when discovered, the nearest heavenly body, except the moon. Previously this distinction belonged to the planet Eros.

According to the investigations of Dr. A. C. D. Crommelin, a former president of the Royal Astronomical Society, the new planet was, at the beginning of April, only ten million miles away, while at the time of discovery it was probably much nearer.

French Hunting World War Dead

By United Press.
PARIS.—Thirteen years after the last troop were sacrificed in the World War, battlefield searchers are turning up bodies of unidentified soldiers at the rate of 23 a day. These official burying parties were sent into the famous battlefields of Verdun, the Marne, the Aisne and the Somme after Parliament voted 50,000,000 franc to find these missing dead and improve war cemeteries.

This French search of the battlefields is primarily intended to recover French and German dead. The British and American graves registrations services already have hunted through the zone and recovered thousands of bodies.

French officials have announced that since last September 1,042 known and 1,561 unidentified French bodies have been found and 455 identified, and 1,717 unidentified Germans. Several bodies of English were found and sent to British cemeteries.

Waves of searchers are sent over the fields. They have been aided in their work by farmers, whose plows often open up a hidden burial place. Many of the dead were buried in unmarked graves or the crosses blasted away by subsequent shellfire. Some of the dead were buried under heavy rocks and ground by shell explosions. Many injured men dragged themselves into shell holes, or dugouts and died there, to be covered later when those holes were filled in.

Rings, pencils and pens, and a few other metal fragments, are about all that remain with the bodies. It is from these few clues that the bodies are identified.

START FUND FOR EX-SLAVE.

By United Press.
BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—White friends have started a private pension fund for "Uncle" Simon Phillips, 85-year-old president of the Alabama ex-slaves' association, after years of campaigning on his part for governmental pensions to all ex-slaves. Thirty-one people have agreed to pay a penny a week to the fund as long as "Uncle" Simon lives.

Suggests a Texas Memorial Day on Monday, May 30

AUSTIN.—The Texas Centennial committee, through Will H. Mayes, executive vice president, suggests that memorial day be observed this year by Texans as a Texas memorial day, and that all public addresses be centered around the glorious history and achievements of our state.

Memorial Day, May 30th, will fall on Monday, and it is suggested that a Texas Memorial Day sermon be preached, in every church in Texas on the preceding Sunday, and that all social and civic clubs of every character holding meetings that week, have Texas memorial addresses delivered.

This is particularly appropriate this year, Mr. Mayes suggests, inasmuch as the public mind in Texas is fixed on a great memorial Centennial celebration on the 100th birthday anniversary of Texas in 1836.

Quoting from a San Jacinto address by Ex-Governor Neff: "A country should never forget its heroic and historic past. A people who do not hold in reverence the resplendent achievements of their ancestry will not of themselves accomplish anything worthy to be remembered by posterity. A citizenship that does not now and then take a backward glance at the landmarks already passed, will not develop sufficient vision to see very far into the future. We must keep an eye on the shades of yesterday if we would rock aright the cradles of tomorrow."

The centennial committee will be glad to mail historical data material on which such sermons and talks may be based, to those who send requests for same to its office at Austin.

The Senate investigation of the stock exchange was at least a novelty. Its seldom that the employees investigate the bosses.

Maybe the reason we can't collect our money is that the world has quit thinking about war debts and started thinking about war war.

Jobless Men Make Auto Laundry Pay

By United Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Forced by desperation, resulting from unemployment, to start a business of their own, two young Kansas City men today were established in a profitable enterprise, which they started on $2.
 The men, Cliff Schneider, 29, and Omar Hurst, 30, lost their jobs months ago. They conducted a frantic hunt for some means to support their wives and children.
 They counted their money one morning and found they had just $2. So they decided to go into business.
 And they started a motor car laundry on a lot secured from a woman, who gave it to them rent free on condition that her son be included in the firm. They found it too expensive to tap a water main, so they made an arrangement to use water from a nearby filling station, paying the excess over the usual water bill.
 They spent the $2 for polish and rags, and painted a cardboard sign. Business started with a rush. Then one of the partners decided customers would appreciate some means of amusing themselves while they waited for their cars.
 Now the "laundry" has two small putting greens, a horseshoe court and a croquet set, and the firm's profits are mounting by leaps and bounds.

Stable of Arabian Horses Is Donated To California

By United Press.
POMONA—California shortly will become the owner of the largest individual stable of thoroughbred Arabian horses in the United States.
 W. K. Kellogg, retired Michigan manufacturer, has announced that he intends to present his Kellogg horse ranch here to the state, together with an endowment for maintenance, to perpetuate the breeding of Arabian horses in California.
 Kellogg soon will confer with state officials to determine which branch of the state government shall assume charge of his gift.
 The retired millionaire has spent many years and hundreds of thousands of dollars in developing his Arabian stables. Several stallions in his stables are considered the finest of their breed in the world.
 During a recent visit of Governor James Rolph to the ranch, Kellogg followed an early day Spanish custom of California of presenting his departing guest with a gift. He gave the governor Count Potocki, a three-year-old thoroughbred Arabian. The prize mount will be trained as a saddle horse for the governor to ride in parades and other occasions.
 "Count Potocki's grandfather was bred in Poland by Count Potocki," Kellogg said. "During the World War he was disguised with mud and smuggled into Russia. Later he was taken to England and gained fame as a show horse. Lady Went worth, his British owner, refused $150,000 for him."

the man HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 SUSAN GARRETT, 19 and pretty, works in the office of ERNEST HEATH, architect. JACK WARING, assistant to Heath, tries to make love to her but is discouraged. Susan lives with her aunt who usually visits her in the office. RAY, a very polite, restrained, dignified Reno divorcee, comes to marry a rich man whether she loves him or not. Susan is secretly in love with BOB DUNBAR, millionaire's son she met at business school. She hears rumors that he is to marry DENISE ACKROYD, substitute. Susan refuses an offer of marriage from BEN LAMPMAN, serious-minded young musician. At a week-end party given by Denise Ackroyd, Ben and Bob fight over Susan. She runs away from Bob and, meeting Ernest Heath, asks him to take her home. He escorts her back to the Ackroyds thereby arousing his wife's jealousy. A few days later Heath informs Susan his wife intends to sue her for alienation of his affections.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVIII
 WARING entered whistling. It was the morning after Susan's birthday. His ruddy face under the thatch of smoothly combed, sandy hair was aglow with the consciousness of a good deed done.
 "I feel like a blooming Boy Scout," he chuckled to himself, throwing his heavy ulster over a chair and beginning to sort his papers.
 Susan came in looking as though she had spent a bad night.
 "Good morning."
 She looked at him in surprise, astonished that anyone should feel cheerful enough to call this morning good!
 "Don't be so woebegone," he advised, seating himself on her desk and watching as she removed the small hat and hung away her coat in the closet reserved for that purpose. Suddenly he remembered.
 "Surely you've heard the storm is over?" he asked incredulously.
 "I don't know what you mean." He took her hands and gave her a little whirl. "I fixed everything," he announced. "Me, the Boy Scout!"
 "You what?" Her face came alive.
 "Just what I said," the man insisted. "The danger's over and there's nothing for you to worry about."
 "I don't believe it," Susan told him but her eyes danced just the same. "How did you do it?"
 Waring put up one hand and struck an attitude of mock modesty. "It's not a story for little girls' ears," he told her. "All you need to know is that you're safe. The alienation suit is off."
 "Then they've made it up?" Susan asked.
 "I wouldn't exactly say that. The fact of the matter is Mrs. Heath has decided to get a divorce instead. A very polite, restrained, dignified Reno divorcee."
 "You mean she's—she's not going to drag me into it?"
 "No, not at all. Why should she?"
 "Oh, thank God!"
 "Well, you might also thank me a little," Waring said irreverently. "I was the little flier, after all."
 "I do! I think it was marvelous." She meant it. She thought she must have misunderstood this man. He seemed so kind now. He grinned, reading her thoughts.
 "Do you think I can keep my job or will it be too awkward?" Susan asked.
 "Awkward for whom? No one knows anything about it but the three of us. We like you here. Why should you trail around town answering unwanted ads because a jealous woman has a brain storm?"
 "Put that way, it seemed the most simple and reasonable thing in the world. Susan drew a deep breath and held up her head again. Everything was all right. She was grateful for her escape from danger and she put that gratitude into her work. The three men in the office, so different in background and tastes, felt the magic of her presence. The gray day was brighter because a young girl smiled at them.
 "You're a funny one," Ray said again and again. "You seem perfectly happy just to work and not have any fun."
 Susan did not try to explain the glorious sense of freedom and release which had come to her that morning when Waring had brought her the good news. It was enough just to be safe and secure. She no longer seemed impatient for good times.
 Ray rushed in one day at noon and said excitedly. "Have lunch with me, won't you?"
 Susan began to explain that she had planned to meet Rose.
 "Please break it. Honest, this is important," Ray urged. Her diamond locket were ruffled and there was a streak of mascara under one eye. Could Ray have been crying?
 Susan dismissed the notion but something in the other girl's air of suppressed excitement made her decide to go with her.
 "Meet you in the lobby in 10 minutes," Ray threw over her shoulder.
 There was no real privacy to be had in any of the restaurants where they usually lunched, but Susan spied a small table back near the kitchen in their pet "Sandwich Shoppe." Harried waitresses brushed their shoulders with dangerously laden trays and once or twice both girls escaped a deluge of hot coffee but they managed somehow among the clatter and steam and gabble of tongues to achieve a small oasis of calm.
 Ray began. "Honest, Susan, it gets my goat. I'm all in a lather about it!"
 Susan looked her surprise.
 "Do you mean to say you haven't heard? Sky was married last night at Crown Point. Sent me a wire, cool as you please. 'Congratulations' he says."
 "I didn't know you cared anything about him," said Susan.
 "Awful thing, I know. But Susan could not forget the glimpse of suffering she had seen. It made her fonder of Ray. This little doll-faced person was real. What a queer world, she mused! Ray had built herself a wall of philosophy and a stupid, rapid, ordinary young man had broken it down.
 Of one thing Susan was certain. Ray would not be hurt in the same way again.
 The incident awoke for a while the old pain Susan had felt about Bob. She had not heard from him since that eventful night at the Ackroyds'. Where was he and what was he doing? She tried not to think of him but in her heart knew that daily she dreaded the news of his marriage. Would she ever rid herself of this foolishness? It was like a fever, an ague. You thought you were over it completely and then some word—some phrase—a strain of music, perhaps, would start it all over again.
 She shook her head impatiently. This was getting her nowhere. She would be like Ray, cool and determined and ruthless. She would put Bob out of her heart forever.
 Susan bent over her work, trying to efface herself in its calm impersonality.
 A voice said at her elbow. "May I see Mr. Heath. Oh, I beg your pardon. How do you do?"
 She felt shaken. Her heart plunged frighteningly. She heard herself say calmly, "Mr. Dunbar. How do you do?"

Suggests a Texas Memorial Day on Monday, May 30

Senior Play
"The Prince Chap"
Scores Hit for Year's Events
Theatre goes, together with patrons and friends were given a rare treat Friday evening, when the senior class of the Ranger High school, entertained presenting a production which has proven more than a marked success for something different and unusual. "The Prince Chap" under the direction of Lota Wolford. The hour of play affording delightful entertainment was immediately endorsed through the warm applauding of the large audience.

As one entered the spacious auditorium made more attractive through the soft and colorful lighting effect, musical strains filled the atmosphere from a 14-piece orchestra, directed by R. L. Maddox. This group of musicians through any form of recent survey could not be excelled for their talent and ability. This feature of particular enjoyment was heard between acts as the minutes went winging.

Charming young ladies frocked in pastel models all of ankle length, and offset with striking accessories, served as courteous ushers. They were Misses Florene Killingsworth, Katherine Martin, Pauline Randolph, Crystelle Head and Deavla Shirley.

The curtain rose promptly at the named hour on a scene of rich color, an evening of the present day in the studio apartment of William Payton, played by none other than the popular Roy Sternens. Roy proved, much to the surprise of all his, ability as an actor of apparent poise, ease and all the true interpretations in keeping with the plot. His neat appearance and exceptionally good physique aided to a large degree in making his role quite splendid. Jack Rodney, played by Bobby Powell, was an individual treat within it self. The Mr. Rodney, a gentleman decidedly arrogant in manners had acquired to perfection an expensive English sounding accent. Phoebe Tucker, played by Louise Harris, displayed a role no other in the entire cast could have mastered so perfectly. No one would ever have guessed her none other than a professional.

A decidedly sweet and impressive part of the "Prince Chap" was made more real and touching through the fine acting of two blonde beauties, who displayed all ability needed for rare actresses. They were little Alice Louise Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Henry, and little Miss Dorothy Gene Bruce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd L. Bruce.

Mrs. Armitta Davenport, of Claudia, was well assigned to Mary Jane Driehoffer, who could safely be pointed to as one of the most outstanding members of the cast. Assuming her role to perfection, Mary Jane certainly has all the necessary talent and qualifications for production work. Alice Travers as Vera Hunt was also played in a commendable way. Smart clothes were gracefully displayed by Vera in her effected high-tail role of play. Claudia Arrington played by the ever dainty and charming Alla Ray Kuykendall, wearing just the right shade of blue to emphasize her type of beauty, was very dangerously fascinating.

Another character scoring an immense hit with every member of the audience was Maseus Runion, played by Glenn Cox. Builders of many unusual experiences could have gotten unique and clever tips from this senior member of the cast. Yadder, Fritz, Ballington, and truckman, played by members as Richard Conley, J. W. McKinney, James Brown and Norman Davenport, each fitted into the script, Christmas eve night in a true way. Ten years after the close of Act 2, five days before Christmas, in the sitting room of Mr. Payton's apartment, lavishly furnished and softened with rose hued lights the climaxing moment came in a thrilling manner. Claudia becomes the bride-elect of Mr. Payton, who during a period of ten years has attained valuable knowledge thru a disappointment in love, to find the true love in a source of one who loves and understands.

As a whole this comes as one of the finest and most appealing productions ever to have been viewed with senior students supplying the cast of characters.

Child Health Week Reminds Us, "Kids" Are Not Goats Who "Eat Anything."
No mother waits until Child Health Week, ushered in by Child Health Day on May 1, to feed her youngsters wholesome healthful food. That's a year round maternal duty that is sure as sunrise and right as rain. But this annual observance of our own American May Day does provide a special time for a little concentration on dishes children like, and for learning new recipes for their gratification. Of course, in addition, every homemaker will want to cooperate with the national program by heeding the advice in the chosen slogan: "Support your community child health program! It protects your home."

"Kids" they may be, but, contrary to superstition will not, like the goats, "eat anything," particularly if they are nervous or "finicky" youngsters. They are more sensitive to textures, flavors, temperatures and odors than adult consumers. To consume warm milk, cookies, etc., also must be done in moderation.

tionists, will be found equally suitable for the home dietary; they adhere to the rule "simple but festive." Note that many of them contain dates, one healthful fruit that is as popular with nutritionists as it is loved by children.

Health-Winner Sandwich Spread
1 pkg. pasteurized dates
2 cups (1/2 lb.) salted peanuts
Orange juice, cream, salad dressing, or hot water
Put pitted dates and nuts alternately through food chopper, using the fine knife. Knead to a paste, adding liquid to make mixture of the proper consistency to spread. Filling for 24 sandwiches.

May Day Whip
1 pkg. orange gelatine
1 cup boiling water
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1 cup orange juice or water
1/2 pkg. pasteurized dates
Dissolve gelatine in boiling water; add orange juice or cold water. Cool until mixture begins to thicken; pour half the mixture into stemmed serving glasses; cover with the 1/2 cup of sliced dates and nuts; set in a cold place. Cool the remainder of the gelatine until partially set; beat with a rotary beater until fluffy. Pour the whipped jelly over the clear mixture containing dates and nuts. Chill until firm. Serve with whipped cream. Serves 4.

Cocoanut Butter Crisps
4 tps. baking powder
3 tps. flour
1/4 tsp. salt
2 cups brown sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 lb. pkg. shredded cocoanut
Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cream butter, stir in sugar gradually, then beaten eggs and vanilla. Mix thoroughly; stir in cocoanut and sifted dry ingredients. Press dough into a buttered carton open at one end or shape into rolls about two inches in diameter. Chill for at least three hours. Cut into 1/8 inch slices with a sharp knife. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 to 400 degrees F.) for 10 to 12 minutes. 48 cookies.

Orange Blossom Souffle
4 tps. butter
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup milk
3 eggs
1 tsp. lemon juice
1-3 cup sugar
3 tps. orange juice
Grated rind of 1/2 orange
1/2 pkg. shredded cocoanut
Melt butter, add flour and salt. Mix thoroughly. Add milk slowly, stirring while adding. Cook until smooth and thick, stirring constantly. Cool. Then add beaten egg yolk, sugar, fruit juices, orange rind, and the 2-3 cup of cocoanut. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a well greased baking dish. Place dish, uncovered, in a pan which contains one inch of hot water. Bake for one hour in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.). Serves 6 to 8.

Hints for Mothers
Serve peeled orange sections rolled in shredded cocoanut for a simple dessert. Spinach will be eaten more readily if a section of canned grapefruit reposes on top, or a section of hard-cooked egg appears on the bottom. Breakfast cereal goes down without tears if a few pasteurized dates are dropped into the oatmeal or other cereal just before serving. A glass of milk, too, will be more popular if a few of the dates are found in the bottom of the glass as "rewards." Sprinkle or plain, on top the cornstarch pudding. Custard is more inviting if a spoonful of jelly is tucked into the middle and the top sprinkled patties make a delicious dessert sauce. Youngsters will eat cottage cheese if it is used to stuff dates for lunch. Lettuce actually may be encouraged by lightly springing the leaves with sugar and rolling them up.

We often hear that carrots are "good for the complexion," but seldom stop to reason why. However, food chemists have investigated and experimented and have made available a quantity of data explaining just why carrots are so valuable from a health standpoint.

Next to onions, carrots are the most efficient blood-purifiers. They rank next to spinach in iron content. Two reasons for clear complexions and sparkling eyes! Vitamin A is found in carrots. This puts carrots in the list of foods with cod-liver oil, butter fat, egg yolk and the leaves of green vegetables.

To gain the most benefit from the vegetable as a beautifier, it should be eaten raw. Then there is no loss of vitamin C. Carrots in B. Both these vitamins are somewhat affected by careless cooking and there is apt to be loss of minerals. At this time of year carrots are at their best, tender and sweet, so use them "au naturel" in every way possible.

Carrot straws add a charming bit of color to a tray of relishes. Grated raw carrot is good in any vegetable salad. Rings of carrot filled with highly seasoned cream cheese make attractive appetizers. In making carrot sticks, straighten the carrots by slicing them through the center of the carrot contains practically none of the valuable substances found in the rich golden flesh.

The cheapness of carrots puts within the reach of every family those food elements which are essential to growth, health and vigor. Strong muscles, red blood, sound teeth, firm flesh, straight bones, glossy hair and clear skin are the result when vitamins and blepspoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-3 cup coarse stale bread crumbs. Arrange carrots and onions in alternating layers in a well buttered baking dish, sprinkling minced peppers through each layer. Melt butter, stir in flour and when bubbling add milk, stirring constantly. Add salt, sugar and pepper and bring to the boiling point. Pour over mixture in the baking dish. Cover and bake 30 minutes in a hot oven. Remove cover, sprinkle with crumbs, dot with bits of butter and return to oven to brown. Serve from baking dish.

You can use "carrots" as a "stretcher" with more expensive vegetables. Carrots and peas, creamed cauliflower in a border of buttered carrots, asparagus with carrot sticks—almost any vegetable combines well with the colorful carrot.

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Orange juice, cereal, cream, fried cornmeal mush, maple syrup, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Beet soup, toasted cheese sandwiches, pineapple and rice pudding, milk, tea.
DINNER: Larded calf's liver, rice potatoes, glazed carrots, grapefruit and sweet pepper salad, caramel pie, milk, coffee.

National Music Week
Eastland Celebrates 9th Year.
The Music Study Club of Eastland will open its ninth annual observance of National Music week with the special programs arranged for the Eastland church services through chairmanship of Mrs. J. M. Perkins, Music week chairman for Eastland city.

The program of the week is announced in calendar form in this paper. Every event is open to the public and those interested from surrounding towns are invited to attend. Especially is this invitation extended for Tuesday night, May 3, at 8 o'clock, when a fine arts recital will be given in the Methodist church and presented by musicians from Ranger, Cisco and Eastland and program supported by Drago organizations in violin ensembles, under chairmanship of Mrs. W. K. Jackson.

Annual Music week has been observed by the Eastland Music Study club and co-operating Eastland organizations with signal success.

National Music week in Eastland opens with the musical spring flower show Sunday, in community clubhouse, from 2 to 7 p. m., with program presented by junior artists under chairmanship of Mrs. A. F. Taylor and other teachers of music of this city. Public invited.

The Music club will study "American Music" next season. The present list of club programs will terminate with the next meeting on May 13, the closing business session, at which time the new officers take their places.

The presidency of Mrs. Grady Pipkin has been marked for its efficient harmony with club work and club personnel. Mrs. Pipkin closes her second term of office with an enviable record to her credit.

Churches to Observe Music Week.
Today is the opening of Music week, and special services in all the churches both morning and evening, will fittingly observe the beginning of Eastland's tribute to art. At 4 o'clock in the community clubhouse a junior artists' program will be given. The spring flower show will make a background for this concert. Special music will feature all Monday programs. All programs are open to the public and free.

Program for Methodist Church Services Today.
Sunday school, 9:45 a. m. Morning worship, 11 a. m. Prelude, Mrs. Gibson. Call to Worship, choir. Hymn No. 458, "Jesus I My Cross Have Taken."
Pastoral prayer. Responsive reading, Ps. No. 116. Gloria Patri. Offertory, Mrs. Gibson. Anthem, choir.
Sermon, Rev. George W. Shearer. Hymn No. 490, "Savior More Than Life to Me."
Benediction. Postlude, Mrs. Gibson.
At the evening services there will be special music, the Drago orchestra and Methodist choir appearing in this program.
A personal invitation is extended to everyone.

Women's Missionary Society.
The Women's Missionary society of the Methodist church will meet Monday at 2:30 p. m. in regular meeting. Reports will be made by delegates to the annual conference of the Women's Missionary society

"Hobo Detective" Gets Jungle Man

By United Press.
SANTA CLARA, Calif.—Trailed from "jungle" to "jungle" by an aged hobo whom he assertedly clubbed and robbed, Steve Allen, 45, an itinerant was jailed on robbery charges here.

The aged nemesis was Ralph Edwards, 70.

Edwards' story, as told by Allen, was that he was awakened "jungle" here last November by a man who stood over him with a bludgeon. The club descended, he said, and knocked him unconscious, but not before he saw the face of his assailant.

When he recovered, he said, he found he had been robbed of $3 and a watch.

Edwards said he swore vengeance and as soon as his wound was dressed, started the hunt.
